Carmen Campaign Underway

BY CYNTHIA BLACK

There were 750 cheering supporters on hand Sunday night when William Carmen made his official bid for the mayor's job.

Carmen, 54, is seeking the city's top administrative post for the third time. In the 1971 election, he lost a four-way race by 900 votes to Newton's current mayor.

"Love" was the key word in his speech Sunday, made before an inundation of people that "exceeded our wildest estimates", as one aide put it.

"Unity" was another word that popped up frequently in the candidate's remarks and in the remarks of those who introduced him.

State Representative Paul H. Guzzi, chosen to officially present Carmen to November's voters, had this to say:

"All too often many of us have not united behind causes to improve this city. I think this is a new beginning for us in our sense of unity in our own ranks behind a man who has contributed significantly to our city."

Guzzi, rumored at one point to be considering entering the race himself, characterized Carmen as a man who "has extended himself to many people over the years."

"I agree with the message of unity which comes across quite vividly this evening," Carmen began. "The organization required to produce this event (the reception) is indicative of the energy and dedication we will see in this campaign."

Carmen, who has lived in Newton since 1935, told his supporters this campaign is going to be "a united effort like none other in Newton's history."

He commented that he intends to work on "engendering a social conscience" in the community during the months of his campaign, and hinted at a plan that will be proposed during the campaign, calling it "a unique and innovative plan to reduce the burden on the over-taxed homeowner."

Third Mayoral Candidate Possible

The possibility of a run-off election in the mayoral race this fall loomed larger this week after a third potential candidate made his intentions known.

Alan MacNeil of 168 Walnut St., took out nomination papers Tuesday afternoon for the mayoral post. Mayor Theodore D. Mann also picked up his nomination papers Tuesday, the first day they were available to prospective candidates.

William Carmen, who announced his candidacy Sunday, had not taken out his papers as of Wednesday.

Under new laws, a preliminary election will be held in October if there are more than two candidates for mayor. Only two names will appear on the November ballot, ending a long tradition of vote splitting between candidates.

MacNeil, well-known in Newton, is active in the American Party.

Others who had secured their nomination papers by Wednesday were three incumbent aldermen, Thomas Concannon (Ward 2), Board President Eliot K. Cohen (Ward 8) and Edward Richmond (Ward 2 at large).

Potential Challengers to incumbents as of Wednesday included: Cynthia Lacey of 15 Manhatten Terr., Ward 3 alderman; Susan D. Schur, 130 Nehoiden Rd., Ward 5 alderman-at-large; Sumner R. Silton, 76 Moffat Rd., School Committee, Ward 5; Nicholas Nardone, 39 Sharon Ave., Ward 4 alderman-at-large; and Alan Katz, 19 Old Winchester Rd., Ward 8 alderman-at-large.

Redistricting Changes Made

Newton may wind up with a new redistricting plan, according to action taken on Beacon Hill this week by the Legislative Redistricting Committee.

The committee voted to accept a compromise redistricting plan that was originally prepared by a subcommittee of the Newton Democratic City Committee.

The revised plan reunites Auburndale into one district to be represented by State Rep. Paul H. Guzzi. Other adjustments, according to Redistricting Committee Chairman Rep. George Kevarian, are minor.

The primary objection in Newton to the original redistricting proposal for the city was the division of Ward 4 into three separate legislative districts. Under the current plan, Ward 4 will be split between two districts, the bulk of it going to Guzzi.

Ward 4's precinct two will be in State Rep. David Mofenson's district.

Rep. Lois Pines loses the portion of Auburndale that was originally placed in her new district.

According to State Representative Peter F. Harrington, the revised plan is:

16th Middlesex District: Ward 2 precinct 4; Ward 3; Ward 4 precincts 1, 3, 4.

17th Middlesex District: Ward 7 precinct 2; Ward 1; Ward 2 precincts 1, 2, 3.

18th Middlesex District: Ward 4 precinct 2; Ward 5 precincts 1, 2, 4; Ward 6 precincts 2 and 3; Ward 8 precincts 3 and 4; Needham Precinct H.

19th Middlesex District: Ward 5 precinct 3; Ward 6 precincts 1, 4; Ward 7 precincts 1, 3, 4; Ward 8 precincts 1, 2.

Guzzi's district, the 16th Middlesex, will now include Auburndale, West Newton and a portion of Newtonville.

Pines district, the 19th Middlesex, will run from the northern portion of Waban east through Newton Centre to Chestnut Hill, Oak Hill and Baldpate Hill.

The district drawn for Harrington, the 17th Middlesex, will include the major portion of Newtonville, all of Nonantum and Newton Corner.

Mofenson's district, the 18th Middlesex, remains the same as in the original plan and includes Newton Lower Falls (the other precinct of Ward 4), the southern portion of Waban, Newton Highlands, Newton Upper Falls and the slice of Needham.

Sidney Hill Changes Hands

The necessary legal papers have been passed in the multi-million dollar purchase of the Sidney Hill Country Club and the nine-acre recreational complex is now owned by a new three-man partnership.

David M. Gordon of Weston, manager of the club for 12 years under the old owners, has joined with two Randolph land developers in making the purchase and the three are planning an extensive membership drive among the 21 to 40-year-old age groups.

The Weston man joined a partnership with Philip Shannon and Henry Sandler about a year ago and they established the Highland Glen Club in the South Shore Community.

He became manager of the club which was modeled on the Sidney Hill concept of family oriented, recreational facilities without a golf course.

Gordon will again take over the managerial duties of the Chestnut Hill complex which was established in 1956 by Joseph Linsey and Leo Allen, both well known philanthropists.

According to Gordon, no physical changes are anticipated at this time but he did add that additional emphasis on recreational facilities for young marrieds will be the keynote of the new operation.

Gordon, Shannon and Sandler have planned a meeting of current members on May 9 and will present them with, as Gordon termed it, the "Shangri-La concept."

He explained he saw professional men and others engaged in concentrated mental activity "unwind" at the club's tennis courts, health rooms or swimming pools.

"They went back to work as if they had been on a vacation," said Gordon, who added, "this concept will continue to provide a place for men to relax and exercise within a short distance from their homes."

"Also," stated the club's returned manager and now part owner, "families will no longer have to be separated during vacation periods because of the professional man's work schedule."

"Now they can enjoy all the advantages of resort areas and summer camps right here in Newton," he concluded.

The new owners of the recreation complex have taken over a club which, according to a recent study of the Newton Community Relations Commission, is among the most open in admission policy of any in the city.

That study cited Sidney Hill as the only country club in Newton with a mixture of all races and religions on its membership roll.

Executive Secretary Jerald Stinson of the commission indicated that most members of his organization were agreed that the club's admission policy was partly based on business motives, but after deliberate consultations with the managers they were also convinced the policy was the result of the philosophical intent of the previous owners.

"We really don't expect any change in policy even though the club has changed business hands," stated Stinson.

Move To Save Webster Vale

A citizen campaign has been launched to save the land in Chestnut Hill known as Webster vale.

Residents in the area of the vale, at Madoc and Carlisle streets, have formally requested the city take the land by eminent domain and have now begun a citywide campaign to raise the local portion of the money that might be needed to buy the parcel.

Mayor Theodore D. Mann this week, in the wake of approval of landtaking by the Newton Conservation Commission and citizens requests, said he would submit a request to the Board of Aldermen seeking money for appraisals of the vale.

He said the City Planning Department was discussing the possible landtaking with state and federal officials. State and federal funds are available for 75 per cent of the cost of this type of aquisition.

"We have a magnificent piece of land here," the mayor said, "and we should do everything possible to preserve its integrity. Once you build on it, you can't get it back."

He said he was "hopeful" the area citizen campaign to raise the city's portion of the purchase price would be successful.

There will be a meeting Tuesday, May 8, at 8 p.m. in the home of Sharon and Harry Francis, 45 Monadnock rd., Chestnut Hill, to launch the citywide fund raising campaign.

The present owner of the land, Attorney Robert Cohen, has plans to build four duplex houses on one edge of the parcel and has maintained throughout discussions that he had no intention of disturbing the vale itself.

At a Conservation Commission meeting last week, commission members voted unanimously to recommend city purchase of the land. Earlier, a compromise recommendation had been made that the commission go along with Cohen's plans to construct the duplex houses and a home for himself on the high west ridge of the site.

The four duplexes had previously been approved by the city.

Observers have suggested that if a landtaking proceeds, Cohen will take the matter to court. At the commission meeting, he commented that he felt he has sufficient evidence to "make the city hard pressed to justify" a landtaking.

Cohen acquired the eight-acre parcel in the late 1960's for $20,000.

City Planning Director Charles Thomas, acknowledging the fact he is not a professional appraiser, said at the meeting the land might now be worth as much as $120,000.

Citizen leaders, however, have questioned the figure and estimated the appraisal figure would more likely be in the neighborhood of the original purchase price.

The citizen group, led by George Upham of Elgin street, has already gathered 2,400 signatures on a petition favoring the landtaking.

The vale, a parcel from the old Webster Estate, is of interest to conservation groups in the city because of its undisturbed ecology and the fact that it contains the headwaters of a brook, the Thompsonville Brook.

At the Conservation Commission meeting, H. Garrison Wilkes, president of the Newton Conservators gave his support to the acquisition and said the vale is the only site in Newton where the entire headwaters of a stream are reserved in an "unspoiled condition."

In an ecological study prepared by Lawrence Kaplan, professor of biology at the University of Massachusetts and a member of the Newton Conservation Commission, the land was described as a "resource for teaching and enjoyment that many communities would covet."

Kaplan noted in his study that the vale contains stable com-

Legislator Tells Busing Stance

State Representative Peter F. Harrington decided this week to support a bill before the State Legislature requiring parental consent prior to any busing of school children.

The bill was expected to come to a vote Wednesday. In the event it lost, Harrington said he would vote against a bill to abolish the racial imbalance act and against a proposal to require a referendum in a school district before the district could be changed.

Harrington, explaining his position, said he "personally believes in the concept of sending grammar school children to the school nearest to them."

In Newton, the state legislator said, when people buy a house, they consider the school in the area before making the purchase."

"This is a valid consideration," he said. "And if its valid in Newton, the people in Boston should not be labeled 'racists' when they say the same thing."

Harrington said he was taking his position because he feels the accusations of racism are overriding the "real issue which is quality education."

Talking about racial imbalance is a "sop to the liberal conscience," Harrington also stated and said he does not feel

Gas Contract Settled

The price is going up, but Newton will have a municipal supply of gasoline.

An agreement between the Atlantic-Richfield Co., Newton, and sister communities Waltham, Brookline, Watertown and Belmont was reached Friday and confirmed this week.

According to the mayor's office, the price for a gallon of regular gasoline will now be 22.5 cents as opposed to the 16 cent per gallon charge under the contract that expired at the end of April.

City officials expressed fears last week that oil interests were holding out on municipalities in order to command higher prices under new contracts.

Mayor Theodore D. Mann noted however that the negotiating communities had reached an agreement with Atlantic-Richfield providing for a sliding price scale and Newton's cost per gallon will go down when Atlantic-Richfield's does.

Administration instruction to fuel up vehicles and fill storage tanks to the brim last week were carried out and the city does have at least a two-week supply of gas at the old rates.

At a meeting of the Massachusetts Mayors Association last week, Mann introduced a resolution dealing with the gasoline shortage that was adopted by the group.

The resolution calls on the president, governor, congress, and state legislature to take whatever "steps as are necessary to immediately resolve the problem."

The resolution also asks for a congressional investigation of the gasoline shortage and the development of a program to combat the "pending emergency."

Newton uses about 500,000 gallons of gasoline per year.

THIS POOR SOUL being so ably taken care of by his friends and fellow-scouts really wasn't all that seriously injured. Feigning a broken leg, Dan Brown was helping in a demonstration last Saturday at the Scout Show at Newton South High School. Demonstrating their skill at aiding a fallen comrade were (from left): Mike Campbell, Tom Connolly, Donald Campbell and Steve Burke. More than three dozen scout units were on hand for the big show, unveiling a variety of skills and presenting many exhibits of their work. (Photo by Anthony Lupo Jr.)

Have A Ball— This Will Be A Real Picnic...

The stage is set... the orchestra is poised to play... the candles are lit on the birthday cake... the curtain is about to rise...

The month long "something for everyone" celebration of Newton's 100th Anniversary as a city gets underway this weekend with the festive Centennial Ball at Boston College and the Family Day at City Hall Mall.

More than 1600 reservations have already been received for the ball, which takes place at McElroy Commons, Saturday evening, May 5, starting at 9:30 p.m., and last minute demand for tickets has become so heavy that the Ball Committee will sell tickets at the door.

"We are concerned that tickets delivered through the mail at this late date will not reach purchasers on time," said ball committee chairman Mrs. James V. Sidell and reservations chairman Mrs. William Lanciloti. "We want to accommodate everyone who wishes to attend this inaugural event in the Centennial Celebration, so we have adopted this new ticket sales policy."

Accordingly, ball committee vice-chairman Mrs. Robert Tennant and ticket chairman Mrs. Martin Saklad have recruited an additional committee of hostesses to staff ticket booths at McElroy Commons Saturday evening.

General admission tickets to the ball, priced at $5 each, include free champagne, dancing to the music of the Ruby Newman orchestra, a program of international entertainment and midnight refreshments. A special 10-tier birthday cake, donated by the Marriott Motor Hotel, will be cut and distributed to guests.

Senior citizens to be honored with first slices of the cake include Miss Adelaide Ball, former alderman who has been a leader in the Newton Council for Aging and Mrs. Harriet Brooks, who celebrates her 100th birthday on May 5.

Master of ceremonies Frank Avruch, host of the television series, OUTLOOK: NEW ENGLAND will introduce such dignitaries as Senator and Mrs. Edward W. Brooke, Mayor Theodore D. Mann, and the city's elected officials.

The entertainment program will include colorful presentations by groups performing native dances from Scotland, Italy, Ireland and the Ukraine.

Schools' Music Extravaganza Highlights Centennial Program

A Music Spectacular celebrating the Newton Centennial will be held Sunday, May 13th, at 7:30 p.m., in Roberts Hall, Boston College.

The Newton Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Michael Sasson, will begin the program with a Russian Easter Oratorio by Rimsky-Korsakov. Later in the program, the orchestra will present the world premiere of an original cantata by Henry Lasker entitled, "Oath of Hippocrates."

Michael Sasson, Egypitan-born conductor of the Newton Symphony Orchestra and violinist with the Boston Symphony, was instrumental in the foundation of the orchestra seven years ago, and is currently responsible for its continued growth and success. Numbering 80 players, the orchestra performs annual concert series for both children and adults.

"Oath of Hippocrates," composed by Henry Lasker, instructor of Music, Newton High School, is the featured presentation of the Newton Symphony Orchestra. Accompanied by the Newton North High School Chorus, directed by Raymond Smith, and the Newton South High School Chorus, directed by David Arner, the arrangement sets to music the famous Hippocratic Oath and will be performed with choral speaking parts, a method used in ancient Greek plays.

A member of the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers, Lasker has created compositions for ballets, musicals and operas. National and international notariety was received for his production of "Jack in the Beanstock," an opera for children. Lions Sponsor Eye Tests For Pre-School Children

Free "Lazy Eye Tests" for pre-school children ages 3 - 6 will be offered in Newton on May 5, from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the Outpatient Department, Newton-Wellesley Hospital.

The program is sponsored by the Newton Lions Club, the Opthalmology Department of the hospital and the Newton Health Department.

"Lazy Eye" is the popular term for an eye condition, medically known as amblyopia, which affects children from 3 to 7 years of age. There are some 5 million Americans who are the weak eye, thus correcting probably suffering from amblyopia which could have been prevented by a very simple and painless test. One in 20 children, ages 3 to 5, have a vision problem and about one-fifth of these have amblyopia.

Amblyopia means that a child has a weakness in one eye, caused from lack of use of the eye. The treatment is simple if the condition is caught in time. An opthalmologist or eye specialist will prescribe the wearing of a patch over the good eye forcing the child to use the problem without surgery, drugs or hospitalization. The results are amazing and usually the child regains his former good sight within a matter of a few months.

Health officials warn parents that if amblyopia is left untreated for a period of time, serious sight impairment can take place later in life. Since the test is so simple and the treatment so easy, there is every reason for all parents to bring their children to the Lazy Eye Testing Program which will not cost anything and is provided as a community service by the sponsoring agencies.

Treatment of amblyopia or dimness of vision in one eye can be started as early as the first year of life, or as soon as the need for it is discovered. All children who are suspected of having this condition will be referred to an opthalmologist or eye specialist for further examination of the eyes.

Officials urge all parents to bring their children to the hospital for this simple test if they are between the ages of 3 to 6. Pre-school children of at least 3 years of age are particularly urged to have the test.

Unveil Plans For CommAve. Arboretum

VIEW OF PROPOSED NEWTON ARBORETUM — An artist's conception of a Newton Arboretum, with City Hall in the background, were presented April 26 at a meeting at City Hall. The first phase is projected to run from Walnut St. down Commonwealth Avenue from Walnut Street to Lowell Avenue with plantings of tall, stately shade trees and shorter flowering trees.

The plans for the proposed Newton Arboretum down the center strip of Commonwealth Ave. were presented to the public in a recent meeting.

The first phase of the master plan will be the median section from Walnut St. to Lowell Ave. The new plantings will be of deciduous shade trees of height and grandeur and shorter flowering trees, indigenous or winter-hardy to New England conditions.

The funds for the plantings are coming entirely from private funds and those interested in purchasing a tree should contact Richard Antonellis 244-2323.

The design for the Arboretum has been prepared by a Newwon landscape architect, Tim Coppola, and his committee. It includes such stately trees as red oaks, American lindens, and Zelkovia serrata.

The flowering trees are to be planted in clusters to provide a diversity of color and flowering times. Various flowering crabapples, cherries, magnolias, and dogwoods will be used.

The plans for the Arboretum can be viewed at City Hall and will be on display at the May 6 Centennial Tree Planting at City Hall Mall.

A CHANCE TO SEE behind the scenes in Newton-Wellesley Hospital's diagnostic laboratories will be offered visitors on May 5 and 12 in observance of National Hospital Week. The new X-Ray Department (above) with some of the most advanced equipment available today, and Pathology Laboratories where an SMA computer performs 12 tests at a time, will be on view along with a special display of some of the Hospital's latest life-saving equipment. Free blood pressure checks will be offered visitors while two free children's clinics will be featured, a Lions Club Lazy Eye Clinic on May 5 and a Kiwanis Club Podiatry Clinic, May 12.

Association Supports Wetlands Study Proposal

In Washington on May 2 the Senate Committee on Public Works through its Water Resources Subcommittee has scheduled a hearing on the Charles River flood control proposal of the Corps of Engineers.

As a result of a 5-year study of the water resources of the Charles, the Corps determined that upstream retention of storm water and snow melt in major wetlands provides a unique and capable flood control mechanism, and concluded that 17 Natural Valley Storage (NVS) areas should be preserved for this purpose.

In the words of the Corps report, "construction could add nothing" to the natural system. The alternative to the acquisition of the wetlands would be dams and dikes, with no guarantee that continued development would not lead to increased flood threat and still more structures.

At a purchase price of about $7 million, the wetlands acquisition represented an economically attractive approach to flood control as well as an environmentally sound one.

The Charles River Watershed Association (CRWA), which participated in the study through representation on the Citizens Advisory Committee, strongly supports the proposal. However, the association joins residents of Waltham in requesting the reinstatement of NVS Area A, in the Beaver Brook subwatershed; while this area did not completely meet the criteria for inclusion in the proposal, it is felt that flooding potential is critical and in need of management.

The 17 NVS areas range from Holliston to Newton, and CRWA reminds residents in communities throughout the watershed that all stand to benefit by the adoption of the proposal. According to Mrs. Rita Barron, executive director for CRWA "the fact that nature is doing its sponge work upstream gives downstream residents a sense of security in times of storm. Develop those wetlands and we'll all be out sandbagging."

The proposal to acquire wetlands for flood control is a first for the Corps of Engineers and has generated nationwide interest as an alternative to construction where it is applicable. The Corps' proposal itself still rests with the Secretary of the Army while a determination is made of the legality of such a use of flood control funds.

Favorable action by the Congress subsequent to the May 2 hearing would include the Charles River bill in the current Rivers and Harbors Omnibus Bill and move it one step closer to reality.

Adoption of the Natural Valley Storage concept would leave the wetlands in their natural state to retain excess waters in times of high flow and to release them gradually in times of low flow, contributing to a safer community and a healthier river system. The wetlands would remain open for fish and wildlife and appropriate forms of recreation, an asset in a densely-settled metropolitan environment.

Senator Jennings Randolph is Chairman of the Senate Committee on Public Works and its Water Resources Subcommittee is chaired by Senator Mike Gravel. In a recent letter to CRWA, Senator Randolph indicated that this would be the appropriate time for citizens to submit testimony in support of the Charles River bill.

The Association urges all valley residents to write or wire their endorsement of the Charles River flood control wetlands acquisiton proposal to Senator Gravel and Senator Randolph. For further information please call CRWA at 527-2799.

DEDICATION—The mini-park in West Newton Square at the corner of Washington and Cherry streets was dedicated Wednesday afternoon. The little splash of greenery has been undergoing preparations for its official debut for the past month under the direction of the West Newton Garden Club with a little help from the city and the Girl Scouts and with contributions from citizens, local merchants, banks and churches. On hand last week when the park benches were installed were Gerald McClusky and Mrs. Douglas Danner. (Photo by Anthony Lupo Jr.)

League Studies Land Use

The League of Women Voters of Newton will hold two unit meetings on Thursday, May 10 and Friday, May 11 on the topic "Land Use: Goals, Priorities and Alternatives."

At both meetings there will be a guest speaker followed by questions and discussion, and non-members are welcome to attend.

The program on Thursday, May 10, will be at 8 p.m. at the First Baptist Church, 848 Centre St., Newton Centre. The speaker will be James A. Miller, Newton resident and former planning director of the city, now deputy director of the Metropolitan Area Planning Council.

On Friday, May 11, at 9:30 a.m. Julia Broderick O'Brien, director of planning for the Metropolitan District Commission, will speak at the Auburndale Congregational Church, 64 Hancock St. Babysitting is available at the morning meeting.

A committee of the Newton League, as in each League throughout the country, has commenced a study of "land use policies and procedures and their relationship to human needs, population trends, and sociological and socio-economic factors. The study is expected to last at least two years.

As proposed last spring by the League's national convention, the study will combine topics formerly divided between the League's environmental quality items (such as water resources) and its human resource items (such as housing). The frequent overlap between these topics really forms a distinct area for study and action.

Anita Capeless is chairperson of the Newton League's study committee and Stephanie Martin is co-chairperson. Members of the committee are Sharalyn Arntz, Dinah Bolman, Ann Dwelley, Roberta Levitan, and Edith Lewennike.

The committee is working now to identify land use problems, to determine what stage of local or regional planning has been reached, to learn how decisions are made in this field and how those decisions affect people. It will consider current and proposed legislation and land use.

The ultimate aim of the study will be to recommend guidelines for the task which is becoming a most urgent one for the immediate future, that of deciding what use of our dwindling land resources would be best for society.

For more information about the land use meetings please call Anita Capeless at 969-9483. The study committee is actively looking for new members and anyone interested in participating in the study may contact Ms. Capeless. For more information about the League of Women Voters please contact Marsha Slotnick at 244-6268.

Graphic Political Coverage

Even though Newton's election is many months away, there is already considerable activity among candidates, announced and as yet unannounced, as they plunge into their campaigns.

Newton's three showdown contests will determine the mayor, the Board of Aldermen and the School Committee.

Now, even more than the next election is at stake. The city's next 100 years starts now and policy and positions taken by eventual winners in the days ahead will extend far beyond the next elected term.

The Newton Graphic will cover the campaign as accurately and objectively as humanly possible. That is our platform, our promise.

We here want all candidates to expect fairness and frankness. But our underlying responsibility rests first with our readers. Their right to fairness is at the heart of our concern and coverage.

As the campaign begins in earnest, we will begin carrying a regular column on the positions and points of view of the candidates. We plan to call it: "Newton Candidates Say. . ."

Hopefully all those running for office will contribute their views, policies and positions to our column. The guidelines for the column are being drawn up and will be spelled out in another week's edition. If a candidate does not appear in the column, it will be because he or she has not contributed.

Our coverage will also include stories and photographs of the candidates as they make news along the Newton campaign trail. Here the watchword is "news." It is what candidates do and what they say that best defines their activities as news. And, for those that measure and maybe second guess, that is what determines what story goes where in most newspapers. It is in ours.

Like you, we will form opinions as voting time draws near.

Our opinion, what we think and why, will be printed within the confines of this editorial column. We will endorse candidates only after weighing the pros and cons. Until then, we will remain 100 per cent open minded.

And when we do endorse, it will be on the editorial page only.

Perfectly Clear, Not So

When President Nixon seeks to emphasize a topic or a subject which he considers of more than casual importance he has often, in the past, started off with the words: "Let me make this perfectly clear."

That phrase and its verbal underlining was neither mentioned nor implied when Mr. Nixon delivered that well edited text over the television networks Monday night. When the speech ended and television sets all over the neighborhood were clicked off not one new thing had been made perfectly clear about Watergate and the scandal that scorches nearer the top.

The President accepted the responsibility but not the blame. Between the two there remains a fuzziness, a confusion, a murkiness that no prime-time attempt at eloquence can dispell.

If you were lost for words when the kids came to the breakfast table Tuesday morning and asked questions about a far-off burglary, and hush money, and eavesdropping and alleged no-blame resignations, then it dawned on you that you heard the speech and still lacked answers to remove their question-marked inquiries and your own as well.

You too had asked about Watergate. The burglary took place one year ago next month. But in the months that followed answers have not been forthcoming. Nor were the nagging and gnawing questions answered Monday night. Christmas eve dreams and "God bless America . . ." may serve as the content for a presidential speech on April 30th, but when all is said and done many, many things are still far from being perfectly clear.

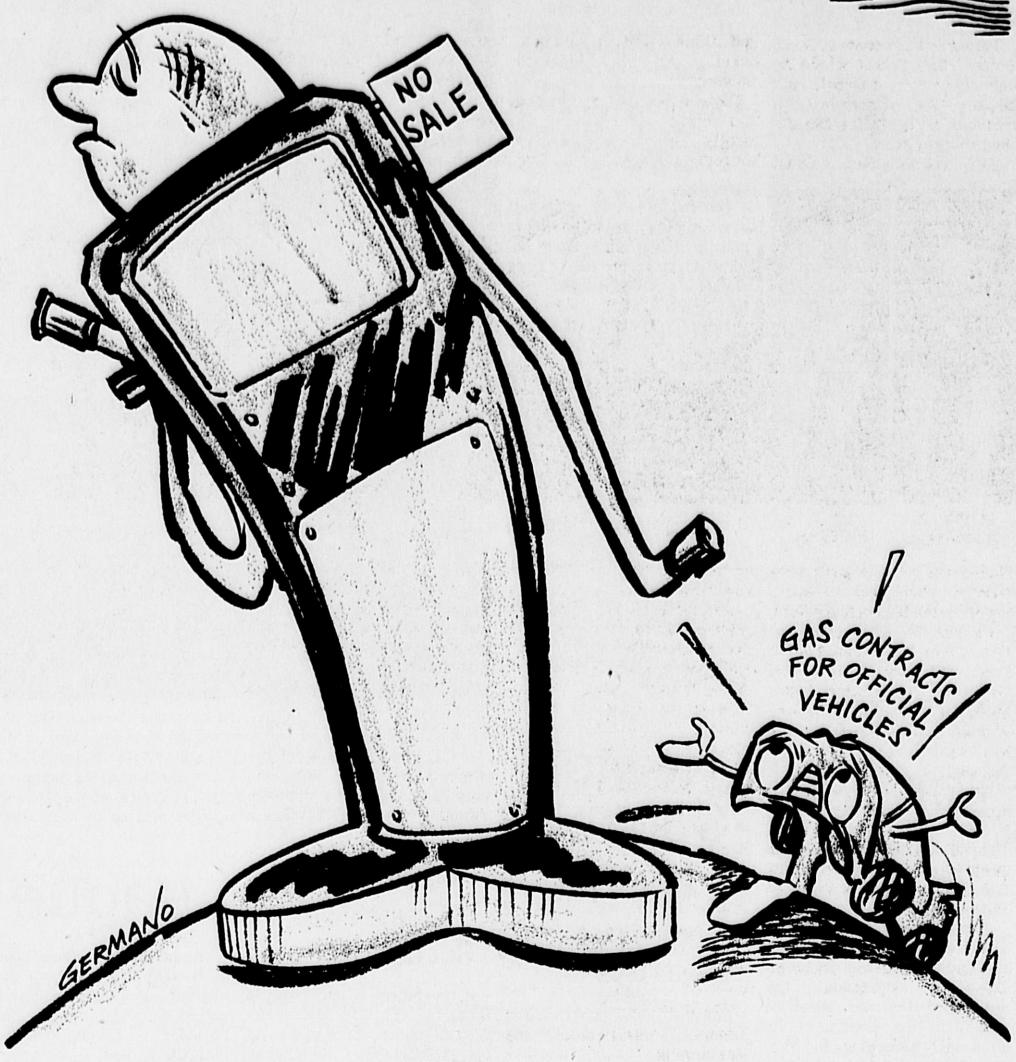
HIGH AND DRY



POLITICAL HIGHLIGHTS

By JAMES G. COLBERT

Atty. Gen. Quinn Now Leader Of Dem. Party At State Level

Attorney General Robert H. Quinn is in the driver's seat of the Democratic party in Massachusetts.

Senator Edward M. Kennedy is the top Bay State Democrat nationally, but Quinn has been recognized as the party leader at a state level since Boston Mayor Kevin H. White declared flatly that he will not be a candidate for Governor next year.

It is Quinn who will decide whether a pre-primary Democratic State Convention will be held next year to endorse candidates for state-wide offices.

Democratic leaders in the State Legislature are awaiting word from Quinn as to whether the convention system should be scrapped, strengthened or left they way it is.

The Democrats have the votes in both branches of the Legislature not only to pass a bill wiping out the State Conventions but also to enact the measure over Governor Sargent's veto.

They will do whatever Quinn wants. The confident Quinn, in turn, is dropping the issue into the lap of the man who presently intends to challenge him for the Democratic nomination for Governor next year—former Representative Michael Dukakis of Brookline

If Dukakis is willing to abide by the mandate of a convention, Quinn will tell the legislative leaders to hold a conclave.

If Dukakis plans to run in the primary regardless of what happens in the convention, Quinn will instruct his legislative allies to scrap the convention and let everyone go directly into the primary.

Quinn doesn't have anything to lose either way. He probably can defeat Dukakis either at a convention or in a primary although Dukakis might have a slightly better chance of surviving a convention than a primary.

Quinn's obvious objective is to avoid the expense and the political blood-letting of battling through both a costly convention and primary.

Dukakis won the Democratic nomination for Lieutenant Governor at both the State Convention and in the primary in 1970.

He was Mayor White's running mate in their unsuccessful fight with Governor Sargent and Lieutenant Governor Dwight White's aides say that Dukakis was no great help to their man.

Strangely enough, two well known public figures were defeated for Lieutenant Governor and then came back to win election as Governor.

Leverett Saltonstall was beaten for Lieutenant Governor by Francis E. Kelly in a great political upset in 1936 but achieved election to the Governorship over James M. Curley in 1938.

Paul A. Dever, the Democratic candidate for Lieutenant Governor, went down before a powerful Republican tide in 1946 but was elected Governor two years later.

The cases of Salty and Dever, however, are not likely to do Dukakis much good. The former Brookline law-maker does not shape up as a match for Quinn.

Quinn, a low-key Attorney General and a former Speaker of the Massachusetts House of Representative, probably would be equally strong in a primary or at a convention.

If he can go into an election without too much ill-will having been created within the Democratic party, he should have a reasonably good chance of toppling Governor Sargent.

Meanwhile, Democratic leaders are awaiting instructions from Quinn on whether or not there will be a pre-primary State Convention next year.

Congress Should End Racket For Admirals and Generals

One can only marvel at the consummate and overpowering gall of the brass in the four branches of the armed services.

At a time when our army is being converted into a highly paid and trained all-volunteer force, the generals and admirals are insisting on preserving and protecting their privilege of using enlisted men as butlers, bar-tenders, cooks, baby-sitters, dish-washers, dog-walkers, car-cleaners and high-priced errand boys.

There never was much justification for interrupting a young man's life, taking him away from his family and his home and have him wind up walking the pet poodle of the wife of some general.

Now, with the emphasis on a sleek, hard-hitting volunteer army, in which a private would be paid more than $300 a month, it is a disgrace.

Senator William A. Proxmire of Wisconsin is right when he declares that a general or admiral, who is paid the equivalent of $50,000 a year, should hire the people to perform his household chores and not expect to have enlisted men assigned to do them at public expense.

Regardless of what the brass feels about the urgent need for enlisted servants, Congress should enact a law ending this preposterous situation. It has become little more than a racket for the admirals and generals.

If our soldiers are to be relieved of KP duty in our new professional army, they shouldn't be required to do it in the home of some general.

Sarge Startled When Visitor Addressed Him As Democrat

Governor Francis W. Sargent didn't know whether to laugh or cry the other day when he was being waited upon by a delegation headed by former State Comptroller and Polish-American leader Joseph Alecks.

One member of the group complained to the Governor that there are too many Irishmen on the Democratic State Committee. Sarge was stumped for an answer as he realized that the person lodging, the protest thought he was a Democrat rather than a Republican.

A suggestion by another member of the contingent was that State Auditor Thaddeus Buczko would make a fine candidate for Governor. Mr. Sargent had a quick answer for that. "Maybe in 10 or 12 years when he gets more experience," he replied good-naturedly.

Buczko, of course, is a Democrat, and Sarge could not make him the nominee for Governor if he wanted to.

Some of Governor Sargent's aides were startled to learn that there is someone in Massachusetts who doesn't know to what political party the Governor belongs. They are uncertain whether that's a good or bad sign. Mr. Sargent took it in stride as part of his day's work.

Ted More Charitable To Nixon Than Outspoken Senator Brooke

Democratic Senator Edward M. Kennedy was more charitable to President Nixon on the Watergate scandal than was Republican Senator Edward W. Brooke who probably has forfeited any slim chance he ever had of gaining a place on Mr. Nixon's list of favorite people.

Ted expressed the opinion that it is unlikely that the President was involved in the Watergate affair, declared that it is not fair to draw conclusions otherwise before all the facts are known and asserted that it doesn't serve much purpose to speculate that Mr. Nixon was involved.

Brooke, on the other hand, said on national television that President Nixon cannot escape responsibility for the mushrooming Watergate mess without an explanation of why he didn't know what was happening.

He voiced the conviction that the President is responsible for the people he hires to work for him and added that it is difficult to understand how persons working for Mr. Nixon would not make known to him an undertaking of the magnitude of the Watergate break-in.

"It is inconceivable to me that they would not have told the President about this matter," he observed. Brooke said if members of his staff withheld such information from him, he'd fire them.

Brooke gave expression to things a lot of people have been thinking, but his statements must have bruised some feelings at the White House.

The explanation probably is that Brooke is running for the Vice Presidency and isn't letting President Nixon stand in his way.

Boston Naval Shipyard Closing May Eventually Be Beneficial

The closing of the Boston Naval Shipyard may not prove as great a disaster as some public officials have feared.

Indications are that most of the skilled mechanics employed at the shipyard can be absorbed into private industry.

The yard probably can provide a greater number of employment opportunities than at the present time if proper thought and care are given to its future use.

That would hardly be the case if it were converted into a docking area for deep - water cargo ships as one public official suggested although a portion of the shipyard might be utilized for that purpose.

A huge industrial complex could be created in the shipyard, with jobs provided by several different private industries.

The uncertainty as to how much government work would be provided in peacetime by the Defense Department would be eliminated, and the yard might contribute more to the economy of the Greater Boston area than it does at present.

Teenage Juror Punished For Showing Up In Shirtsleeves

Since 18 - year - old boys and girls are now being allowed to vote and hold public offices, they are being permitted to serve as jurors in some courts.

The teenage jurors didn't work out too well the other day in the Pittsburgh Common Pleas Court of Judge Livingstone M. Johnson.

The jurist understandably was annoyed when the youthful jurors talked among themselves instead of paying close attention to the testimony in the trial.

After they were instructed to "dress as if you were going to Sunday meeting," one teenager lit a cigaret in the jury box and was sharply told to put it out.

Edward R. Leiser, 19, who paid no attention to judicial warnings on how he should dress, was cited in contempt when he filed into the jury box in his shirtsleeves with no coat or necktie.

Told he could choose between paying a $25 fine and going to jail, Leiser stood before Judge Johnson and apologized. The judge relented and suspended the fine after ordering Leiser to take his hands out of his pockets.

Massachusetts attorneys should be interested in learning that Georgia's so - called "unsworn statement" law has been repealed as of July 1.

This unusual law has permitted defendants in criminal cases in Georgia to testify in their own defense without taking an oath to tell the truth or submitting to cross - examination by prosecutors.

Under the new law which becomes effective July 1, defendants who take the witness stand will be required to swear to tell the truth and will be obliged to answer questions directed at them by prosecutors.

Criminal trials are expected to be much less colorful in Georgia beginning July 1, but the testimony in them probably will be more truthful.

Stick To The Supermarket

So you have this family to feed, and you're thinking maybe you'll start your own backyard chicken coop. Just like the old days, right? Nice, fresh eggs every day.

Okay, let's do it.

First, you decide you'll need, say, a dozen eggs a day. So you go out and buy 20 hens. You'll need 20 hens to come close to a dozen eggs every day. The hens will cost you about 52 dollars. (By the way, you don't need a rooster. The hens work alone.)

Now, the hens must be fed every day. Chicken feed - it's called "laying mash" these days - will run you about $3.50 a week.

Presuming optimum health conditions among your laying hens, you should be able to pick up about ten eggs every day, or 70 eggs a week.

Figuring feed cost, your expense now stands at about 58 cents a dozen.

Hens will produce eggs for about a year. At the end of their productive period (they're now classified as "fowl") they're worth about a dollar each in terms of food, should you decide to consume them. This gives you a depreciation on the hens of $1.60 each, and that adds 10 cents to your cost of a dozen eggs, so that you're now at 68 cents a dozen for eggs of all sizes; small, medium and large.

You haven't included the cost of housing, electricity and heating for the birds, and that varies quite a bit depending on your choice of architecture.

Not to mention labor. Nothing too strenuous, to be sure, but you must be there to care for your hens every day of the week. There go your little weekend trips, and that vacation at the beach this summer.

Naturally, you'll want to keep your henhouse in a sanitary condition, and that alone should clear up your sinus condition.

Sorry, but you can't let the chickens roam around your back yard, leisurely pecking away at grains of corn and itinerant worms. If you want eggs every day, you've got to feed 'em right.

These days, even the price of chicken feed isn't chicken feed. Better maybe you should put out the grill and have a chicken barbecue. What's Frank Perdue's phone number?

Fine Performance

Editor, Newton Graphic:

Last Friday evening, I witnessed an incredible event which occurred at the South High School auditorium.

"A View from the Bridge," student initiated, cast, produced and directed, held a mixed audience of parents and students spellbound.

In many years of attending the theater, both in New York and Boston, I have never spent a more enjoyable evening. This performance was "Theater" at its finest and the incredible part of the evening was a performance which transformed the audience.

Forgotten were the local surroundings, high school auditorium, and only what was happening on the stage mattered.

My sincerest congratulations to everyone who had a hand in this superb achievement!

Harvard Awards Fellowship

Harvard University recently announced that Cynthia C. Lichtenstein of Newton, an assistant professor at Boston College Law School was awarded one of the first twelve Harvard Fellowships in Law and Humanities.

Beginning in September 1973 she will engage in an academic year of study and research at Harvard University devoted to the problem of enriching law teaching with the insights and values of the humanities. She will receive full tuition plus a stipend of $13,500 for the academic year.

In announcing the award Roger Fisher, professor of law at Harvard and director of the program, said, "if today some lawyers behave simply like 'guns for hire,' devoting their skills in a mechanistic way to legal procedures and techniques with little regard for the basic traditions and values of society we in the law schools must share some of the blame. It should be possible to sharpen students' minds without narrowing them. We hope to see if we can relate the insights of history, philosophy and literature more directly to the life of a lawyer and to the many choices which lawyers and their clients face."

Dr. James Blessing of The National Endowment for the Humanities, which is financing the program through a grant to Harvard University, said that he is extremely pleased with the wide interest which lawyers and law teachers had expressed in the program.

Nature's Ways

By WAYNE HANLEY
(Mass. Audubon Society)

How do shad continue being shad?

As you know, shad are ocean fish that each spring enter our freshwater rivers to breed.

Major runs of shad hit the St. Johns River in Florida about January, and enter the Savannah River soon after. In May, large runs start up the Hudson and Connecticut Rivers. By late June, other shad migrate up the St. John River from the Bay of Fundy.

Let us understand that it is members of the species that tick off the calendar in that rotation. It is not the same individuals going up all those rivers. The individual fish chooses one river and breeds there. Presumably it is the river of the fish's birth, or very near it.

To have a six - month span in which various members enter breeding condition is rather unusual for any species. But there are even more unusual traits for shad. Some of them are so unusual that it makes one wonder how shad maintain a gene pool. Since they breed in separate rivers at such widely separated times, how do they achieve such genetic regularity that all members of the species look alike? Not look like cousins, as we might, but more like identical twins?

As an example of variation in shad behavior, the shad that enter rivers south of Chesapeake Bay suffer such heavy death loss during spawning (egg - laying) that it is assumed none survive a single breeding season.

Shad that enter the northern rivers, generally live to return to the sea for the possibility of another spawning year. Oddly, the southern shad female lays about a half - million eggs and the northern female about a quarter - million eggs. In other words, two females from the same species that look alike have an enormous difference in the number of eggs spawned.

For more than a century it has been known that shad enter rivers when the water temperature reaches somewhere between 50 and 60 degrees. In the south, the fish remain offshore until the warm southern rivers drop to that temperature range. In the north where winter freezes rivers, shad remain offshore until the temperature rises to that range.

Although shad are valuable commercial fish surprisingly little is known about their life outside fresh water — which, after all, is the major span of their lives. William C. Leggett, a fisheries scientist, now is carrying out tagging and radio telemetry studies of shad movements for the Connecticut Yankee Atomic Power Plant at Haddam Neck on the Connecticut River. His findings indicate that in a year a shad may travel 2400 miles. Shad from his area travel in the North Atlantic and possibly as far south as North Carolina.

Leggett's studies are designed to determine what effect thermal additions to streams may have on a fish of such temperature sensitivity.

The shad along the Atlantic coast are members of the species Alosa sapidissima. Alosa is an old Saxon word for the shad of Europe. Sapidissima means "most delicious." It is an apt description of edibility.

Excursion To Washington

Soccer Talk

By PAUL ELDRIDGE JR.

Webster defines an optimist as one who has an inclination to anticipate the best possible outcome of action or events. One who seems to fit this description to a tee is the "Eternal Optimist," John Bertos.

John is the coach, general manager, trainer, ticket seller, and water boy for the Boston Astros. He does all of these jobs because he loves this game of soccer so much. Soccer is John's life blood; he lives and dies with the futures of his team. The Astros have been, over the years, one of the better teams in the American Soccer League. For the past three years, they have finished in second place, one or two points out of first.

"This season is going to be different," according to Bertos. "We are going to come in first. No more are we going to be the bridesmaids, this year we are going to be the bride."

Five new faces will be in the Astros line-up this year. Among them will be Ed Braga at center forward and Bob Fleming who comes from the Cape and played for Niagara University. Of those players returning from last years team are, Dusty Richards, Art Frazer, Gus Carvalko, and "Boom Boom" Barbosa. Barbosa was second in scoring in the American Soccer League last year. This was an amazing fete considering the fact that he missed half of the season with injuries and a suspension.

Since the end of the '72 season, the Astros have been engaged in the National Open Cup competition. If they win their next three games, they will be the Cup Champions. If they win the National Open Cup, they will represent the U.S. in International competition.

The first game in this final set of three will be May 6 in New Bedford. Their opponents in this game will be the New York Greeks who also play in the American Soccer League.

Newcomer Ed Braga has been making a name for himself in these cup games. In the past three games, he has put the ball in the net nine times. If he can keep up this kind of scoring during the A.S.L. season, he should take some of the close checking off of Barbosa.

The Astros open their '73 home season on May 26 with an 8 p.m. game with the Philadelphia Spartans. They are playing their home games again this year at B.U. Field.

SOCCER SHORTS

On May 20, the Mass Soccer Assoc. All-Star Team will be playing Bristol City of England in the first international game of the year for Boston. The time and place will be announced later this week.

Bad news for the goalies in the A.S.L., Peter Chartschloa, who plays for the Connecticut Wildcats, had his shot timed by two professors at the U. of Conn. They used laser beams and electronic instruments. The ball after leaving his foot reached a record speed of 136 mph, his lowest speed was 50 mph when you consider that Bob Feller's fast ball was clocked at just over 90 mph and a baseball has a lot less friction working against it because of its size compared to a soccer ball, this is quite a fete (no pun intended;

This Sunday, May 6th, East Walpole will be host to the Connecticut champions in the Eastern regional final of the National Junior Cup.

The game will be played at Bird Field at 2 p.m.

This fine team coached by Bob Ellis has a very good chance to go all the way to the finals that will be played in Dallas, Texas on June 10th.

Carmen Close To Sensational

By WILBUR G. LANDREY

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Metropolitan Opera's new production of "Carmen" this season was a landmark, and the recording of it confirms that it is not far short of sensational—both in conception and performance.

Just released by Deutsche Grammophon in a three-record album (2709 043), the Met production strips away the prettiness from the grim drama of the opera which Georges Bizet wrote.

Gone are the musical recitatives added after Bizet's death (three months after its disappointing first performance at the Opera Comique in Paris in 1875). Restored are the original spoken dialogue and some of the traditional cuts.

Carmen has usually been performed as grand opera, with the added recitatives rather than the original dialogue which classes it as what the French call an opera comique, although there is nothing comic about it. It is also one of the ironies that this opera of love and death in Spain was written by a man who was never there.

Result is Exciting

The result of the changes, under the direction of Leonard Bernstein, is musically as well as dramatically exciting. The inevitability of Carmen's death is there almost from the moment she sings the Habanera, that Don Jose will kill her is foreordained when he first listens to her song of seduction in Act I.

Marilyn Horne's Carmen is passionate and convincing, and James McCracken has the dramatic and vocal weight to give life to Don Jose, who assumes a more central role in this conception.

Adriana Maliponte as Micaela and Tom Krause as Escamillo, are worthy of the production. So are the lesser characters—Donald Gramm as Zuniga to mention one.

The conception of this Carmen is that of Bernstein and the late Goeran Gentele, whose first production it was to be as director of the Met. His accidental death ruled otherwise.

Should Share Acclaim

Even more than the outstanding cast, it is Bernstein, his direction, and his conception of what Carmen should be which makes this a landmark Carmen. The record should share the critical acclaim of the live premiere last September. And as the first opera actually recorded in the high-priced musical world of the United States in some time, it will be interesting to see what happens to it on a commercial score.

Recommended:

Schubert's four sonatas for violin and piano played by Arthur Grumiaux and Robert Veyron-Lacroix (Philips 6500 341). Beautiful performances beautifully recorded.

Sibelius Symphony No. 2 played by Eugene Ormandy and the Philadelphia orhcestra (RCA ARDI-0018). Sibelius as a composer has not entirely recovered from the onslaught of highbrow criticism, but this is an excellent recording by the Philadelphians and an addition to RCA's catalogue of quadaphonic records.

Sibelius' Finlandia and other favorites played by Sir John Barbirolli and the Halle orchestra (Seraphim S-60208). Excellent interpretations by the late Sir John before his death in 1970.

Recreation Swings Into Spring

The spring programs sponsored by the Newton Recreation Department are underway, and plans for summer activity, including baseball, tennis, swimming and basketball are well advanced.

Tryouts have been scheduled for the International Division of the Newton Twi-Baseball League for the next three weekends with league play scheduled to get underway in June and continue on into August.

The softball season opens for the Twi-League on May 7, with some 440 boys expected to play this year. The Women's Softball League gets underway on June 3, and the Lassie Softball League for girls 12 to 15 is scheduled to begin play May 10.

Supervised tennis will take over this week at Burr Park and Newton Center with scheduled hours between 5 p.m. and 8 p.m., with the advent of daylight saving time, and from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m., weekends.

Tennis under the lights is offered at the Newton South High School courts in Newton Centre between the hours of 7 p.m. to 11 p.m.

Permits are necessary for these three areas. These permits may be purchased at the area, or at the Recreation Department office, 70 Crescent St., Auburndale, according to Recreation Supervisor Robert E. Doherty. The fees are: adults - $10.00 and students - $5.00, for the entire season. Newton residents with permits may reserve courts for up to three hours a week.

Doherty reminds Newton residents that they do not need a permit to play on the city's many other tennis courts.

An organizational meeting of the Girls' and Women's Summer Basketball League was held earlier this week. The league will play its games on Tuesday and Friday at Cabot Park from 6:30 p.m. to 8:30 p.m., under the lights.

Recreation Supervisor Fran Towle can supply further information. She may be contacted at the Newton Recreation Department, 969-3171.

Indicative of the upcoming summer season, registrations for the many swim programs conducted at both Crystal Lake and Gath Memorial Pool at the Albemarle Playground, have been scheduled for May 15 and 17 for those desiring to join the program at Crystal Lake and May 22 and 24 for those who plan to join classes held at the Gath Pool.

Wayne Cashman of the Boston Bruins will be the guest speaker at a Sunday morning brunch, to be held by the Newton Youth Hockey Association at the new Post 440 hall in Nonantum.

Youth hockey, sponsored by the Newton Recreation Department, was enjoyed by over 500 boys this season, a substantial increase from the number who participated last season.

The Newton Recreation Department is also planning to offer tennis instruction beginning in mid-May. There will be six lessons and each class will be limited to a dozen players. The program is for men and women, and further information may be obtained by calling Mrs. Lesbirel at 969-3171.

Tennis lessons for young people are planned later, after the school vacation period begins.

Recreation Sponsors Tennis Lessons

Newton adults are being offered tennis lessons under a program sponsored by the Newton Recreation Department, according to Recreation Supervisor William J. Barry.

The co-educational classes include six lessons and will begin Tuesday, May 15 at the Newton Highlands courts. Each lesson will be one hour and the fee for the entire course will be $5.

Classes will be held Tuesday and Thursday mornings from 10 a.m. to noon, and for those who work, there will be classes Tuesday and Thursday evenings from 6 to 8 p.m.

Young GOP Decries Watergate Revelation

At the Newton Young Republican Club's regular monthly meeting last week, the Watergate affair popped up unexpectedly for discussion.

Late in the evening, President Charles Miller, at whose home the meeting was convened, asserted that "As Young Republicans, we cannot ignore the Watergate matter. It affects us. We must take a stand on it."

With that introduction, the Young Republicans debated over the wording of a resolution, finally agreeing to send the following resolution to President Nixon.

"The Newton Young Republican Club hereby expresses its dismay at the disillusioning revelations concerning the Watergate affair. Unfortunately, political shenanigans on the part of members of both major political parties have too often been exposed in the past. And for each exposure, one may only guess at the number that have not been detected. Our society's disillusionment with our political processes can only be changed by fervid internal discipline. To restore sanctity to the political process, we unanimously urge you to immediately remove all wrongdoers from office and present for prosecution all violators of the law."

In the past, the Newton Young Republicans have consistently supported legislation designed to present the entire political process to public scrutiny.

Notably, the Young Republicans have proposed that no one person be permitted to donate more than $10,000 to any one candidate or political committee and that no one person be permitted to donate more than $100,000 in any year to any and all political candidates and committees.

The meeting also included a discussion of next month's club elections, the Second Annual Republican Revival, and participation in the Centennial celebration.

This Frankenstein Monster Will Be Handsome

By ROBERT MUSEL

LONDON (UPI) — It is a bright and sunny day in the laboratory of Dr. Frankenstein, who is crouched over a figure on an operating table.

At this point fans of horror films in general and the Frankenstein saga in particular will begin to think someone goofed. As is well known, the good doctor only raises his monsters on dark and brooding nights by shooting lightning into their veins while the heavens give forth claps of doom.

Yet here is a beardless youth, claiming to be the daring scientist and switching on sun-energy mirrors he alleges will send the life-giving juices of the solar system into his creature.

The figure on the table moves. What new shock is in store for those raised on the nuts and bolts that held together the misshapen monster of Boris Karloff?

Stop—Temporarily

Stop the suspense — temporarily. The creature is nearly as handsome as his creator.

Since a man doesn't tamper lightly with legend, explanations were demanded from the producer of "Dr. Frankenstein," Hunt Stromberg, Jr., a Texas rancher with so formidable a reputation in television that one has to start by assuming he knows down to the last calculated shiver in the audience exactly what he is doing.

What he is making at Pinewood Studios is a four-hour program that he believes is probably the most expensive project ever done for television. The expectation is that NBC-TV will show it, probably in two two-hour segments.

Stromberg asked Christopher Isherwood (author of "I Am a Camera" and the original of "Cabaret") to write the film in the belief a good script would attract stars, it has. The cast includes James Mason, Agnes Moorehead, Michael Wilding, David McCallum and others. Dr. Frankenstein is Leonard Whiting, 23, who was Romeo in Franco Zeffirelli's Romeo and Juliet. The monster is Michael SKARRAZIN.

A Ravishing Creature

Jane Seymour of "Young Winston" and the new James Bond film is a female creature —and a ravishing one at that.

Stromberg makes no apologies for the pulchritude of his players.

"I think the American public is ready to go back to good-looking people after 20 years of what I call The Uglies," he said.

This, he went on, does not mean there will not be horror and terror in the film. There is plenty of that along with romance and—unusual for horror films which tend to confine the action to a fairly small area —a story that moves from Switzerland to London to Scotland and winds up in the Arctic.

Not a Transylvanian peasant in the cast.

Stromberg is keeping secret what Sarrazin's good looks will degenerate to by the finish. But he spent a lot of time finding and hiring the makeup expert who gave Alec Guinness so many extraordinary faces in "Kind Hearts and Coronets".

BIG INDUSTRY

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (UPI) — Agriculture is a $10 billion industry in Texas, second only to the oil and gas industry. The Texas Agricultural Extension Service reports that agriculture provides employment for 35 to 40 per cent of the state's labor force.

THREE IN A ROW

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Producer Walter Selzer will make it three major motion pictures in a row for MGM, following "Soylent Green" and "Skyjacked" with "The Palermo Affair."

Book Review

THE TEACHINGS OF DON JUAN: A YAUI WAY OF KNOWLEDGE, BY CARLOS CASTANEDA, BALLANTINE BOOKS

By ED TURBERT

Usually we think of medicine men as befeathered savages muttering incantations and doing rain dances. Here is an extraordinary document that discloses what it is to be a "man of knowledge" and some of what that knowledge is.

The author, an anthropology student gathering data in the Southwest on medicinal plants, met don Juan Matus, a sometimes formidable-looking, sometimes totally-disarming old Yaqui Indian reputed to be a sorcerer or man of knowledge—a throwback to older times before white man's religion and technology drove out the Indian's animistic world view.

Castaneda was initiated into the use of peyote, jimson weed, and other plants as one of the steps opening the doors of perception to a world of "non-ordinary reality," necessary to one who would be a sorcerer. He enters this world hesitantly but is encouraged by don Juan who says that "Mescalito" has pointed Castaneda out as the man to receive the knowledge don Juan holds before he passes on. Don Juan talks of "Mescalito," the psychotropic power of peyote, as if it were a person, a supernatural teacher or protector.

Castaneda remained with don Juan for five years as an apprentice, undergoing the arduous process of learning the laws and forces of the sorcerer's world, which interrelate in a startling and awesome manner.

Grounded in the Western view of time and space, Castaneda is struck with exulation awe and terror as he grapples with the alien system.

The Teachings of Don Juan is not written like an anthropology text but as a diary-like narrative where the personalities of Castaneda and don Juan emerge from a lucid, descriptive style.

Under his pen the desert comes to life and the incredible visions and experiences the author undergoes there are given an engrossing sense of immediacy. It is a fascinating journey into another world you won't forget in a hurry.

Pissarro Prints At Museum of Fine Arts

Camille Pissarro: The Impressionist Printmaker, at the Museum of Fine Arts, through July 1, is the first major exhibition of the artist's prints. Although Pissarro (1830-1903) is known primarily for his paintings, the current exhibition reveals him as an outstanding printmaker who created effects in black and white which equal his luminous Impressionist paintings.

Portraits, cities, studies of bathers and peasants are among the subjects of these prints, although landscape scenes predominate. The superb quality of his prints is revealed in etchings, lithographs and monotypes which also show Pissarro's interest in exploring a wide variety of printmaking techniques.

Loans from public and private collections complement prints from the Museum's own collection. A small number of related watercolors, drawings and a painting are also in the exhibition.

Pissarro, like Rembrandt, made major and very interesting changes as he worked on his etchings. The exhibition includes series of states of a number of prints which show these changes.

In Paysage Sous Bois a 'Hermitage Pontoise, Pissarro began with an abstract composition which he reworked to resemble an oil painting of the same scene, lent to the exhibition by the conductor Andre Kostelanetz. Pissarro continued to make changes in the print, ending with a completely new shimmering spring landscape. Four states of this etching were first exhibited in 1880 at the Impressionist exhibition in Paris and it was published in the same year in a journal of prints produced by Degas.

Pissarro's early prints reflect a straightforward use of the etching and lithographic processes. In 1879, Degas introduced Pissarro to many inventive techniques which he used in complex combinations in order to achieve specific effects of forms and light. Pissarro's prints of his late period have velvety ink tones which recall Rembrandt in their pervasive atmosphere and richness. In one of the great prints of this period, Self-Portrait (1890), Pissarro makes a penetrating exhibition of his own features in a richly-toned network of etched lines.

Pissarro was born in St. Thomas in the East Indies in 1830. Arriving in Paris in 1855, he met Camille Corot and later Edouard Manet who introduced Pissarro to Monet, Renoir, Degas and Sisley, the artists who eventually formed a group which became known in 1874 as the Impressionists. Pissarro remained a loyal member of this group throughout his life.

An illustrated booklet and checklist is available at the exhibition.

"Class of '44" Stars Migh Be Mistaken For Collegians

Boys will be boys, apparently, no matter how differently they dress, cut their hair or change their manners.

At least when I asked the reason for the lavish hair-dos of the two teen-aged heroes of "Class of '44" Gary Grimes, aged 17, and sporting bushy sideburns to outline his young sensitive face, and 19-year-old Jerry Houser, who recently discarded his beard but still retains a mop of dark hair, the pair assured me that "The girls like us better this way."

What fascinated me was the fact that while thousands of area moviegoers remember Gary and Jerry as the young males who learned about life and sex (to a degree) in "Summer of '42" and are continuing their education in college as the same attractive youngsters in "Class of '44" nobody would recognize them on the street today.

They might be students at Boston College, Harvard or Emerson.

In those films they had to have short hair, clean-shaven faces and reasonably conventional attire. Jerry and Gary look on all this much as if they were appearing in a costume play. To them 1942 and 1944 might be back in Civil War days.

They were quick to assure me that parents of today must learn that oldfashioned "guidance" (presumably they mean on the type favored by those oldtimers of the '40's) is definitely a mistake if fathers and mothers want their offspring to go to college.

"Kids of today don't want to be told what they should do," said Gary. "They want to decide for themselves. If parents would stop urging their kids to go to college because they think it's a good thing, most kids would decide that college was what they themselves want. But they have to display some kind of revolt first."

"Back in 1944 every boy was guided and family pressure couldn't be avoided. Of course today small kids have to be guided but after that let the boys and girls make up their own minds."

"Take music lessons, for instance. Parents should guide small children into learning to play musical instruments but later on let the kids choose what they want to do, and whether they prefer rock or long hair, piano or guitar. Let them be responsible for their own style."

What about the young people these boys have met in film work, I asked. Jerry and Gary shrugged in disinterest.

"You are apt to meet such shallow and superficial young people in studios," they agreed. "You get weary of listening to nothing but screen gossip. It's not like making friends among 'real' people."

As for stardom —"just an oldfashioned word" to the modern young actors.

They admit they are more fortunate than most young actors in being allowed to follow up their first successes in "Summer of '42" with a sequel, "Class of '44" in which they play the same roles. This time Hermie and Oscie go to college. But they know their paths will separate as soon as this publicity tour is over.

Jerry's immediate future includes a hard study of acting — "self creativity" is how he describes it. By the proper use of hands, body and face, what appears to be a make-believe person on the screen can be turned into a three dimensional "real character." As for TV, where he has been in modest demand, Jerry feels that he can't afford to do much work.

"The kind of role I would get now, with only a little experience, would not allow me to display the subtlety and refinement needed to create a stage or screen character," he said. "There are almost perfect dramas on the TV screen — 'Long Day's Journey into Night' was one of them — but so few people watched it that you might say it was a failure. I intend to win my reputation elsewhere."

Gary has had good luck in being picked up for pictures, including a picture with John Wayne and Arthur Kennedy. But he hopes to take dramatic courses at U.C.L.A. and if they interfere with his work before the cameras he hopes to be allowed to continue his studies on location. That can be arranged, he thinks, by a bit of maneuvering.

Jerry declares that at an early age he was considered the neighborhood genius. He and a small friend wrote a play (well attended) about a time machine, a sultan and a group of good and bad gnomes. Now he also plans to write seriously between acting jobs.

NEW TEEN HEROES—Hermie (Gary Grimes) and Oscy (Jerry Houser) in a scene from "Class of '44," the sequel to the highly successful "Summer of '42," released by Warner Bros., produced by Harry Keller and Paul Bogart, directed by Bogart, written by Herman Raucher, also starring Oliver Conant and Deborah Winters.

Cinema Review: Cesar And Rosalie

CESAR AND ROSALIE shows that sex is handled with much more finesse by the average French director than can be found in pictures made by Italians, Scandinavians and Spaniards.

The best directors of Europe stand high on the list of distinguished artists, no matter where they come from, when dramatic power, suspense and imagination is being analysed and judged. Yet when a Frenchman tells a modern love story, he is usually top dog.

He knows where to stop short of pornography (so many directors don't, these days) and at the same time keep the love interest hot, exciting and believable.

Yves Montand, the epitome of a romantic Frenchman, plays a strong, bull-headed, determined middle-aged contractor who has his pretty business assistant, played by Romy Schneider, as his amiable mistress. He has all the best of the situation as she lives in her own home with her child by a previous affiliation, but cooks, cleans, and serves snacks for the full-blooded, blustering Cesar.

Then a former lover, David, played effectively by Sami Frey, shows up and attempts successfully to win the bored Rosalie from her masterly mate.

What happens then is a triumph of emotional complexity, topped by a poignant scene where the trio goes on a beach party and tries to act as if they were civilized acquaintances despite their barely concealed desires to mix it up on the sand. Handled with finesse and taste by director Claude Sautet, the film has both vigor and the potentiality for some fine fun.

Gutman-Jensen Bridal At M.I.T.

Something old worn by Miss Lorraine Ellen Gutman for her wedding to Eric Raymond Jensen was her mother's wedding dress of ivory satin.

The ceremony was held April 14 at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology Chapel, Cambridge. A reception followed at McCormick Hall, M.I.T. The couple left for a wedding trip to Bermuda.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Gutman of Newton Highlands, was given in marriage by her father. Her husband is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond E. Jensen, Cragmoor, Cape Elizabeth, Maine.

the approach "tackles the real problem."

"The issue is money," he stated. "Busing was the answer in 1968 but is not an end-all to the problem."

"I support the concept of racial, economic and ethnic mixtures in neighborhoods," Harrington went on to say, "that's one reason why I live where I do; but, it does not automatically mean that because some people chose to live within one ethnic group, that's bad."

Asked how he though Newton itself would react to a busing proposal within the city, the Newton legislator said he felt there would be opposition.

"If we bused Nonantum kids to Auburndale and Auburndale kids to Newton Centre, we'd have the same problem," Harrington said. "Parents don't want their kids going off to other neighborhoods."

He also pointed out that he feels the concept of neighborhood identification is much stronger in a large city than it is in a town.

"Kids in cities grow up in a five to 10-block radius of their homes," he said, "and I support the concept that they should be going to school with the same kids they come home and play baseball with after school."

Harrington made his statements on the position he intended to take, he said, because he felt it was an unpopular standard he anticipated an "unfavorable reaction" to it in Newton.

South Sails On To Victory

By David Cutler

The cold, windy, rainy weather of late April has been a hindrance to all the spring athletic teams. None have been hit harder, though, than the Sailing Team. The team had scheduled three meets for April, but has only been able to run one. What's worse is that Tiger sailors have had only one practice session.

Newton beat Brewster Academy in the squad's lone confrontation on Wednesday, April 25. Captain Don Sostek skippered himself and his crew, Steve Goodman, to first place in the meet's four races. "That's a remarkable achievement," said his coach, NHS English teacher Malcolm Marshall. "And he won by a sizeable margin each time," added Marshall.

Also contributing to the team's 46-87 victory were skippers Jean Blagborough, Mark Barrow, and Jeff Sudikoff. "We've got quite a few experienced sailors this year," said Coach Marshall, although no more than in the past. But I think that the many sophomores we have this year will give us a very strong team in the next couple of years."

Sailing is in its second year as a varsity sport at Newton High School. In 1972 the salts posted a 3-1-1 record, but were undefeated while sailing their home races at Community Boating in Boston. "I would hope that we would do well again at home this year," said Marshall. "When you go to other schools and sail in their boats on their courses it's a tremendous disadvantage."

Right now it's hard to tell what sort of season it will be. With only one practice under their belts the Tigers have not yet formed a "ladder" for determining the top skippers. "It's unfair to say who the top sailors are since not everyone has gotten a chance to show his or her ability," said Marshall. "I expect that we'll be keeping about 30 kids on the squad."

Just how soon practice can get underway relies solely on the cooperation of Mother Nature.

Tiger Champs Take Two

Scoring 26 goals in their first two league games has enabled the Tigers lacrossemen to run up two resounding victories. Southern League opponents Medford and Weymouth North provided little opposition to Newton's State Championship team.

Against Medford on Tuesday, April 24, Newton High romped 15-3. Junior attackman Gary Herendeen led the Tigers attack with four goals. Newton was dominant throughout but led only 2-0 after one period. "We got off to a slow start," explained Coach Tom DePeter. "We weren't moving to the ball on offense."

The Tigers picked up the pace dramatically thereafter. They scored five goals in each subsequent period and unloaded 51 shots overall. The third period letdown which allowed Medford to close the gap to 8-3 at one point annoyed Coach DePeter, "That should never happen. We'll have to watch out in future games or it may hurt us."

Newton's defense, which allowed 16 shots on goal, was superb except during parts of the third period. Goalie Steve Forte came up with a lot of good saves early before the game became a runaway. In addition to Herendeen, The Tigers got offensive production from Jeff Senior and Jerry Keleher, three goals each, Bob Daniels, two goals, and Freddy Boudreau, Brian Leary, and David Cutler had one goal apiece.

Weymouth North was the foe in Newton's first home game of the season on Monday, April 30. The Tigers completely outclassed their opponents, but the final score of 11-2 doesn't indicate how one-sided the affair actually theirwith the offense's performance.

"We have to scramble up to get some more scoring punch," he said.

Newton was so dominant in the first half it was as if they were the only players out there. The Tigers amassed an 8-0 halftime lead without allowing Weymouth North a shot on goal during the first two periods. But again there was a second half letdown. Newton could only tally three times in the second half while Weymouth North netted two. "Fortunately," said DePeter, "Weymouth North has the kind of team against which a letdown won't really hurt you."

Eight of Newton's goals came from attackmen in this contest. Steve Blauer and Paul Corrigan each came off the bench to score two while Gary Herendeen, Bob Daniels, Freddy Boudreau, and Jim Averback netted lone tallies. Midfielders Jay Tutunjian, David Cutler, and Bob Arabian also scored for the Tigers.

Defensemen Ralph Vitti, Tony D'Amico, and Alex MacKenzie were tremendous in stymieing the Weymouth North attack. "I expected to have good defense this year," said DePeter. "But we still have to gain experience on offense. I'm looking forward to a good game on Friday."

The Tigers face non-league opponents Concord-Carlisle on Friday, May 4, and Pinkerton Academy on Monday, May 7. After that four of their next five games are against Southern League teams. The Needham game on May 18 should be decisive in determining the League Champion and the draw for the State Tournament.

Golf, A Team Sport?

There is no getting around it, at the high school level golf is a team game. No matter how good your best player is, your team does as well as the combined efforts of all its players.

In schoolboy golf a team gets one point for every match its players win over the other team's golfers. Nine golfers compete from the two teams opposing each other. The players pair up according to their position on their respective teams (one versus one, two versus two, etc.). The player in each pair with the best score earns a point for his team. If there is a tie, each team is awarded half a point. The final standings are determined from the total number of points a team has accumulated over a season, not the number of matches it has won.

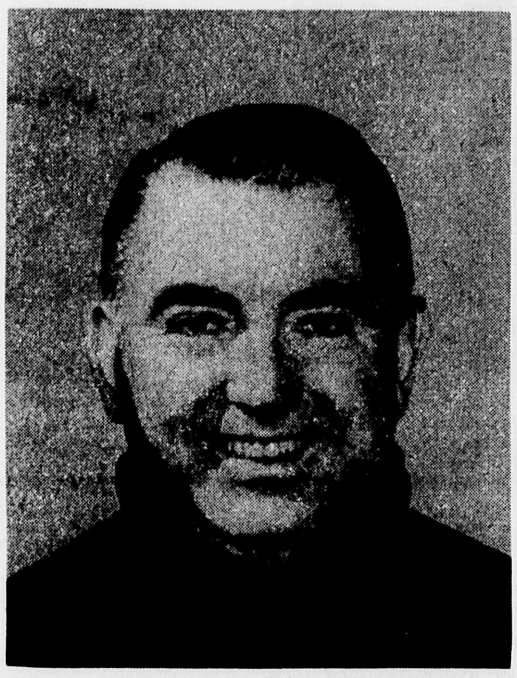
Newton High School has a 7-1 record in the eight golf matches it has competed in this year. But in the all-important South Division of the Suburban League it has been outscored 11-7.

The Tigers travelled to Brookline for their first League match on Tuesday, April 24. The Indians stroked the Tigers tame by a 7½ - 1½ margin. "We were at a tremendous disadvantage playing on their home course," said Coach Jim Ronayne. "I think we'll have the advantage when they come to Newton."

Brockton came here on Monday, April 30 and found out how much being on your home course means. Newton outpointed the visitors 5½ - 3½, but Coach Ronayne was disappointed, "It should have been about 7-2. We need every point we can get."

Brookline and Brockton will be Newton's toughest opposition in the South Division of the Suburban League. The other teams in the Division are Weymouth North and Weymouth South. The South winner plays the North Division winner, either Medford (the favorite), Cambridge Latin, Rindge Tech, Arlington, or Waltham for the Suburban League Title and qualifications for the State Tourney.

"W've got lots of problems," said Ronayne. "Danny Curtis is playing super and Mike Bove and Kevin Ball are doing real well, but we don't have an overall strong team. The one thing I'm looking for most right now is improvement."



VALLEY—Curry College head baseball coach, Jack Valley of Newton, is beginning his 25th season with the Colonials. He has never had a losing season.

Our Lady's High Boosts Record To 4-4

Our Lady's High baseball team boosted its season's record o 4-4 last week, by slugging St. Mary's of Brookline, 11-4, and topping Mission High, 6-2

The Lancers utilized a seven-run fourth inning to wipe out St. Mary's, after going through the first three innings with a 3-2 lead.

Our Lady's piled up 11 hits, while pitcher Mike Terry held the losers to just four.

John Moran continued blasting opposition pitchers with a two-for-three day, including a two-run homer and a single, and two runs scored. Rick Paglia and Gary Bearfield also each crashed two hits, and Bob Franchi contributed a solo homer as St. Mary's went throuth three pitchers. Franchi beat all his compatriots, stacking up three safeties.

Terry struck out seven and walked four.

Freshman Dennis Cameron matched Terry's four-hitter later inthe week, though he issued five free passes in addition to striking out six.

Our Lady's lively bats looked like they were going to mas Mission right from the start, erupting for three runs in the first inning, but things cooled off after that and the Lancers had to rely more on Cameron's arm as the game wore on.

The Lancers knocked out seven hits in this game, and they came from seven different players, as the entire batting order made itself at home with Mike Collins' arm.

Mike Taylor, who tripled on the secone pitch of the game, Paglia, Bearfield, Moran, John Bartinelli, Cameron, and Rick Doyle, each hit safely. Franchi and Tony Colella were the only ones who missed out.

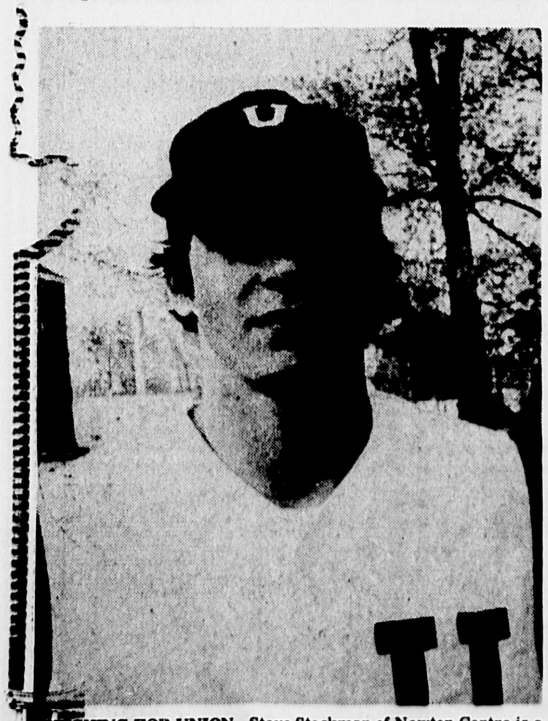
St. Sebastian's golf team absorbed its second loss of the season in a tightly-fought 6½-5½ decision to Boston Latin, last week.

Steve Maskell and Bob Ernst totaled two points, Phil Coleman and Larry Kirk, 1½ points, and the teams of Larry Packenham and John Issac, and Joe DeRoche and Tim Clapp added one point apiece.

The Arrows lost their first match of the year, 7-5, to Newton South.



STICHING FOR UNION—Steve Stockman of Newton Centre is a pitcher for the Union College baseball team. The six foot-two inch, 200-pound righthanded flamethrower, is a Biology major and also a member of the Chi Psi fraternity. Steve, a junior, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George Stockman of 4 Pine Crest Road in Newton.

Tennis At South

No news is good news it has been said, so perhaps it's a good thing that the Newton South High tennis team was rained out of its match with Westwood, last Friday, because what happened earlier in the week was no fun at all.

Weston, which edged the Lions out of the Dual County League title last year, manhandled one of their arch foes, 5-0.

Coach Bob Franke moved sophomore Umberto Fugundes up from second singles and shifted junior Billy Karol down one notch in his only change between the Newton fiasco and this one. As evidenced by the score, the move didn't help much.

Fugundes fell to Mike Hooven, 6-2, 6-4, Karol went down to Barnaby Kalen by the identical score, and Roger Gordon was overwhelmed by Ken Swain, 8-6, 4-6, 6-2 to give Weston the margin of victory in the singles sets.

Clayton Rogers and Scott Stettner made short work of South's Dave Fisher and Ben Cohen, carting off a 6-1, 6-0 triumph, and Pete McKearney and Peter Savitz rubbed out Jeff Levin and Peter Schwartz, 6-2, 6-3.

Lincoln - Sudbury, Bedford, and Acton - Boxboro dot the schedule this week, and maybe Westwood, but whoever they play, the Lions better chalk up some wins before the season turns into a rout.

Lacrosse Loss

One of the state's most powerful public school lacrosse teams, Lincoln-Sudbury, defeated Newton South, last week. 6-0.

The Warriors took target parctice against Lion netminder Ray McKinney, beating him twice in the first quarter, three times in the second period, and once in the third. Lincoln captain John Irish was the leading culprit with three goals.

McKinney was forced to make 17 stops.

Newton South, which meets Needham, Concord-Carlisle, and Weymouth North, this week, is 1-2 on the season.

Matches Rained Out

One sport which is affected by poor weather perhaps more than any other is golf.

Last week the weather was lousy for two days. Unfortunately, the Newton South golf team had matches scheduled for those two days and they were drowned right out.

So the defending Dual County League champions rested on their laurels and their two opening victories of the week before.

The extra rest may help. South faces Lincoln-Sudbury, Bedford, and Acton-Boxboro, this week, and there's no telling where the rainouts with Weston and Westwood will fit in.

Track: Newton South Suffers Opening-Day Defeat

Newton South's trackmen suffered an opening - day defeat last week as they were edged by Lincoln - Sudbury, 69-62, in an encouraging start, at Lincoln.

South's track team, loaded with young bodies, has suffered dismal years but appears to be threatening to break out of the slump. The squad, however, still does not have the depth to compete with some of the Dual County powers. It's possible that a carry - over effect from the winter season in which the Lions were winless could have a damaging effect on morale.

Spirit, though, was the chief ally of the winter club's efforts and coach Don Sutherland noted the team never got down. But it's a new season and South opened it in a way which was far from disgracing.

The Lions got victories in six events, and contrary to past history, five of the six came in the field events. Usually South's strong points are the sprints.

Al Podufly, who developed into a consistant scorer diring the indoor campaign, showed evidence indicating he may be a star in the not - too distant future.

Podufly accounted for 10 of South's points by capturing the low hurdles in 24.1, and the long jump at 18-8½. Neither of the marks is particularly impressive, but the wins are. Podufly was also second in the high jump for a total of 13 points.

Sophomore Peter Maples, who wrestled during the winter season, made an impressive debut in track by winning the triple jump with a leap of 35-8 and placing second in the long jump.

Steve Berger, another performer who performed well indoors, had a strong spring inaugural. Berger cleared the high jump marker at 5-6 for five points, finished second in the low hurdles and third in the high hurdles.

Bruce King, who started for the gymnastics team this winter, returned to the pole vault wars and topped the 9-6 mark in his first competition this year.

The other Lion victor was Barry Kaplan, who tossed the shot - put 42-10. Kaplan, a frequent double winner indoors, also added three points with a second place in the high hurdles.

South's former strength, the sprints still provided some points. Scott Barron ran second in both the 100- and 220-yard dashes, Steve Goldberg was third in the 100, and Scott Green added a single point in the 440.

The squad's traditional weak spot, the distance events, was unchanged. John Goodman's third in the 880, Chris Capless' third in the mile, and Dave Lein's second in the two - mile, were the only points the tracksters salvaged.

Behind Kaplan, Chuck Bond was the Lions' most reliable weight man. Bond was second in the shot and third in the discus.

John Mason's third in the triple jump and Seth Averback's third in the long jump, to complete a sweep of the event, rounded out the scoring.

The meet went down to the relay, but Lincoln pulled it out.

—o—

Newton South's girls track team also won three victories.

Margaret Horoika, who also participated with the boys during the cross - country and indoor track seasons, won the 100 - yard dash in 12.5 and ran legs on both the 440- and 880 - yard relay teams.

Lincoln took the next two places in the dash, but surprisingly, South showed more speed in the relays, winning the former in 55.4 and the latter in 2:15.4.

Cathy Dippo and Lynn Nepton joined Horoika on both teams, with Sue Gordon contributing a leg on the long run and Lisa Tofias running on the short one. LEWIS FREEDMAN

Lions Nine Beat Weston 4-1 On Squeeze Play

By LEWIS H. FREEDMAN

Two old friends of the Newton South baseball team came to visit, last week—rain, and the suicide squeeze. The two were not related.

The rain washed out an encounter with Westwood, and the suicide squeeze washed out Weston's chances of beating the Lions. South took a 4-1 decision, chiefly as a result of its favorite play.

With Weston ahead, 1-0 in the 4th inning, catcher Jon Rosenberg employed the magic bunt to chase Robbie Shahon home from third base and propel Ned Moan in all the way fromsecond after the Weston infield botched the play.

Shahon and Pete Miller added two runs in the fifth inning after a balk and a single by outfielder Steve Rittenberg.

Southpaw Mark Fogel was superb on the mound for the Lions, limiting the Wildcats to just two hits, and one unearned run. Stefan Karas reached on an error and came around on a variety of mistakes.

Rather than unnerve Fogel, however, he exhibited poise in rebounding from the misfortune and got stronger later in the game. The lefty struck out 10 batters and walked only three in his first start of the season.

The Lions were not scaring very many people with their bats either and totaled just five singles themselves. But the one outstanding characteristic of South baseball teams over the last half decade has been opportunism, and last week the team used it again.

Miller, Moan, Shahon, Rittenberg and Mark Malkasian each notched one of the South safeties. Jon Rosenberg managed to get two runs batted in without hitting safely.

The Lions, 2-0 on the season, do battle with Lincoln - Sudbury, Bedford, and Acton - Boxboro, on Monday, Wednesday and Friday, this week, and with some finagling might fit Westwood into their itinerary, too.

Howard Who, Said What?

By LEWIS H. FREEDMAN

Howard Cosell is a living legend. His nasal voice and alternately witty and vituperative remarks have made him a household name and a popular subject for imitation. He's a legend and he most certainly is alive. Cosell proved it last Thursday night at Babson College by alternately stunning to silence and provoking screams from 1,000 spectators at that College's annual Founders' Day Symposium, entitled "The Gamemakers."

For the sports fan who watches and listens to Cosell on Monday night football with Dandy Don Meredith and Frank "Westinghouse" Gifford, or on ABC's Wide World of Sports there was a shock. Cosell, rarely viewed full length on the tube, happens to be six feet, three inches tall, and not the relative midget he appears to be while standing next to the behemoths of the hardcourt or gridiron.

When Cosell walked on stage at Knight Auditorium after downing chicken Kiev at the Newton Marriot, the auditorium rocked with squeals of ecstasy from female admireres and roars from males. (Perhaps moderator Curt Gowdy was right when he introduced Cosell to the afternoon crowd by saying, "And here's America's number one sex symbol.")

After humorous remarks about his instant love for the President's wife and a jibe or two at the President, rewarded by jubilant howls, Cosell shifted gears.

"I want to say something very serious," he said. No one took him seriously. "You don't know how lucky you are." Laughter. But Howard was really winding up. He wasn't playing games anymore.

In 15 minutes, with sharp, stinging, singing barbs and oversimplified generalizations he tore apart afternoon speakers Jack Kemp (Republican Congressman from Buffalo, and former Charger and Bill quarterback), Ed Garvey (President NFL Players' Association), Bill Ford (owner Detroit Lions), Upton Bell (former Patriots' general manager), sports journalism in general ("There is no sports journalism in this country.") and Jack Craig of the Boston Globe particularly (Craig writes the only exclusively sports TV column in the country, both for the Globe and the Sporting News, and has come down hard on Cosell in print). The crowd, warmed by jokes, was unprepared, but gradually turned on to the hyperbole.

Kemp, sitting in the row behind me, was starting to fidget, and was mumbling under his breath — "What the hell is going on?"

When Cosell closed his monologue, or rather his performance before the jury, (he was a lawyer for 10 years) he said, "But Jackie knows I love him."

It's not certain whether Jackie knew it or not, but he at least publicly acknowledged it.

Craig, who was present through his own roasting, said later, "People don't forget it when Cosell jumps on them like that. He should stick to the jokes and let the more serious stuff go. I've written that before."

Let it be stated here that Craig and Cosell are not fans of each other, and the beginning of their non-affinity wasn't at Babson.

Although he was boomingly loud and forceful in his presentation and strong in his attacks what Cosell said is that professional sports may need federal intervention, that the games have become too much business and not enough game, and that the fans are constantly being taken advantage of. It is not a new theory, but it has probably not ever been set forth so overwhelmingly before. When Howard Cosell attacks you, you stay attacked.

At dinner, an associate editor of the Babson Free Press, the campus paper, informed me that Cosell was present under duress — he did not want to be in Wellesley, Massachusetts at all, but wanted to be home in New York.

How Cosell came to Babson is a whimsical tale in itself. The student coordinator of the symposium is named Edsel Ford. No, he is not the person the ill-fated vehicle was named after — it was his father. Ford is also the name of the Detroit Lions' owner, you may recall. He is also president of the Ford Motor Company. His nephew is Edsel Ford, the Edsel at Babson.

Anyway, the editor told me, because all the bigwigs were involved, ABC, Howard's boss, put pressure on him to come. But that's not the funny part. The funny part is that it was supposed to be a fairly well-known secret, but a secret nevertheless.

Cosell got up on the stage and the first words out of his mouth were: "I really didn't want to be here tonight. Not at all. But ABC thought I should make it. It seems that the gentleman in charge of this affair is named Edsel Ford. Ford, you see, buys six minutes of air time on Monday night football each week. So, here I am."

The crowd laughed its collective head off. He was hitting them over the head with the truth and the people thought it was a joke.

So that's the true tale of how Howard Cosell came to be at Babson College for a mere $500 when (thanks to Jack Craig) he usually commands $6,000 per engagement.

Curt Gowdy is still the master at what he does, which is control things like this.

The silver-haired (all there) announcer who spent 15 years with the Red Sox, lives in Wellesley and some people implied that he was there as a civic gesture.

Over lunch he appeared to be still on the stage, still a bit on guard as the half-dozen people at the table peppered him with questions.

One thing he is, is a professional, a man who trained long and hard to get where he is, a perfect portrait of the man who started at the bottom. And it is perhaps this background which causes him irritation over the influx of non-professionals into broadcasting booths.

What angers Curt Gowdy beyond belief is the rapidity with which former athletes move into big-time broadcasting.

A Wellesley High teacher asked him what tips she could give her students interested in going into broadcasting.

"Tell them to become All-Americans or professional stars," he replied.

And to make it worse, Gowdy is about to be deluged by non - professional announcers, though not unprofessional in other respects.

"They're going to give me Hollywood stars on Monday night baseball next," he said disgustedly. "Alan King, Doris Day, and Woody Allen."

"Woody Allen would be the best color man you've ever had," interjected one facetious soul.

Gowdy thought for a second. "Allen would be fun," he concluded.

Ed Garvey, a studious looking man, engendered the most controversy, and not simply because he spoke first. Garvey was the only severe critic of the National Football League present and though his arguments in behalf of better treatment of the players and some case histories seemed valid, he stood little chance because of the simple numbers of the opposition.

Ford, dressed in a gray suit, looked like what he is — a corporate executive. He spoke crisply and well, but maintained no eye contact with the audience and said little that was unexpected from an owner.

Upton Bell, who spoke without notes, gave little more than a report of what the job of general manager is.

Bell's remarks were spiced by the fact that Billy Sullivan, president of the Patriots, and one of the principals responsible for firing him, was present.

"I was a designated pinch-general manager," said Bell, son of former NFL Commissioner Bert Bell. "I could hit like hell, but I couldn't run."

"Right now," he went on, "I'm writing my memoirs. It's going to be called, 'Uppie, We Hardly Knew Ye.'"

Kemp proved he was a politician by not saying much of anything for a while, then finally got into some meat by saying that he felt that Congress was not about to do anything right now to intervene in the world of professional sports. He also called the game of football "a quasi-civic thing" whatever that meant.

Also in attendance were halfback Mel Farr of the Detroit Lions and former Patriot kicker Gino Capalletti.

One interesting comment from a sports writer (after lunch, cocktails and dinner) as she walked up to me was: "I still haven't figured out what the purpose of this is. Is it just that they (Babson) just has a few thousand it wants to get rid of?"

As it turns out, that wasn't the case. The money was put up by the Earl Sams Foundation, which are evidently a bunch of people who like Babson. Whether they got their money's worth or not is for them to say, but the symposium was definitely worth the time.

"Wife Irks Husband" . . .

ASK LUCY

By LUCY SORRENTO

Dear Lucy,

My pretentious wife Elizabeth insists on wearing all her diamonds whenever we dine out. This irks me. Can you suggest an Italian restaurant where we could dine without everyone starring?

Richard

Dear Richard,

Take Elizabeth to the Sorento II in Walpole. People will be so busy enjoying the great Italian food they'll hardly notice Elizabeth's dazzling diamonds.

Lucy

Dear Lucy,

Last night I served my husband veal parmigiana and spilled sauce all over his papers. Mama mia was he mad. Now he won't eat my Italian meals. Help!

Mrs. Valachi

Dear Mrs. Valachi,

Wipe his papers off at once. Suggest to Mr. Valachi that you both try the veal at Sorrento II. You'll like it. He can even bring his papers, the waitresses are very neat.

Lucy

Dear Lucy,

My husband suggests I package my Italian meat balls and sell them to the local golf club. Do you think he enjoys golf more than my cooking?

Par For The Course

Dear Par For The Course,

Let Sorrento II become your Italian cooks in the future. Go there for dinner often, maybe the chef will give you his recipes. Perhaps you could make money selling your meat balls to a golf club. Try it!

Lucy

Dear Lucy,

Whenever I serve Italian food I can't get the sauce stains out of the table cloth - what a mess! Any suggestions for spaghetti stains?

Sloppy Server

Dear Sloppy Server,

Throw away the table cloth. Take the family out for their favorite Italian meal. Try Sorrento II and let them worry about the table cloth.

There are rules for everything including the official putting green in the game of golf. The official green includes all the ground, except the hazards, within twenty yards of the hole being played. The grass on the green should be very closely cropped and smooth as velvet. The cup is generally located in or near the center of the green. If you are too tired to play regular golf, it is often relaxing just to play a putting game from green to green.

You'll Never Go Hungry In Singapore

By MURRAY J. BROWN
UPI Travel Editor

SINGAPORE (UPI) — You need never go hungry in Singapore. And what's more, you will have a variety of cuisines to choose from.

You can dine in style at scores of elegant hotel dining rooms and restaurants offering European, Chinese, Indian, Malay and other dishes served by uniformed waiters.

Or you can stuff yourself on Oriental delicacies at countless outdoor food stalls that spring up in the streets of Singpore around nightfall and often remain open until dawn. During the day, itinerant food vendors hawk tantalizing tidbits almost everywhere.

"The Chinese like to eat," said our guide, herself of Chinese descent. "The Hindu will eat no meat, the Moslem no pork, but the Chinese will eat everything."

Among the most popular—and convenient—snack bars is the "Satay Club" overlooking the harbor only a few blocks from Change Alley and Raffles Place. About 30 stalls open about 6 p.m. and you can gorge yourself on satay—succulent chunks of beef, mutton or chicken braised over a charcoal, skewered on a bamboo stick and dipped in a spicy peanut sauce.

Tab Determined by Sticks

The tab is determined by the number of empty sticks on your dish—usually about five cents U.S. for each. There are other Malay and Indian specialties also available.

If you can't wait until 6, there's the "Old Market"-or Telok Ayer Market—on the other side of Raffles Place also on the waterfront. Here there are some 190 stalls selling fresh market produce and a variety of cooked Chinese foods. The market is popular at lunchtime with business and other workers in the nearby business district.

For all-night eaters, there is, among others, the Orchard Road Car Park in Chinatown. After business hours, when the last car has left, food stalls are set up where you can sample almost every typ of food available in Singapore, including the various cuisines of China.

A favorite dish is Hokkien "mee"—noodles boiled in soup or stock with green vegetables and meat or prawns. "Dinner" for two here would set you back about $1 U.S. and no tipping is necessary.

Orchard Road also is the site of a "pasar malam" or night bazaar if you should want to do any shopping. There are pasar malams and food stands, featuring Indian, Malay, Indonesian and other dishes, in other sections of the city.

Group Visits

I visited Singapore with 15 other U.S. travel writers as guests of the Singapore Tourist Promotion Board, Singapore Airlines, Pan American World Airways and the Tourism Development Unit of American Express.

Singapore, lying off the tip of the Malay Peninsula about 85 miles north of the equator, boasts some of the most luxurious hotels in the Far East in addition to duty-free shopping and other attractions.

Sightseeing highlights include "Instant Asia," a daily show under a tent featuring classical Chinese, Indian and Malaysian dances. The pretty, costumed dancers later pose willingly for, and with, visitors. A Japanese tour group must have spent a fortune in yen for films.

There is also an interesting tour by launch of the harbor, one of the world's busiest, and visits to the Jurong Bird Park, with more than 8,000 birds from arou d the globe, and the Botanic Gardens.

Also worth visiting in Chinatown, with its narrow, crowded streets and markets, and Serangoon Road, or Little India, with ite silk, jewelry and aromatic spice shops.

Junior League to Open Decorators' Show House

The front door of the Stone Estate on Route 9, Brookline, will be open until May 20 to reveal the third annual Decorators' Show House sponsored by the Junior League of Boston. More than 30 of Boston's leading designers have decorated the rooms in the house.

Open daily from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. and Wednesday and Thursday evenings from 7 to 9:30 p.m. and on Sundays from 1 to 5 p.m. the house will be staffed by Junior League volunteers, who will be able to assist visitors with purchases and answer questions. All the furniture and accessories in the house will be for sale. Tickets will be available at the door.

Some of the boutique consignors are Mrs. Richard Dempsey with hand puppets from Newton Highlands and Ms. Florence Kostarelos from Newton Centre with paintings and sculpture.

All proceeds from the Decorators Show House will benefit the many projects of the Junior League, one of which is the Charlestown Activity Center. Open since February, 1972, the Charlestown Activity Center is the combined efforts of the Junior League, the Ladies' Visiting Committee of the Massachusetts General Hospital, and other interested agencies in the area. It provides a gathering place for adults of all ages to develop and share their ideas, skills and hobbies in a meaningful way with other members of the community.

Charlestown residents take advantage of many classes including sewing, high school equivalency Spanish, gardening, and exercise, etc. All programs are run by volunteers from the Junior League and the community.

Conference At Regis Discusses Child Adoption

Information about the hundreds of children needing foster care or adoption in the United States and overseas will be available at an Adoption Conference to be held on Saturday, May 12, from 9 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. at Alumnae Hall, Regis College, Weston.

Open to all those interested in helping children, the conference is sponsored by the Open Door Society of Massachusetts, a volunteer organization of over 600 adoptive parents concerned with finding homes from children who need families. The keynote address will be given by Elton Klibanoff, an adoptive parent, and deputy director of the Office for Children, on "The Future of Adoption and Foster Care in Massachusetts."

Seven special workshops will also be featured designed to help prospective adoptive parents as well as those who already have adopted children or have foster children. Since the majority of the children available for adoption in Massachusetts are older, there will be a workshop on "The Entrance of the Older Adopted Child into the Family," led by Donald Dobbin, director of Research for United Community Service.

Some of the available children can be placed in families for permanent foster care, and a discussion on foster parenting will be led by Harold Smith, associate director of the Hayden School for Boys.

Families who are considering or have adopted transracially will be interested in the panel discussion, "Black Identity and Your Child." This will be led by Miss Sarah Ward of the Boston Model City Staff; Richard Morris, a consultant on race relations and Mr. and Mrs. James Langmead, adoptive parents.

The adoption of handicapped children will be discussed in a workshop, "Children with Disabilities - Their Problems, Needs, and Available Resources." Representatives from various service organizations will explain the help for retarded, deaf, or mentally ill children.

Since many of the couples interested in adopting children are childless, a special panel discussion has been planned for them, "The Childless Couple Considers Adoption." A survey of the various types of adoptive children available will be presented with couples who have adopted American and overseas children. They will discuss the special concerns of the childless couple and the various policies the adoption agencies have for prospective adoptive couples in this situation.

There has been increasing interest in adopting children from Vietnam and Korea, and two workshops have been planned on this subject. One will be a panel discussion by experienced adoptive parents on the initial adjustment of overseas infants through school age children to their American families and culture.

A second workshop will be a discussion on the adjustment of "The Oriental Child in a White Society During School and Teen Years." Speakers will include a representative of the New England Korean Society and experienced adoptive parents.

Interested couples may register for the Adoption Conference by calling the Newton Area Co-Chairmen for the Open Door Society. They are Mrs. Alvin Silk at 527-6858 or Mrs. Brian Murphy at 244-8508.

Those particularly interested in overseas adoptions may call Mrs. J. Halcombe Laning at 969-7025.

Meeting To Study Charles Land Use

The second in a three-part series of open meetings on Charles River issues is scheduled for Tuesday, May 8, at Dover Town Hall.

Land Use Programs for the Charles is the subject that will be addressed by MDC Planner Julia O'Brien and Division of Natural Resources (DNR) planner Al Pratt. The meeting is sponsored by the Charles River Watershed Association.

The quality of water in a river is highly impacted by the use of its adjacent land. Historically, industries settled close to the river to take advantage of its water power. Homes followed as valley residents succumbed to the lure of living by the water. The river was also used by both industries and residents as a vehicle for carrying away their wastes, and the pollution story began.

Both MDC and DNR support public control of as much river bank property along the Charles as is possible, or its protection by conservation easements or conservation restrictions. Both agencies have land holdings along the Charles, as do such private organizations as Trustees of Reservations and Massachusetts Audubon Society.

But what of lands not now in public domain? And how will those lands be treated that are already controlled by MDC and DNR? What form of development is planned for what sort of uses?

The Charles River Watershed Association, representing members in all 35 cities and towns in the watershed, invites the public to join the planners to discuss Charles River watershed land use.

Dover Town Hall is on the town green at the junction of Central Avenue and Springdale Avenue, and the meeting is scheduled for 8 p.m. For further information please call the association at 527-2799.

Flower Show Coming Soon

Colorful Spring hues will be seen when the Massachusetts Horticultural Society holds its annual Daffodil Show in Horticultural Hall, 300 Massachusetts Avenue, on May 8-9.

The general public is invited to tour this exhibition and see hundreds of these beautiful spring flowers.

The show will feature collections of miniature and large flowered daffodils, as well as specimen blooms and special flower arrangements.

Persons interested in exhibiting their own daffodils in this show should contact the Show Secretary, Massachusetts Horticultural Society, 300 Massachusetts Avenue, Boston, or call 536-9280.

Sponsored by the Society in conjunction with Zone 1 of the Garden Club of America and the American Daffodil Society, show hours are Tuesday, May 8, 2 p.m. to 9 p.m. and Wednesday, May 9, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

The scene shifts on Sunday to Commonwealth Avenue and City Hall Mall, where a day long free activity, billed as the world's largest family picnic, art show, crafts exhibit and flea market will take place.

From 10 a.m. until dark, the area will be populated by families enjoying their own box lunches and refreshments while kids go on free hayrides, get free balloons and enjoy free entertainment from the Silver Star Steel Band and the Clan McPherson Scottish Highlanders Bagpipe Band.

More than 100 booths will be set up along Commonwealth Avenue, from Walnut Street to Lowell, for the flea market and crafts demonstrations. Artists will exhibit their work in a specially created outdoor gallery at City Hall Mall.

Volunteer committee chairmen for the various events include James Bottomley, artisans general chairman; Mrs. Leonard Salter, artists; Anton Pruckner, family picnic; Mrs. Robert Bernson and Mrs. Paul Rosman, crafts and Mrs. Stuart Pompian, flea market.

An additional art show, featuring the work of professional artists from Newton, will be on display at War Memorial Auditorium in City Hall. Chairman of this event is Mrs. Louis Egelson, assisted by Mrs. Edward Uehlein, who is serving as chairman of the preshow party for Centennial Sponsors and Golden Centurions.

The festivities along Commonwealth Avenue will halt temporarily at 2 p.m., when Centennial officials, city dignitaries and picnickers gather at City Hall Mall for three impressive ceremonies.

First of the events with an historical flavor will be the planting of the Centennial Tree, with City Librarian Virginia Tashjian as mistress of ceremonies.

Included in the program will be the Invocation by Rabbi Terry Bard; choral speaking by students Philip Katzman, Maria Leone, Lisa Marchioni, Nazareno Paglio, Lisa Coveno of the Lincoln-Eliot School under the direction of Ms. Janice Carvalho and Walter Bibb; an original essay by Norman Coburn of Newton High School; musical selections by the Ward School Choir under the direction of Ms. Marjorie Siref; the tree planting ceremony and address by Mayor Theodore D. Mann and Centennial Beautification Committee chairman Mrs. Edmund Payne, Jr. Honor guard for the ceremony will include Janet Fleming of the Girl Scouts, Cub Scout Scott MacDonald and representatives of the Norumbega Council, Boy Scouts of America. Mrs. Worthington West will represent the Senior Citizens of Newton.

The tree planting ceremony will launch a city-wide beautification program under the direction of Mrs. Payne. The program has already received cooperation of virtually all of the city's 31 schools, merchant associations, Chamber of Commerce and Garden Clubs.

Immediately following the ceremony, city officials, Centennial Commission leaders and other representatives of the city's business and civic organizations will place items of historical significance in the Time Capsule, to be buried on the City Hall Mall for exhumation in the year 2073.

All city aldermen have been invited to prepare messages to posterity to be placed in the Time Capsule to be read by Newtonians who participate in the city's bi-centennial 100 years from now.

Other historical data include photos and maps of the city, the Centennial Journal, a history of the city's educational and religious development, reports from the Jackson Homestead and civic organizations and a videotape of the day's proceedings.

At the conclusion of the Tree Planting Ceremony, the assembly will move across Homer Street to a huge tent to participate in an outdoor Interdenominational Religious Service, planned and conducted under the supervision of the Newton Clergy Association.

The program will feature a Processional, with music by the Newton High School Chorale; a reading of Psalm 133 bt Reverend Garrett Albertson; a rendition of the Hebrew song Henay matov by the congregation, accompanied by folk guitar; presentation by the Choir of Temple Shalom with introduction by Rabbi Murray Rothman; community singing accompanied by folk guitar; a presentation by the Choir of the Lutheran Church, introduced by Reverend Gene Bartlett; the Choir of Sacred Heart Church introduced by Monsignor John Parsons and a three part prayer service conducted by Rabbi Robert Miller, Monsignor John McMarmon and Rev. Thomas Lehman.

General chairman of the Centennial Religious Committee is Msgr. Wm. Granville.

At dusk, citizens of all ages will join in a program of square dancing and folk dancing, with instruction by Irving Park and the Newton Squares and Connie and Marianne Taylor, professional instructors.

Art Exhibition Continues

The 23rd annual exhibition of paintings by members of the Newton Art Association will open at the Chestnut Hill Store of R.H. Stearns Company on Monday, Apr. 30 and continue through Saturday, May 12.

The Roy A. Randall Award, first prize, will be given to the painting adjudged to be the most artistic. Philip Hicken, a nationally known American Artist, will make the prize selection.

A second and third prize, and honorable mention will also be awarded.

Many of these artists are well-known and recognized among their New England peers. They have received many prizes in local exhibitions.

The artists hope that many members of the community will be able to visit the store during this period.

Obstacles In Way Of Caroline-Charles Romance

By ROBERT MUSEL

MONTE CARLO (UPI) — Prince Charles, of Britain, the most eligible bachelor in the world, is tall, dark and 22, loves the sea and sailing and is devoted to music with a bias towards the classical.

Princess Caroline of Monaco, one of the most eligible girls in the world, is tall, dark and 16, loves the sea and sailing and is devoted to music with a bias towards the classical.

Whatever you may be thinking, the unofficial royal matchmakers have beaten you to it. They seem made for each other, the handsome (better looking than his photos) heir to the throne of Britain and the beautiful daughter of Prince Rainier of Monaco and his lovely former film star wife, Princess Grace.

Speculation Bubbles

Ever since the spring of 1971 when Princess Grace entered her daughter in a school at Ascot, only a few minutes from Windsor Castle, the speculation has been bubbling. It was helped by the fact the pool of possible queens hasn't seemed to fascinate Charles thus far and that the Princess looks much more mature than her years.

And remarks, when she was asked her ideal in boys, like "I like tall, dark boys" only bubbled the gossip along, Charles being tall and dark, of course.

Alas for the matchmakers, the trail of romance fizzles out in this pretty principality perched on two hills over the azure Mediterranean. Sources in the pink palazzo of the reigning Grimaldis, where soldiers in picturesque feathered cockades stand guard, point out the obstacles.

Religion Big Obstacle

Religion is a big one. Caroline studied at St. Mary's Convent at Ascot and is a devout Catholic. Charles, of course, will some day be Defender of the Faith—the established Protestant Church of England. Thrones have hurdled the religious barrier before but Caroline is young and adamant.

Then she has her future planned—more study in France and a career as an interpreter —French, German, Spanish and English are her current languages. The ceremonial restrictions of court life simply do not interest her at the moment.

And making everything else academic, Grimmy (her school nickname) has never met Prince Charles. Princess Anne spent a few days at the palace as guest of Prince Rainier and Princess Grace, goading the gossips to frenzy. But it was just a friendly visit even though it does seem to signal a closer relationship between the two houses.

"Why", said Caroline plaintively, "do they try to engage me to someone I haven't even met?"

Man-made Booby Trap Causes Thousands Of Deaths

NEW YORK (UPI) — Warning: The highway you travel may be dangerous to your health.

Most likely it's booby-trapped —and even more likely the hazards were put there by man himself.

At least 75 per cent of the vehicles in fatal accidents strike one or more fixed objects on the sides of roads, the U.S. Department of Transportation has found in a survey of the Interstate Highway System. The federal agency estimates that such hazards as light poles, sign posts, trees and guardrails take a toll of more than 4,500 lives annually and cause thousands of serious accidents.

Even grimmer statistics were uncovered by Pennsylvania's Department of Transportation. During the first half of 1972, state investigators attributed 357 deaths to roadside objects struck by cars. By comparison, 290 people died in crashes involving cars.

"Roadside death traps can be eliminated simply and economically," says Thomas C. Morrill, vice president of State Farm Mutual, auto insurer.

He says breakaway sign posts and light poles, better guardrails and cushioning devices have been available for some time.

"A government study has shown that dollars spent to remove highway hazards have five times the life-saving value of dollars spent on new roads," Morrill says.

"However, we'll begin to see lethal booby traps disappear from our roads only if individuals and concerned organizations urge state and local officials to take appropriate action."

What Needs to be Done After a Fire Strikes?

Even if you do everything possible to prevent fires in your home, it is still a good idea to learn what to do after a fire strikes. Although most fires are caused by carelessness, some are simply unavaoidable. A fire occurs on the average of every 46 seconds in the UNITED States—every 30 minutes in Massachusetts—and a person is killed in a fire somewhere in the U. S. on the average of once every 43 minutes, according to the Insurance Information Institute.

Preliminary estimates indicate the total fire losses were $2.3 billion in 1972. Fires in homes account for 70 percent of the nation's building fires and approximately 32 percent of the dollar fire losses.

Here, then are a few tips from the Institute on what to do after the fire department has doused the fire and you are left to deal with the damage.

—Get in touch with your insurance agent or broker at once. Waiting could cause a delay in settling the claim. Furthermore, your agent or broker can give you valuable advice on how to minimize further damage. He also may help find temporary quarters for your family, if needed. Often the agent will be able to obtain an emergency cash advance from the insurance company for a family left short of cash until the total loss is settled.

+If damage is extensive, you should consider whether you should get in touch with your utility companies to have the gas and electricity turned off. You may also want to have an emergency electric line run into the house if the old line was damaged. However, telephone calls can usually be rerouted to another number by arrangement with the phone company.

—Make temporary repairs (keep records because your insurance company will pay for these) to protect against further damage from the weather. This may involve an emergency patch to the roof or boarding a few windows to prevent wind, rain or snow from causing added damage.

—Choose a competent contractor to do the repair work on your house. An inexperienced contractor may overlook damage done to the electrical system, furnace or plumbing.

The smart homeowner makes an inventory of everything of value in each room of his house, places copies of the inventory list with his insurance agent and in a safe deposit box, and is thus in a position to prove to his insurance company the extent of loss from a fire. Afte a fire it is difficult to remember all valuables damaged or destroyed by the fire. However, if you have neglected to make an inventory, it often helps to flip through a mail order catalogue as a reminder of the various items of personal property you did have.

There's something about spring that brings a lilt to life! Pink blossoms, tender green leaves, bright blue skies, billowy clouds and sunshine. Spring weather brings on "luncheon fever" with ladies busy planning a variety of teas, luncheons and bridal showers.

Imagination can turn an ordinary party into a social event. If you're planning a bridal shower, it's a nifty idea to shower the bride with recipes. Include a 3 x 5-inch recipe card with each invitation and ask your guest to write down her favorite recipe on it as a gift for the guest of honor.

Though showers were thought of as girls only affairs, it has become increasingly popular to invite men too. Even so, refreshments at mid-day are light with sparkling punches a popular choice being easy to serve and far more economical than cocktails.

Refreshments are generally offered on a buffet for the obvious reason that people can serve themselves. Foods should be colorful, attractive and, most important, easily manipulated with a fork.

Tiny attractive tea sandwiches are always appropriate and a boon to the harassed hostess because they can be made ahead of time. Pretty molded salads go together quickly and may be whisked from refrigerator to table for everyone's enjoyment.

A towering super special cake that serves not only as dessert but also as table centerpiece can be made in three layers, filled and frosted to professional perfection. No course in cake decorating is necessary — the "flowers" adorning the cake are made with marshmallows and gumdrops.

The following recipes will help you in your party planning:

RUBY PARTY PUNCH

8 cups (2 quarts) cranberry juice cocktail, chilled
½ cup grenadine
4 cups cherry or raspberry soda, chilled
4 cups lemon soda, chilled
Orange slices, halved
1 quart cranberry juice "rocks"

Combine cranberry juice, grenadine and sodas in punch bowl. Put cranberry "rocks" in punch cups; fill with punch. Garnish each cup with half slices of orange. To make the cranberry "rocks" use 1 quart cranberry juice cocktail poured into ice cube trays and freeze. Serves 16.

SHERBERT-WINE PUNCH

1 quart lemon sherbert
1 can (6 oz.) frozen lemonade concentrate
1 (four-fifths) quart bottle sauterne or other white dinner wine, chilled

Place the sherbert and lemondae concentrate in a large bowl. Slowly blend in the wine until the mixture is smooth and creamy. Serve immediately. The punch is apt to separate slightly as it stands, so stir gently before serving. Yields: approximately 20 (3 oz.) servings.

FROSTED RIBBON SANDWICHES

9 slices white bread, crusts removed
2 tablespoons butter or margarine, softened
1 pkg. (8 oz.) cream cheese
1 pkg. (3 oz.) cream cheese
1 pkg. (3 oz.) lemon-gelatin
Egg salad filling
Chicken salad filling
Lettuce leaves

Butter each slice of bread. Spread 3 slices with Egg salad filling; top with lettuce leaf and buttered bread. Spread with Chicken salad filling; top with lettuce and remaining 3 slices bread. Cut each (3) layered sandwich in half to make 6 "loaves." Cube both packages cream cheese and place in small heatproof bowl. Dissolve gelatin in 1 cup boiling water; beat cream cheese; add one-third cup of the gelatin mixture gradually. (Combine the remaining gelatin mixture with equal amount of cold water and refrigerate to be used as dessert or snack later.) Spread cream cheese mixture on top and sides of sandwich "loaves" allowing about ¼ cup per loaf. Refrigerate unit set Serves 6.

EGG SALAD FILLING: Combine 4 hard-cooked eggs, chopped, ¼ cup green pepper, ¼ teaspoon dry mustard, ⅛ teaspoon salt and ¼ cup mayonnaise or salad dressing.

CHICKEN SALAD FILLING: Combine 1 cup chopped, cooked chicken, ¼ cup chopped celery, 2 hard-cooked eggs, chopped, ⅛ teaspoon salt and ¼ cup mayonnaise or salad dressing.

CREAMY CHICKEN SALAD RING

2 tablespoons (2 envelopes) unflavored gelatin
½ cup cold water
2 cups tomato juice, divided
2 chicken bouillon cubes
One-third cup fresh lemon juice
½ teaspoon onion powder
¼ teaspoon salt
2 cups dairy sour cream
One-third cup crumbled blue cheese
2½ cups chopped, cooked chicken
1 cup finely chopped celery
½ cup toasted slivered almonds
One-third cup chopped green pepper

Soften gelatin in cold water; put into a saucepan and add 1 cup of the tomato juice. Add chicken bouillon cubes and heat, stirring, until gelatin is dissolved. Add remaining tomato juice, lemon juice, onion powder and salt. Chill until partially set. Meanwhile, combine sour cream and crumbled blue cheese in a bowl. Fold into gelatin mixture along with chicken, celery, slivered almonds and chopped green pepper. Mix lightly. Turn into a 7-cup mold. Chill until firm. Serve on salad greens and garnish with slices of cucumber and cherry tomatoes. Serves 8-10.

BEEF TERIYAKI and sesame shrimp are famous Japanese dishes. Both make sensational first course or cocktail party fare. For recipe, please refer to Information, Please.

FROSTY FRUIT SALAD

1 can (1 lb.) apricot halves
1 can (1 lb. 14 oz.) fruit cocktail
1 pkg. (3 oz.) lemon flavored gelatin
1 cup boiling water
2 tablespoons lemon juice
2 pkgs. (3 oz. ea.) cream cheese
½ cup dairy sour cream
1½ cups miniature marshmallows
1 cup whipping cream, whipped
½ cup chopped walnuts

Drain fruit reserving 1 cup syrup. In a bowl pour boiling water over gelatin; stir until dissolved. Add reserved syrup and lemon juice. In a mixing bowl beat cream cheese until light and fluffy; add sour cream. Add gelatin to cheese mixture; chill until partially set. Fold in drained fruit, marshmallows, whipped cream and nuts. Turn into salad molds, 4 cups each. Freeze. Remove from freezer; allow to stand at room temperature about 45 minutes before turning out to serve. Serves 12-16.

MAYTIME FLOWER CAKE

¾cup (1½ sticks) margarine
1½ cups sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla
4 eggs
2¾ cups sifted cake flour
1 tablespoon baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
1 cup milk
Orange butter filling
Butter mallow frosting
Marshmallows and Gumdrops

Generously grease bottoms of 3 tier pans — 9-inch cake pan, 7½-inch, 5½-inch pan — dust with flour. In large mixing bowl cream margarine; gradually add sugar and beat until light; add vanilla; beat in eggs one at a time beating well after each addition. Sift together flour, baking powder and salt; add to creamed mixture alternately with milk. Fill pans half full. Bake in 350 degree oven — small 5½ inch cake 25-30 min., larger layers 30-35 minutes. Cool in pans on wire racks 10 minutes. Turn onto racks top side up and cool completely. Prepared filling.

ORANGE BUTTER FILLING

1 tablespoon sugar
2 teaspoons cornstarch
Dash of salt
¼ cup orange juice
1 teaspoon lemon juice
1 tablespoon grated orange peel
½ cup (1 stick) butter
2½ cups confectioners sugar
1 drop red food color
2 drops yellow food color

In a 1-quart saucepan mix together sugar, cornstarch and salt; gradually add orange and lemon juices. Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly, until thickened. Boil 2 additional minutes — mixture will be thick. Stir in orange peel and 1 tablespoon of the butter. Cool. In a small mixing bowl cream remaining butter until light and fluffy. Gradually add sugar alternately with orange mixture. Beat until smooth and creamy. Blend in food colors. Yield: 2 cups.

BUTTER MALLOW FROSTING

25 large marshmallows
¾ cup milk
1 cup (2 sticks) butter, cold and firm
¼ teaspoon orange extract
Yellow food color

In a 2-quart saucepan, over low heat, warm marshmallows and milk, stirring constantly, until marshmallows melt. Cool to room temperature; stir to blend thoroughly. In a small mixing bowl cream butter until light and fluffy. Continue to beat while very gradually adding marshmallow mixture. Add extract and food color. (If mixture seems to separate, continue beating until it is smooth and fluffy.

To assemble cake: Split layers in half. Place largest bottom half on serving plate; spread with 1 cup filling; replace top. Spread ¾ cup filling on second layer; replace top. Spread ¼ cup filling on smallest layer; replace top. Frost top and sides of largest layer and center middle layer on bottom layer; frost. Center smallest layer on top; frost. For large daisy on top, cut 2 large marshmallows in thirds horizontally to make 6 "petals." Place "petals" on top of cake to form daisy — for small daisies cut miniature marshmallows in thirds; arrange 7 to 8 "petals" on cake to form each daisy. Use orange and yellow gumdrops cut in half for centers of daisies.

American Indian Jewelry

Mother and daughter were close together peering into the jewelry case at Jordan Marsh, Boston. They were gazing with awe and admiration at David Hetzel's collection of one-of-a-kind treasures in silver and turquoise handcrafted by Navajo, Zuni, Hopi and Santo Domingo Indian tribes of the American Southwest.

Mrs. John W. Grosse of Dedham was wearing her Indian belt, a Singer design of Zuni mosaic inlay in cluster pattern centered with coral. Adding to her collection, she purchased one of Mr. Hetzel's prize peices, a signed Marenci turquoise bracelet, the stone set in a silver rope twist shadow box design. Her daughter Jan chose a Navajo concho belt hand stamped with old matched stones of matrix blue gem turquoise.

"Whenever I travel, I like to take with me something of my country . . . my own culture," said Mrs. Grosse. "Europeans are always surprised when I tell them with pride of the artistry of our American Indians."

This sudden attention paid to Indian jewelry and crafts hasn't been all that sudden, explains David Hetzel whose handsome features seem carved out of granite. He has the look of an experienced trader having learned the fine art of expressionless bartering as a young lad working in his father's trading post.

"People of prominence are wearing American jewelry today," he said. "Eleanor McGovern and others in politics, as well as fashionable movie stars such as David Cassidy, Andy Williams, Sonny and Cher Bono and many others are wearing and collecting American jewelry.

"Realizing several years ago that Indian jewelry was becoming a fashionable trend, my business partner and I started to collect American jewelry and artifacts. Most of the stones are mined by commercial mines on the Santo Domingo reservations. Some mines are starting to play out and so turquoise is becoming a most sought after precious gem.

"Men, women and children work as families participating in making the jewelry," Hetzel explained, "And though many women have excelled in making Indian jewelry, most often (for reasons I do not know) they do not sign their work.

"The Indians of the Santo Domingo tribes live 24 miles Southwest of Santa Fe, New Mexico and are extremely well skilled in their beadwork. The Navajo reservation is in New Mexico and part of Arizona—these people do the silver work and the Zunis are experts in lapidary."

Stones worked with are jet, coral, shell, mother of pearl and turquoise. The coral comes from Italy and its appearance in Indian jewelry is explained by David Hertzel.

"The Indians had actually established trade routes back before 1518 when the Spaniards came over to this country. Anything symbolic of water was of great interest to the Indians. If you lived in a dry arid region, it would not be unusual for you to be involved with thoughts of water and so coral, jet and turquoise are very sacred to these people.

"It seems that when the Indian ruins were uncovered by archeologists, pieces of turquoise were always found. In understanding this custom, one must realize that Indians at one time were nomads and after the ice age had receded, leaving the Southwestern portion of the United States a bare, arid region, these people would roam in bands looking for seeds and different food stuffs.

"In the process of doing so, many times they would spot something blue in the earth and thinking it would be water, they would rush forward to investigate only to find turquoise. The color of turquoise runs in the full range of greens and blues and even violet."

To aid you in your appreciation and understanding of Indian jewelry, David Hetzel offers the following information:

Zuni jewelry falls roughly into five categories: Large stone, small stone, inlay, channel and nugget.

"Large stone" jewelry is the oldest style and came first. It is not the most important or prevalent Zuni style and is characterized by the use of large stones tastefully set off in silver.

"Small stone" jewelry is the best known Zuni style. Small stone is among the most popular of all Southwestern jewelry and is arranged usually in rows or clusters, and is quite simple in design. It is characterized by horizontal rows of color-matched round, square, diamond or needlepoint stones, accented by intermediate rows of silver drops. Bracelets are the most common products of cluster and row work, but these patterns are sometimes found in rings, earrings, pins, and concho belts.

"Inlay" is quite different from small stone or large stone. Technically the work is mosaic, since the pieces are laid on, not in the backing. Zuni inlay is almost exclusively representational forming colorful pictures of the sun, rainbow, and the knife wing gods.

The "channel" style is much like inlay. The same representational subjects are seen, different only in the silver lines wholly or partially replacing the cracks between the stones. This visible difference is due to a newer technique in which narrow silver strips are soldered down to form "channels" or cells into which the stones are later fitted.

The "nugget" is quite different from the channel style. The nugget cut stones used in this style retain their natural bumps and hollows, based on the idea of following the natural forms of the materials.

American Indian jewelry in silver, shell and stonework has become a prized collectors' item, cherished not only for its handsome design and color detail but for what it represents . . . the art of America.

1 cup milk

Melt chocolate in top of a double boiler over simmering water; stir in the water and baking soda, then cool. Beat egg whites until they hold firm but, moist peaks; set aside. Cream the butter and sugar together thoroughly. Beat in egg yolks and orange peel. Sift flour, measure, then sift with baking powder and salt. Alternately add flour and milk to creamed mixture, mixing until blended after each addition. Fold in egg whites. Stir 2 cups of the batter into chocolate mixture. In a greased and flour-dusted tube pan, alternate the dark and light batters. Bake in 325 degree oven for about 1 hour and 10 minutes or until a toothpick inserted in cake comes out clean. Cool 15 minutes; remove from pan. Serves 12-16.

Question: I am really angry with myself. I treasured a recipe of many years back — it was a casserole that had sour cream, cottage cheese, ground beef and noodles in a sauce and it was baked and my family loved it, but somehow I lost the recipe. Do you have a recipe that bears any resemblance to what I have suggested? I would be grateful! — Mrs. C. K., Walpole

Answer: There are many recipes that resemble the one you mention — however, here is one I think will bring a vote of approval from your family.

BEEF, CHEESE AND NOODLE CASSEROLE

1½ pounds ground chuck
2 tablespoons margerine
2 small cans tomato sauce
1 pkg. (8 oz.) wide noodles
½ pint sour cream
1 cup (8 oz.) cottage cheese
¼ cup chopped onion
¼ cup chopped green pepper
¼ cup buttered bread crumbs+
1 pkg. (8 oz.) cream cheese, room temp.

+(To prepare buttered bread crumbs, add 2 tablespoons melted margerine to ½ cup fine sifted crumbs. Mix. Sprinkle over casserole.)

Cook noodles according to directions on the package. Brown meat in frying pan in the margarine, season with salt and pepper. Add tomato sauce to the meat. Remove frying pan from heat. Mix cream cheese (at room temperature), sour cream and cottage cheese in a bowl. Add onion and green pepper to cheese mixture. Grease casserole with margarine; put ½ of the noodles in bottom of casserole, add cheese mixture, then put remaining noodles on top of cheese. Spread meat on top of noodles. Sprinkle with bread crumbs, dot with margarine. Bake at 375 degrees for an hour. Serves 6.

Question: Perhaps you can help me. I have a friend who has just returned from a trip to Japan and I would like to prepare a Japanese dish such as teriyaki. Can you help me with a recipe — or two? Thanks very much. — Mrs. G. H., Waban

Answer: There is an old Japanese saying that if you have the pleasant experience of eating food you've never tasted before, your life will be lengthened by 75 days. Quick — here are two recipes for — and a toast to many, many added days of life!

BEEF TERIYAKI

½ cup finely chopped onion
2 tablespoons sugar
½ teaspoon ground ginger
1 large clove garlic, minced
½ cup soy sauce
¼ cup sherry
2 tablespoons oil
2 pounds boneless beef sirloin, cut into 4 x 1 x ¼-inch strips

Combine onion, sugar, ginger, garlic, soy sauce, sherry and oil in large bowl. Stir in meat; mix well. Cover; refrigerate several hours or overnight. Thread strips of beef onto metal skewers. Broil 3-inches from source of heat, 2 to 3 minutes on each side. Serves 6.

SESAME SHRIMP

¼ cup oil
3 tablespoons lemon juice
3 tablespoons soy sauce
1 tablespoon honey
¼ teaspoon ground ginger
1 large clove garlic, crushed
1 pound uncooked jumbo shrimp, shelled and deveined
One-third cup toasted sesame seeds

Combine 2 tablespoons oil, lemon juice, soy sauce, honey, ginger and garlic. Mix well. Stir in shrimp. Cover and refrigerate for 2 hours, stirring onece or twice. Heat remaining 2 tablespoons oil in skillet over moderate heat. Fry shrimp 1½ minutes on each side, or until done. Dip each shrimp in sesame seed, lightly coating each side. Place on heated platter and serve hot. Serves 4-6.

Question: I wonder why one seldom finds a recipe for a good raisin pie. I have ordered them in restaurants but seldom find them on the menu, and when I do, the pie is generally a "bought" pie and not homemade. So, I am determined to make my own. Would you please publish a raisin pie recipe. Thanks. — Mrs. Jo Ann S., Norwood

Answer: There's nothing ever to compare with "home baked" — here's your recipe:

SOUTHERN RAISIN PIE

Crust:
2 cups all purpose flour
½ teaspoon salt
Two-thirds cup shortening
¼ cup ice cold water

Sift flour, measure, and sift with salt into bowl. Add shortening and cut into flour with pastry blender or two knives, cutting until pieces are about the size of large peas. Add water by tablespoonfuls, sprinkling over the top. Toss with a fork to moisten evenly. Turn out on waxed paper and press together. Chill for 10 minutes. Makes 1 double crust.

2 cups seedless raisins
2½ cups water
½ cup brown sugar
2 tablespoons cornstarch
1 teaspoon cinnamon
⅛ teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon butter
1 tablespoon vinegar
1 teaspoon vanilla

Preheat oven to 425 degrees. Boil raisins in 2 cups water for 5 minutes. Combine sugar, cornstarch, cinnamon, and salt. Moisten with remaining ½ cup cold water and add to raisins. Stir until mixture boils. Remove from fire and add butter, vinegar and vanilla. Pour into pastry-lined 9-inch pie pan; cover top with lattice or covered pastry. Bake for 25 minutes.

HELPFUL HINT: Don't desert your diet for dessert. Instead enjoy fresh apple slices flavored with Orange-Cinnamon yogurt topping. Combine 4 teaspoons sugar, 1 tablespoon orange peel and ½ teaspoon cinnamon, blend in 1 cup plain yogurt. Chill several hours. Yield: 1 cup and only 11 calories per tablespoon of topping.

Dr. Noble Leaves County Hospital

Dr. John Noble, director of Middlesex County Hospital for the past three years, will become the director of the Primary Care Center at the University of North Carolina Memorial Hospital on July 3.

At Middlesex, Dr. Noble turned the former tuberculosis sanitorium which was on the verge of closing into an expanding multi-level community oriented chronic hospital. In his new position in Chapel Hill, N.C., he will be in charge of a program being developed as a prototype for health care delivery which could become nationwide.

Dr. Noble has volunteered to work with the County Commissioners who are Middlesex's Board of Trustees, in recruiting a new director.

The hospital's budget, which must be passed by the state legislature, will have a hearing before the legislature's Committee on Counties in the near future.

"With solid legislative and trustee support of the budget, the hospital is well launched with services needed in the community," Dr. Noble said. "Effective control of the hospital's deficit will only come when the State Rate Setting Commission allows equitable re-imbursement."

Middlesex has a rehabilitation and chronic care unit, an alcohol detoxification and rehabilitation unit, a half-way house for former drug users, an outpatient department for chest diseases and the only residence for young adults with spinal cord injuries who are attending college or employed in the New England states.

In North Carolina, Dr. Noble will be developing a modern alternative for the old fashioned outpatient department. This type of unit will more and more have to take the place of the solo general practicioner-family doctor.

"We are hoping to develop a way to provide primary care which is personally satisfactory to the individual seeking medical care," Dr. Noble said.

This position was first discussed with Dr. Noble over one year ago.

Besides the Primary Care Center within the main hospital, the center also includes four outreach clinics.

"Throughout my years in medical school and house staff training, as well as while I was in the Public Health Service, I shared an interest in developing this type of health delivery system with a number of men who have, by chance, gravitated to Chapel Hill. This new position will provide me the opportunity to work very closely with these men on our common goal," Dr. Noble said.

Dr. Noble, a native of Boston, recently was named one of the Ten Outstanding Young Leaders of the Boston area. He holds an A.B. from Harvard University and his M.D. from Columbia University College of Physicians and Surgeons. He interned at the Massachusetts General Hospital.

From 1965-1969 he was a medical officer with the U.S. Public Health Service where he specialized in the eradication of smallpox in 19 West African countries. He also organized smallpox diagnostic services in 19 western hemisphere countries under Pan American Health Organization sponsorship.

Police Investigate Burglaries

The Newton Police Department is continuing to investigate a series of burglaries discovered in various parts of the city during the past few days.

Dr. Hershell Rosenzweig reported to police his office at 93 Union st., had been broken into and a portable AM—FM radio valued at $25 had been taken.

A police spokesman theorized the thief or thieves gained entry to the third floor, apartment office by way of a fire escape to the roof where an unlocked window proved to be too much of a temptation.

Officer Robert J. Greeley has been assigned to investigate the breaking and entering at the doctor's office.

The stable at Mr. Ida Junior College was also subject to a break - in recently and Officer Ralph H. Rich has been assigned to the case.

According to the police report, Sharon Brock of the college told officers that a saddle valued at $277 had been taken from the tack room of the stable. Five other saddles in the room at the same time remained untouched, police said.

The investigation has revealed that intruders broke into the stable by breaking a pane of glass located above the door lock, according to police.

The Charles River Country Club on Dedham st., also reported a break - in to police headquarters during the week.

Officer Thomas L. McEnaney is investigating after police were told by Ronald Rogowski, club manager, that someone had broken in and ransacked the women's locker room.

It is unknown if anything is missing at this time, police said, but the owners of lockers are currently being contacted for inventories.

Detectives William P. Mahoney and Francis M. DeVito along with Officer John J. Cox are investigating a burglary at the home of Madelyn Winchester at 30 Kingston rd.

According to police, they were notified by a brother of the woman that the home had been broken into and three rugs, value unestimated, had been taken.

At their meeting on May 11, the Rotarians will hear Dr. Emil A. Freniere, chairman of the department of humanities at Newton Jr. College. He will speak on "The Concord Surveyor-Henry David Thoreau-The Man Not The Myth."

GOLDEN KEY CHAPTER of Children's Asthma Research Institute and Hospital (CARIH) has planned a second "Get-Away" and Mah Jongg Tournament at Dunfey's Hyannis Resort, May 8, 9, and 10. 'Fanny' Most Underrated Rock Band In America

By BRUCE MEYER
United Press International

Asked to name the most underrated rock bands in America, I'd have to put Fanny near the top of the list.

Fanny has two fine writers in Nickey Barclay and June Millington. They sing well, their albums are beautifully arranged and engineered, and they play a gutsy brand of rock 'n' roll.

Yet Fanny's fourth album, "Mother's Pride" (Reprise MS-2136), is out, and the band still isn't headlining. Perhaps it has something to do with being the first serious all-female rock band.

Really, "Mother's Pride" won't help the cause much. Though there are two or three really strong tracks, the album as a whole seems lacking in depth.

One tune, "Solid Gold," is particularly unfortunate, since it manages to come off like a weak copy of Dr. Hook's "The Cover of Rolling Stone."

On the other hand, the first cut is Randy Newman's "Last Night I Had A Dream," and it's not only one of the best things Fanny has done, but it's the best rock adaptation of a Newman tune ever pressed into vinyl—Nickey's vocal is outstanding.

But "Mother's Pride" is decidedly an up-and-down album, and although it starts with an up, most of the rest is down. If you want to pick up on Fanny at their best, get "Fanny Hill" (Reprise MS-2058) instead.

"I'm not concerned about how fast my horse can run," says Tom T. Hall. "I'm concerned about everybody recognizing it as a horse."

Hall appeared with his band at Carnegie Hall recently—one brief stop on his endless tour of one-night-stand concerts at state fairs and stock shows and nightclubs.

Tom T. is from Olive Hill, Kentucky, and he describes himself as "an old boy who picks guitar and sings through his nose." It isn't far off as an analysis of his stage show. But he is also one of the best half-dozen songwriters in America, a storyteller and a rare, clear-sighted observer of humanity. He calls it as he sees it.

Tom T. Hall has never released an album that didn't contain at least one tune I disagreed with, though the honesty of the observations can't be denied. The same will go for just about anybody—except that they'll probably disagree with different tunes.

"A writer has an obligation to say for people what they can't say for themselves," he says. "I can go to a peace march or a military base, and find something interesting in both places."

Tom T. Hall's newest album is called "The Rhymer and Other Five and Dimers" (Mercury SRM 1-668), and it's no better and no worse than his previous seven—it's simply all. Tom T.

There are unsubtle put-downs of racism and "do-goodism" (defined as the attitude that makes it possible to form a committee on ecology in less time than it takes to pick up a beer can), and there are a couple of weary, sad "On the Road" tunes, and a little gem that opens the album called "Ravishing Ruby."

"The Rhymer" has a good cover, which is a welcome change from previous Tom T. albums, and the themes of the songs seem to be spreading out a little. But basically it's take-it-or-leave-it music, straightforward and plain and uniquely American.

It's the kind of music that makes a difference, and that's why you found Tom T. Hall in a rock 'n' roll column: Labels just aren't that important.

POWER WITHOUT POLLUTION

Pollution is the price our society pays for the fuel of progress. But there are untapped sources of energy that would not despoil our air.

Nuclear power may solve our energy needs and pollution problems. Many experts predict it will. Others disagree. A staff report to the Public Service Commission in New York recently warned that nuclear energy cannot solve the power crisis swiftly and safely. The Commission urged the development of nonatomic sources.

One source of energy suggested was coal gasification. Coal is dwindling as a source of power now because it creates so much pollution. But polluting gases can be extracted from the burning coals in special refining plants. Then the gas can be burned in steam generating plants that spew little pollution.

Still another source of energy is advocated by former Interior Secretary Walter J. Hickel. He has proposed that the government invest $685 million to study ways to develop geothermal energy. This energy comes from tapping the heat of the earth's core to make steam to run electric power plants.

The most visible forms of geothermal energy are geysers, hot springs, and volcanoes. Much larger reserves lie in great underground regions of hot dry rocks and volcanic molten rocks and volcanic molten rock.

If development begins soon, Hickel predicts that in another 25 years this form of energy could supply even more power than is produced by the entire electric power system in the U. S.

Developing ways to provide power without pollution is an overriding concern. To find out how you can pitch into the fight against air pollution, contact the Boston TB and Respiratory Disease Association. It's a matter of life and breath.

Mayor Proclaims Mental Health Month

May was proclaimed Mental Health Month in Newton by Mayor Theodore Mann on April 23 in City Hall.

Mayors and governors all over the country are making the same proclamation to encourage citizens to support their local mental health chapters.

The Newton Mental Health Association is one of the many chapters of the national organization and supports the Newton Guidance Clinic for emotionally disturbed children. Funds are received through state, municipal and private contributions all of which stays in the community to help our own families.

Taking a leading role in involving the community in NMHA activities are Keith Willoughby of the Newton Savings Bank; Jeff Cornell, Jaycees Vice President of External Affairs and Ted Gross, Mental Health Month chairman.

Willoughby will make the lobby of the bank's Center Street office available for the sale of "Party Potpourri," all proceeds to go to the NMHA. This gourmet party cookbook which shows the easy way to make gourmet parties with appropriate wine accompaniment was compiled by NMHA members and edited by Dr. and Mrs. Thomas Lamont who learned and taught gourmet cooking as a hobby in Germany and this country. Mrs. Lamont is a psychiatric social worker.

Gross is planning a "March for Mental Health" scheduled for May 20. Unlike the usual march routine, a unique blueprint of seven individual three-mile routes has been devised to enable people of all ages to participate.

Community support of the NMHA is more vital than ever in order to keep pace with the growing demand for outreach neighborhood programs. Barbara Rubin, president of the NMHA which is located at 64 Eldridge Street in Newton Corner, is coordinating all plans and invites the public to call her at 969-4925 to offer support or request information.

MAYOR THEODORE D. MANN presented a proclamation to Barbara Rubin (center), president of the Newton Mental Health Association and Ted Gross (right), Jaycee chairman of Mental Health Month, setting aside the month officially for mental health activities in Newton.

Newton Residents End Heart Assn. Leadership

Two Newton residents turned over their leadership of the Greater Boston Heart Association as a new slate of officers was elected last week at the spring meeting of the association's Board of Directors.

The Board of Directors extended its deep appreciation to Paul D. Slater of Waban, chairman of the Board, and Dr. Arthur A. Sasahara of West Newton, president, for their ourstanding service as Heart Association volunteers..

Both men have been energetic and concerned participants in the Heart Association's activities for a number of years. Slater, who is president of Albert M. Slater and Son Realtors, has been involved in the fund raising and administrative functions of the association, serving as General Chairman of the Greater Boston Heart Fund drive in 1970 and 1971.

He most recently has served two years as Massachusetts Heart Fund Chairman providing leadership for the thousands of statewide Heart Fund volunteers.

Dr. Sasahara, chief of medicine at the West Roxbury Veterans Administration Hospital, has provided strong leadership for the Greater Boston Heart Association's many community service and educational programs. As president, he has served as chairman of the program priorities committee which determines the long-range goals and objectives of the organization. Prior to this term as president, he served as chairman of the Community Program Council which is responsible for planning and organizing the community service programs the Association conducts throughout the year.

D.r Sasahara, a noted cardiologist, is a professor of Medicine at Harvard Medical School. He is also a member of the American College of Physicians, the American College of Cardiology and many other professional societies.

Slater, a well-known business and community leader, is active in many local and national organizations, including the Combined Jewish Philanthropies, Brandeis University and the Boy Scouts of America. In addition, Slater is a member of the Massachusetts Heart Association Board of Directors and Executive Committee.

Both Slater and Dr. Sasahara will continue their active roles in the work of the Heart Association as members of the Executive Committee.

The Greater Boston Heart Association is a non-profit voluntary health agency which supports cardiovascular research, community service programs and public and professional education in the 52 area communities. Funds to support these activities are raised during the annual Heart Fund drive in February, Heart Month.

For further information about the greater Boston Heart Association and its important work, call 267-4400.

Postal Service Investigating Cases of Mail Order Obscenity

The U. S. Postal Inspection Service reported today that it has about 270 operators under investigation for suspected violations of laws involving mail order obscenity.

Assistant Postmaster General and Chief U. S. Postal Inspector William J. Cotter said the investigations, which are part of an aggressive investigative-prosecutive program being conducted in close cooperation with the Department of Justice, fall into two principal categories:

More than 200 dealers who are under investigation for suspected violations of the Postal Obscenity Stature outlawing mailing of pornography.

About 70 others under investigation for possible violations of the "Sexually-Oriented Advertisements Statute," which prohibits the mailing of advertisements for mail order pornography to persons who have filled out forms at their post offices saying they don't want to receive such materials.

"This combined effort," Cotter explained, "is directed toward swift federal prosecution of commercial obscenity dealers who seek to abuse the privilege of the U. S. Mails by the mailing of obscene matter and their indiscriminate solicitations to sell salacious materials."

Meanwhile, he reported, through the first six months of the current (1973) fiscal year, 18 cases involving alleged violations of the Postal Obscenity Statute have been presented to U. S. attorneys for possible criminal prosecution, together with six other cases involving possible violation of the law banning the mailing of sexually-oriented advertisements to those who have declared they do not want it.

To date, this fiscal year postal inspector investigations have resulted in 14 indictments and 15 convictions of commercial obscenity dealers.

Progress toward curtailing the transmission of obscene material through the mails is reflected in the reduction of complaints received from postal customers.

During the first half of fiscal year 1972, 35,546 complaints were recorded, compared with 23,803 complaints received for the corresponding period of this fiscal year.

The law involving advertising solicitations to buy pornography is the newest legal weapon in the battle against mail order pornography. The statute took effect February 1, 1971, and those who violate the provisions of this Act are subject to Civil Court action as well as criminal penalties with a maximum sentence of five years in prison and-or a $5,000 fine for the first offense—10 years and-or $10,000 for additional offenses are provided under certain circumstances.

To date, close to 700,000 persons have registered with post offices their desire not to receive such advertisements through the mails.

Their names are placed on a list made available by the postal service for sale to dealers.

THANKS, MOM.

Thanks for a thousand and one things
I didn't appreciate at the time.
For making me go back to school after that first frightening day.
For making me pick up my clothes,
and do my homework.
And clean my room (within reason) and shoulder my share of work around the house.
And shaping a child who became a better person than I could have become without you.
And giving up your private time to hear about my world.
Something dawned on me just the other day.
Helping me grow up wasn't that easy for you, either.
So for all the thousand things
I rebelled against and argued about, while you held your quiet ground against my adolescent tirades . . . . .
Thanks, mom.

useum Foundation Set for USS Constitution

U.S.S. Constitution Foundation has been ted as a non-profit le organization to forever in this port historic artifacts and maritime documents tings related to the nstitution dating back ly days of the nation, dmiral Richard E. commandant of the al District, announced

l Rumble said the oldest commissioned ssel still afloat, "Old ," and his flagship, in in Boston during its restoration in the Boston Naval Shipyard for the next two years and there are no plans, he said, for taking Constitution on visits to other ports during the Bicentennial celebrations in 1975.

Rear Admiral Joseph C. Wylie, of Portsmouth, R. I., recently retired from the Navy and former commandant of the First Naval District, is serving as the first president of the Constitution Museum Foundation.

Other Constitution Museum Foundation trustees serving with Admiral Wylie are: James H. Ballou, architect, of Salem; Peter B. Seamans, attorney, of Boston; Leon F. Kaufman, a noted historian of Constitution's era, of Newtonville; Ralph H. Doering, Jr., a businessman from Salem; Robert P. Greaves, a businessman from Dedham; J. Richard Lamere, labor editor of the Herald-American, of Duxbury, and Jason A. Aisner, an attorney from Boston.

Honorary trustees include the former Speaker of the House of Representatives, John W. McCormack, Rear Admiral Samuel Eliot Morison, the famous maritime historian, and Hank Ketchum, the cartoonist.

At the present time, a small Constitution Museum has been set up in the Boston Naval Shipyard close to the John Quincy Adams drydock where the historic ship is undergoing restoration. Plans are to expand the museum greatly in preparation for the nation's Bicentennial and for visitors to inspect in the coming decades.

The expansion of the museum, noted Admiral Wylie, will be with the assistance of the public in all parts of the United States.

One may remember, that over 40 years ago, millions of school children from throughout the United States raised over $400,000 in pennies, nickels and dimes towards rebuilding the Constitution. This current overhaul is being paid for by Congressional appropriations, but these appropriations do not cover the musem expenses.

"Old Ironsides" was one of the first ships of the line of the United States Navy. She was launched at Hartt's Shipyard in Boston on October 21, 1797, just across from where she is now drydocked. Her original armament was 44 guns. Her crew consisted of 475 officers and men. The ship's masts were of white pine cut in Unity, Me.

Paul Revere supplied the Castings, spikes and copper bolts. In August, 1803, the Constitution as flagship under Edward Preble, broke the blockade and power of the Corsairs in the Mediterranean.

During the War of 1812 with the British, "Old Ironsides" defeated and destroyed the British men-of-war Guerriere and Java and destroyed or captured several other enemy ships.

In 1828, a Naval Board of Commissioners ordered "Old Ironsides" broken up but public sentiment and Oliver Wendell Holmes' inspired poem about the grand old ship saved her from destruction.

In 1897 she again appeared doomed but the Massachusetts Society of the Daughters of 1812 started a fund for her restoration. The public uproar induced Congress to appropriate $100,000 to repair the famous man o' war. This was done at Boston.

)BI (UPI) — When raided a house in plush Westlands area they found tusks from 00 elephants stored in s, living rooms and ses.

oman in whose home ticular haul of tusks was found faced a prison sentence of up to 50 years and a hefty fine.

But she was one of an undetermined number of persons — peasants, businessmen and well placed officials—who are willing to run these risks to reap a quick reward.

John Mutinda, Kenya's chief game warden, believes the tide may now be running against thepoacher.IKNTHEPROCES ENDANGERED WILDLIFE SUCHASTHECHEETAHWILL HAVE A GREATER CHANC SURVIVAL.

Twenty-three nations recently signed a convention in the United States agreeing to tighten up rules governing the importation of animal skins and trophies.

"This, combined with increased law enforcement (Kenya in 1970 established an anti-poaching unit whose members use light planes, camels, horse and jeep, to track down poachers) could cut down poaching in East Africa by at least 50 per cent," Mutinda said in an interview.

Meanwhile the poaching war, vicious and sometimes deadly, continues. At least five of Mutinda's officers were killed in the last few years in skirmishes with poachers.

There are reports one shipment of several hundred tons of ivory worth $5 million left Tanzania for China, apparently to defray part of the cost of the $100 million Tan-Zam railway the Chinese are building in Tanzania and Zambia.

The original hunter receives perhaps 10 shillings ($1.50) a kilo for tusk and 40 shillings ($5.7) a kilo for rhino horn.

The middleman oversees shipment out of country—often by labeling tusks as machinery and arranging that the crate is not opened for inspection.

At the other end—India, Hong Kong or China—the price of the ivory has risen to 200 shillings ($30) a kilo end rhino horn to 300 shillings ($40.3) a kilo.

The oldest Beech tree, he said, may date as far back as 90 years. He described the vale stand of beech trees as "the best of two stands of beech in all of the Webster - Hammond conservation area and adjacent lands."

Kaplan reported finding no evidence of stone walls, fence wire or tree trunk scars attributable to fencing and stated the vale, except for minor wood cutting, "has had little disturbance in the last 50 years. He said the area had definitely not been cleared in the last 50 years and judged that it had never been cleared.

In addition, Kaplan said, because of the different drainage conditions surrounding the Oak - Maple and Beech stands, the vale provides an example of forest growth contrasts due to soil conditions.

Webster Vale, he said in a state of equilibrium or stability, explaining the vegetation is replenishing itself at a natural rate equal to normal losses.

Redistrictingplan was adopted at the urging of Rep. Guzzi and that Guzzi, Harrington and Pines all testified in favor of it.

Mofenson, when the original dissatisfaction with the plan first plan came to light, indicated at that time he was opposed and would seek a change. He is the chairman of the Democratic City Committee.

A legislative public hearing was held last week on new districts proposed for Middlesex County and the Democrats' substitute plan was then presented.

The controversy over the original plan dates back to mid-March when local leaders first learned of the proposal. Ward 4 Alderman Richard J. McGrath was the first to protest the fragmentation of Ward 4 under the proposal, and working with Mofenson, engineered the meeting of the Democratic City Committee.

The committee promptly adopted a resolution condemning the original plan and got to work on a substitute plan that would be satisfactory to Newton's representatives and citizens.

Kevarian said his committee was willing to recommend the substitute plan for adoption by the State Legislature because the representatives involved had agreed to accept it.

The statewide redistricting plan will go to the legislature for the final vote of approval.

KEY ROLE

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Anita O'Day, one of the top singers of the big-band era, has signed for a key role at MGM in "The Outfit" starring Robert Duvall and Karen Black.

"Some believe there is nothing one person can do against the enormous array of local and national problems;" Carmen went on to say, "but each of us can work to change a portion of events and in the total of all these acts will be written the history of the next century for the City of Newton.

Carmen referred to the coming century in Newton several times in his address.

"The next 100 years in Newton does not belong to those who are content with yesterday or even today," he said ". . . Rather the next century in this city belongs to those who care and can blend vision, reason, courage and intellect in a personal commitment to the ideals and great enterprises that were probably in the minds and hearts of those who first incorporated the City of Newton in 1873."

He urged Newton residents to "look to vital, enthusiastic, new leadership" in their first step toward the second 100 years and said: "let us continue to love one another even as we love the work we have undertaken for ourselves — beginning tonight."

The candidate, a Democrat, represented Ward 7 on the Newton Board of Aldermen for six years and was the chairman of the Newton Housing Authority for seven years.

His first try for the mayor's job was in 1965 against Mayor Monte G. Basbas, then an incumbent who was elected to serve another term. He entered the 1971 race, which was wide open after Basbas declined to seek and additional term.

If elected this year, Carmen would be the first Democratic mayor in Newton's 100 years as a city. He would be the first mayor to serve a four-year term.

All city elections are conducted on a non-partisan basis and for the first time in the city's history, a preliminary run-off election will be conducted if there are more than two candidates for the mayoral post. Run-off elections will also be held in aldermanic races where there are more than two candidates for ward alderman or more than four for alderman-at-large from a particular ward.

Prospective candidates began taking out nomination papers Tuesday (May 1). Nominations close in mid-August.

Alan W. Licarie, executive secretary of the Newton Election Commission, said this week the names of all people who take out nomination papers and the posts they are seeking are recorded in a book available to the public in the Election Commission office in City Hall.

Mayor Issues Proclamation Honoring Israel's Birthday

Mayor Theodore D. Mann of Newton recently issued the following proclamation declaring Monday, May 7, as "Israel's Twenty-fifth Anniversary Day."

"May 7, 1973 will mark the 25th anniversary of the establishment of the State of Israel. That date represents an inspiring anniversary for free men everywhere."

"Determined to be a homeland for the homeless, the Israelis have welcomed, and absorbed nearly a million and a half immigrants, most of them refugees from oppression."

"They have reclaimed the desert, making it fruitful, creating industry, commerce, new cities, harbors and modern communications."

"Dedicated to providing a better life for all, they have made notable advances in the sciences, medicine, social welfare and the arts, and have generously shared their knowledge with others, especially new and developing nations."

"They have never forgotten that those ideals of justice, liberty and peace which inspired generations of freedom-loving men were first proclaimed by the prophets of Ancient Israel, and they have constantly sought to give these great concepts renewed significance by act and by deed. The same ideals motivated the founding fathers of our own great country."

"Now, therefore, I, Theodore D. Mann, Mayor of the City of Newton, do hereby proclaim that May 7 shall be celebrated as 'Israel's Twenty-fifth Anniversary Day' in Newton, and I call on all citizens to strengthen their support of the Jewish State during the year-long anniversary period."

Poets Take Over Library

Lights will dim, and small tables with checkered tablecloths will lend the atmosphere of a coffee-house when the Newton Free Library presents its Poetry Festival on Friday evening, May 11 at 7 p.m. at the Main Library, 414 Centre St., Newton Corner.

Four outstanding poets of the Boston area will read from their poetry. Ruth Whitman, Fanny Howe, Peter Davison and Harold Bond will read selections from their poetry and answer questions about poetry from the audience.

Ruth Whitman, distinguished poet and translator of poetry, is a graduate of Radcliffe College and is widely known for her translations from Yiddish, French and Greek poetry. Volumes of her own poetry include "The Marriage Wig and Other Poems" and "The Passion of Lizzie Borden." She is editor of an "Anthology of Modern Yiddish Poetry" and "Selected Poems of Jacob Glatstein."

Fanny Howe is a young poet and short story writer who lives in Cambridge. She was educated at Stanford University and has taught poetry at Tufts University. She has published "Forty Whacks," a volume of short stories and "Eggs," a book of verse.

Peter Davison is a graduate of Harvard University and was a Fulbright Scholar at Cambridge University. He is now the Poetry editor of "Atlantic" and the author of "The Breaking of the Day and Other Poems," "Pretending To Be Asleep" and "The City and the Island."

Harold Bond is a native Bostonian and graduate of Northeastern University and the University of Iowa, where he was a member of the Writers Workshop. He has been an instructor of poetry and an editor of the magazine "Ararat," as well as publishing widely in anthologies and periodicals. He is the author of "3x3," "The Northern Wall" and "Dancing on Water," all volumes of verse.

Films of poets reading their poetry will be an added attraction to the evening, and coffee and other refreshments will be served. Poetry lovers, young and old, are invited to save Friday, May 11, as a red letter night for poetry.

Weston School Seeks Interested Thespians

The Cambridge School of Weston recently announced the opening of Whitney Haley's "Touring Summer Theater," a workshop for teenagers which he has conducted for some summers past.

This summer Haley plans to put into practice the educational principle of "doing is learning" in the producing and touring of major productions that travel to other secondary schools and summer resorts. His program is based on the traditional value of actual trouping. This involves working in every aspect of production.

The Cambridge School provides the base for preparing the plays to be toured. The group will travel and set up productions in other secondary schools all over New England.

This summer Haley plans to extend the touring area considerably. Visiting professionals will conduct seminars in various aspects of the theater in addition to the busy schedule involved in the actual productions. Every member of the group will appear in the plays.

Haley, who is locally known in the theater, television and radio, has been in professional theater all his life. He began his acting career touring the country as a professional child actor in Broadway productions and others and was featured in early silent films. He has been Director of the Cambridge School Drama Department for many years.

The touring workshop is open to high school age young people from June 25 to Aug. 6, day and boarding students. Applications should be made to The Cambridge School of Weston, Weston, Mass. Acceptances will be arranged on a first-come, first-serve basis. The group will be limited in size.

Gifted Young Artist In Boston Showing

Opening on Tuesday, May 1, a selection from the works of the late Harold E. Weiner, New England painter-sculptor, will be shown at the MacIvor Reddie Gallery of the Art Institute of Boston, 700 Beacon St., through May 17.

Mr. Weiner was born in Worcester in 1946. He later moved with his family, Dr. and Mrs. J. Siegel and brother Stephen to Newton, Mass.

He received his education in the Newton Public Schools and also attended the Saturday classes for children at the Museum of Fine Arts, Boston.

In June 1965 he graduated from Newton High School and the following fall began his studies at the Art Institute of Boston. After graduating from the Institute in 1969 he left Massachusetts in August of the same year and went to California to begin graduate studies at the San Francisco Art Institute. Here he concentrated on metals and metal sculpture.

In the year and a half he was there and while still a student at the San Francisco Art Institute he set up his own studio, exhibited at the Emanuel Walter Galleries and the Sun Gallery, began to sell his work, and became artist-consultant to the well-known West Coast firm of Harada and Mew, architects who commissioned him on several occasions to design and execute sculpture for their clients.

On Feb. 5, 1971, the young artist passed away after suffering a serious accident while at work in his studio.

The works on exhibition cover a fairly large area of skills and include water colors, acrylics, seriographs, metal and wire sculpture and some woodcarvings.

Local Student Conducts Program

Dwight Dewsnap, son of Mrs. Lois Dewsnap, 4 Eldredge St., Newton, will conduct a program of Polish choral music by students of Carleton college, Northfield, Minn., where he is majoring in music.

A junior at the college, Dewsnap visited Poland as a member of a Polish dance group from Boston, and selected the music for the program on one of his trips.

The choral presentation will be preceded by an exhibition of Polish folk art in the college's Great Hall. The programs will take place on Friday, May 4.

Carleton choral director William Wells and freshman Mike Kott are coaching the twelve-member group. Kott, who lived in Poland until he was twelve, is helping the singers with their pronunciation of the Polish texts.

The program is composed of traditional folk melodies and contemporary pieces. Pasierb-Orland's "Melodie z Podhala" is a folk song from Poland's southern highlands region. Pfeiffer's "Krakowiak" is based upon a traditional dance from the Krakow area.

The lyrics from Natanson's "Etiud" consist of the syllables of the musical scale while Koszewski's "EntliczEk" is a musical game of nonsensical syllables.

Dewsnap is a graduate of Newton High School.

Underlying Factors Of Newton Revealed In Brand New Book

"The Geology of Newton," published by Newton Conervators, Inc. in honor of the city's 1973 Centennial will have its first sale on Sunday, May 6 at the ceremonies at City Hall Mall.

The Conservator directors authorized this project in December, 1968. The studies were financed primarily by a grant from the trustees and the Jesuit Community Corporation of Boston College. Travel in the field and design and printing expenses were funded by the Conservators.

The book was designed by Joan Powers of Wellesley and the photographs were done by George Ehrenfried who teaches geology at the Cambridge Center for Adult Education.

Lunar Studies

WASHINGTON, D.C. - NASA has established a new program for the analysis and interpretation of the vast amount of information returned from the Moon over the past 10 years.

Under the new approach, known as the Lunar Data Analysis and Synthesis Program, scientists will be encouraged to propose investigations which draw on a variety of lunar data and which cut across a number of scientific disciplines.

Through the synthesis of lunar information obtained from many scientific fields, NASA hopes to more readily build a detailed picture of the origin and history of the Moon, and its present characteristics. Such knowledge of the Moon would carry implications for other planets in the solar system, including Earth, which are all believed to have been formed about the same time.

The Lunar Synthesis Program will also provide the basis for the planning of future missions to the Moon and other space exploration. It also calls for broad dissemination of new knowledge to the public, as well as to the scientist, through books, films, television and lectures.

Since 1963, three Rangers, an Explorer, five Surveyors, five Lunar Orbiters and nine Apollo lunar missions have acquired a vast amount of new scientific data.

From these data, a more detailed picture of lunar history has already emerged. We know now that the Moon is a complex body whose origin dates back to the beginning of the solar system; that its formation and evolution can be related to more general planetary processes, and that a record of events in the history of the Sun and our Galaxy can be found on the surface of the Moon.

Broadway . . . Chopin Still Not Right For 'Irene'

By JACK GAVER
UPI Drama Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — Frederic Francois Chopin came off rather badly in the revival of the "Irene" musical at the Minskoff Theater.

The score of the original 1919 production, written by Harry Tierney and Joseph McCarthy, contained a song, "Castle of Dreams," which was based on a Chopin melody, "Minute Waltz." It was one of the numbers dropped when the current revival was put together.

At one time during the revival's tryout tour, that familiar old song, "I'm Always Chasing Rainbows," by McCarthy and Harry Carroll, was in the revised score. It, of course, is based on Chopin's "Fantasie Impromptu in C Sharp Minor." It also was removed before the New York opening.

"I'm Always Chasing Rainbows" was in a Broadway musical about 55 years ago. The show was "Oh, Look!," based on a play of a few years earlier titled "Ready Money." That play was written by the late James Montgomery, who wrote the original libretto of "Irene" but did not write "Oh, Look!"

"Irene" was based on an earlier play of Montgomery's, "Irene O'Dare," which was tried out, found wanting and did not get to Broadway.

The summer season of free theater on the open-air Delacorte stage in Central Park will consist of two works of Shakespeare, "As You Like It" and "King Lear."

Producer Joseph Papp opens the season June 21 with "As You Like It," which will play through July 22. "King Lear," with James Earl Jones in the title role, will open July 26. Both plays have been done previously by Papp, the comedy in 1957 and 1963 and the tragedy in 1962.

BIbi Andersson, one of Sweden's outstanding stage and screen actresses, has been signed by Otto Preminger and Roger L. Stevens to make her Broadway debut in the fall in their production of "Full Circle," the only play written by the late novelist, Erich Maria Remarque.

Hal Grossman and Joe Calvan have acquired the rights to adapt the notable MGM motion picture, "The Wizard of Oz," for presentation as a live entertainment designed to play large arenas around the country.

The rights include the Yip Harburg-Harold Arlen score that has the "Over the Rainbow" song indelibly identified with the late Judy Garland, who starred in the 1939 movie.

Producer Morton Gottlieb, who is still mopping up profits from the Broadway run of "Sleuth," now in its third year at the Music Box, has acquired a taste for the thriller-suspense type of drama as a result.

His first production next fall will be "Veronica's Room," written by Ira Levin, which has four characters and is set in an old mansion outside Boston. Levin's past successes include "No Time for Sergeants" and "Critic's Choice."

The Washington Monument was dedicated Feb. 21, 1885.

The rain forests of Australia are the only tropical areas on earth that are not inhabited by monkeys.

Michigan extended suffrage to women in 1919, a year before their right to vote was guaranteed by the federal constitution.

YOUR NUMBER ONE . . .

Full Service Ford Dealer

Let's Talk AUTOMOBILES

Because a dealer is known for service and integrity does not mean that the price of doing business with him is different than anywhere else. It has never been that way at Fred C. Browne Ford and it never will be. I will say this, "get prices from 10 different dealers for the same automobile and you'll get 10 different prices." This is the nature of the beast. We have heard criticism of this approach to automobile buying and in many cases, it has been justified. In the long run, however, with our 52 years experience, we feel that the consumer has profited by competitive pricing. Just imagine what might happen if automobile salesmen were allowed to get together and install the same profit on each car sold.

* * * * *

Our customers buy automobiles from us for a variety of reasons, but generally they fall into three categories: 1. Price 2. Service 3. Personal Attention. With our newer customers we ask our salesmen to inquire about why these people had not bought their last automobile from us. Many felt that because of our "first class" reputation, we had to have "first class" prices . . . We intend to maintain and even improve our reputation, but we will never be beaten on any legitimate automobile price. You don't have to pay more at Fred C. Browne Ford, in fact, we welcome price comparison, and 9 out of 10 times we'll beat a competitor on price.

* * * * *

When you buy a new automobile your immediate concern is not for service, but if a problem does arise, it will be taken care of with as little aggravation as possible here. This is a distinct advantage with a smaller dealership . . . we can't afford to lose customers over service problems. We don't have new customers pouring in the front door while we shove the dissatisfied ones out the back door. We're here to make you happy. You're buying a dealership, not just an automobile when you buy at Fred C. Browne Ford.

* * * * *

And, another thing, though we do not have a vast inventory of hundreds of cars displayed on our lot . . . we do have a substantial selection for immediate delivery and because there is a giant distributor stock to draw from we can get whatever automobile you choose without any undue delay.

* * * * *

Yes, we are a comparatively small dealership but . . . we don't pay any more for our cars . . . we can deliver any car of your choice at a price competitive with anybody . . . and we'll back them up with service and integrity that has been part of doing business at Fred C. Browne Ford since 1921.

Maxine Kumin Not Just 'A Poet'

When Maxine Kumin walks to the podium Sunday at the Centennial Music Spectacular to read selections of her poetry, she won't be introduced as "the poet;" she'll be introduced as the "Pulitzer Prize winning poet."

Monday a writer's fondest wish came true for Mrs. Kumin who was called and told she had been awarded the Pulitzer Prize for poetry for her book, "Up Country."

And once the word was out, a steady stream of callers, friends and strangers; members of the press, telegrams and bouquets of flowers came her way.

"I feel terribly happy," she said. "It's all a little unreal."

Mrs. Kumin, 47, and her husband Victor have lived in their Newton Highlands home at 40 Bradford Rd., for the last 22 years. She said she feels the honors really went to the poetry rather than the poet.

"It's really a great thing," Mrs. Kumin said, "I think maybe its more flattering than it ought to be."

Red roses were delivered last night, a congratulatory bouquet from James Whalen, president of Newton College (of the Sacred Heart) where Mrs. Kumin was a lecturer in English. Yellow roses arrived Tuesday from her publisher for the last 10 years, Harper & Row in New York.

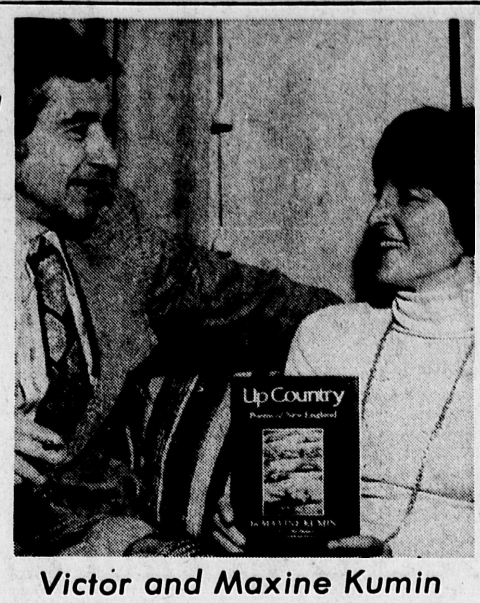
Once described as "the female Robert Frost", her award winning book "Up Country" is the latest in a series of poetry collections that includes "The Nightmare Factory" and "The Privileged."

She also recently completed her fourth novel, now in manuscript form, with the working title "Robinowitz–Rabinowitz."

Mrs. Kumin describes "Up Country," which is set in rural New Hampshire, as a collection of nature poems–"a bony stare at life" from the viewpoint of water bugs, woodchucks and a hermit.

The Pulitizer Prize winning poet (there's that phrase) has two daughters, a son, and a foster son, all involved in their own diverse interests.

Daughter Jane is currently a second year law student at Berkley College in California and daughter Judy is a professor of languages at an institute in Belgium.



Victor and Maxine Kumin

Judy, Mrs. Thierry Bingen, met her husband when he came to Newton as an exchange student on the AFS (American Field Service) program and was hosted by a Newton Highlands family–the Kumins. The couple have been married for three years and have lived in Belgium for the last two of them.

Son Daniel is a sophomore at Bennington College and foster son Steven Burgess is now at the University of Chicago.

A native of Philadelphia, Mrs. Kumin is a graduate of Radcliffe College where she received her bachelor's and master's degress. She was at one time an English instructor at Tufts University and has also lectured at the University of Massachusetts in Amherst. Recently, she returned from Centre College in Kentucky where she was the writer-in-residence.

Finally, a tip from Mrs. Kumin to anyone else who wins the Pulitzer—"be prepared to be exhausted."

Victory Field Site Sold For Housing

By ELIZABETH McKINNON

The first four low-income family units of housing to be built in Newton moved closer to actuality this week when the Board of Aldermen approved the sale of the city-owned "Victory Field" site to the Newton Housing Authority.

The vote to sell the 14,000-square foot parcel for 25 cents a square foot was accompanied by a resolution to request Mayor Theodore Mann not to execute the deed to the property until title has been acquired to the two other sites on which the Housing Authority has received full approval from state Department of Community Affairs.

The vote came after a proposal by Alderman Peter Harrington to suspend parliamentary rules and allow a vote on delaying the motion until the next board meeting. A charter objection by Ward 1 Alderman Andrew Magni at the previous board meeting had already postponed the vote once before.

Harrington said his reason for requesting delay was that he had been contacted by members of the community, who, he said, "have six or seven alternative sites."

"I have said since 1969 that the Victory Field site is one of the poorest sites for housing. If the people of Nonantum have a reasonable site, they should be allowed to present it," Harrington continued, saying that he had contacted the Department of Community Affairs about the new sites.

The Department of Community Affairs held a public hearing at Newton City Hall April 19 on the Nonantum property, at which members of the community appeared to oppose the location of low-income housing there.

The main objections were the unsuitability of placing housing next to the busy new American Legion Post 440 building, with its late-night noise and bright lights, and the resentment of some Nonantum residents that more low-income families might be moving into an already low-income neighborhood.

Alderman Alan Barkin, chairman of the Aldermanic Land Use Committee, responding to Harrington's suggestion to delay the vote, said, "I am intrigued to find that the residents have come up with—how many new sites?

Harrington replied, "I think it's five."

Barkin continued, "I think we reached the high-water mark for low-income housing when we changed the zone on Thurston Road (the Upper Falls site where the Housing Authority will build 50 units of housing for the elderly and four family units). Now it's coming apart. I don't want it coming apart for four units."

Barkin was referring to the "Package" of three sites—Victory Field on California Street, Nonantum; Thurston Road in Upper Falls, and Beaconwood Road in Newton Highlands (slated for 20 family units). The Land Use Committee had withheld the granting of permissive use for the latter two until the Victory Field sale was approved by the Board of Aldermen.

Strongly opposed to any further delay was Alderman Edward Uehlein, in whose ward (Ward 5) two of the three housing sites are located.

It's about time," he said "that we do what we have to do, and build the low-income housing. People have known since the day we sold some of Victory Field to the American Legion that we were going to put housing there. It seems peculiar that they have found five sites—they're probably not available."

"Some of your constituents will be peeved with you, but we have an obligation to the city and to the people. We need the housing to go forward," he concluded.

Animal Control Proves Touchy

By LEN BATEMAN

Newton's animal control officer came under considerable fire this past week as the result of the shooting death of a two and one-half-year-old, pet dog on Norwood Avenue, Newtonville.

According to the pet's owner, William Recinos, Officer Thomas F. Flemming was "overreacting" when he drew his service revolver and fired into the forehead of the part Australian and part English sheepdog.

Neither Chief William F. Quinn nor Officer Fleming was available for comment on Recinos' charges. Chief Quinn is the Director of the Department of Animal Control for the city.

As far as can be determined from eyewitness accounts, Flemming responded to a telephone call from the Marini family of 112 Norwood Ave., claiming their small daughter had been bitten by a dog, "Strider," while she was walking past the Recinos home at 108 Norwood Ave.

The same eyewitnesses stated that upon arriving at the Marini home, Officer Flemming attempted to take "Strider" into custody, but was unsuccessful.

Flemming then proceeded down the street to obtain the help of the Recinos, they reported, but "Strider" would not permit him on the porch at 108 Norwood Ave.

Mrs. Joseph Ryan, who watched the entire incident from her sunporch at 119 Norwood, indicated that "Strider" forced Flemming to back down the Recinos' steps.

At that time," she said, "Flemming only had a clipboard and his pistol and I don't understand why he didn't go back to his truck for the necessary equipment to apprehend the dog."

According to "Strider's" owner, the Animal Control Officer later said the dog had him cornered and he thought he was about to be attacked. He drew his weapon, fired and killed the animal, the owner said.

"Not so," said Recinos, and Mrs. Ryan concurred in that opinion.

"Flemming could have turned around at any time and walked back to his truck," she said, adding, "the dog was barking and growling at the policeman, but I don't think his actions could really be described as vicious."

"At the same time, both Mrs. Ryan and Recinos stated, another dog belonging to the Recinos household was pacing and barking at Flemming.

Recinos, not home at the time of the incident, also stated that to the best of his knowledge, "Strider" did not break the skin of the Marini girl."

"He merely tore her stocking," Recinos added, and

Vale Owner Will File Plan

By CNYTHIA BLACK

The owner of Webster Vale in Chestnut Hill said this week he intends to file a subdivision plan for five homes he proposes to build on the West ridge of the land.

Attorney Robert Cohen, will present his proposal to the Newton Planning Board and also said in a telephone interview last week he will "fight any landtaking in relation to this subdivision or the duplexes on Madoc Street."

Spurred by the formation of The Citizens for the Aquisition of Webster Vale, the Conservation Commission has voted in favor of acquiring the Webster Vale land by eminent domain and not allowing any housing to be built on the site. The Citizens had a meeting scheduled Tuesday to discuss raising any city money that would be needed in an eminent domain acquisition.

Cohen, who says he purchased the seven-acre vale site in July, 1971, "shortly after the city refused to buy it," already has the needed approvals to construct his proposed four duplex houses on Madoc Street.

He says the idea of building the five homes on the West ridge was a "compromise" plan agreed upon by him, members of the Newton Conservation Commission, and the Newton Planning Department, in lieu of building two units of single family housing at a different location.

Cohen said at the hearing on a zoning variance for the two single-family units, he and the Conservation Commission discussed the application of a conservation restriction on the land.

He said the commission wanted a perpetual restriction and he wanted a 10-year restriction. He said he agreed to the perpetual restriction, agreed not to build the two additional units of single housing, and in exchange, the commission suggested putting five houses on the ridge.

Planning Director Charles Thomas said this week that the Conservation Commission did support the Madoc Street development but that the West ridge compromise was one of two alternative plans the commission was considering. The other alternative was acquisition, Thomas said.

He went on to say that when Cohen presented his plan at the April 25 commission meeting, commission members then voted in favor of the alternative of acquisition.

Cohen also said that he had offered the Webster Vale to the city as a conservation area, meaning he had agreed to the perpetual conservation restriction, with the exception of the perimeter housing he planned to build.

He says he never had any intention of disturbing the vale itself with housing or any other development.

"I didn't buy the land to develop it," he said. "I offered the conservation restriction providing public access to 10 feet beyond the brook."

Thomas concurred; Cohen did offer to make this restriction, in effect "giving" the land to Newton. Thomas said the reason the Conservation Commission did not accept the offer was "because the Madoc Street lots would still be developed."

"The Conservation Commission no longer wished to see any development on these lots," Thomas said.

Mayor Theodore D. Mann has come out in support of the aquisition by eminent domain and sent a request to the Board of Aldermen last week seeking funds to hire appraisers to look over the property.

A landtaking of this type would be 75 per cent funded by state and federal monies; but before any allocation is made, the governmental units require two separate appraisals.

Mann is asking for $4,000 to cover the cost of an appraisal.

Mann also sported a "Save the Vale" lapel button

Predict Tax Increase Will Be "Under $7"

The increase in Newton's tax rate for January, 1973 - June, 1974 is likely to be "under $7, barring anything unforeseen," Mayor Theodore D. Mann announced last week after receipt of the "cherry sheet" from the state.

The cherry sheet, a statement to the cities and towns listing assessments on and reimbursements to the communities, showed $7,840,852 being returned to Newton and $7,781,114 due from Newton.

"In reviewing the final figures, Mann said, "it is apparent that the message the Massachusetts mayors and selectmen and disturbed property owners have been carrying to government is starting to show signs of being heard in a demonstrated way."

The mayor credited revenue-sharing funds given to Middlesex County with reducing the county burden on the city, and he pointed out that municipal revenue sharing has also "put our city in a better position from a financial point of view."

For the first time in years, Mann said, the cherry sheet has been in Newton's favor. Instead of the city's owing money to the state, the net result will be a return to the city of nearly $60,000.

The tax rate cannot be set definitely until the city resolves a preliminary injunction against all assessing and issuing of tax bills. The injunction was imposed in connection with a taxpayers' suit against the city to force revaluation of real estate at 100 per cent of full and fair market value.

Another factor in the establishment of the new tax rate is the vote of the Board of Aldermen on how much of the nearly $3 million now in surplus funds to release toward offsetting the tax increase.

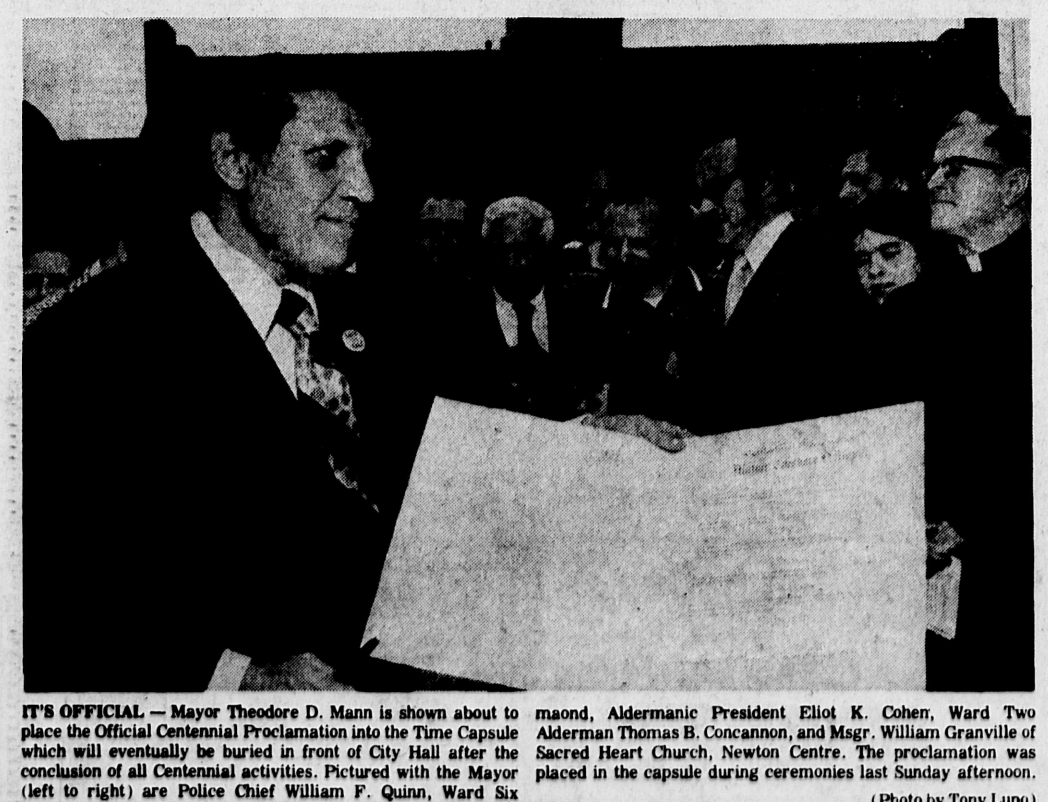
Thousands Celebrate City's Birthday



IT'S OFFICIAL — Mayor Theodore D. Mann is shown about to place the Official Centennial Proclamation into the Time Capsule which will eventually be buried in front of City Hall after the conclusion of all Centennial activities. Pictured with the Mayor (left to right) are Police Chief William F. Quinn, Ward Six Alderman Ernest F. Dietz, Ward Two Alderman Edward L. Richmaond, Aldermanic President Eliot K. Cohen, Ward Two Alderman Thomas B. Concannon, and Msgr. William Granville of Sacred Heart Church, Newton Centre. The proclamation was placed in the capsule during ceremonies last Sunday afternoon.

"Celebrate" was the keyword throughout Newton last weekend as, thousands strong, the city's residents and their guests flocked to the Centennial Ball and the giant picnic grounds around City Hall.

There were 2,000 present at the Inaugural Ball in McElroy Commons, Boston College, on Saturday evening to dance to the music of Ruby Newman's Orchestra, and the champagne flowed from fountains until midnight.

Timeout entertainment was provided the ball guests by ethnic dance groups representing Ireland, Italy and the Ukraine.

Mayor Theodore D. Mann cut the first slice of the enormous Centennial Cake and presented a piece to a representative of one of Newton's oldest families, Miss Adelaide Ball, a former city alderman, now a member of Newton's Council For the Aged.

Centennial activities were actually launched prior to the ball when several hundred anniversary patrons assembled at a dinner in Newton Country Day School to honor Congressman Robert F. Drinan, Mayor Mann, other city officials and the Ball Committee.

It was not until Sunday morning, however, that residents of the Garden City really got a good look at their hometown, past, present, and future.

Mrs. Anne Caruso of Prescott Street, Newtonville, seemed to sum up the reaction of most when she stated, "I'm really happy to have chosen Newton as a place to live."

Mrs. Caruso and almost 8000 others were reacting to the assembly of artists, craftsmen, and civic organizations and their displays set up on City Hall Mall.

Interspersed with the picnickers, the Silver Star Steel Band, the Clan MacPherson Scots Highlanders Marching Band, Singer Glenn Calkins and the fire engine and hayride were the artists, antique dealers, potters, clock repairers, jewelry makers and even a T-shirt imprinter.

Aldermen Select Their Revaluation Consultant

A recommendation to hire Martin J. Coleman, a Waltham appraiser, to review bids on Newton's reassessment procedure will be sent this week to the mayor by the Board of Aldermen.

An 18-0 vote on the matter by the full board Monday was an expression of agreement with the aldermanic Finance Committee that the aldermen need expert guidance in selecting the contractor for reassessment. Coleman was selected last Thursday by the Finance Committee from among four candidates but not announceed until this week's board meeting.

Coleman's fee is expected to be $1,000.

It is possible that, with Coleman's entry into the picture, the selection of a reassessment firm can be made by June 1, and Newton will be relieved of the burden of the court suit now pending.

The taxpayers' suit, charging inequity in real estate assessing practices and taxation, has put the city under a restraining order against mailing out tax bills and assessing all real estate.

Judge Henry Chmielinski of Middlesex Superior Court has indicated that he will lift the order as soon as an assessing firm has been put under contract to the city.

League Backs D.C. Home Rule

The League of Women Voters of Newton is currently participating in a nationwide "End Colonialism for the District of Columbia" drive.

Sponsored by the League of Women Voters of the United States with support from 49 national labor, civic, and religious groups who together form the National Coalition for Self-Determination for the District of Columbia, the drive aims to secure congressional representation and local self-government for residents of the nation's capital.

According to a League spokesman, 756,000 citizens of our capital still do not enjoy privileges we take for granted —elected local government and representation in Congress. The League believes that if the voters of this nation realize the great unfairness of imposing all duties of citizenship on Washingtonians while denying them the rights enjoyed by every voter elsewhere, they will demand that their congressmen legislate justice for our capital.

The Newton League's D.C. Home Rule Committee comprised of Priscilla Leith, chairperson, Barbara Balasa, Kathleen Eichberg, Felice Kahn, and Mary Morrison has prepared information sheets on the home rule issue. These sheets were handed out at the League's booth at the centennial celebration on Sunday, May 6 and are now available at all Newton branch libraries.

Senators Edward Kennedy and Edward Brooke and Congressman Robert Drinan along with other legislators have proposed an amendment to the Constitution granting representation in Congress to the District of Columbia. The League of Women Voters of Newton urges the citizens of Newton to write to these officials in support of their efforts.

For more information about "End Colonialism for the District of Columbia" drive please call Priscilla Leith at 332-0590.

POSTAL WEEK — A joint celebration of Newton's Centennial and Postal Employees Week was held last week at the Nonantum Post office. Gathered around the celebration cake were the winners of an essay, poetry and photography contest sponsored by the local Post Office as part of its week-long activities. Friends and neighbors had a chance to drop in at the local mail facility all through the week, meet postal employees, and familiarize themselves with the way the post office operates.

Kindergarten Rules Have New Age Limit

The policy of the past several years of admitting some children up to three months younger than the standard admission age will be continued for this coming academic year for kindergartens in the Newton Public Schools.

The standard policy applicable to all children states that a child must be four years, eight months of age by Sept. 1 before he may be admitted to kindergarten, and only if he passes a screening appraisal. Such children's birthdays must fall in January, February or March.

Children born on Apr. 1 are not eligible. Parents may obtain application blanks and other information from the elementary school principal in the district in which they live for their children to be examined for possible early admission.

When the applications are completed, they should be mailed to the Division of Pupil Personnel Services, 88 Chestnut St., West Newton. Parents will then be given an appointment time to bring the child to the division for appraisal.

The appointments will be made for August and all applications must be mailed to the division before Aug. 1, 1973.

Canines Need A License

Chief William F. Quinn, of the Newton Police Department and Director of the Department of Animal Control, announced that the law in regard to unlicensed dogs has been changed.

"Previously, a dog that was picked up without a license was held ten days. However, the law has been changed by the General Court to five days, after which the dogs may be placed in another home or disposed of. Therefore, if your dog is missing, you should call the Department of Animal Control immediately," said the Chief.

This will take effect Sunday, May 27.

The Chief went on to say that all dogs, three months or older must be licensed, and anyone acquiring a dog during the license period must obtain a license at the City Clerk's office.

The Chief said, "If everyone obtaining a dog licenses it immediately, the problem of strays will be minimized. We have extended the Apr. 1 deadline to May 10 in order to allow dog keepers to obtain licenses."

The penalty for owning or keeping an unlicensed dog is a maximum of $15.

League Prepares Newton Handbook

In observance of the Newton Centennial the League of Women Voters of Newton has prepared a new edition of its booklet, "Newton, the Garden City."

Last revised in 1968, the 74-page book now presents an accurate account of Newton's government under the new charter. It was also redesigned with an eye-catching green cover and pen-and-ink illustrations by Mark Herlehy, a senior at Newton North High School.

"Newton, the Garden City" explains the various components of the city government: including the executive department, the Board of Aldermen, the commissions and authorities, and how they operate. Together with a detailed chapter on elections, this information is especially useful for newcomers to Newton.

Later chapters treat education, finance, recreation, zoning and planning and other topics. Also featured are a ward and precinct map of the city, a list of meeting times and places of government bodies, in accordance with the League's aim of involving the citizen in government.

More than twenty League members assisted editors Beth Davis and Stephanie Martin in the revision of the book. Among local businesses who have helped to underwrite the costs of printing are the Auburndale Cooperative Bank, the Boston Gas Company, Warren Coveney Ford Sales, Inc., the Garden City Trust Company, the Newton Cooperative Bank, the Newton-Needham Chamber of Commerce, the Newton Savings Bank, and the Newton South Cooperative Bank.

The Commemorative Materials Committee of the Newton Centennial Celebration included "Newton, the Garden City" in the time capsule buried on May 6.

The booklet can be bought for one dollar and is available in several Newton stores or through the League of Women Voters. For information about "Newton, the Garden City" or if you wish to purchase it please contact Beth Davis at 969-8626.

Schools List Visit Days

The Newton School Committee at its regular meeting of Apr. 23 approved a joint Newton Teachers Association-school administration plan for professional visiting for all teachers on three separate days this month.

On Monday, May 14, the elementary schools will be closed and all elementary teachers will visit the junior and senior high schools. On Wednesday, May 16, the junior high schools will be closed and their teachers will visit the elementary and high schools.

The high schools will be closed on Monday, May 21, so that the teachers may visit the elementary and junior high schools.

Superintendent of Schools Aaron Fink, in announcing the plan, stated that the specific goals of the visits are: observation of the learning process and climate at other age and grade levels; greater familiarity with the kinds of school experiences the students will or have had; and development of opportunities for improved articulation between the elementary, junior and senior high schools.

"A great deal of careful planning has gone into the scheduling of this program and a questionnaire and guidelines for feedback have already been prepared," stated Fink.

"We anticipate that the results will be extremely useful to the whole school system," he concluded.

State Coordinates River Improvement

Appointment of Alfred F. Ferullo as coordinator of the state's efforts to improve the Charles River was announced jointly today by Secretary of Environmental Affairs Charles H.W. Foster, Metropolitan District Commissioner John W. Sears and Commissioner of Natural Resources Arthur W. Brownell.

Ferullo, formerly with the state's Division of Water Pollution Control and currently senior environmental bio-engineer in the Metropolitan District Commission's Engineering Division, will develop a coordinated schedule of state agency actions relating to the Charles River and generally expedite state programs for environmental improvement from headwaters to harbor. He will be headquartered at the Metropolitan District Commission's offices at 20 Somerset Street, Boston.

Ferullo's appointment stems from Governor Sargent's announcement at the November, 1972 Metropolitan Environment Conference of plans to accelerate state efforts toward river improvement using the Charles River as a pilot project.

At present, eight state environmental agencies have program responsibilities for the Charles River. An estimated $53 million in projects are planned or are underway at the present time for this single river basin.

Named to assist Ferullo in expediting state, municipal and private efforts toward improvements of the Charles River were Administrative Engineer Martin F. Cosgrove, representing the Metropolitan District Commission, Director of Conservation Services Matthew B. Connolly, Jr., representing the Department of Natural Resources, Deputy Executive Director for Planning James A. Miller, representing the Metropolitan Area Planning Council, and Executive Director Rita Barron of the Charles River Watershed Association.

Geoffrey Wool of Radcliffe Rd, Newton, and Cathy Levin of 60 White Oak Rd., Waban, have been named to the dean's honors list at the University of Denver for high scholastic achievement during the winter quarter of the 1972-1973 academic year.

Redevelopment Authority Fails To Pick Developer After Holding 3 Meetings

By LEN BATEMAN

The Newton Redevelopment Authority failed to make the final selection of a developer for its Lower Falls commercial project this week despite a series of three meetings called for that purpose.

Authority members were stymied in each of their attempts at selection by a split in preferences, the illness of one member, and the successful attempt by other members to call two of the four bidders in for further deliberation.

At the first meeting, the authority was unable to reach a majority decision after four hours of debate and decided to recess.

The split occurred when Authority Chairman Cecil Cadwell and Authority Member Richard Clarey spoke out in favor of the bid submitted by the firm of Spaulding and Slye.

Another member, Lawrence Sullivan, refused to vote until he had "certification in writing" from the authority's design consultant that the bidders had submitted designs strictly conforming to the plan drawn up by the redevelopment agency.

Member Robert G. Davidson announced he would only vote for a developer that had included plans for loading docks as required by city zoning ordinances.

The proposal submitted by the Woodland Realty Trust was the only one containing provision for such loading space.

Member Mario DiCarlo did not voice an opinion on a selection but merely requested the authority recess and notify the developers the decision had been postponed.

After some difficulty, the members agreed on another date for a meeting and recessed.

When the second meeting convened, DiCarlo was absent and the other members waited for more than an hour for his appearance.

It was finally announced that DiCarlo was ill and unable to attend the meeting which to that time had been preoccupied with locating the missing man by telephone.

The members present agreed to a third meeting date and when they finally assembled to make a decision, Lawrence Sullivan was among the missing.

It was never really officially determined what prevented Sullivan from appearing, but Davidson, as an aside, mentioned the possibility he might have been tied up in the teamster strike negotiations currently taking place in Boston.

The members present resolved to go ahead without Sullivan and Chairman Cadwell proceeded to recount again, as had been done at the first session, the recommendations of design consultant Imre Halasz.

Consultant Halasz advised the authority that all four bidders complied with the contract specifications, but the proposal submitted by Spaulding and Slye represented the best from an architectural standpoint.

Davidson then requested the authority to go into executive session and those present, except for Clarey agreed to do so.

Davidson used the wording of the state's executive session law as a rationale to go into closed meeting. "It would," he said, "protect the financial integrity of the authority and the reputation of personalities."

When the authority opened its doors again to the public it announced it had not reached a final determination but would call two of the bidders in for further exploratory discussions.

The firms of Spaulding and Slye, and Woodland Realty Trust were chosen, and will be requested to meet with the authority members on next Saturday morning.

As a final move, Chairman Cadwell directed authority Executive Director Gerald Early to seek an extension from the state for the decision date.

The authority had previously stipulated in its contract specifications sent to possible developers that it would make a final determination by May 4.

Spaulding and Slye and Woodland Realty Trust representatives will be meeting with the authority on Saturday May 12.

Local Police Join Search For Youth

The Newton Police Department has joined with the Lynn and Revere police in the investigation of the kidnapping and robbery of a Brookline man by knifepoint.

The alleged incident occurred when Peter T. Bartolucci of 176 Winthrop St., Brookline, was stopped for a red light at the intersection of Route 9 and Elliot Street in Newton.

According to the report given by Bartolucci, a youth about 17-years-old asked him for a lift and the Brookline man refused.

Police said the youth pulled a knife and entered Bartolucci's 1972 Volkswagen and forced the man to drive him to the parking lot of the General Edwards Inn, Revere.

When they arrived at the lot the youth forced Bartolucci to hand over his billfold containing $9 and some change, ordered him out of his car, and proceeded to drive off towards the North Shore City of Lynn.

Bartolucci described the youth, police said, as being approximately five feet, five inches tall, weighing about 130 pounds. The description furnished police also stated the young man had dark brown, shaggy long hair and a moustache.

Lynn police later discovered the stolen vehicle in their city and conducted fingerprint tests. A sum of money hidden by Bartolucci in the car was found intact.

Detective Richard J. Bagley and Officers George F. Brennan and Francis X. Barrett of the Newton Police Department are currently investigating a burglary at 78 Waban Hill Rd. North which netted thieves approximately $3,000 in merchandise.

According to T. E. Sullivan, owner of the house, and the police report of the incident, the

May Medic Alert Month In Newton

"In the two times it saved my life, I was alone, police responded, and immediately requested proper medical aid. I wouldn't be without my Medic Alert emblem. I strongly encourage others to take advantage of your wonderful service."

May is Medic Alert Month in Newton, and a time to remind anyone with a specific health problem, such as the diabetic quoted above, that one, small bracelet has saved many lives.

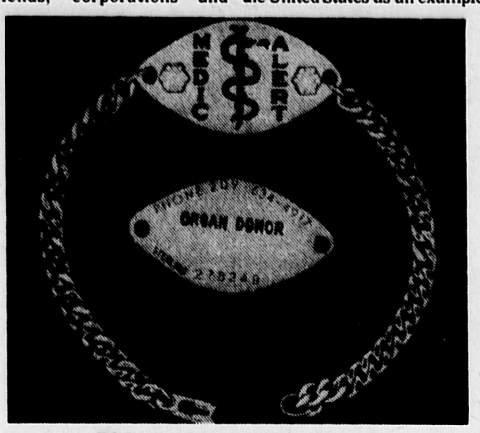
A charitable, non-profit organization, Medic Alert is designed to provide a medical protection service for people with hidden medical problems, such as heart conditions, epilepsy, glaucoma, or allergic reactions to drugs they might be treated with in emergencies, such as, cortisone, horse serum, pencillin, demerol, novacaine.

The organization was founded to prevent tragic or even fatal mistakes that could be made in the course of administering aid to people.

The emblem, made of stainless steel, sterling silver or gold, is worn on a neck chain or bracelet has the words "Medic Alert" and the AMA (American Medical Association) official warning sign engraved in red on the front and the specific, individual warning engraved on the back.

In addition, each emblem contains a code number assigned to the Medic Alert member and the telephone number of the Medic Alert Foundation Central File, kept in Turlock, Calif., where the program originated. Specific information on any patient is available to doctors, police or authorized personnel 24 hours a day via a collect telephone with worldwide service.

A smaller one-time only membership fee finances the foundation, which is also aided by voluntary contributions from friends, corporations and foundations. There is also a small service charge for occasional up-to-date changes in an individual medical history.



This emblem saves lives!

The foundation came into being in 1956. Its originator, Dr. Marion Collins of Turlock, began the program in an effort to safeguard his own daughter.

Due to the activity of Newton residents in the program, including C. Robinson Fish III and Shirley Fish, all Newton police personnel now have standing instructions to look for the Medical Alert emblem in their case.

Recently, 10,000 copies of Newton Police Chief William F. Quinn's new police directive on Medic Alert have gone out to hospital administrators all over the United States as an example of how the program can be used effectively.

Quinn's directive states: "It is important that all personnel of the department become familiar with this program and start to make it a practice to check the wrist and neck of an unconscious person on the chance he is wearing a Medic Alert emblem that would reveal a hidden ailment."

The chief also asked his men and women to promote the program "as it bears directly on our medical relationship with the general public."

Newton police have applications to the program.

More than 670,000 Americans wear Medic Alert emblems and more than 4,000 people join the program monthly.

Through the planning of Dr. James Cullinane in the Newton School Department, Mrs. Fish pointed out, children and their parents have had an opportunity to learn about Medic Alert at pre-school registration time.

For some years, she said, Newton has been known for a "first" for Medic Alert by having an excellent school information letter sent to parents.

The letter has served as a model for other American school systems.

During May, both the Newtonville Pharmacy and Rhodes Drug Store in Waban have offered window displays in honor of Medic Alert Month and will have ample informative material on hand to pass along to interested people, Mrs. Fish said. Information and applications are also available at Newton-Wellesley Hospital and City Hall.

Requests are also filled every day of the year. Anyone interested in joining the program or becoming a volunteer can also write to Mr. and Mrs. Fish, Medic Alert Foundation, c-o Newton City Hall, or directly to the foundation in Turlock, Calif., 95380.

School Dept. Can Fix Old Day

The School Department was given the go-ahead on its plan to renovate the old F. A. Day School in Newtonville before occupying the building as its new headquarters, as the Board of Aldermen approved a controversial appropriation for architects' services this week.

The item, which had been voted on favorably at the last board meeting, was subsequently moved for reconsideration (postponing final action until this week's meeting) by Alderman Peter Harrington.

Monday's vote to reconsider the $55,000 appropriation failed by a 9-10 vote.

A motion by Alderman Richard McGrath to suspend parliamentary rules to permit a second reconsideration also failed.

McGrath wishes to divid the money into two sections — $18,000 for schematic drawings to be approved by the Board of Aldermen, and $37,000 for detailed work plans, which would be contingent on approval of the first drawings.

Aldermen who opposed the appropriation feel that the action last night almost guarantees the expenditure of $500,000 on the remodeling, since architects' fees are generally based on 10 per cent of the total cost.

The original amount requested by the School Department was $1.2 million. After long months of argument between the School Department and the aldermanic Public Buildings and Finance Committees, a revised "bare bones" cost of $500,000 was submitted, which satisfied many of the members of the two committees. Some felt the cost should be cut further.

Douglas Decides Not To Run

Richard M. Douglas, member of the School Committee from Ward 3, has announced that he does not intend to run for reelection next fall.

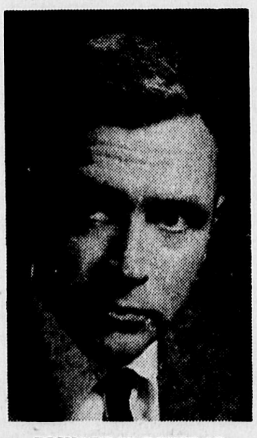
Douglas, who lives at 97 Hillside Avenue in West Newton, is completing his third term on the Committee, and was elected vice chairman under the new charter in 1972. His statement follows:

"I have reluctantly decided not to run for a fourth term as a member of the Newton School Committee, confirming a decision I made in announcing my candidacy two years ago. To belong to the School Committee is a major commitment, requiring virtually a daily investment of time and attention which I feel I will not be able to sustain in the future."

"Probably the most significant change both in the work load of the Committee and in the nature of its agenda in recent years is the continuing increase of the amount of time spent on details of budget preparation and review, and in the process of collective bargaining. Roughly 60 per cent of its meeting time through the year now goes to money matters. Given all the pressures on the property tax, this is a necessary and inevitable preoccupation, but it also represents time taken from the curriculum and the classroom."

"If I have one general regret to express in behalf of the schools, it would have to do with the extent to which they are treated as the scape-goats of the tax rate, and the degree to which issues of education are being politicized in Newton and in the State House. The taxpayer understandably feels as helpless to limit the voracity of the Pentagon as he does to stop the endless overruns on the Middlesex County Court House, or the $4,000,000 which Newton is annually assessed to subsidize the scandal of County Government. What is distressing is to see a disproportionate focus on school costs at a time when the line on this budget is being held so closely."

"Finally, a personal regret and an expression of gratitude.



RICHARD M. DOUGLAS

The first applies to the prospect of losing direct association with so many good people - the Superintendent, colleagues on the Committee, teachers and staff members. The second is to express my appreciation to those who made it possible to be a member of the School Committee for three terms. I am very grateful indeed."

GOP Disputes New Redistricting Lines

Chairman W. Frederick Uehlein, chairman of the Executive Committee of the Newton Young Republican Club, hurriedly called an emergency meeting to issue a statement concerning what appears to be the final redistricting proposal which Newton will offer to the state legislature.

"It seems to me," Uehlein said, "that the Democrats of this city, despite their declarations of good intentions, are still trying to preserve the seats of the four state representatives rather than offering the public a fair redistricting plan.

"A look at the proposed makeup of the 18th and 19th Middlesex districts shows that the 18th would contain parts of Wards 4, 5, 6, 8 and Needham Precinct H. The 19th would contain parts of Wards 5, 6, 7, and 8.

"It is a disgrace that our wards are being divided, but it is more of a disgrace that our traditional ward system is being torn apart without any Republican input," stated Uehlein.

"The public once again has been presented with a choice dictated by a ruling party whose number one desire is self-preservation," he added.

The executive committee, Uehlein moved, "should resolve to bring this issue to the public."

At its next regular meeting, to be held on May15 at the home of Charles Miller, 4 Belmont St., a strategy will be mapped to tell the people what their representatives have done to their city's traditional election lines.

Student Newspaper Receives Honors

"Denebola," the student newspaper at Newton South High School, was ranked among the top high school newspapers in its class at the March convention of the Columbia Scholastic Press Asssociation.

The Columbia judges examined all phases of the newspaper's operation, gave it a first place rating for the fourth year in a row, and then selected it for special consideration. The result was a Medalist Award to "Denebola," a distinction granted to no more than 10 per cent of the over 1500 entrants in the association's annual contest.

Evan Cohen was editor of this year's winning entrant. Charles Horioka was news editor, and Andrew Fielding, features editor. The newspaper has been advised, since 1970, by Ron A. Adams of South High's Department of English.

The newspaper was judged in terms of the breadth and nature of its content, the quality of its writing and editing, the attractiveness of its make-up, and the distinctiveness of its overall presentation.

Garbage Contract Remains A Problem

New invitations to bid on Newton's garbage-removal contract were ready to mail this week, but the situation was unclear as to whether the city can award a new contract once the bids are returned.

When bids were solicited the first time, the low bid, from F&R Service of Wellesley, was declared unacceptable by City Solicitor Melvin Dangel because of "unresponsiveness to specifications."

F&R then obtained a temporary restraining order, later extended to an injunction, against the city's inviting new bids or awarding a contract to any other firm.

These terms were later modified to allow the contract of the present collection firm to be extended until the end of June.

Last week the injunction was removed, then partially reimposed, when Judge Henry Chmielinski allowed rebidding to take place but barred the signing of any new contract.

F&R also has filed a damage suit against the city, asking either that Newton be ordered to award a contract to F&R or pay unspecified damages.

According to Dangel, a hearing has been scheduled for May 21 at Middlesex Superior Court.

Threat Of Lawsuit

It appears that a good number of our town and city officials who now hold public office might be without insurance to cover their official actions.

In other words, some office holders, even acting in an official capacity, could find themselves personally faced with the threat of being forced to pay out of their own pockets expenses and damages incurred in lawsuits brought against them.

At the heart of most suits is the question of abuse or misuse of the authority these officials possess.

In some communities insurance policies taken out by the towns and cities apparently do not cover all decision makers who are elected or appointed to office.

This lack of liability insurance was pointed up recently in action taken against the five member planning board in the town of Medfield.

The Medfield planners were involved in a case where a builder won a Superior Court decision involving zoning and the right to build on house lots of a certain size.

The Medfield planners voted to bring the case up the legal ladder to the Appelate Court.

The builder then had suits filed claiming the members of the planning board acted "maliciously and without probable cause . . . " In short, he claimed there was an abuse of process. Lawsuits were filed against the planners claiming $500,000 in damages.

Around the first of the year the board members found their homes attached. They also found that the town had no insurance policy to cover the planners.

It was not that Medfield did not want to buy liability policies to cover the planning board members, "It's just that no insurance company offers coverage for planning board members at any price," one town official explained.

The town fathers even wrote to Lloyds of London seeking coverage. Although we often hear how this firm insures just about everything and everyone, Medfield Selectmen never received an answer from the prestigious Lloyds.

At Medfield's town meeting it was explained that selectmen and school committeemen are covered but planners are not.

In Dedham there seems to be some question as to whether that town's planning board members are covered.

But town and city officials are not completely without protection for damages and costly suits. Most communities offer indeminification or protection where the towns and cities come up with the money to reimburse their officials. If it were necessary this would have happened in Medfield. But that is not always the case and it is by no means automatic.

Newton, for example, buys no insurance, but the city is a self insured entity offering protection to employees and officials. In all cases defense and coverage only applies when actions are taken within the scope of one's authority.

And in Needham some officials have coverage. Others have not. Westwood has no liability insurance because of the high cost.

The Medfield case involving that town and the builder is being negotiated. Last month the attachments on the homes were released.

But one Medfield planning board member resigned on the spot at town meeting when an article seeking $10,000 to indemnify was dismissed.

It seems dangerous in this day and age that communities do not have coverage for all officials whose actions and decisions are often the target for legal entanglements and consumer reaction.

And it raises other questions. For example, would a public official who is not insured vote the same way on a matter as he would if he were insured?

POLITICAL HIGHLIGHTS

By JAMES G. COLBERT

Emotion-Filled Scene as POWs Were Welcomed on Beacon Hill

One of the most moving scenes ever witnessed on Beacon Hill was the reception in the chamber of the House of Representatives for six Massachusetts men who came home from prison camps in Vietnam.

The former POWs, who saluted so smartly on television, at close view showed the ravages of their imprisonment and the toll taken by their mistreatment by their captors.

When they relaxed and were not putting on an act for the television cameras or the audience, their manner was sad and serious.

House Speaker David Bartley and Senate President Kevin Harrington were so overcome by emotion that they had difficulty controlling themselves when they spoke.

Men who had served in World War 2 or Korea walked out of the chamber, their eyes filled with tears. They couldn't take any more and did not want to be seen weeping.

The three law-makers who formed a reception committee—Representatives Gerald P. Lombard of Fitchburg, Albert L. Nash of Leicester and Ralph E. Sirianni of Winthrop — were themselves all prisoners in World War 2.

It was a moving experience to see and hear the Bay State men back from Vietnamese prisoncamps. It didn't seem as gladsome or glamorous as watching them on television as they stepped down from planes.

On close contact you realized with a sinking feeling the terrible price these men had paid while they were held captive by a brutal enemy. Words cannot quite describe the sensation of being in the same room with them. It left this reporter shaken.

Dissident Republicans Urged Richardson Run For Governor

Only a few weeks ago, a number of dissident Republicans, who are dissatisfied with the administration of Governor Francis W. Sargent, were trying to persuade Elliott L. Richardson to come back to Massachusetts next year and challenge Mr. Sargent for the Governorship in the GOP primary.

Richardson vetoed that suggestion, and Sargent's foes turned their attention to Middlesex County Sheriff John J. Buckley in their efforts to find someone they could back against the Governor.

Disclosure of the efforts to draw Richardson into a convention or primary fight with Governor Sargent caused conjecture at that time as to whether Richardson's vote-pulling ability, which saw him win election as Lieutenant Governor in 1964 and Attorney General in 1966, would be lessened by his action in closing the Boston Naval Shipyard and other military facilities in Massachusetts.

Now there is talk across the United States that Elliot Richardson may be the Republican nominee for President in 1976 if he clears up the Watergate mess and restores the confidence of the American people in the integrity of their federal government.

Some political observers are still unconvinced that President Nixon did not know in advance of the plans for the break-in and bugging at Democratic national headquarters last June. They argue that Mr. Nixon is the kind of President who knows what's going on in his office although they concede he was absorbed with other matters in the spring of last year.

If it should develop that President Nixon was not being candid with the American people in the televised address in which he said he accepted final responsibility for the Watergate scandal but insisted he did not know about the break-in ahead of time and that he was misled by investigators and aides, the likelihood is that impeachment proceedings would be started against him.

But you can be certain that Elliot Richardson was convinced that President Nixon did not authorize Watergate and that Mr. Nixon meant precisely what he said when he declared that Richardson had absolute authority to make all decisions on the Watergate case and related matters

It is true that Richardson faces a highly difficult task, that he may find himself in a position where he is obliged to involve and even prosecute men he has counted as his friends.

He is a friend of Charles W. Colson, who played a prominent role in President Nixon's reelection campaign. As a result of his service during Mr. Nixon's first term in office he came in close contact with men whose association with the sordid Watergate affair is now under investigation.

But anyone who thinks that Elliot Richardson would cover up for anybody in the Watergate scandal, including President Nixon, does not know Mr. Richardson.

One statement by President Nixon which cannot be challenged was that Elliot Richardson is "a man of unimpeachable integrity and rigorously high principle." He also is a brilliant man of great capability and an outstanding prosecutor.

Columnists and commentators have been citing Elliot Richardson's loyalty to President Nixon during four years of shifting assignments.

Loyalty to President Nixon is one thing, and a cover-up of an individual involved in a criminal act is something else.

Richardson would not have taken the assignment as Attorney General if were not certain he could make a sweeping investigation and let the chips fall where they will.

Richardson would not have taken the assignment and let the chips fall where they will

Elliot Richardson may still be elected Governor of Massachusetts. He might one day be elected President of the United States. He could not achieve either office unless he comes out of the Watergate investigation with the same public confidence he holds now.

As far as this reporter is concerned, the most reassuring part of President Nixon's address on Watergate was his announcement that Elliot Richardson would handle the Watergate case.

The most tragic aspect of the startling and shocking disclosure in the Watergate scandal, which pyramided to the point where President Nixon considered it necessary to say and do what he did, was that they were undermining public confidence in the President of the United States at a critical point in history.

When President Nixon won reelection in a landslide victory over Senator George MGovern last November, then extricated the United States from the war in Vietnam and brought home the prisoners, it was hoped that we were entering a period of peace, prosperity and goodwill.

But the broadening Watergate scandal, the stunning revelations of misleading statements, outright lies, deceitful actions, brazen breaches of public trust by White House aides and other high officials, served to weaken both the credibility and the power of President Nixon.

If President Nixon didn't know in advance of the bungled Watergate break-in—and one must assume at this point that he is telling the truth—then he was sold down the river in an incredibly stupid manner.

One thing this bystander cannot understand is why Mr. Nixon has not disbanded the Committee for the Re-Election of the President which already has caused more trouble, scandal and loss of reputation in the Nixon administration than any other one political organization.

This inept organization probably has done irreparable damage to the man it was supposed to help. It acted dishonestly, stupidly and incompetently.

It hired men to burglarize and bug Democratic headquarters. It employed young men to infiltrate the camps of possible Democratic candidates for the Presidency. It hired security guards to keep Martha Mitchell incommunicado.

There wasn't much it could have done to compromise the President and put him in a poor light that it didn't do.

If all these things were done without the President's knowledge and consent, the committee members should be fired as quickly as possible.

It is fervently hoped that President Nixon now can leave the Watergate scandal to the capable hands of Elliot Richardson and get back to the job for which he was elected—that of running the United States.

Elliott Roosevelt Could Have Written Good Book But Didn't

The more carefully one reads Elliott Roosevelt's book in which he maligns the memories of his mother and father, the more on wonders how much he actually knew of what he recounted.

He must have been a most precocious and inquisitive boy if he knew as much as he now indicates about his father's unfaithfulness to his mother prior to the time that he, Elliott, was 10 years old.

The sad thing is that this could have been a highly entertaining book if Elliott had related intimate but wholesome stories about his father instead of raking up old scandals for the obvious purpose of selling a mediocre book.

Elliott's five marriages may have qualified him as an expert on some of the things he writes about in his book, but even that is open to challenge.

Convicted Federal Judge Can Collect Pay Unless Impeached

One of the things we didn't realize until now is that under the U.S. Constitution a federal judge can collect his pay even while he is in prison unless he resigns or is removed from the bench by impeachment.

U.S. Court of Appeals Judge Otto Kerner, former Governor of Illinois, is being paid a salary of $42,500 a year even though two months ago he was convicted in federal court of bribery, perjury and income tax evasion, was sentenced to three years in prison and fined $50,000.

Kerner is continuing to fight his conviction but has complied with an order by Supreme Court Chief Justice Warren Burger that he move his personal belongings out of his office in the Federal Building in Chicago.

He has been on leave from the appeals court since Dec. 15, 1971, the day he was indicted in connection with race-track stock scandals for acts allegedly committed while he was Governor. He has been paid almost $60,000 while on leave.

Kerner has given no indication of any intention to resign. The only way a federal judge can be removed is through impeachment by the U.S. House of Representatives after trial by the U.S. Senate.

Plan To Down-Grade Nursing Headed For Certain Defeat

One section of Governor Sargent's reorganization plan almost certainly is headed down the legislative drain.

That is the portion which, in the words of Human Services Secretary Peter C. Goldmark, would make nurses more "consumer oriented."

It is not easy to determine what any part of the Governor's "reorg" bill actually means. But this section seems to mean that the cost of nursing care in Massachusetts would be lessened by lowering the standards for nurses.

Registered nurses, who have worked hard, put in long hours and passed tough examinations to qualify for positions in their profession, are making a forceful fight against this phase of the reorganization bill, and they have made an impact upon the legislators on Beacon Hill.

There seems to be substantial merit to the complaint of the nurses that the proposal by Sargent and Goldmark would endanger both the professionalism of nurses and the care of the critically ill and injured.

To this onlooker the idea of lowering the cost of nursing care by allowing unqualified persons to serve as nurses does not make much sense. Neither, however, do some other sections of the reorganization measure.

State Senator William X. Wall of Lawrence had a point when he asked Goldmark if he knew of any errors or deficiencies in the operation of the State Board of Registration of Nursing. Goldmark said he knew of none.

Wall then asked why the proposal was being advanced to legislate the board out of existence. The only answer is that it is intended to make the nurses more consumer oriented which apparently means they would be less qualified and would work cheaper.

Connally's Prospects For '76 Hurt Badly By Watergate Mess

John B. Connally's shift from the Democratic to the Republican party may prove to be much less significant than many political pundits appear to think.

The only way Connally could get the GOP nomination for President in 1976 would be for President Nixon to deliver it to him.

Unless there is an enormous change in public sentiment, the next Republican National Convention will be looking for a Presidential standard-bearer who is not as close to President Nixon as either Connally or Vice President Spiro Agnew—possibly someone of the stamp of Senator Charles Percy of Illinois.

In time the Watergate scandal will subside below its present proportions which are hampering the orderly operation of the federal government. But there is not much likelihood it will be forgotten by 1976.

It will be kept alive by trials and appeals which will continue to make newspaper headlines.

No President in the history of the United States has won a landslide reelection and then dropped in public esteem in a period of six months to the extent that President Nixon has.

Even if it develops to the satisfaction of everyone that he had no advance knowledge of the Watergate break-in and that he personally was clean in every respect, it is improbable he can regain the prestige and respect he has lost.

His critics will still argue that he should have known about the crime and corruption around him.

Where I Stand

We Must Have Tax Reform — Not "Tax Change"

By Congressman Robert Drinan

President Nixon's recently revealed proposals for "tax change" come as no relief to the tax mess. For "tax change" is not tax reform.

While the President's tax package would simplify the task of filing tax returns for many Americans, his proposals would neither restore equity to the loophole-ridden tax code nor raise revenues by making the rich and mammoth corporations pay their fair share.

The most serious fault in the President's plan lies in what it does not propose. The President does not propose to overhaul the vast network of loopholes, special-interest breaks, tax subsidies, and other tax shelters and giveaways that cost the Federal government more than $50 BILLION each year in lost revenues, with little or no benefit to the average taxpayer. These many loopholes, which allow the wealthy and big corporations to legally avoid paying their fair share in taxes — and sometimes enable them to pay nothing at all — remain unchallenged. And, corporate taxes are to be left virtually unscathed.

Here are two of the major features — good and bad — of the President's tax proposals:

Simplification: A new tax form — 1040 S — is proposed. This 1040S form would be far easier to use than the current 1040 form and would make the job of filing taxes a lot simpler for as many as 20 million taxpayers.

This is important, for last year alone 40 million taxpayers spent $600 million in obtaining commercial assistance in preparing their tax returns. In addition, the President proposes to establish a new $500 "Miscellaneous Deduction Allowance." Among other features, this new proposal would allow child care expenses either in the home (babysitters, for example) or outside the home (daycare centers), to be deducted on an equal basis. Under present law, child-care services outside the home are penalized.

The problem with the new "Miscellaneous Deduction Allowance" is that, like all deductions, it is regressive — that is, it helps the rich more than the poor. This is because the real benefit of any deduction depends on your tax rate. A $500 deduction means only $125 in tax savings for someone in the 25 percent tax bracket ($500x25 percent equals $125), while the same deduction will result in savings of $350 for a wealthy individual in the 70 percent bracket ($500x70 percent equals $350). If a uniform credit, to be applied against taxes to be paid, were used instead of deductions, the benefit would be equal for rich and poor alike.

Property Tax Relief for the Elderly: This proposal works as a sort of tax "circuit breaker." Whenever property taxes upon an individual taxpayer exceed 5 percent of his income, the federal government would step in to pick up the extra tab — via a tax credit of up to $500.

Relief would also apply to those who rent their homes, as 15 percent of yearly rent would be considered as property taxes. In the event that an elderly individual's tax credit is greater than the amount of taxes he owes the federal government, he would be entitled to a cash payment for the difference

While I generally commend this proposal, which is similar to legislation I have sponsored, one comment is particularly appropriate. Property taxes are a heavy burden upon all Americans — regardless of age. I believe that the real answer to the growing problem of property taxes is to be found not only through proposals such as the President has made, but through reform in every state of the property tax laws that have created the need for relief.

The President's proposals are very limited in scope — so limited that they are really only band-aid relief, covering some of the minor blemishes of the blighted tax system, where what is really needed is major surgery.

I have sponsored two major tax reform bills in the House of Representatives that would not only bring tax justice to the forefront, but would have the added benefit of raising as much as $20 BILLION a year in new federal revenues — without increasing taxes for the average American in the slightest. This money would come from closing the loopholes and giveaways that foster the wealthy and big business at the expense of the rest of us. While there are parts of the President's package that deserve commendation and ought to be enacted, much more remains to be done. I, for one, will be working for more.

Fine Friend And Neighbor

Editor, Newton Graphic:

I would like to express my feeling of deep personal loss, which I am sure is shared by my neighbors, at the untimely death of Mr. Clarence Chaisson.

He has been a genuinely good neighbor always willing to help an amateur carpenter with a household project and never intruding unless his help was requested.

He was a warm, generous person whose physical presence was matched by a capacity for love which reached out beyond his own many grandchildren to embrace my daughter, who regarded him as her grandfather also.

We have been deprived of his presence among us, but our memories of his example will help us to be better people.

Little League Official Scorns Kibbitzing

Editor,
Newton Graphic:

To the parents, but especially the fathers of Little League baseball players:

As a little league umpire I have seen many boys grow up and improve throughout the years, but one thing that has not changed in my four years of umpiring is the attitude of many of the parents who claim that they only come to the games "to watch my boy play."

According to the Little League Baseball Handbook the objectives are "to promote, develop, supervise, and voluntarily assist boys in developing qualities of citizenship, sportsmanship and manhood".

I wish that all of you who are Little League parents would take an honest look at yourselves and ask yourselves:

Am I helping my son by criticizing him about the way he plays?

Am I displaying good sportsmanship? (and be honest with yourself!)

Is it more important for my son to learn to argue or should he learn how to accept defeat?

Little League was created as an activity for young boys and to help them become good and decent citizens. Let's keep it that way.

Next time you go to a Little League game cheer the team on and accept "errors," these are your little children you are watching not a highly paid professional team.

"Now Let's Play Ball!!!"

How To Be Kind To Animals

Editor, Newton Graphic:

May is "Be Kind to Animals" Month.

May I suggest to the public, in case they have not already heard, that the very kindest thing you can do for your cat or dog this or any other month is to have her spayed so that she will not produce her own kind.

This goes for pure breeds too; the pounds are FULL of them; they are put to death every day, not to mention the dozens of mixed breeds, many with one pure parent, who "got out" due to the carelessness of her owner.

All of you are aware of overpopulation. Did you know that for every baby born in the USA there are 22 puppies and kittens born? One in 10 of them gets a home. The remainder are destroyed by humane societies or abandoned to starve.

Here is a classic case for an ounce of prevention. Do not breed pets that you yourself do not plan to keep. Those you have, have spayed. It will not make them fat of lazy; it will not change their personalities.

If you cannot afford the prevailing fees charged by veterinarians, you may apply to Friends of Animals Inc. for a reduced-cost spay certificate, and you may go to any vet on our list.

For further information, call your local volunteer representative at 332-9020.

Students performing were: Francis Bilodeau, Denise Lymperis, Susan Kay, Kathy Palmer, Annette Cushna, Vincent D'Alleyva, Elizabeth Mutrie, Jenni Adams, Philip Roberson, Sarah Crowel, and Jennifer Roehrig.

Other teachers participating were Sylvia White and Vera Levy of Newton and Mary Roberson of Wellesley.

Political Highlights

Did Elliot Richardson Make Wrong Political Move in 1966?

Whether Elliot Richardson guessed wrong in 1966 when he yielded to party pressure and sought election as Attorney General instead of standing for reelection as Lieutenant Governor, is a debatable point in view of his present prominence.

If Richardson had won reelection as Lieutenant Governor in 1966, he presumably would be Governor today. But as a result of missing his chance to step into the Governorship, he is now the second most prominent person in the United States.

Like practically everyone else, Richardson assumed in 1966 that John A. Volpe would serve out his four-year term as Governor. He also felt he would in a stronger position to seek the nomination for Governor in 1970 as Attorney General than as Lieutenant Governor.

Richardson and Volpe joined forces at the 1966 Republican State Convention to swing the necessary votes to Francis Sargent to enable him to defeat Representative Francis W. Hatch, Jr., for the Republican nomination for Lieutenant Governor.

Sargent, who in 1970 was able to line up the necessary convention support for two different candidates for Lieutenant Governor — a feat unprecedented in political history—would have been defeated at the 1966 conclave except for the effective support he received from Volpe and Richardson.

Richardson and Sargent are distant cousins. Richardson has maintained friendly political relations with Sargent since leaving Beacon Hill. Ex-Governor Volpe, on the other, hand has made no secret of his displeasure that Sargent has dropped so many of his (Volpe's) appointees in view of the fact that Volpe and Richardson virtually handed Sargent the Nomination for Lieutenant Governor.

Richardson, incidentally, was tapped to be Assistant Secretary of State at the start of the Nixon administration because of his record as Acting Secretary of HEW and as U.S. Attorney at Boston under Presedent Eisenhower, not as a political reward for anything he did for President Nixon. He was more friendly to Nelson Rockefeller than to Nixon in the 1968 Presidential Primary.

Dedham Firm To Observe 100th Year

Boston Lightning Rod Company of 1185 East street, Dedham, has been in continous operation under one family's ownership for its hundredth year. It was started in 1873 by Henry L. Willard followed by his son, George C. Willard, and now owned and operated by his grandson, Edmund B. Willard.

To mark the occasion, the Willard family and friends celebrated with a 100th anniversary business meeting at the plant on East street and dinner at the Lafayette House in Foxboro last Wednesday evening.

It is hoped that this old firm will continue to be an example of successful small businesses that survive in today's competitive "big-business" world. To help insure this condition, Mr. Willard's son, Parker Willard, is carrying on the family tradition by working for and with his father as they move into the beginning of their second century.

The concert is scheduled for 8:30 p.m. in Jordan Hall, and is free and open to the public.

Nature's Ways

By WAYNE HANLEY
(Mass. Audubon Society)

Perhaps to appreciate modern Tree Banks one must be a country boy who grew up on the tall grass prairie and knew trees as cottonwoods that grew largely along a river bank.

The Tree Bank, in case you've missed this modern trend, is a rescue operation which saves valuable trees and shrubs from the bulldozers of contractors and road builders. Landscape architects, television and radio announcers, newspaper editors and similar ordinary citizens operate Tree Banks in several eastern states.

Tree Bank people scout valuable tree stands that are endangered. They make arrangements with contractors to permit the public to dig valuable specimens some weekend and take them home. Or, they arrange for volunteers or park department personnel to dig trees that otherwise would be cut and take them to a Tree Bank, which often is a park department nursery. Such trees usually later are planted along roadways or in parks.

The first time I crossed Georgia and Florida I was as impressed as a rural resident who has seen New York's buildings for the first time. From Georgia's turpentine forests to South Florida's occasional mahogany, I never had seen such luxuriant trees nor such diversity of greenery.

That was more than 30 years ago. It never dawned upon me that in 1973 people would be saving individual trees in those states and that it would be a worthwhile endeavor. When nature grew them like that, how could man made any improvement?

But a lot of things have happened since then. Things that first were noticed by landscape architects and naturalists and now have become apparent to most people. The "things" can be summed in one sentence: we are losing the diversity in our forests.

Unfortunately, to have much of a future a tree today had better take on the shape and fiber that will fit a saw or pulp mill. Otherwise, despite its many other values, it becomes a "weed" tree not long for this world. And even though it has commercial value, it best not stand in the sight line of a surveyor of new highways.

Trees that like to have their feet wet certainly are in danger. For even if we should save a few swamps through forbidding drainage, we are unlikely to save them in fact unless we change our cultural outlook as well as industrial and technological practices. For swamps, particularly those not in headwaters, can be destroyed as effectively by pollution.

Clear-cutting practices in our forests clearly doom diversity. Foresters try to see to it that nothing except one species of commercial value dominates the forest regrowth. Such short-sighted policies invite invasion of the forest by every pest and fungi that preys on the single species. The forest is a banquet from one corner to the next.

So Tree Bankers make more sense than we once might have thought. The lonely, but commercially weed, trees that they save may become a virtual living musuem of otherwise extirpated species.

Fifty Years Of Traphagen Fashions

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Traphagen School of Fashion, oldest school of fashion design in the United States, will mark its 50th anniversary May 15 at its Annual Student Fashion Show.

The show will feature garments designed, made and modeled by Traphagen students, from every phase of the fashion field.

The school's founder, the late Ethel Traphagen, was the first to organize for the New York City Board of Education practical methods for instructing classes in fashion design and illustration.

GETS A BOOST

LEXINGTON, Ky. (UPI) — "Horsepower" is getting a boost, thanks to a $131,000 grant from the federal Manpower Development and Training Act to the former Walnut Hall Stud Farm here in the heart of the Bluegrass.

The funds will be used to train horsemen in starting classes at the Kentucky State Horse Park here with a class of 19 enrolled for the initial class in equestrian skills.

THREE of the four winners of scholarships given by the Newton Centre Woman's Club were feted at a luncheon at the Woodland Golf Club. Seated are Miss Susan Leach, Miss Rhonda Gross and Mrs. Diana E. Louis who won the first nursing scholarship; standing are Mrs. Amos E. Kent, club president; Mrs. Frank E. Leach; Mrs. Alfred Gross; Miss Ruth Burns, education chairman.

Woman's Club Awards Scholarships

The Newton Centre Woman's Club awarded scholarships to three Newton high school seniors and established a fourth scholarship at the Newton-Wellesley Hospital School of Nursing as part of the club's effort to benefit the community.

Ruth Burns, chairman of the Education Committee, introduced three of the four winners and the two mothers who were present at the special luncheon held at the Woodland Golf Club on April 26.

Melba Anne Biggs was unable to attend. A senior at Newton North High School, she plans to enter Johnson State College in Vermont to study for a career in social work or in English. She writes poetry and enjoys reading and cool weather. She has a part-time job with Avon and worked as a secretary for the Norumbega Council of the Boy Scouts of America in Waban last summer. Miss Biggs lives with her mother, Mrs. Anne L. Biggs at 34 Channing St., Newton.

Rhonda L. Gross, also a senior at Newton North, chose Framingham State Teachers College and will major in elementary education or social work. She plays the guitar, makes her own clothes, and has a special boyfriend.

Miss Gross has also won several art awards for her sketches and has done volunteer work at Mason-Rice School. She lives with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Gross, and her sister, Barbara at 6 Nottingham Street, Newton Centre.

Mrs. Gross who attended the luncheon with her daughter, said with justifiable pride, "She's worked hard, even earned the money for her own car and has been an inspiration to me."

Susan J. Leach from Newton South High School anticipates entering Massachusetts Bay Community College. She wants to be a medical secretary. She likes people, sports and coaches a softball team for the Newton Recreation Department.

She's worked in a travel agency and for the Newton

Eunice Shriver Speaker At Newton College Commencement

Eunice Shriver, internationally known in the world of politics and in the struggle for social justice, will be the speaker at Newton College's commencement exercises on Sunday, May 27, at 11 a.m.

Born in Brookline, Mrs. Shriver was the fifth of nine children born to Joseph P. and Rose Fitzgerald Kennedy Sr. She attended Manhattanville College in New York and received a Bachelor of Science degree in sociology from Leland Stanford University in 1943.

Following graduation, Mrs. Shriver worked in the Special War Problems Division of the State Department in Washington where she specialized in problems of American prisoners-of-war in Germany. In 1947, she organized the National Conference on Prevention and Control of Juvenile Delinquincy for the Department of Justice.

Mrs. Shriver became a social worker in 1950. She was first attached to the Penitentiary for Women in Alderson, West Virginia. The following year, she moved to Chicago to work with the House of Good Shepherd and the Chicago Juvenile Court.

In 1953, she married Sargent Shriver, the Democratic vice presidential candidate in 1972, then assistant general manager of Chicago's Merchandise Mart. While they lived in Chicago, Mrs. Shriver worked with the community Fund– Red Cross Joint Appeal and the Chicago Commission on Youth Welfare. She was invited to join the board of governors of the Menninger Foundation in 1954 and served on that board for five years.

Mrs. Shriver was co-chairman of the Women's Committee for the Democratic National Convention in Chicago in 1956. She campaigned for her brother, John F. Kennedy, in his successful bid for the presidency in 1960.

She became a consultant to President Kennedy's Panel on Mental Retardation in 1961 and continues as executive vice president of the Joseph P. Kennedy, Jr. Foundation where she directs the day to day operations to encourage better care and more research in the field of mental retardation. The foundation also is supporting new efforts in bioethics, the interplay of philosophy and recent biological discoveries.

The Shrivers have five children: Robert Sargent Shriver III, 18; Maria Owings Shriver, 16; Timothy Perry Shriver, 13; Mark Kennedy Shriver, 9; Anthony Paul Kennedy Shriver, 8.

Magazine Discovers Young Poet At Memorial School

Richard Rubin, son of Dr. and Mrs. Allen Rubin, 243 Spiers Rd., Newton, has written a poem which appeared in a recent issue of "Highlights for Children," a popular monthly children's magazine with over a million subscribers.

"Rich" is a third grade pupil at Memorial School. His poem, "Snow," was written when he was a second grade pupil and appeared in the February issue of "Highlights."

A boy of many interests, Richard plays first clarinet in the Memorial School Orchestra, studies classical guitar and plays piano and recorder for pleasure. Last year, he was elected Student Council Representative for his class and at age six, was the youngest winner of the photography contest sponsored by the Newton Free Library.

He is also interested in sports, particularly hockey, football and basketball. He plays chess and collects stamps and coins.

"Highlights for Children," cited by Mrs. Garry Cleveland Myers and Dr. Walter B. Barbe, is published in Columbus, Ohio. The publication stresses development in reading, thinking and creating and is described by its editors as "fun with a purpose."

Countryside Celebrates

The dedication of a community-created playground and picnic on the grounds of the Countryside School, Dedham St. in Newton Highlands will be among a series of events celebrating the school's twentieth anniversary on Thursday, May 24.

Civic leaders, family members and friends of the youngsters attending the school and faculty will join with graduates of the grammar school in the evening-long program recognizing the outstanding service provided the community and students of the Newton Highlands school.

The program, scheduled to get underway at 6 p.m. with the picnic, will also feature a choral program at which a special composition in honor of the school's twentieth anniversary will be presented.

Special creative arts exhibits commemorating the school's birthday will be on display on the grounds and in the school. A huge birthday cake will also be unveiled and portions distributed to the picnickers throughout the evenings schedule of commemorative events.

Past graduates of the school are invited to contact Mr. Mervin Teft, principal of the Countryside School and the community is invited to join in the birthday celebration.

Art Group Conducts Chestnut Hill Show

The 23rd annual exhibition of paintings by members of the Newton Art Association is now taking place at the Chestnut Hill store of the R. H. Stearns Co. and will continue through Saturday, May 12.

Philip Hicken, a nationally known American artist, has judged the paintings and made the following selections.

The Roy A. Randall Award, first prize, went to Alfred J. Spitall for his painting entitled "Impending Storm." It gives the viewer the feeling that a bad storm is about to break over Lobsterville Beach where a lonely walker seems to be hastening homeward.

Second prize was awarded to Angelo Urso for his precise rendering of an "Aquatic Symphony."

Ray Doyle was granted third prize for his painting which he calls "Lands End." It depicts a strip of land and rocky shore guarded by a light house.

Honorable mentions were as follows: First, Gilda Braver, "Boy in Blue;" Second, Florence Morse, "Vietnamese Civilian;" Third, Rosalyn Barron, "Misty Day."

A total of eighty paintings done in various media including water color, oil, acrylic, and pastel are on display. The artists are well-known and recognized among New England artists.

They have been represented in many exhibitions throughout the area where they have received many awards. The artists hope that many members of the community will be able to visit the store during this period.

Local Scholars Get National Merit Awards

Among 1,000 high school seniors named nationwide winners of National Merit $1,000 scholarships are three Newton residents.

Marjory S. Spodick of 110 Westchester Rd.; Michael E. Cutler of 61 Winston Rd. and Julia A. Malakie of 443 Waltham St., where the three local students selected.

The National Merit $1,000 scholarships are nonrenewable, one-time awards, each providing a $1,000 grant payable to the winner next fall after enrollment in an accredited college or university. The awards are underwritten by 265 sponsoring organizations, including corporations, foundations, labor unions, professional societies, trusts and individuals.

The number of winners in each state is proportional to the state's percentage of the nation's high school graduating seniors.

Miss Spodick attends Newton High School and intends to major in science at college. She works on the school newspaper, is founding editor of a French publication, a volunteer reading tutor. She serves on the Physics Curriculum Planning Committee and works as a teacher's aide and arts and crafts counselor.

Cutler, who attends Newton South High School, serves on the Curriculum Review Board and on the yearbook staff. He was an active campaigner for George McGovern.

Miss Malakie, a student at Newton High School, plans to major in mathematics in college. She is the co-vice president of the Bridge Club and a member of the Chess Club.

Andy Moynihan Opens New Real Estate Office

Andy Moynihan announces the opening of his new Dedham real estate office at one Fuller place.

Formerly of Needham he now resides in Dedham with his wife, Joan, and two daughters, Dianne, 4, and Hollie-Jo, 2.

Andy, a Lee Institute graduate, has been in real estate for three years and now is opening his second office, proving that his new modern techniques are effective.

Gov. Francis Sargent appointed him a notary public in Sept. of 1972.

Along with Robert Mariano and his other brokers, he plans to grow even larger in the Needham-Dedham area.

The purchase of a home is the most expensive item a person buys, so Andy feels that a personal touch is important. At the same time having professional equipment, such as two-way radios in all cars, saves time for both the broker and buyer.

Giving free appraisals and helping those selling is just as important as counseling the young on the purchase of their first home.

Even 20-year home owners don't know all the ins and outs of real estate and spending time with these people results in a more personal and satisfactory relationship, Andy feels.

Tube Painting Instruction

Tube Painting - Bow Craft Clubs in this area announce free instruction classes for May to be given by the instructors from the Art Lovers' Craft Studio, 110 Blake street, Needham, at Dedham Hotel 128, Thursday, May 10.

The public is invited to attend from 1 noon and continuing through 10 p.m.

Techniques in crafts of decorative tube-watching (liquid embroidery), creative bow craft, chemage and paper pottery will be taught. Those who attended last month's classes will have the opportunity to learn a new craft or another technique in the crafts of their choice. There is no fee. Materials will be available or bring your own. There will be service for tubes of those who already do decorative tube painting.

Director Greene Of 'Godspell' Was Surprised At Rave Reviews

"I never did anything like it before. But, Then, I never had a production where people stood in long lines outside the theatre from early morning to see it. But when I went down there to watch I did pull up my coat collar to hid my face."

It was David Greene speaking from his plush hotel suite, discussing his challenging film of the hit musical "Godspell."

Mr. Greene, an Englishman, is 6 feet 1 inches tall, wears his thick gray hair in a sort of saintly style which exposes a high, bare forehead. Somewhat humorously, he regards his coiffure as an "Afro." I assured him that it didn't stand up on his head and so had to be an individual "St Matthew" cut and had nothing to do with Africans.

This seemed to discourage Mr. Greene, but only temporarily. He smiled fondly and reminisced about the walk around the New York theatre where "Godspell" was the audience hit of the week. "I've made many films," he said, "and I have been especially pleased to find that my venture into horror pictures, "The Shuttered Room" has become a cult attraction. It has been written about as one of the great horror pictures of the last 20 years.

"I've directed five full length films including "Sebastian," "Madame Sin" and "I Starting Counting," yet none of them dragged in people willing to stand for more than an hour outside the theatre in order to see the picture. So I kept walking around the theatre block revelling in the sight of men, women and children eager to spend their money at the "Godspell" boxoffice."

You wouldn't especially select Greene as an English film director. He wears tennis shoes day and night (like Woody Allen) and considered himself dressed up for the interview in a yellow shirt and chinos. Pictures of him indicate he wears a beard much of the time, but for Boston he discarded it.

Maybe the new look is because he maintains that "Godspell" is a different kind of cinema experience for him, personally. Others have believed it is the precursor of a whole new type of motion picturemaking.

Of this Greene is all too happy to talk. "They say that if its success continues throughout the country (Boston is only the second city to see it) future film productions all over the world may be influenced.

"In the first place, it is a picture without a story. That is, there was no author — — just a clown show with a bunch of talented kids improvising. I'd say the picture was worked out day by day instead of being written. After all, there are only two characters — — Jesus and Judas. The players worked in front of the camera with a spirit of love and communion."

"It has no violence or negation. It stands up and says 'Yea' to joy.

"Harvey Cox, of the Harvard Divinity School, has lamented the absence of celebration in the Christian religion. "Godspell" represented this joy, even to the locations of the picture."

"Everything was photographed in the city of New York, but you don't see any New Yorkers. Except for the 10 people in the film the streets are vacant. We idealized the city, turning it into a playground."

"Of course it meant a difficult job in keeping interested citizens out of the way of the cameras. But we did it. This is New York as it could be, if there weren't so many of us to dirty it up!"

"What about the cast?" I asked.

"Every one of them had already acted in one or more of the various "Godspell" stage productions," he replied. "I spent the large part of a year visiting companies in New York, London, Parish, Boston, Chicago, Washington, Toronto and San Francisco, watching singing, leaping, dancing, happy kids. I even went on a diet to keep up with them."

It seems Greene felt he needed every bit of his energy to direct such a synamic cast, and he lost a sizable number of middle-aged pounds by sticking to fruit and salads.

Not only his crash diet but the kids themselves made Greene feel like a ten-year-old. When he went on a series of interview tours he took along some of his cast, and they acted as if he were the same age as they. I had to sweep them out of the suite in order to get a coherent story. Their boss didn't awe them at all.

"I pulled them into a family," explained Greene. "That is how we put the scenes together — jointly improvising. It was just as the original ten players had done at Carnegie Tech, where the play was developed as the kids sat around, dancing and leaping as they acted out the parables of Saint Matthew."

"Why were you chosen by producer Edgar Lansbury for the director?" I asked. "Certainly you had done nothing similar."

"Lansbury didn't want any well-known musical directors because he wanted to avoid the big polished professional musicals of the past," replied Greene.

"I was terrified. The play belonged to the theatre, I felt. How could it be translated into a picture without being damaged?"

He was the most surprised man in cinema at some of the New York "Rave" reviews.

"It shows that if a film emphasizing the affirmative is made without stress and ostentation, then you can be sure of the reponse of the audience," Greene proclaimed.

Cinema Review: Ludwig

LUDWIG may be as satisfying a film as Luchino Visconti's previous "The Damned," for admirers of the Italian director's rich, handsome, brooding cinema backgrounds and his presentation of romantic history.

But most filmgoers will be disappointed in the elaborately presented account of the life of the mad Bavarian emperor, whose secret drowning in a secluded lake has, been one of the puzzles of the 19th century.

There is something definitely wrong about this film, and I think the trouble is that Visconti has directed the story with jerkiness and lack of continuity. Things progress without reason and what should be strong and powerful turns into a series of unrelated incidents.

They may add up to a convincing portrait of this unhappy monarch, but it's like a picture puzzle rather than a museum painting..

Ludwig was the ruler who was famous for the castles he built so profligately and which still are tourist's delights. He was in love with his cousin, the magnificent Empress Elizabeth of Austria. He befriended the great composer Wagner and for a time made him a privileged member of his court.

He also was the patron of quite a few handsome young men. And he ruined his teeth by eating too much sugar, which seems to horrify the film's audiences most.

Helmut Berger gives a sensuous portrayal of Ludwig, while Romy Schneider is the appealing Elizabeth — — especially elegant in riding clothes. Trevor Howard gives an outstanding portrait of the greedy Wagner. The costumes are absolutely beautiful, as might be expected in a Visconti film.

The Green Thumb

by GEORGE ABRAHAM

GROW ONIONS: With onion sets selling for 69 cents in many stores, you can be pretty sure it'll pay you to grow your own onions this year. "Sets" are small onions, ½ to ¾" across, produced from seed sown the previous year. Both early green bunching onions and large dry onions are easily raised from sets. Some gardeners make successive plantings of sets for greenions during early summer and spring.

NOTE: We leave many onions in the ground over winter (without protection) then in spring and early summer we get scads of green scallions, they're great eating, expecially after going through the winter without green onions.

If you like the large "Hamburger" onions, set out seedling onion plants in spring. These plants are grown in the South, and you buy them in bunches ready to plant. Next year, if you want to raise your own onion plants, it's simple.

Start them in the house about the first of January from seed. Use a light rich soil. When plants are 6" high, trim them back to 4" with shears. Set out in open ground as early as possible, 4 to 6" apart in rows.

GREEN THUMB BONUS: Smart gardeners want to know their onions. Send me a self-addressed, stamped envelope and ask for a copy of our bulletin, HOW TO GROW ONIONS, LEEKS AND GARLIC. It's got information on multiplier onions, tree onions (Egyptian), chives, leaks and other members of the onion family.

ENGLISH IVY: One of the finest and largest groups of foliage vines we have is the English Ivy or Hedera. Some are solid green leaved, and others are variegated. Look for red spider mites on your leaves now. The foliage may be stippled, cupped, covered with cobweb growth, or even yellowed.

CONTROL: Wash under a faucet in bathtub. Or dip in a bucket of soap and nicotine sulfate. Root English ivy in plain tap water. Rooted plants like a mixture of sand, peat and loam, equal parts.

GREEN THUMB CLINIC: A reader writes: "Please tell us some good marigolds, some that will flower before frost."

Answer: Try Moonshot, grows 14" tall and blooms early and lasting right through the season. Flowers are 3" across. Apollo grows 14" high, and is glowing orange. Jublilee is a "Hedge type" Marigold, reaching about 30" high. There's Diamond, Golden, and Orange Jubilee, all tall and ideal for background plants.

Harvard Promotes Two Newton Doctors

Two members of the Faculty of Medicine at Harvard University, both from Newton, have been promoted to full professorships, it was recently announced by Robert H.Ebert, M.D., dean of Harvard Medical School.

Morris Simon, M.D., of Newton, has been promoted to professor of radiology at the Beth Israel Hospital, and Morton Norman Swartz, M.D., Chestnut Hill is now professor of Medicine at the Massachusetts General Hospital.

Dr. Morris Simon is noted for his work in the cardiopulmonary circulation. He was the first to draw attention to changes in pulmonary veins and other lung tissues as indicators of cardiac disease and pioneered the analysis of standard chest radiography as a course of physiologic information reflecting blood flow in the heart and lungs in addition to its well-established use for detection of gross pathologic processes. In addition, he was the first to describe the regional flow redistribution pattern of blood in pulmonary venous hypertension, the earliest clincial evidence of a failing heart.

Another important contribution that Dr. Simon has made to radiology has been a system of radiologic classification of diseases. Previously, much valuable teaching and research material was being lost in the voluminous files of radiology departments around the world.

Dr. Simon formulated a simple and flexible approach to disease coding far superior to the cumbersone systems then in use. His method is being used widely and has bedn under consideration by the International Committee for Radiologic Information Coding, as the basis for an international classification.

His system also has potential for use in other areas of medicine for classificiation purposes and forms the basis for a new system of radiologic report generation by computer. This promises to enhance the efficiency of the radiology department and simplify retrieval of medical data for clincial review, teaching and training.

Another area of interest for Dr. Simon has been the study of pulmonary embolism by angiography. He is part of the national study currently evaluating new treatments of this disease. He also helped develop an instrument for cannulating the bile and pancreatic ducts without surgery in order to delineate them radiologically or sample their secretions for chemical analysis.

One of Dr. Simon's innovations at the Beth Israel Hospital has been to train the staff of the Radiology Department to perform entire medical procedures themselves, instead of only analyzing the results obtained by surgeons and neurologists.

A naturalized citizen of the United States, Dr. Simon was born in Johannesburg, South Africa. He received his training at Witwatersrand Medical School and joined the staff of the Johannesburg General Hospital.

He emigrated to London in 1952, where he began his work in radiology. He joined the staff of Guy's Hospital where he was later made the senior registrar.

He came to Boston and the Beth Israel Hospital in 1958 at the invitation of the late Dr. Felix Fleischner, and has played a major teaching role in the Radiology Department.

Dr. Simon has been active as a guest lecturer and visiting professor in many institutions. In 1967,he organized an international conference on the Frontiers of Pulmonary Radiology sponsored by Harvard Medical School. He was also the impetus behind the formation of the Fleischner Society, and international multidisciplinary group specializing in chest disease. In addition to his many published papers. Dr. Simon is senior editor of a book called "Frontiers of Radiology."

Recently Dr. Simon visited North Vietnam as part of a fact-finding medical mission to examine its health care system, and to assess the impact of prolonged war and the health needs of the country.

Among his professional memberships, Dr. Simon lists: the American College of Radiology, the Association of University Radiologists, the Radiological Society of North America, the Faculty of Radiologists (England), the Massachusetts Heart Association (Trustee), the Massachusetts Medical Association, the New England Roentgen Ray Society (president - 1971-1972), and the International Committee of Radiologic Information, Subcommittee of America (Secretary).

Dr. Morton Swartz, a clinician specializing in the treatment of infectious diseases, has been Head of the Infectious Diseases Unit at the Massachusetts General Hospital since 1965. Dr. Swartz is noted for his analytical abilities and the "humanity and finesse" with which he deals with patients.

Dr. Swartz's research contributions have been in the area of DNA metabolism in microorganisms. He has investigated the nucleotide composition of various DNA's, the anatomical location of "light" statellite DNA molecules in cells, the replication of certain single-stranded DNA of viral origin, the role of 6-methyl adenine in DNA molecules and most recently, the properties of a thermosensitive mutant of bacteriophage T-4 defective in the virus-induced DNA polymerase.

The work has allowed Dr. Swartz to consider treatment of clinical infections in terms of the possible molecular mode of action of antibiotics. His research has furthered the understanding of the relationship between the biochemistry of microbial systems and clinical bacterial infections.

As a teacher, Dr. Swartz is acknowledged by colleagues to be among the "very best." His Infectious Diseases Unit is a model consultant service for patient care as well as a model teaching service. In addition, Dr. Swartz has trained numerous doctors who have later attained faculty positions.

A native of Boston, Dr. Swartz graduated from Harvard College in 1943 and served as a hospital corpsman in the Navy before entering Harvard Medical School in 1945. He did his internship and residency at the Massachusetts General Hospital. In 1950-51, he did research on the metabolism of isolated cells under a U.S. Public Health Service Cancer Research Fellowship.He spent 1954-1956 at the McCollum Pratt Institute of Johns Hopkins University and in 1960-1961 in DNA research in the Biochemistry Department of Stanford University Medical School.

Tunisia — has some of the best — and the best preserved — ancient ruins in the world due to the kind climate of the area . . . Much, much ancient, grandeur remains in romantic ruins . . . Carthage was the most famous city, founded by the Phoenicians and seat of an empire that challenged Rome until, after a century of struggle, it was utterly destroyed . . . The Romans resurrected it, building their own city, that flourished for centuries and then fell . . . Today, Carthage is a well-to-do suburb of Tunis, the nation's capital, and a kind of Tunisian Beverly Hills . . . Large white villas line the streets, named for famous sons like St. Augustine . . . Here you see the past and the present coexisting comfortably . . .

Every Saturday Club Holds Annual Election

The annual meeting of the 103 year old Every Saturday Club of Newton was held Saturday April 14 at the home of Mrs. Lorraine Holmes, 60 Oakland Road, Newtonville and Miss Winifred Hulbert, now living in Westwood and vice-president of the club was elected president for the 1973-1974 season.

Other officers elected for the coming season include Dr. James S. Mansfield 580 Walnut St., Newtonville as vice president; Mr. Rodney C. Eaton of Harvard, as secretary, and Mrs. Allan Acomb of Newton Highlands to continue as treasurer.

Although the Every Saturday Club is primarily a literary organization, its members throughout its 103 years of existence has listened to and discussed a variety of subjects ranging from the writings of William Shakespeare to various phases of the development of China and its people. This sounds serious but much humor finds its way into the papers presented during the meetings.

The Constitution of The Every Saturday Club is referred to as "The Ironclad" which each member signs yearly, thereby agreeing to prepare a paper on the topic assigned to him. One of the rules dating back to the Club's beginning provided limitations pertaining to the refreshments to be served, restricting them to an apple and a glass of water for the regular meetings. This has since been changed and the refreshments now, for the most part, consist of cookies and fruit juices. One exception is at the annual meeting when ice cream on angel cake with crushed strawberries and coffee can be served.

"Drama As Literature" is the subject chosen for the coming season and this will include the history of drama and the reading of plays. The program committee will assign topics on the subject at a meeting called for Saturday April 28 at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Rodney C. Eaton now living in Harvard, Massachusetts.

Asparagus is back! To those who love this spring vegetable, cultivated for more than 2,000 years, there is nothing that compares to the distinct flavor of fresh asparagus. It would be a shame to allow just a few trifling spears lie almost forgotten by the side of a plate — instead, make asparagus the piece de resistance of your meal.

Have you wondered why some asparagus stalks have cooked tips? It means that the loose soil was crusted by rain and the tender shoot had a difficult time pushing through the earth to reach the sunshine.

Like corn, asparagus is best when rushed from growing field to the table. If fresh asparagus must be held, it should be dried well and stored in a moisture-proof bag or covered container in the refrigerator.

When buying fresh asparagus, look for firm, fresh, bright green stalks. Tightly closed, well-formed tips are signs of young, tender stalks.

Some say the vegetable is at its best when prepared simply in this manner: Bend the stalk to snap off the tough portion. Place in a large skillet with a small amount of lightly salted water; cover and cook for approximately four minutes. Prepare a lemon sauce by melting butter (or margarine) and adding a teaspoon or two of fresh lemon juice, salt and a dash of pepper.

A boon to calorie counters, asparagus is low in calories. One cup of cooked fresh asparagus is 35 calories and contains vitamins A and C.

Charles Lamb once said, "Asparagus inspires gentle thoughts," and so, for a taste treat plus "gentle thoughts" take advantage of the king of all vegetables — enjoy the delights of this sweet green stalk.

SPRING ASPARAGUS SALAD

1 pound fresh asparagus
1 small head lettuce
½ cup sliced celery
¼ cup sliced green onions and tops
3 or 4 sliced radishes
¼ cup shredded carrots

Cut asparagus into 2-inch pieces. Cook until just tender. Drain and chill. Tear lettuce into bite size pieces. Combine ingredients. Toss with the following dressing:

ITALIAN DRESSING

Combine 1 clove garlic, mashed, ½ teaspoon dry mustard, ¼ teaspoon salt; add 4 tablespoons wine vinegar and ½ cup olive (or salad) oil. Blend well; chill.

ASPARAGUS ORIENTAL

1 tablespoon salad oil
2 thin sliced fresh ginger
3 cups fresh asparagus
½ teaspoon salt
Pepper
¼ cup toasted blanched almonds

Heat large skillet; add oil and ginger. When hot, remove ginger; add asparagus (sliced on a bias 1½ inches long). Sprinkle with salt and dash of pepper. Cover. Lift skillet slightly above high heat and shake constantly while cooking. Cook 4 to 5 minutes or until crisp-tender; add toasted almonds and serve over fluffy hot rice. Serves 6.

TUNA ASPARAGUS PARMESAN

2 pounds asparagus
¾ teaspoon salt, divided
¼ cup butter or margarine
¼ cup flour
2 cups milk
¼ teaspoon EACH nutmeg and Tabasco
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
1 tablespoon lemon juice
¾ cup grated Parmesan cheese, divided
2 cans (6½ or 7 oz.) tuna

Break off ends of asparagus as far down as they snap easily. Place in a large skillet; add water partially to cover and ½ teaspoon salt. Bring to boil; reduce heat and simmer, covered, just until lower parts of stalk are crisp-tender when tested with fork, 5 to 10 minutes. Drain. Melt butter in saucepan; remove from heat and blend in flour. Gradually stir in milk; add remaining ¼ teaspoon salt, nutmeg and Tabasco. Cook over low heat, stirring constantly, until mixture thickens and comes to a boil. Remove from heat; stir in lemon juice and Worcestershire sauce. Arrange cooked asparagus on heatproof platter or in shallow casserole; sprinkle with ¼ cup grated Parmesan cheese. Place tuna on top. Pour sauce over tuna and asparagus. Sprinkle with remaining ½ cup grated cheese. Place under broiler until lightly browned or place in 450 degree oven for 5 minutes. Serves 4-5.

QUICK ASPARAGUS WINE AU GRATIN

2 pounds asparagus, cooked
One-third cup butter, melted
½ cup dry white wine
1 tablespoon Parmesan cheese, grated.

Arrange asparagus (cooked) in baking dish. Pour melted butter and wine over all. Sprinkle lightly with salt and pepper; lastly with grated cheese. Bake in 425 degree oven for 10 minutes or until cheese browns lightly. Serves 4-5.

COTTAGE CHEESE, EGGS AND ASPARAGUS BAKE

4 hard-cooked eggs
One-third cup cottage cheese
2 tablespoons mayonnaise
¾ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
4 slices rye bread, toasted
1 pound asparagus, cooked and drained
1 can (10¾ oz.) condensed cheddar cheese soup
¼ cup milk
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
½ cup fine, soft rye bread crumbs
1 teaspoon melted butter or margarine

Cut eggs in half lengthwise. Remove yolks. Mash with fork. Add cottage cheese, mayonnaise, salt and pepper. Blend until light and fluffy. Fill egg whites. Arrange toast slices, trimming edges if necessary, in well-greased baking dish. Arrange asparagus over toast. Top with stuffed eggs. Combine soup, milk and Worcestershire sauce. Stir until smooth. Pour over eggs. Toss bread crumbs with butter. Sprinkle over top of casserole. Bake in preheated 400 degree oven for 12 minutes or until brown. Serves 4.

ASPARAGUS A LA NEPTUNE

Lightly salt 6 flounder fillets, sliced thin. Divide 24 uncooked asparagus spears equally; roll up in fillets, and place in greased casserole. Add ½ teaspoon Worcestershire sauce to 1 can cream of celery soup and pour over fillets, covering each. Sprinkle 1 tablespoon sliced almonds on each fillet and bake in 350 degree oven 30-45 minutes. Garnish with parsley and paprika. Serves 6.

COBBLER — The combination of sweet red strawberries and tangy rhubarb topped with large-size flaky refrigerated biscuits sprinkled with cinnamon and sugar baked to hot bubbly perfection and served with a splash of cream. For recipe, please refer to Information, Please.

ASPARAGUS AND SCRAMBLED EGGS

5 eggs
½ teaspoon salt
¼ cup milk
1 tablespoon butter

Cook asparagus. Beat eggs well. Add salt and milk; mix well. Melt 1 tablespoon butter in same frying pan. Add eggs, stirring constantly. Add the asparagus and cook until eggs are of desired consistency. Serves 4.

ASPARAGUS MOLD

½ cup cold water
2 envelopes unflavored gelatin
6 eggs
¾ cup sugar
1 tablespoon mustard
1¼ teaspoon salt
1 cup unsweetened pineapple juice
¼ cup cider vinegar
¾ cup cold water
1 pound asparagus
2 medium carrots
4 radishes
lettuce leaves

In small bowl, sprinkle gelatin on top of water. Let stand to soften. Use a double boiler and in top section add the 6 eggs and beat slightly. Add sugar, mustard, salt. Stir together. Slowly blend pineapple juice, vinegar combined with water to the egg mixture. Have the water just to the boiling point in the bottom section. Stir constantly until mixture thickens. Add all but a tablespoon of the gelatin to the thickened mixture. Combine. Put into refrigerator until it starts to gel. Meanwhile, wash asparagus and snap off tips and cook in 2 cups of boiling water, covered, for 5 minutes. Drain. Arrange part of tips in a pattern on bottom of salad mold. Add 3 tablespoons of hot water to the tablespoon of gelatin and gently pour over the tips. Refrigerate the mold. (The other cooked asparagus tips can be put in a salad.) Grate the raw asparagus stalks, carrots and radishes. Add to the gel mixture. Pour over top of the set tips. Refrigerate until set. Unmold. Serves 8-10.

Household Hints

With spring cleaning at hand, homemaker consultants of National Family Opinion Inc., a consumer research firm in Toledo, Ohio, pass on the following hints:

—Use a small amount of baking soda on a damp cloth to disinfect your formica top counters and keep them looking fresh.

—Use window cleaner to brighten window pulls and metal counter pulls in your kitchen.

—Dye odor will disappear from clothing if the garment is aired on clothes line for several hours.

—Pencil and ball point ink marks can be removed from cloth with hair spray. Spray on spot, rub, then wash as usual. Repeat if necessary.

—Ketchup is an excellent cleaner for brass and copper if you run out of your commercial polish. Salt and vinegar—two ingredients in ketchup—cleans brass.

—Crumpled newspaper is good for cleaning mirrors, windows, glass doors. Use any spray cleaner or simply water with a bit of ammonia and wipe off with the newspaper.

—To scour pans, use a piece of fine emery cloth. The pans scour up bright and there are no scratches.

—Use turpentine for removing gum from cloth and for removing tape glue from appliances and other metallic surfaces.

—For a plate and pot scraper that does not sour or wear out easily, cut nylon mesh citrus bags into four-inch lengths and gather into a bundle. Either tie or wrap a bread tie lightly around the middle.

—Put garbage in half-gallon milk cartons. When full, slip the carton into old bread wrappers and fasten with plastic strip. Helps prevent the messy garbage can problem.

Gift Mom With A Lovely Fragrance

Mothers will enjoy a most fragant Mother's Day on May 13 when, it is estimated, over 50 million bottles of perfume, toilet water and cologne will be presented by Dad, children, grandchildren and friends.

To select the correct scent, it's a good idea to examine Mom's perfume collection because there are definite forms of fragrance to choose from. Then advise the salesgirl of the type—spicy, floral, oriental or citrusy and the selection can be made quickly.

To enjoy fragrance to its fullest, one should be aware of its many forms, how and when it is to be used, its care, and, finally the importance of fragrance worn every day.

PERFUME: of all forms of fragrance perfume is the strongest, most concentrated and lasting. Always apply perfume to your pulse points. . . behind the ears, the inside wrists, inside the crook of the arms, at the temples, at the base of the throat, even behind the knees. Wherever you feel the pulse beat, the heat of the body will help to accentuate the fragrance.

If you are allergic to perfume NEVER apply it directly to the skin. Instead, put some of the fragrance in a spot where the stain will not show–such as under the hem, on pocket linings or cuff facings.

Perfume is most effective when applied with an atomizer. The atomizer diffuses the alcohol, and the true fragrance clings to your skin. Spray perfume on the hems of your skirts, handkerchiefs and lingerie.

Place an empty perfume bottle in lingerie or linen drawers, luggage and stationery boxes. Even after the perfume is gone, the scent lingers on.

In selecting a perfume, it should never be sniffed from the bottle. . . it should be applied to the skin and then sniffed. Everyone's skin chemistry reacts differently so that a scent that is pleasant on one person may be quite unbearable on another. Never try more than three scents in succession.

TOILET WATER: Next in strength to perfume, toilet water contains no other fragrance note than that of the original perfume, but the perfume notes are expanded to make it lighter and more subtle.

Add a few drops of toilet water to the rinse water after you have washed your lingerie. Spray toilet water on your ironing board before you press your blouses or lingerie. Saturate a large piece of cotton with toilet water and keep it in your linen closet.

COLOGNE: Usually the lightest form of fragrance, cologne may be used lavishly. When cologne was introduced, it was the citrus type of fragrant "water" first created in the city of Cologne, Germany in the 17th Century. Though many citrus type colognes still remain popular, a large majority of today's colognes are diluted versions of perfume.

Cologne is refreshing and invigorating when splashed on after a bath or shower. Use it on your hair as a quick wave set. Cologne will keep your hands cool and dry because the alcohol content helps to evaporate perspiration. . it cools and relaxes tired feet. You'll also find it effective as a rubdown to relieve tired, aching muscles.

Solid cologne is a stick form that is ideal for packing and traveling. There is also a mist concentrate that is heavier than cologne and is also convenient and easy to pack.

Contrary to popular belief, the bath is not an achievement of our modern society. Its history is as old as the history of humanity, and its early origins are found in religious rites and rituals.

Each civilization has contributed to the development of bathing, which reached its "golden age" in ancient Rome. Here the famous Roman Baths became social centers where one could spend an entire day relaxing and visiting with friends and associates.

Madame Tallien, a beautiful and influential leader of the 18th Century society, filled her daily tub with 20 pounds of crushed, fresh strawberries mixed with 2 pounds of raspberries. After soaking luxuriously for a half hour, she was rubbed with sponges soaked in fresh milk, emerging delicately perfumed and glowingly pink-tinted all over.

Today women do not have to go to these lengths to enjoy a luxurious, perfumed, refreshing, skin-pampering bath. Finely milled fragrant bath soaps can be chosen to match a fragrance. . in this way you create a tip-to-toe base which makes the after-bath fragrance application last longer with greater effectiveness.

Some women have difficulty retaining fragrance. . .dry skin will not hold a scent as long as oily skin. By using bath preparations in the same scent as your perfume you will achieve a longer lasting result. .but. .the more you wear of your favorite fragrance the more accustomed your nose becomes to it and it's a good idea to ask your best friend if you're overdoing a good thing.

Bath oils, bath salts, bubble bath, after-bath friction, and bath powder and talc are preparations that wake you up in the morning or relax you after a long day's work.

There was a time when only royalty and the very wealthy could afford perfume. . today it's the easiest gift to give. You don't have to worry about size or color. . it's always appropriate and best of all it's available in the widest possible price range.

A note to Mom: Don't tuck your gift of perfume away and "save" it. . .enjoy its fragrance every single day. If you save your fragrance for "special occasions" you may be disappointed to discover it has spoiled or evaporated. Once opened, use your scent quickly; keep it in a cool, dark spot out of sunlight.

HAPPY MOTHERS DAY!!

REMEMBER MOM — "Giving is next to loving," Estee Lauder says. So this Mother's Day choose from row upon row of fragrant gift ideas and make someone happy.

Question: I'm planning a dinner party and will serve chicken—but would like to fancy it up with fruit of some kind. Do you have any ideas? Many thanks!

Eleanor B. Roslindale

Answer: Get out your large skillet for this apricot and chicken medley served, perhaps on a bed of hot buttered noodles, rice or as is with a cooked yellow vegetable and tossed green salad.

CHICKEN AND APRICOTS

¼ cup oil
2 broiler-fryer chickens, cut in serving pieces
¼ cup chopped onion
¼ cup chopped clelry
1½ teaspoons salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
2 teaspoons monosodium glutamate
1 teaspoon ginger
⅛ teaspoon mace
1 tablespoon flour
2 cups chicken broth
1 egg
2 tablespoons lemon juice
2 teaspoons grated lemon rind
1 can (1 lb.) unpeeled apricot halves
½ cup slivered almonds

Heat oil in large skillet; add chicken pieces and brown on all sides. Add onion and celery. Sprinkle with salt, pepper, monosodium glutamate, ginger and mace. Sprinkle flour over all and gradually stir in broth. Cover and simmer 25-30 minutes, until chicken is tender. Remove chicken from skillet. In small bowl, beat egg and mix in lemon juice and rind with ¼ cup syrup from apricots; add to pan. Cook, stirring constantly, until mixture thickens and comes to a boil. Add chicken, drained apricot halves and almonds. Heat through. Serves 8.

Question: In June we are having about 20 of my son's friends over for a graduation party. Besides the regular barbecue fare, I'm thinking of having a large pot of Sloppy Joe mixture on hand to serve on hot dog buns. Do you have a recipe that would serve 40-50 or to be exact, 2 servings per boy? Thanks.

Mrs. R.E., Dedham

Answer: Sloppy Joes would be a good standby food just in case you run out of hamburgers and weiners; make sure you've ordered extra buns!

SLOPPY JOES FOR 50 (4 oz. servings)

4 tablespoons shortening
6 pounds ground beef
2 cups chopped onions
3 cups chopped celery
1½ cups chopped green pepper
1½ cups canned mushroom pieces, drained
1 teaspoon pepper
2 tablespoons dry mustard
4 tablespoons salt
2 quarts tomato puree
Two thirds cups brown sugar
¼ cup vinegar
1 quart water

Melt shortening in large pot. Add beef, onions, celery, green pepper and mushrooms. Cook until tender and beef is no longer red. Add remaining ingredients, stirring well. Cook until thickened about 1½ hours, stirring occasionally. Add water if mixture gets too thick. Serve on hot buns. Our thanks to Mrs. P.N., Walpole, who sends us her recipe for a quick and easy recipe:

SKILLET BEEF NOODLES

1 pound ground beef
1 envelope dry onion soup mix
1 can (1 lb. 12 oz.) tomatoes
⅛ CAN (1 lb. 12 oz.) tomatoes
4 oz. uncooked narrow noodles

In large skillet cook and stir beef until brown. Stir in remaining ingredients. Heat to boiling. Reduce heat; cover and simmer, stirring occasionally, about 20 minutes or until noodles are tender. Serves 4.

Question: Do you have a good recipe for Shrimp Scampi? In return for this recipe, I am enclosing my favorite coffee cake recipe, Marmalade coffee cake.

Mrs. J. McD., W. Roxbury

Answer: A fair trade! Here's the Shrimp Scampi and thanks for your coffe cake.

SHRIMP SCAMPI

2 pounds raw shrimp in shell (the larger the better)
2 tablespoons butter
½ cup butter
1 cup chicken broth or stock
One third cup sauterne
One third cup lemon juice
4 cloves garlic, minced
2 tablespoons chopped parsley
1 teaspoon salt
Dash pepper
½ teaspoon oregano
2 teaspoons cornstarch

Peel shell from shrimp, leaving last section and tail intact. Butterfly shrimp by cutting through at center back without severing ends. Devein shrimp and clean. Saute garlic in the 2 tablespoons butter until slightly browned. Combine ½ cup butter, broth, sauterne, and lemon juice; bring to boiling. Make a smooth paste by combining cornstarch with 2 tablespoons water; stir into wine mixture. Cook and stir until slightly thick; keep hot. Line shrimp up in shallow baking dish with tails upward. Combine garlic, parsely, salt, pepper and oregano and sprinkle over shrimp. Broil shrimp 4 to 5 minutes or until pink and tender. Pour hot wine sauce over all. Serves 6.

MARMALADE COFFEE CAKE

¼ cup shortening
½ cup sugar
1 egg, beaten
1 tablespoon grated orange rind
1¾ cups sifted flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
½ cup milk
3 tablespoons melted butter or margarine
1 cup flaked or shredded coconut
¾ cup orange marmalde
1 tablespoon sugar

Cream shortening; add sugar and mix well. Add egg and orange rind. Sift together dry ingredients; add alternately with milk to creamed mixture. Beat after each addition. Spread dough in greased 9-inch square pan. Brush top with 1 tablespoon melted butter. Blend coconut with marmalade; add remaining melted butter. Drop by spoonfuls on dough; spread evenly over top; sprinkle with sugar. Bake in 350 degree oven 30-35 minutes. Serves 9 or 12.

Question: Sometimes when I am roasting chicken or meat I like to put a dessert in to bake at the same time. My family is a little tired of the one or two recipes I keep repeating. Maybe you have something unusual, but easy.

Mary S., Dedham

Answer: A quick search through our files and we came up with a cobbler that blends springtime favorites strawberries and rhubarb. Here it is:

STRAWBERRY RHUBARB DEEPDISH COBBLER

1 cup sugar
3 tablespoons cornstarch
⅛ teaspoon salt
1 pint fresh strawberries, sliced
2 cups fresh rhubarb, diced
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 tablespoon butter or margarine
1 can (9.5 oz.) refrigerated biscuits
Cinnamon and sugar mixture

Preheat oven to 400 degrees. In large saucepan, combine sugar, cornstarch and salt. Stir in strawberries, rhubarb, lemon juice and butter. Cook over medium heat, stirring frequently, until hot, bubbly and slightly thickened. Pour into 2-quart casserole or baking dish. Separate biscuit dough into 10 biscuits; cut each in half. Arrange cut-side-down on hot fruit in circle around edge of casserole. Sprinkle biscuits with cinnamon-sugar mixture. Bake at 400 degrees for 15-20 minutes until biscuits are golden brown. Serve warm with cream. Note: 1 pkg. (16 oz.) frozen rhubarb, thawed and undrained may be used for fresh rhubarb—if so, decrease sugar to ¾ cup.

"Go-Getting" Ends May 14

May 14 will mark the official end of "Go-Getting" activities for the Channel 2 auction. Newton donors are urged to phone station WBGH at 868-3800 to make known their intention to contribute.

It has been announced that Newton merchants who contribute will receive "on-the-air" acknowledgement as well as publicity in two weekly newspapers here. All appealing and valuable contributions are welcome. Contributors are reminded that the more appealing or unusual the gift, or the greater its actual worth, the greater the benefit in dollars and cents which accrues to the benefit of channel 2.

The theme for this year's auction will be "It's A Circus."

Officials have announced that the program, "ZOOM," will continue to be shown on channel 2. However, due to a cut in federal funding, the station needs financial backing for its independent educational programs.

Gets Fellowship

Dr. Daniel G. Quillen, of 32 Rock Ledge Rd., Newton Highlands, a professor of mathematics at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, has been selected as a John Simon Guggenheim Fellow for 1973. His subject of study is in algebraic topology.

Community Service Drive Opens

The Sustaining Membership Drive of the Newton Community Service Center is now underway and, according to Mrs. John Taplin of West Newton, needs funding from the local community more than ever as it has increased its scope to an even wider range.

The center involves itself with programs such as day care, senior volunteer programs, job bank, youth centers, youth reaching out services, and surplus food registrations.

Individuals assisting with the drive in addition to Mrs. Taplin are: Miss Margaret S. Ball, Judge Monte Basbas, Mr. Paul J. Burke, Mrs. Morgan S. Campbell, Mrs. Robert A. Carleo, Mrs. Augustus P Castoldi, Mr. William Chisholm, Mrs. John E. Coleman, Mrs. David B. Cooper, Mr. David B. Cooper, Mrs. Joseph S. Daniele, Mr. Kenneth DiNisco, Judge Franklin N. Flaschner, Rev. Housing-

Alderman Michael Antonellis, also of Ward 5, at this point proposed the resolution that the mayor not convey title to the Housing Authority until negotiations on the Beaconwood Road and Thurston Road properties are completed, and Harrington withdrew his motion to delay approval of the Victory Field sale.

The vote on the two-part item was 11 in favor of the resolution, 8 opposed, 5 absent; 18 in favor of the sale of the land, one against (Alderman Robert Gaynor, Ward 1), 5 absent. One of those who missed the votes was Joseph McDonnell, alderman from Ward 1, who has been an ardent supporter of low-income housing.

Newton Housing Authority Executive Director Frank Quinn said Tuesday that not executing the deed on Victory Field until after the Authority owns the other two properties will probably have no adverse effect on approval by the Department of Community Affairs, the funding agency.

Quinn said that the DCA has begun selling "project notes" (for obtaining funds) on both projects, even though the Housing Authority is faced with eminent domain procedures on one piece and possibly both pieces of land.

Owners of the Beaconwood Road land were reported by Barkin at Monday night's board meeting to have requested a permissive use for the construction of 28 units of housing. A public hearing on the matter has been scheduled for June 11. Some observers take this move as an indication that the property's owners intend to fight a land-taking by the Housing Authority.

Soccer Talk

By PAUL ELDRIDGE JR.

This column could be entitled "Reflections on Six Wonderful Years," or "How it Feels to Hang Up the Boots and Whistle." Yes, after six years, I'm giving up being a referee. That loud cheer you just heard was from the coaches and players that did not agree with all of my calls.

I was hoping to go on for a few more years, but a cranky knee keeps telling me, "NO." Please don't feel sorry for me, because I'm not feeling sorry about it. There are so many other things I can do. I can help in the training of new referees, coaching, and reporting what is happening in the world of Soccer to all of you out there.

It was a lot of fun being a referee, and I enjoyed every minute of every game. Even though I did not please every coach and player with my calls, I can honestly say that I took each game seriously and called it to the best of my ability.

Those of you that know me, know that I have two pet peeves in Soccer. One is wanting the ethnic teams to Americanize themselves. The other is coaches and fans screaming and yelling at the referee during and after the game. I do not like this, especially in the youth leagues. We are trying to teach the boys good sportsmanship, besides how to play the game. They are not going to learn good sportsmanship if they keep on hearing the adults yelling at the referee.

Remember that kids learn from example, and if they see the coaches or fans doing something, they're going to try it also. So please, everyone, try to set a good example for the kids. Don't be too hard on the referees. There's is not the easiest job in the world. They have to make a judgment in a split second, and they don't have the benefit of a video-tape replay. Try it sometime you may see what I mean.

NORTH AMERICAN SOCCER LEAGUE NOTES

Commissioner Phil Woosnam revealed today that the NASL has signed a multi-year agreement with International Famous Agency granting IFA the exclusive right to represent the NASL in its television negotiations.

IFA has become a major force throughout the entire entertainment industry, and in the last six months has become engaged in sporting activities. Its first venture in the World of Sport resulted in a five-year contract for the World Hockey Association with CBS. Shortly thereafter, IFA sold the television rights for the 1976 Summer Olympics Game in Montreal to ABC for $25,000,000.

"The League is delighted to be associated with IFA, which in a relatively short time has proved its capabilities in the area of major sports television," stated Woosman. "We recognize that soccer is only just emerging as a major league sport on the North American sport scene with its rapidly growing popularity with the youth across the continent in the past five years. We are confident that in the very near future this League will be enjoying the same dramatic progress experienced by football and hockey."

"Behind the scenes exciting developments are taking place at all levels of the sport and this is the appropriate time for the League to have expert advice and guidance in the area of television. There is no doubt in my mind that if we take advantage of the experience gained by other sports in marketing its products, North America will become the hub of World Soccer in the next ten years."

On behalf of IFA, President Marvin Josephson stated, "We are very pleased to be a part of this growing and vigorous sport, and I firmly believe that soccer is on the verge of becoming one of the great sporting activities in North America.

SOCCER SHORTS

We would like to join with the rest of Soccer in wishing Rai Copland, "Bon Voyage." His company is transferring him to India.

Rai was one of the founders of the BAYS and the league will miss him very much. I wouldn't be surprised if he starts a new BAYS, "The Bombay Area Youth Soccer League."

Good luck Rai, keep in touch.

Backyard Frontier

By POLLY BRADLEY
(Mass. Audubon Society)

An area larger than Massachusetts, Connecticut and Rhode Island combined is under water along the banks of the Mississippi River and its tributaries.

The flood is one of the worst in history, in spite of the fact that billions of dollars have been spent in "flood control" projects.

The situation calls into question the entire approach which has traditionally been taken towards control of floods.

Levees, by channelizing the water into a narrow bed, have actually caused heavy rains to rush downstream faster, rather than spreading into natural marshes and flood plains, where the water could be held temporarily and then gradually absorbed.

The damage is worsened by the fact that people have tended to trust the flood control projects too much. They have built extensively in flood plains and other low-lying areas which historically have been subject to periodic flooding.

Instead of spending more tax money to channelize more water and to help people rebuild in the same spot, it would be better to help people move to higher ground.

The farms will benefit in the long run from the new layer of fertile mud which is laid down by the river. That is how flood plains have remained prime agricultural areas all over the world for centuries.

But factories, stores, businesses, schools, offices and housing developments should not be built on flood plains.

Besides, in a hungry world that fertile agricultural land is too valuable to be wasted.

The area of the Great Salt Lake is about 1,500 square miles.

Pitching Sensational:

Newton High Nine Rated One Of Best In State

Very quietly, one high school baseball team has been sneaking up and showing itself as being one of the best teams in the state. Newton High School has won nine straight games and, after a 5-4 opening day defeat, has outscored the opposition 49-15.

The biggest reason for Newton's 9-1 record is the pitching. "We've been getting great pitching," exclaimed Coach Ed Fraktman. Paul Goldman, Ed Bekler, and Paul Austin have been consistantly superb as starters. Gary Vitti has also done well when called upon for late-inning relief.

Tiger pitchers had hurled three consecutive shutouts before the bats finally came alive against Rindge Tech on Wednesday, April 25. Newton scored all its runs in a wild second inning which saw seven men cross the plate. The seven runs were a result of three hits, four errors, and three walks. Paul Austin and Gary Vitti combined for a one-hitter. Rindge scored a lone run in the sixth inning on a walk followed by the Techies' lone hit of the day, a double. The 7-1 win raised Newton's record to 4-1.

NHS romped over Waltham by a 10-3 score on Monday, April 30. Dave Boyajian, Bob DeRubeis, and Ken Billings each scored two runs. The Tigers tallied three times in each of the first two innings to give Paul Goldman a cushion to work on. In the five innings Goldman pitched he did not allow a run. Gary Vitti was on the mound during the final two innings when Waltham scored three times.

The following day, May 1, Newton faced Cambridge Latin. Paul Austin held Cambridge to one run, while second baseman Dave Boyajian walked three times and scored twice for the Tigers. The 3-1 victory was Newton's sixth in a row.

Reigning Suburban League Champions Arlington provided the opposition on Wednesday, May 2. A four run second inning was enough to provide a 6-3 Newton triumph. Ed Beckler went the distance on the mound boosting Newton's record to 7-1 and placing them in the top spot in the Suburban League.

The Tigers avenged their only loss of the season by beating Brookline 5-4 on Friday, May 4. Newton held a 5-0 lead going into the sixth inning but Brookline scored four times in that frame. Ten men came to the plate for the Indians as Ed Beckler was called upon to relieve Paul Goldman who had breezed through the first five innings. Beckler got Newton out of the sixth inning, and in the seventh struck out the last two men to end the ballgame. Newton's four-hit attack was led by junior center fielder John Connolly, who had two.

This past Monday, May 7, Brockton fell to the Tigers by a 10-3 margin. Rightfielder Ken Billings was the offensive star going three-for-three, scoring three runs, and knocking in four runs on two doubles and a home run. Paul Austin pitched all seven innings; the Tiger staff's fifth complete-game victory of the season.

Newton's 9-1 record ranks them in first place in the league. With only six games remaining an Eastern Mass. Tourney spot is almost assured.

Tiger Tennis Team On Move

By DAVID CUTLER

Rebounding from a 5-0 defeat early in the season, Newton High is once again putting it all together on the tennis courts. The Tigers met Lexington on Monday, May 7. The Minutemen had previously defeated Weston 3-2, the team which had beaten Newton 5-0. But on this day it was Newton's turn to be victorious. The Tigers dumped Lexington 4-1 on singles victories by Joe Mitchell, Rich Birmingham and Carl Kravitz, and a doubles win by the team of Neal Kravitz and Stu Brightman.

Leading up to the Lexington match Newton won four other matches. On Tuesday, April 24, Rindge Tech fell 5-0. Only two seniors, Steve Freeman and Andy Jacobs, competed in this one-sided victory. "That should give some indication of our depth and youth," said Coach George Jessup. The win brought Newton's overall record up to 5-1 and its Suburban League mark to 3-0.

Another league opponent, Weymouth North, dropped a 5-0 decision to Newton on Tuesday, May 1. The Tigers' dominance in the league is evident by the fact that no team in the Suburban League has won a single point from Newton.

The Tigers faced stiffer opposition on Wednesday, May 2, in meeting the Andover Academy junior varsity. Newton won a remarkable 23-13 victory; Coach Jessup explains why: "This is the first time to my knowledge that we've ever beaten the Andover Jayvees. I would have considered it a victory if we had scored four points.

Suburban League foe Waltham fell by a 5-0 score on Thursday, May 3. "But," Jessup hastens to add, "that was not an easy match." Bob Lowe's victory in second singles came by 6-7, 6-1, 6-0 scores. David Bikofsky and Frank Bodengraven took second doubles 7-6, 6-0. All other scores were either 6-0 or 6-1.

After the Lexington victory Jessup concluded, "We're a pretty strong team." It took until now to find out because for a while one or more of the top three players, Captain Joe Mitchell, Rich Birmingham, and Carl Kravtiz was not in the lineup. "It just shows that with everybody together things can happen," said Jessup. With the Eastern Mass. Tennis Tournament coming up in less than three weeks Jessup is looking to get his team in top form for the defense of its Eastern Massachusetts, State and New England titles, "I think the team is still peaking."

Our Lady's Baseball

Our Lady's High baseball team dropped two of theee games, last week, to fall under the .500 mark for the season.

The Lancers beat North Cambridge, 4-3, and lost to St. Patrick's 8-1, and Immaculate, 9-7, to leave their season's slate at 5-6.

A three-run sixth inning rally and superb relief pitching by Gary Bearfield rescued the Lancers from a 3-1 North Cambridge lead in their victory.

Dennis Cameron was the key player in the Lancer rally, getting an infield hit and an RBI on an attempted sacrifice, and then coming around to score the go-ahead run.

Bearfield, who started the game at thirdbase, took over from starter Mike Terry in the fifth inning and held Cambridge without a hit to pick up the win. Terry was strong in the early innings, fanning seven and permitting just two safeties himself, but he weakened and ended up issuing six free passes to first.

Bearfield and John Moran paced Our Lady's eight-hit attack with two each, and Cameron, Terry, Rick Doyle, and John Bartinelli contributed one apiece. All were singles.

The St. Patrick's game was a good ballgame if you were a St. Patrick's fan. If you were an Our Lady's fan the best move would have been to go home after the first inning.

The Lancers went up 1-0 in the first and were still in the ballgame as late as the fifth inning. At that time St. Pat's was on top, 2-1.

The sixth was the whole story as the visitors solved the mystery of Bearfield's arm and touched him for six runs. Winning pitcher John Cloherty did the most damage with a bases loaded triple.

The Our Lady's bats were held in check by Cloherty's sharpness and produced just four singles. Two of them came from Cameron and one each from Moran and Tony Colella.

The Lancers managed just three hits in the loss to Immaculate, but a much more opportunistic nature almost pulled the decision out. The luck Our Lady's received came basically in the form of 11 walks. The Lancers chalked up inning scores of one, two, two and two, but in the end the guys with the bats won out.

Moran, Colella, and Terry notched the hits, Collela knocking in two runs with his.

St. Sebastian's Sports

A very satisfying two-win week put the St. Sebastian's baseball team over the .500 mark last week.

The Arrows came-from-behind to edge Lexington, Christian 7-6, and blasted Beaver Country Day, 11-0 to move up to 5-3 on the year.

Lexington had leads of 5-2 and 5-4 entering the last inning, but a single, double, and a passed ball were the key plays in the Arrow rally.

Dave Mannix' three RBI's and two hits, and two hits apiece from Bob Devaney and Terry Connors clubbed the Lexington team into submission.

Mark Canavan, who started the last-inning rally with a single, was the winning pitcher.

The other victory was more neatly played.

Tom Hurley blanked Beaver on four hits and collected six strikeouts. Canavan, Jim Morris, and Tim Clapp cracked two hits each as the Arrows blasted Beaver pitching for 11 safeties.

The Arrow tennis team struggled to a 9-9 match with Brookline despite Bill Eagan's victories in singles and doubles.

The tandems of Steve Maskells and Bob Ernst, Phil Coleman and Larry Kirk and Larry Packenham and John Issac each tallied three points as the St. Sebastian golf team crushed Hyde Park, 9-0.

Tiger Track Action

By DAVID CUTLER

After two overwhelming victories Newton High School's young, inexperienced track team ran up against a powerhouse Brockton squad. The result was the Tiger's only defeat of the season, and a true measure of where they stand in relation to the best.

Newton High opened their season by swamping Arlington on Tuesday, April 17. The meet gave Head Coach Lamoine Boyle an indication of where the team's strengths and weaknesses lay. "Overall," said Boyle, "we look strong in the field and the dashes. I'd say we still need a lot more work on conditioning."

These are the events in which Newton High School competes:

Track

100 yard dash
220 yard dash
440 yard dash
120 yard high hurdles
180 yard low hurdles
880 yard run
one mile run
two mile run
880 yard relay

Field

Shot put Javelin
Discus
Pole Vault
High jump
Long jump
Triple jump

The Tigers romped over Waltham 92-48 on Wednesday, April 25. The victory did up Newton's record to 2-0, but it didn't give the team a stiff test of their ability. "We're improving all the time," said Boyle. "But I've had to move some boys around because of our inexperience. We're really going to be challenged by Brockton. I wish we had a little more time." Did Boyle see Newton as having any chance of beating Brockton in their upcoming meet in one week? "On paper Brockton is stronger, but anything is possible."

Newton faced Brockton on Tuesday, May 1. Brockton won 93-47 and Boyle explained why: "They are much more experienced than we are. The many sophomores and juniors on our team just haven't been competing long enough to keep up with them. Maybe in a couple of years we'll give them a real challenge."

The Tigers got back on track by beating Cambridge Latin 98-42 on Thursday, May 3. Newton took ten first (fifty points), thirteen seconds (thirty-nine points), and nine thirds (nine points) in the sixteen events. Jim Shaw and Peter Waxman place one-two in both the 100 yeard dash and the long jump. Jerry Goolkasian, Peter Wrenn, Artie Murphy, Joe Morella, Robert Meek, and George Hebard all won their events. Bob Hoover took first place in both the 180 low hurdles (22.1 seconds) and the javelin (162 feet 7 inches).

The next big test the Tigers face will be the meet with Weymouth South on Thursday, May 10. "This will be another great challenge for us." said Boyle. "And I think the experience we will have gained since we met Brockton will help us tremendously."

Tennis Tips

By BUCKY ADAMS

Some of you who are taking up tennis, may be making your first mistake before you even step on the court. This mistake is purchasing the wrong kind of tennis racket. Here are a few things you should consider when buying your first racket.

1. Do you want a metal racket or a wodden racket?

In almost every case, I recommend a wooden racket for beginners. It is important to develop a slow, easy swing so that the player can control his shots. Unlike a metal racket, air cannot travel through the shaft and throat of a wooden racket. This gives the wooden racket a slower swing than the metal racket.

2. How much do you want to spend for a racket?

Anywhere from $10 to $25. Basically, you get what you pay for with tennis rackets. When you're first learning to play, a racket between $10 and $15 will serve your purpose. The racket isn't as strong, and the strings aren't as tight as the higher priced rackets, but you'll still get a good hit with it when you stroke the ball correctly. Once you know you're going to stay with the game and you find you're becoming more proficent, then buy a racket which is unstrung. It should run about $15 for the frame. Have the racket strung with a top brand of nylon. The stringing usually costs $10. This will give you a strong frame with strings that will last a long time and play well enough for your purposes. Rackets are available for small children, also. They are prestrung and about an inch shorter than other rackets. They cost about $10.

3. What size grip do you want? When you grip a racket, your thumbs should touch the first knuckle of your index finger. Most women will take a $4\frac{3}{8}$ L or a $4\frac{1}{2}$ L. (The number represents the circumference of the grip in inches. The letter that follows, either "L", "M", or "H", stand for "light", "medium", and "heavy".) Men usually use a $4\frac{1}{2}$ M or a $4\frac{5}{8}$ M. Children's rackets have a 4L or a $4\frac{1}{4}$ L grip size.

4. How should you take care of your racket? Keep the racket in a cover and a press. Usually, covers sell for about $2 and presses for $1.75. When you're going to play, take the cover with you. You needn't take the press. When you're not playing keep the racket in a dry place.

Most of the time, the tennis player with the better strokes is going to win. It's as simple as that. However, if you find yourself losing matches to players whose strokes aren't as good as yours, then you are using the wrong kind of strategy.

Here is some basic strategy for singles that will help you become a winner again.

Beginners: 1. Keep the ball in play. Most points aren't won on great shots. They're lost on foolish errors. Don't try to blast balls by your opponent. Develop a slow, smooth swing so that you know where you are hitting the ball.

2. Control your serve. Show me the set where you hit that booming "ace" and I'll show you the three double faults you had. If you're missing your first serve more than you're getting it in, slow it down.

3. Usually the shots that give you the most trouble, give your opponent the most trouble, also. (Like those high balls that come to your backhand!) Hit those shot to your opponent.

4. Stay back at the baseline. Playing net at this stage is a disadvantage.

Intermediates: 1. Keep your shots deep. The balls you hit near the baseline usually crowd your opponent and force him to hit with his weight on his back foot. This makes his returns weaker and less accurate.

2. Make your opponent run. If he just hit from the right side of the court, put your next shot to the left side. (Once in a while send it back to the same side, just to keep him guessing.)

3. After hitting a shot, get back in position. When you're in the backcourt, get back to the center of the baseline. If your net game and overhead are reasonably strong, then you can rush net. Do this only when you have hit from inside the baseline. You're not ready to come to net off of your serve or baseline shots.

4. Play your opponents weaknesses. If he has trouble with his backhand, hit your shots there. (Occassionally you may encounter someone who runs around his backhand. In this case, hit him a forehand first and then a backhand.)

Advanced Players: 1. The net is where the points are going to be won. Come to net on offensive shots. If you can't put the volley away for a winner, then make the opponent run for the shot.

2. Hit your serves to the opponents backhand. Most players can't return a serve as well on the backhand as they can on the forehand. To mix it up, send one to the forehand once in a while.

3. Your shots should have variety. Hit shots with different speeds and spins. This can destroy the timing of an opponent. Use the one - two punches of tennis. Bring him in for a drop shot. Then hit a deep lob. Make him run wide for a backhand, then move to net and angle the ball away to his forehand side. If you maneuver an opponent to your advantage you will have an easy put - away shots.

4. Concentrate harder on big points and games. Making good shots at 40-0 isn't as important as making them at deuce. Winning a game at 5-0 is as crucial as winning one at 5-5. Remember: it's possible to lose the majority of points and games in a match, and still win the match.

South Nine Remains Undefeated

By LEWIS H. FREEDMAN
Asst. Sports Editor

Newton South doesn't want any mistakes this year. Last year the Lions finished 11-3 in the Dual County League, a 79 percent winning figure, and didn't make the state tournament because Bedford and Acton-Boxboro finished 12-2.

This year the Lions have confronted the problem head on. They don't plan to lose at all.

Last week South swept past four opponents, including two shutouts, to remain unbeaten and in first place with a 6-0 record.

The Lions blanked Westwood, 8-0, and Bedford, 5-0, and eked out close wins over Lincoln-Sudbury, 6-5, and Acton-Boxboro, 2-1.

This week started on a scary note. The Lions were extended to nine innings by winless Lincoln before catcher Jon Rosenberg singled in Ned Moan with the winning run.

South opened the scoring in the first inning with a three-run outburst, but Lincoln took over in the fourth with four runs. South added single runs in the fifth and seventh innings and Lincoln registered a run in the sixth to leave the gane tied, 5-5, after regualtion.

After a scoreless eighth, Moan beat out a bunt, stole second, and went to third on a passed ball before comong home on Rosenberg's hit for a not untypical South victory.

Mike Lushan, ace sharpshooter for the basketball tam, won his first baseball game in relief of South starter Jack Ferreri in the fourth inning. Lushan didn't walk a man and fanned two.

The Lions managed just six hits, but were aided by the wildness of Lincoln hurler Don O'Malley, who walked 10 men.

Moan, two, and Steve Tresca Pete Miller, Bob D'Angelo, and Rosenberg, collected the South safeties.

Southpaw Mark Fogel earned his second straight shutout by erasing Westwood in a makeup of a rained-out game. Fogel twirled a three-hitter and fanned 10 men in a beautifully pitched game.

South supported him with a three-run first and a five-run explosion in the third inning. The first-inning outburst was highlighted by the Lions' use of their favorite play, the suicide squeeze. This time it scored two runs as Rosenberg caught the Westwood infield flatfooted.

Fogel himself led the Lion attack with two safeties and Tony Lombardo, Rosenberg, and D'Angelo contributed the others.

Blank Bedford

Jim Kavanaugh, who hurls from the other side of his body, stayed one inning ahead of Fogel in their shutout race by whitewashing Bedford, 5-0, to up his string to 15 innings on the basis of two complete games and one inning of relief.

Kavanaugh was never in trouble, as his fastball sent 13 Buccaneer batters either down swinging or caught them looking. South's diversified hitting, six different players, was supplemented by six Bedford errors.

Beford played South even for the first four innings, but South opened things up in the fifth with four runs, based particularly on clutch singles by Lombardo and Phil Kramer.

JoiningLombardo and Kramer in the hit parade were Miller, Moan, Kavanaugh and Robbie Shahon. However, Shahon's hit is probably his last until next spring. The hard-hitting junior, who hit .310 as an infield regular last year, dislocated his shoulder diving back to first on a pickoff attempt in the fourth inning.

Another Shutout

Whether Fogel took Kavanaugh's shutout personally or not is unclear, but what is clear was that he was not happy having only the second longest shutout streak on the pitching staff. So last Friday, in the Lions' fourth game of the week, he decided to do something about it.

What he did was extend his own skein to 16 innings of shutout ball and raise his season's mark to 3-0 with a five-hitter at the expense of Acton-Boxboro.

It was not, however, Fogel's best performance of te year. In fact, it was his worst. Acton broke his shoutout string in the third inning and worked him over for seven walks. But Fogel managed six strikeouts, went two-for-three at the plate, and carried off the win.

The win was managed in classic Newton South style — in other words, with both great difficulty and some tricky mirror work. Moan singled in the fourth inning and proceeded to blind the Acton infield by stealing second, third, and most infuriatingly, home plate.

The sequel to Moan's baserunning exploit came in the fifth inning. Fogel scratched out one of his two singles, went to second on a fielder's choice, stole third and was then sacrificed home.

Acton is probably still wondering what happened.

Bob D'Angelo got the only other Lion hit.

Three weeks into the season things look pretty good for South. The Lions have beaten both of last year's co-champs, remain unbeaten themselves and have displayed solid pitching, pretty decent hitting, and have managed to maintain their reputation as opportunists and garbage-collectors, to boot. This week brings another challenge. Newcomer Concord-Carlisle is somebody South hasn't faced yet, and the former Middlesex League entry has been just about keeping pace with South. The old enemies have been dispatched. A new challenger looms on the horizon.

Newton Girl Gymnasts Glitter

On Saturday, May 5 at the Weymouth South High School the New England A.A.U. Gymnastic Championships for Girls was held with a record entry of 504 girls in four age brackets—9 and under, 10-12, 13-14 and 15 and above. Each age group was divided into Novice and Elite categories of competition.

Competing in this championship was a small group of seven girls, six of whom attend the Newton Public Schools and the seventh, who is a competitor-coach, is a junior at Brandeis University.

The group was under the overall supervision of Dr. Joseph L. Massimo who, besides being the Chief Psychologist for the Newton Schools, is a member of the U.S. National Gymnastic Coaching Staff. The members of the group are: Liz Attardo, 20, Brandeis University, Julie Myers, 16, Newton High School, Gail Blauer, 15, Newton High School, Margie Magraw, 16, Newton High School (Margie is the 1973 Massachusetts High School All-Around Champion), Kathie Magraw, 14, Weeks Jr. High School, Marcie Ravech, 13, Bigelow Junior High School, and Lee Pistone, 11, Underwood Elementary School.

FIVE STATES ENTERED

Over twenty gymnastic clubs from five states were represented in the competition of which many had large entries of 30 girls of more. The performance of the Newton group, informally called the Newton Gym Club, was particularly remarkable considering the caliber of competition and the number of gymnasts in the meet. The seven girls accumulated a total of 11 first places, 3 second places, 5 third places, one fourth and one fifth place for the largest margin of victories gained by any group in the history of the championship.

Included in the first places were three All-Around titles the most cherished award in gymnastic competition. Margie Magraw won the Elite All-Around title for the 15 and above girls, Marcie Ravech captured the Novice All-Around title for the 13-14 age group, and Lee Pistone, in her first major competition took three first places and the All-Around title in the Novice 10-12 age group. The girls performance in the Floor Exercise event was outstanding with Julie Myers receiving a score of 8.0, Liz Attardo 8.1, Marcie Ravech, 8.5 (13-14 group) and the highest Floor Exercise score going to State Champion Margie Magraw of 8.8

In the 15 and above Elite group on the difficult Balance Beam event the girls made a clean sweep taking first, second and third place. (Magraw, Myers, Attardo) Gail Blauer also won second place in the Novice Balance Beam.

Many Ovations

The girls received prolonged ovations for their efforts and all eyes focused upon them during their individual performances. Miss Attardo captured the New England Side Horse Vaulting (Elite) title with a score of 8.6. In addition to the places mentioned above Miss Kathie Magraw placed fifth in the Novice All-Around and Miss Attardo placed fourth in the Elite All-Around. For the girls this was indeed a fantastic team and individual effort.

During the spring and summer the girls will continue to train for next season in order to perfect their skills. For petite 11 year old Lee Pistone work will increase as she is currently preparing to enter the District Championship of the Junior Olympics scheduled for May 26 and sponsored by the Chevrolet Division of G.M. If Lee is successful in this competition she will move on to the Northeast Regional Championship and perhaps the Nationals in August. Some of the girls have competed in other meets during the late part of the gymnastic season. Marcie Ravech won the Balance Beam event and was second in Floor Exercise at the Connecticut Open Meet held in New Canaan in March.

Margie Magraw was a member of a team representing the United States which met and defeated the Junior National Team from Canada in April. Liz Attardo competed in the Eastern Collegiate Championships held in March. Both Marcie Ravech and Kathie Magraw competed in the Junior High State Championship meet held in April at Boston State College placing first in their events. Newton can be proud of these young people and the results of their dedication and hard work.

The scoreboard from the New England Championships:

Margie Magraw—Two firsts and One Third.

Marcie Ravech—Three firsts and One Second.

Julie Myers—One Second, two Thirds.

Lee Pistone—Four firsts.

Liz Attardo—Two firsts, two Thirds, and One Fourth.

Kathie Magraw—One fifth.

Gail Blauer—One second.

South Golfers On Top

Newton South High's defending Dual County League golf champions ripped past three opponents last week to preserve their unbeaten slate and raise their winning streak to five straight.

The golfers mashed Lincoln-Sudbyry, 8-1, and outplayed Acton-Boxboro, 5½-3½ and Bedford, 6-3.

Steve Owens, who shot a low round 37, and John Whelan teamed for three points to spark the win against Lincoln. Brian Corcoran, paired with Jay McCory, and Pete Sherman and Steve Hoffman nearly matched their contribution by adding two-and-one-half points each to the final total.

Coach Chandler Phinney juggled his pairings a little for the Acton match and the new team of Corcoran and Hoffman came through for three points in the decisive match. Corcoran, and Owens, who again played with Whelan, shot low scores of 40. The Owens-Whelan team scored one-and-one half points and Sherman and McCory came through with one point.

Corcoran and Hoffman showed their appreciation for the new arrangement by calling up three more points in the win over Bedford, as Owens and Whelan struggled to come through with one point. Sherman and McCory, though, improved to a contribution of two points.

The golfers have matches with Concord-Carlisle, Wayland, and Maynard on the regular schedule this week and still have rainouts with Weston and Westwood floating around so this could be a very tough week.

Wayland, the only team to defeat the Lions last year, may be South's toughest foe of the season.

South Track Team Disappoints

It's been a straight downhill slide for the Newton South track team. Every time the trackmen step on the track they lose by a bigger margin.

Last week the Lions dropped three meets, 77-54 to Westwood, 93-38 to Weston, and 104-27 to Acton-Boxboro, to fall to 0-4 on the year.

The Westwood meet was a makeup of a meet rained out on April 26. South made a game try but Westwood's superior strength in the running events and overall depth proved the difference.

Barry Kaplain, whose consistent double victories during the indoor campaign kept the Lions from being embarrassed many times, captured three events to account for 15 of his team's points.

Kaplan won the high hurdles and low hurdles in the identical time of 17.3 and hurled the shotput 41-10.

Al Podulfy, 19-½ in the long jump, Peter Kotzen, 38-4 in the triple jump, Scott Baron, 24.3 in the 220, and the 880 relay team, each scored five-points victories.

Baron, 100, John Goodman, 880, Rich McMahon, mile, and Dave Lein, two-mile, scored three points apiece with second-place finishes.

John Mason, 440, Dave Robinson, mile, Podufly, high jump, Seth Averbach, long jump, Bruce King, pole vault, and Jon Bennett, two-mile, each contributed single points with thirds.

The highlight of the meet, though, was an exceptionall effort by Westwood's distance ace Jim Kelly. Kelly turned in a fantastic 4:24.8 timing in the mile run.

Weston did a more serious job on the Lions, limiting them to three wins.

Baron took the 100-yard dash in 10.9, Podufly copped the long jump at 18-10 ¾, and King cleared 10 feet in the pole vault in his best effort of the year.

Weston just ran all over South in the running events. Baron was second in the 220, McMahon was third in the half-mile, Lein was second in the two-mile and Kaplan got a piece of second along with Podufly in the low hurdles and took third in the high hurdles and that was all.

Pete Maples, second in the long jump, Kaplan, second in the shot, Podufly, third in the high jump, and Dave Hahn, second, and Chuck Bond, third, in the discus, rounded out the South scoring.

If Weston did a job on the Lions then Acton-Boxboro annihilated them. Acton swept the discus, 440, shot, high jump, and pole vault, for a good start of 45-0, and the Lions managed just one first outside of those events.

Podufly won the long jump with one of his shortest recent jumps, 17-11 ¾, and that was the only South five-pointer.

The Lions did score six thirds, though, with Kaplan, high and low hurdles, and Baron, 100 and 220-yard dash, leading the way, Lein, two-mile, and Goodman, 880, notched the other ones.

Chris Capeless, mile, McMahon, 880, Podufly, low hurdles, and Mason, triple jump, each added one point with third-place finishes.

The Lions face Wayland and Concord-Carlisle this week.

South Tennis

Win 4 In Row

By LEWIS H. FREEDMAN
Asst. Sports Editor

Well, things finally started to sort themselves out for the Newton South tennis team.

After getting buried by Newton High and Weston in their first two matches as rude evidence that they are not as good as they usually are, the Lions beat four opponents, last week, and recorded three shutouts to restore some of their badly bruised pride.

The netmen's first win of the season was a 3-2 squeaker over Lincoln-Sudbury, and it was a hardfought triumph, as the old rivals staged a battle reminiscent of previous days when both were state powerhouses.

In the end South utilized strong singles performances by Umberto Fugundes, Bill Karol, and Roger Gordon, to offset LS' equally potent doubles tandems. Dave Fisher and Ben Cohen, and Jeff Levin and Peter Schwartz, took their lumps from Lincoln's doubles teams.

Westwood Falls

South looked like South of old in its next match., dismembering Westwood, 5-0 without dropping a set.

Fugundes, 6-1, 6-2, Karol, 6-0, 6-0, Gordon 6-4, 6-2 took care of the three singles spots, and Cohen-Fisher, 6-4, 6-2, and Levin and Mike Sklar, 6-2, 6-3, manned the doubles as Westwood was never really in any match-up.

Blank Bedford

For their next trick the Lions destroyed Bedford by the standard 5-0 tally.

Fugundes, 6-1, 6-4, Karol, 6-3 6-4, and Gordon, 6-1, 6-1, dominated the singles matches, and Fisher and Cohen, 6-3, 6-1, and Levin and Sklar, 6-3, 6-2 wiped out Bedford's doubles crews.

The Acton match was an instant replay except for the fact that Schwartz reappeared in the lineup replacing Sklar. But the rest of the front line was the same and the group destroyed AB.

South coach Bob Franke reacted to the devastasting wins with his usual low-key manner.

"Some of those clubs were not awfully good," he said, "but a win is a win." They were especially needed after the Lions' discouraging start.

A little bit into the season and with his charges carrying a 4-2 mark, Franke is a bit more optimistic about their chances of moving into a post-season tournament than he was before the campaign started.

"I think we'll make it now," he said. "They take at least two or three teams from the Dual County League because it's a good league, so I think we'll make it."

Of Weston, a team which blasted his and did a similar job on powerful Newton High, Franke said simply, "They have good balance.

"I think Needham or Lexington could take their measure, though," he added. "Newton has Joe Mitchell back now and it might be different next time they play."

Outside of Weston Franke views Wayland as South's biggest threat in the Dual County League.

"From what I've heard around the league," he said, "they're tough, but we'll find out this week." The Lions play Wayland on back-to-back dates this week, as well as Concord-Carlisle.

South Lacrosse

The event in history it most resembled was the siege of Leningrad. Tie that in a little with the bombing of London, and you can guess how the Newton South Lacrosse team feels after last week's activity.

The Lions were wrecked by Needham, 15-1, to start things off, followed that by getting creamed by Concord-Carlisle, 9-1, and rounded out the week by getting flattened, 8-2 by Weymouth North.

Needham tallied five goals in the first quarter, one in the second, three in the third, and then erupted for six more in the fourth to thoroughly disconcert South goalie Ray McKinney.

South's limited response to the onslaught was a single score by Alan Reef in the first stanza. Paul Martin accounted for four Needham goals.

Coach Tom Steeves felt McKinney had seen enough of life and decided to give him a breather versus Concord. Scott Groper was tossed into the breach and was quickly bombarded by a similar 5-1 opening spurt.

Concord, unlike Needham, tapered off somewhat after the beginning and settled down with one goal in the second and fourth quarters and two in the third. John O'Connell matched Martin's effort with four scores.

The only Lion tally was again recorded by Reef.

Things were only slightly better against Weymouth North. The defense improved to the point of holding the hosts to just eight scores, and the offense improved by one. Mike McDonald and Jim Paglia were the mini-heroes for South.

Students Plan Arts Festival

Meadowbrook Jr. High is currently planning a Creative Arts Festival to be held on two evenings, May 15 and 16 at 7:30 p.m.

This festival is the culmination of a year's work in many areas. Teachers and students alike have worked hard and hope to make this a successful ending to the school year.

The program for the first evening includes an art exhibit, dance programs, with orchestra participation and climaxed by a scene from "Midsummer Night's Dream." Also included in the first evening will be refreshments and a brief business meeting.

The second evening will again feature an art exhibit followed by a combination of poetry and play reading in a coffee house atmosphere. There will be a continuous film festival and a gymnastics demonstration as well.

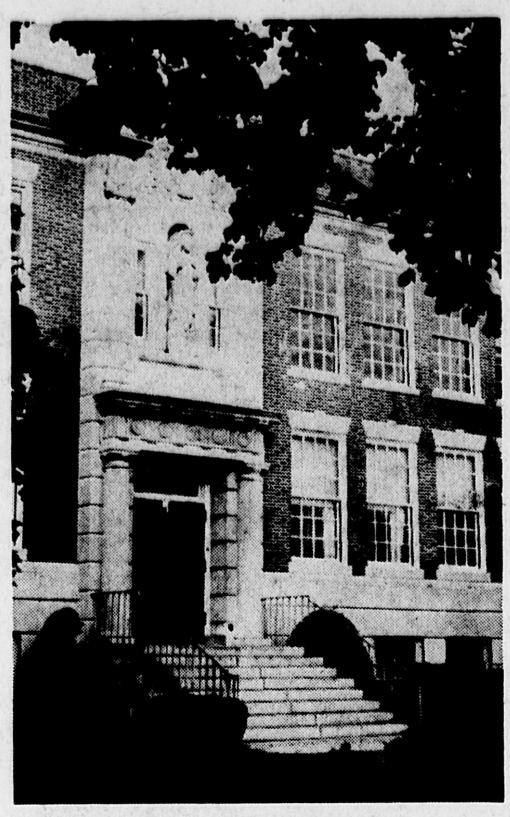
throughout Centennial activities Sunday.

The question of how much money it would cost to acquire the land also still remains up in the air.

Estimates have ranged from $20,000 to $200,000. Cohen paid $20,000 for the land when he originally purchased it, but predicted it would be appraised at a much higher figure now.

Leaders in the Save the Vale group have countered with estimates closer to the original purchase price.



Sacred Heart School

Sacred Heart School Closes Doors In June

Sacred Heart School in Newton Centre will close its doors in June after 50 years of teaching.

Most of the 175 students currently enrolled in the grade school will be attending the new Newton Catholic School, to be located in what is now Our Lady Help of Christians School.

About 750 students from four Newton parishes and nearby communities are expected to attend the new school.

A spokesman for Sacred Heart said a portion of the Sacred Heart School will continue to be used for religious education on a part-time basis.

The remaining portion of the building, which includes in its entirety 32,000 square feet of floor space in 15 classrooms, a library, offices, cafeteria and an auditorum, will be available for new uses.

In recent years, the school's PTA has worked on redecorating and modernizing the interior of the building.

Any organizations that might be interested in using any of the facilities can contact Paul Waters at 244-9855. He is the chairman of Sacred Heart's school use committee.

Increase-

A spokesman for the mayor said Tuesday a letter is being prepared for submission to the Board of Aldermen well in advance of the May 21 board meeting, requesting a yet undetermined amount of money to be transferred out of surplus.

In this mayoral election year, politics may be expected to cause considerable debate on the amount to be transferred. Tose opposed to the mayor would, by curtailing the amount, try to limit the success of the mayor in keeping the tax rate down, while those supporting the mayor might want as much transferred as possible in order to prevent a large increase in the tax rate.

Despite constant threatening clouds and an occasional downpour, the thousands that came, stayed.

At 2 p.m. they witnessed the placement of historical objects in the Time Capsule to be buried at the conclusion of the Centennial Celebration, and the planting of the Centennial Tree.

An interfaith religious ceremony, planned by the Newton Clergy Association headed by Msgr. William Granville of Sacred Heart Church, Newton Centre, followed in the Homer Street parking area of the City Hall.

More than five hundred participated in the ecumenical service which featured choral groups and religious leaders from the three major faiths.

The congregation joined in folk singing and read from a special text which stressed the brotherhood of the Centennial observance.

Later, after dark, more than six hundred citizens received instruction in folk and square dancing. The Newton Squares, a group dedicated to preserving square dancing and formed by the city's Recreation Department, performed in a special demonstration.

Again, as she headed down Walnut Street after the day's activities, Mrs. Caruso seemed to speak for everyone when she said, "They should have 'fairs' like this more often."

Family Counseling Seeks Women's Aid

Family Counseling Service (Region West) is offering an opportunity to women living in Newton to assist two-year-old children on the way to educational success through participating as a volunteer in its renowned Toy Demonstrator Program.

Strengthening the mother's role as the first teacher is the basic concept of the program. A volunteer called the Toy Demonstrator visits the home twice a week bringing toys and books, and she demonstrates to the mother ways to stimulate her child's growing intelligence. This helps the child toward school success and hopefully prevents a cycle of poor start, failure and eventual dropout.

Because a number of these children will be from the Puerto Rican and the French Canadian families in the Newton area, volunteers proficient enough to communicate in either French or Spanish would be most welcome, though this is not a requirement.

A meeting for prospective volunteers will be held at Family Counseling Service, 74 Walnut Park, Newton, on Monday, May 21 at 9 a.m. For further information, call 527-7680.

Red Cross Director To Speak At Meeting

Nelson Vogelsohn, administrative director of the Massachusetts Red Cross Blood Program, will be the guest speaker at the 55th annual meeting and dinner of the Newton Chapter, American National Red Cross on May 24, at the Marriott Motor Hotel.

Vogelsohn began his career with the Red Cross in 1945 as an assistant field director in Hawaii and Okinawa, and has served in a variety of positions throughout the country until coming to Massachusetts in 1968 from New York.

With almost daily changes in the methods of blood banking, Vogelsohn will direct his comments to a subject entitled "Prosperity Is Not Enough".

Members and friends of the chapter are invited to attend for the purpose of elections, reports, and such other business as may properly come before this meeting. For further information call 527-6000.

The Mormon Church reports it has 17,000 volunteer missionaries serving throughout the world.

Animal-

this claim is again backed up by Mrs. Ryan.

When reached by telephone, Mrs. Marini would not answer questions, but merely stated she was "too busy."

"I have to bring my little girl to the hospital," was the only comment from Mrs. Marini.

In a three-page letter to Police Chief William F. Quinn, Mayor Theodore D. Mann and the Board of Aldermen, Recinos, protesting the killing, asked "that appropriate action be taken to insure that indiscriminate use of a firearm by Officer Flemming or any other member of the Police Department never again occurs in the suburban neighborhoods of Newton."

Recinos, in the letter, admitted that "Strider" had left his property and "by definition was being a 'nuisance'." He also wrote of his concern over the fact that his dog may have frightened the Marini girl.

What Recinos particularly objected to in his letter to city officials was the fact that Flemming "did not have the equipment on his person to deal with the dog."

"His resolution of the problem was to draw his revolver and shoot the dog dead. I find this untenable," wrote Recinos.

Mrs. Ryan also indicated that she and her husband, who witnessed the shooting from the sidewalk in front of their home, were also quite upset with the method used by Flemming to subdue the dog.

"I don't think dog catchers should carry guns," said Mrs. Ryan.

Evidently there were several youngsters in the vicinity at the time of the shooting and Recinos stated in his letter that "neighbors have expressed concern to me that the use of a gun in such a situation could have been disastrous."

Recinos also offered several alternatives to Officer Flemming's actions and insists that "the intensity of "Strider's" aggressiveness was directly proportional to Officer Flemming's distance from my front porch."

"Walking the 40 feet to his truck was certainly an alternative," Recinos wrote.

He also told the police chief, mayor and aldermen that "Officer Flemming overreacted in the performance of his duties, that his response was emotional without a rational appraisal of his alternatives, and that the use of a firearm was unjustifiable."

The young Harvard student concluded his written remarks by asking the Chief of Police for "a prompt response to this letter informing me of what action you intend to pursue in this matter, specifically regarding administrative action toward Officer T. F. Flemming and the practice of carrying sidearms by Animal Control Officers."

Open House By Nursing Homes May 13-20

Open House has been planned by many of the Nursing Homes during the week of May 13-20, the official Nursing Home Week as proclaimed by Governor Sargent.

Governor Francis W. Sargent has proclaimed the week of May 13-20 as Massachusetts Nursing Home Week and is urging all citizens of the Commonwealth to visit nursing home patients during the observance.

Mrs. Chrles J. Kelley, president of the Massachusetts Federation of Nursing Homes, says the purpose of this annual observance of Massachusetts Nursing Home Week, which begins on Mother's Day, is to honor the many residents and patients in long-term health care facilities in Massachusetts and to recognize the valuable service these facilities perform for the community.

Massachusetts Nursing Home Week, sponsored by the American Nursing Home Association on the national level, is designed to focus attention on the needs of the aged and infirm and the quality of care being offered by the nursing home profession in Massachusetts.

"The theme for this year — as it was last year — is WE CARE," Mr. Kelley said. "We believe it is symbolic of the dediction and concern of the modern nursing home professionals who are members of the Massachusetts Federation of Nursing Homes.

Most of the Facilities in the MFNH will be conducting various activities, including open houses, and the public is invited to participate in this salute to our senior citizens, Mr. Kelley said.

"These activities are designed to arouse community awareness of the needs of the patients and residents of long-term health care facilities and to provide members of the community with an opportunity to acquaint themselves with the range of services provided by quality nursing homes in Massachusetts," he explained.

A traditional feature of the observance has been the presentation of the MFNH Better Life Awards to citizens and groups who "have demonstrated outstanding service through unselfish and effective efforts that have resulted in lasting contributions to the improved institutional health care of the aged in Massachusetts.

The Massachusetts Federation of Nursing Homes, one of 48 state associations affiliated with the American Nursing Home Association, represents both proprietary and non-proprietary nursing homes.

The American Nursing Home Association has prepared a guide for selecting a nursing home, "Thinking About A Nursing Home?" which may be obtained free by writing: American Nursing Home Association, 1200 Fifteenth Street N.W., Washington, D.C. 20005.

Registry Warns of Dangers of Minibikes

"Many young children may be killed unless they and their parents recognize the dangers involved in the use of minibikes," Registrar David J. Lucey said today. "The first thing which parents and children should realize is that they are not toys!" he said.

To be operated on the road, a minibike meeting Registry of Motor Vehicles equipment requirements may be registered as a motorcycle and the operator must have a valid motorcycle license and wear protective headgear.

The requirements include:

1. An approved braking system capable of stopping withing 30 feet from a speed of 20 mph.

2. SAE approved tail light, stop light, headlamp and plate light.

3. A rear view mirror, horn, lock and key, and muffler.

4. Fenders must be in place and be adequate to prevent spray from wheels, and the hot exhaust system components which could contact the operator must be suitable caged or screened.

5. Be equipped with a device to permit front and rear directional signals to flash simultaneously when the vehicle is disabled or stopped for an emergency.

If the minibike does not meet Registry equipment requirements, it must be registered as a recreation vehicle with the Division of Marine and Recreational Vehicles.

Director Alfred Nataloni says that recreation of an adult. He says that operators 14 to 16½ years of age can operate a minibike, but must not cross a highway. The law also states that after age 16½, a driver, after stopping, may cross his minibike on a public way as directly as possible providing it is safe to do so and he yields to all automobile traffic (except that he may not cross on a limited access highway). Both the driver and passenger of any minibike must wear approved protective headgear.

Recreation minibikes should never be used on streets, sidewalks or on any public throughfare. They may be driven only in supervised areas such as grass or dirt tracks or special trails. On private property, operators must have permission form the owner. On public property, such as a park or forest preserve, permission should be obtained from the authority in charge.

It is expected that there will be 75,000 minibike injuries in the US this year, many of which will be fatal.

May 15 Is Deadline To Get Your Sticker

Just a week remains for owners of motor vehicles and trailers registered in Massachusetts and operated at any time from April 1 to May 15 to obtain the blue official inspection sticker.

There are 4200 official stations doing inspections through the State. The fee for inspection alone of a motor vehicle is still $1.00 and for trailer inspection alone, the fee is 50 cents. The registration certificate must be presented for inspection and the vehicle identification number on it must match the one attached to the vehicle.

Vehicles not passing inspection are marked with a rejection sticker. Registry Supervisor of Vehicle Inspection, Charles V. Mulhern, says that rejection vehicles should be repaired immediately at a garage of the owner's choice and that the vehicle may then be re-inspected at the station which issued the rejection sticker at no additional charge.

Mulhern says that repair parts may be getting scarce and advises that inspection be made as soon as possible to avoid being stuck without a sticker - which means the vehicle cannot be on the road after May 15.

Newton-Waltham Bank Introduces Cash Reserve

The Newton-Waltham Bank and Trust Company introduced Cash Reserve, the newest feature of the Bank's Free Checking Plus service, on May 1, 1973, Giles E. Mosher, Jr., President, has announced.

The new Cash Reserve feature offers qualified customers a personal credit line of up to $5000, which may be used just by writing a regular check. Cash Reserve will be available in conjunction with Free Checking Plus and will enable customers to write checks for more than their checking account balance, or transfer funds directly from Cash Reserve to Checking.

There will also be two repayment options; customers may choose automatic monthly transfers from Checking or monthly billing from the Bank. Cash Reserve will enable customers to avoid overdraft charges and costs nothing until used.

"We are continually looking for new ways to improve our already very successful Free Checking Plus account," Mr. Mosher said, "and research has indicated that customers would like to have the Cash Reserve option available to them."

Free Checking Plus is a single-statement account comprising free checking, savings and other services in one package. Since its introduction last year, Free Checking Plus has become the Bank's most popular service.

VA Newsletter

The Veterans Administration, mindful of the spring home - buying season, cautions veterans, with thoughts of selling homes purchased with G. I. home loans, to get "releases of liability" from the VA if the loan is assumed by the buyer.

Loan guaranty officials explained that unless a veteran asks for and receives a "release from liability" from the VA office which guaranteed his home loan, he will be liable for payment in the event of default by the purchaser.

Getting a "release from further liability" is simple, officials noted, provided certain conditions are met:

. The veteran's loan must be current.

. The purchaser must agree to assume the veteran's liabilities.

. The prospective purchaser must be a good credit risk.

. Income must be sufficient to cover payments on G. I. loan.

It was pointed out, however, that a "release of liability" does not automatically restore G. I. loan entitlement the veteran used to purchase the home he sold.

VA may restore entitlement only under certain conditions - mostly those which the agency considers "compelling reasons" for disposing of the property.

At any rate, officials urged veterans who plan to sell G. I. homes (subject to the veterans' mortgage) to apply for a "release" from the VA office which guaranteed their loans before finalizing sales.

—o—

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Veterans and their families are asking thousands of questions concerning the benefits their Government provides for them through the Veterans Administration. Below are some representative queries. Additional information may be obtained at any VA office.)

Q — I want to start college in the fall, but I have limited funds and I'm told it takes two or three months after I start to get my GI allowance. Does VA have a loan fund to help me?

A — Under recent legislation passed by Congress, VA can advance (effective August 1973) as much as two months allowance to veterans who apply to VA prior to registration at school. A check for the first and second months of school can be waiting for him when he registers for classes.

Q — I am a widow who received dependence and indemnity compensation payments for a short time based on the death of my first husband who was a veteran. After his death, I remarried, and now my second husband has died. May I claim benefits on my first husband's service again?

A — Yes, upon submission of application and proof of death of your second husband, VA benefits will be restored.

Q — Please clear up something for me. Is it true that 2.3 million servicemen have served in Vietnam?

A — On June 30, 1972, approximately 2.3 million veterans had served in Southeast Asia. This includes not only Vietnam, but Thailand, Laos, Cambodia, etc.

Book Review

GROW IT! BY RICHARD W. LANGER FLARE-AVON. BY ED HARDY

Are you a suburbanite with a hankering to get your hands in the soil, or a vegetable grower who wants to expand? Richard Langer's highly readable book "Grow It!" is for all of you.

As Mr. Langer states in the introduction, never has the interest in farming been so great and the information about farming so small. This would seem strange to anyone raised in a house where Farm Journal was the only reading, yet as a first-time vegetable planter myself three years ago, I found planting seeds and growing vegetables not only befuddling but downright mystifying. Certainly "Grow It!" would have been a great help then and it is now.

"Grow It!" covers a tremendous range of topics and how-to's. Particularly informative was the recipe for making cheese from either goats or cows milk. In addition to the recipe for cheese are recipes for yogurt, butter, smoked meat, sausages, kraut, and the famous Southern delight – cracklings.

The various chapters on livestock are perhaps the most informative. Goats, pigs and chickens are covered in separate chapters. Langer quickly dispells any myths, and procees to lead you through the various breeds of each animal to the ones most appropriate for the small farmer. How to feed, shelter, bring to production, and slaughter each animal is told in a concise and easily understood way.

Other chapters on fruits, nuts, grains, vegetables, composting and fertilizing make "Grow It!" a book to have on your shelf.

Women Given New Horizons

For area women who wish to expand their horizons, three unusual new programs will be added to the growing list of courses being offered through the Center for Continuing Studies at Newton College on Centre St., Newton.

The new programs, which will begin in September and which may be taken for college credits, will focus on "Women in Political and Governmental Careers," "Bilingual-Bicultural Education," and "Special Arts." Inquiries may be directed by phone or mail to Mrs. Margaret Dever, director of Continuing Studies at Newton College.

The study-internship program titled "Women in Political and Governmental Careers" is designed to encourage and educate women in the intricacies and realities of the political world and to explore job possibilities, both appointive and elective, at local, state and national levels, and in all three branches of government.

The program will be divided into three trimesters. First, a series of weekly academic seminars will meet for ten weeks during the fall. These seminars will focus on the political processes and on metropolitan problems.

The second trimester will be devoted to carefully chosen four-month internships in various government agencies or with state legislators. The seminars will commence again in April for a group evaluation of field work experiences and for presentation of written case studies on selected urban problems.

The program will be directed by Mrs. Betty Taymor. Mrs. Taymor is a former Democratic National Committeewoman, an instructor in the Master of Urban Affairs Program, Boston University, and a member of the United States National Commission for UNESCO.

The "Bilingual-Bicultural Education Program" will include four different courses from which participants may make selections. The program is aimed at training specialists in the growing field of transitional bilingual education.

Courses in the program include basic language methods and materials in bilingual programs, advanced oral and written Spanish, Latin American civilization and culture, introduction to linguistics, and teaching English as a second language and bilingual classes.

The "Special Arts Program," which will be the third of the new offerings, will include three courses a semester from which selections may be made. Courses for the first semester include foundations of studio art — drawing, introduction to two-dimensional design, and filmmaking. Courses to be offered February through May include introduction to three-dimensional design, foundations of studio art — painting, and filmmaking.

The Continuing Education Program at Newton College offers a wide variety of options for women of any age and from a variety of academic and professional backgrounds. The college offers an opportunity for interested women to resume study on a full-time or a part-time basis either in degree or non-degree programs. In addition, special seminars and a program incorporating volunteer work in the Newton Public Schools are included in the offerings of the Center for Continuing Studies.

How do you know if your spark plugs are worn? First, you remove them, and then examine the electrode. The curved piece is a side electrode. If it is badly eaten away on the underside, there is definite evidence of wear. The center electrode is the straight section which rises to meet the side electrode. If the center electrode is burned so that it cannot be filed flat on top, it's time for a replacement!

Come to NEWTON AUTO SUPPLY, 438 Lexington St., 969-1191 if your spark plugs need replacing. We not only carry small items such as these but we also carry alternators, generators, starters, carburetors and a complete line of Delco Pleasurizer shock absorbers. Hours: 8-6 Mon. - Fri., 8-4 Sat.

HELPFUL HINT: Be sure to inspect spark plugs every ten thousand miles.

The Pacific yellowtail is found in Pacific waters from Monterey, California, south. It is plentiful off the coast of San Diego. The color is light blue or greenish on the back and upper sides and the lower parts are silvery. A yellow band runs from the back of the eye to the tail. It weighs on the average of twenty pounds. The amberjack, as it is also called, is a most exciting fish to catch and may grow as large as eighty pounds — another large fish for all you trophy hunters!

"HAVE WE NOT ALL ONE FATHER? HATH NOT ONE God CREATED US?" Malachi 2:10

A lot of people acknowledge God as Father. But do they really understand the man He made?

As you get a deeper understanding of the Bible, the spiritual nature of man and of all creation appears. Then Christian unity and the brotherhood of man appear in your life, too.

Selections from the Bible and Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures by Mary Baker Eddy, to be read in our church service this Sunday, will help you understand the Bible's message of brotherly love in a new light.

We'd love to welcome you.

Summit Gift Galleries Opens Dedham Showroom

Summit Gift Galleries, a store-chain headquartered in Chelmsford, officially opened its new Dedham catalogue showroom with a ribbon-cutting ceremony last Thursday morning.

The new store, which features shopping by both catalogue and cash-and-carry, is located at the corner of Elm Street and Providence Highway (Rte. 1), close to Rte. 128 on the site of the old First National Store.

Summit sent out hundreds of catalogues throughout the Greater Boston area in advance preparation of the grand opening of the local store, according to Ansel H. Baker, store manager. The pamphlets contain lists of 7,000 items which customers may choose from when shopping at Summit Galleries.

Baker explained that most of these goods can be obtained "within ten days to two weeks," if ordered from Dedham. "Some items take longer, because we have to order from the manufacturer."

Hundreds of items may be also purchased at low prices at the Dedham showroom itself.

Summit offers a wide range of goods, including a large room chocked with stereo and phonograph equipment; a sizeable camera counter and tablefuls of jewelry, accessories, and kitchen appliances.

A tag attached to each item states the suggested retail value and Summit's actual price, usually about a one-third markdown.

Stacks of catalogues greet the customer or browser at the entrance of the new showroom. Small clipboards with pencils and order forms are available too, to facilitate processing and cash-and-carry purchases.

People can buy merchandise "through the catalogue or browse the items and buy at the store," stated Baker. He added that his sales force is on hand to assist customers unfamiliar with the checkout procedures, but feels that many buyers will soon be pacing the aisles with the clipboards unassisted.

A huge inventory sheet fills one of the walls near the entranceway, which clerks may quickly scan to ascertain an item's availability. If it is in storage, the customer will have it in five minutes.

Summit's first official customer in Dedham was Mrs. Cynthia A. Mitchell of 97 Spring Lane, Canton, who learned of the store in two ways: "I was riding by yesterday (May 2) and saw the sign, and I also got the catalogue in the mail."

No Mandatory Controls During Collective Bargaining Season

The pace of inflation and the outcome of the major wage negotiations in the months ahead will depend upon the Administration's success in restraining government spending and consumer demand and fostering moderation in wage bargaining.

This is the opinion expressed by Dr. James B. Thornblade, economist at The First National Bank of Boston, in the spring edition of the bank's New England Report.

Thornblade, an economist with the staff of the Pay Board in Washington during 1972, examines the effectiveness of the three phases of the mandatory peacetime wage-price controls since 1971, with particular attention to the relaxation of the strict controls of Phase II.

According to Thornblade, there is uneasiness about the effect of eliminating all mandatory controls even on large units. "As things now stand, there will be no mandatory control program during a heavy collective bargaining season which affects 4½ million workers in major industries, nearly twice as many workers as covered in contracts negotiated last year."

However, in tracing the history of the controls, Thornblade stresses that recent economic trends make strict controls less effective.

Where at the beginning of Phase I, "the country was deeply troubled by persistent inflation, simultaneous with high unemployment. . . the economy now is moving rapidly toward a fuller utilization of capacity in a wide range of industries with growing shortages developing in the capital goods sectors," Thornblade observes.

"There has been a considerable amount of talk about the need to continue controls because of inflation that would be generated by these shortages. Yet most economists argue - and we agree - that controls are only effective in dealing with cost-push inflation such as developed in 1970 and 1971 during a period of slack demand," the economist states. "If the cause of inflation is excess demand, then the solution is to restrain demand and increase supply through the long-term growth of capaicty.

"If indeed the economy moves very rapidly in the next few months to full capacity operation, then even a switch back to strict mandatory controls would not restrain inflation. Monetary and fiscal restraint is the appropriate medicine. But despite growing demand pressure, the pace of inflation can be held significantly below the high rate of 1969 to 1971, if the Administration exerts decisive leadership in Phase III to foster a continuing attitude of cooperation and moderation."

Describing "some reasons to hope for restraint," Thornblade looks for strong leadership from the new director of the Cost of Living Council, John Dunlop, "a pragmatic and experienced negotiator, who was able to improve and stabilize conditions in the turbulent construction industry." Another hopeful sign is the recently negotiated railroad contract which "sets a major precedent for negotiating moderate wage demands on schedule without threat of strike."

Thornblade also cites "the Administration's strategy to control inflation through restraint of government spending, promotion of increased supplies from farms, sales of industrial commodities from government stockpiles, and further opening of United States markets to imports of meat and lumber."

Purity Supreme Sets up "Hotline"

Purity Supreme Supermarkets, just as any other large retail business, suffers millions of dollars in losses each year through internal pilferage, customer shoplifting, supplier dishonesty, collusion and even through carelessness. The firm has pledged to do everything possible to stop these losses.

Therefore effective at once, Purity Supreme has put into operation a telephone installation known as "HOTLINE." This line may be used confidentially by a vendor or company employee to report a suspected dishonesty related to the business.

The telephone number is (area code 617) 667)5538.

It is not necessary for a person to identify himself. However, if a person does give identification, he will be protected. Callers are asked to give as much information as possible in order to facilitate the investigation.

Losses through dishonesty benefit a few at the expense of all. By eliminating dishonesty, Purity Supreme will be able to operate more efficiently and economically and the customer will ultimately benefit.

PREDICTING DISEASE

Medical researchers are helping people avoid premature death or disability. By advance predictions of these possibilities.

One blood serum test, for example, can now help predict even in infancy which rare individuals run a very high risk of developing emphysema later in life. The test — developed by Dr. Jack Liebman at the University of California — can uncover the predisposition to the disease as many as 40 or 50 years before any symptoms would appear.

The test detects a genetic factor, a deficiency in the blood, which makes it far more likely that the person will develop emphysema. There is no known cure for emphysema, although doctors can prescribe ways to help patients live easier with the severe lung disease. Preventing the disease is of major importance.

Emphysema is the fastest growing cause of death in the U. S. today. The major cause is years of heavy cigarette smoking. For people who have the genetic deficiency, which is actually a tiny percentage of emphysema patients, the risk is frighteningly high that they will develop the disease if they smoke.

Other new tests can spot diseases in the early stages. Special bicycle tests have detected coronary artery disease before any symptoms were obvious in routine physical exams.

And infrared photography—which can measure how fast a patient's forehead returns to normal temperature after it has been cooled first—is being used to find out if key arteries to the brain have become narrowed, thus predisposing the person to stroke. Cigarette smoking constricts blood vessels.

Quitting smoking is one of the first priorities for patients with early symptoms of lung and heart disease. Even one puff on a cigarrette seriously disrupts the flow of blood and air through the lungs and heart.

To find out more about smoking and disease, contact the Boston Tuberculosis and Respiratory Disease Association. It's a matter of life and breath.

Korea Veterans To Be Honored; Names Sought

The Republic of Korea is seeking names of American military veterans who served in Korea since August, 1945, to thank them for helping Korea gain its freedom.

Korea veterans are asked to send their name and current address, dates of service in Korea, military unit and rank to Korean Light, Inc., P. O. Box 36, Santa Barbara, Calif. 093102.

They will receive a personalized letter of thanks from the Korean government as part of Korea's commemoration of the 20th anniversary of the armistice between the Republic of Korea and Communist North Korea this July.

Peter Kang, executive vice president of Korean Light, Inc., said his nonprofit foundation is coordinating the nationwide search for the Korean veterans.

"More than five million Americans served in Korea over the past 25 years," Kang said. "The Korean government is anxious to express its gratitude to those who helped Korea gain its freedom."

Kang said the Republic of Korea, in addition to the letter of thanks, would provide the Korea veterans with information on the remarkable progress made in that country over the past 20 years.

Special low cost group tours to the Republic of Korea are being arranged for veterans and their families who wish to visit Korea, Kang said.

Mom deserves to be pampered on Mothers Day and that should include dining out with the family. There are many excellent restaurants within the area serving the finest cuisine, one of which (we're sure) features her favorite meal.

Amaru's of Dedham offers a complete Mother's Day menu including a salad bar and sweet table. Amaru's will also give you free a 5 x 7 color family portrait as a remembrance of the day you catered to Mom.

The Beef & Surf, located on Rt 1 in the Holiday Inn, Dedham, is now taking reservations for the big day with sittings at 12 noon, 2, 4, and 6 p.m. A special children's menu and the famous salad bar will be highlighted on Mother's Day.

The Harp & Bard in Norwood will feature entertainment throughout the day and evening along with a complete bill of fare for all members of the family.

A complimentary carnation will be given to Mother at Rossi's Restaurant in Dedham this Sunday. Rossi's will be serving from noon 'til midnite allowing you plenty of time to get Mom out of the house and away from her daily chores.

The Red Snapper, located on Rt. 1 in Foxboro, offers Prime Beef, Long Island Duckling, steaks and seafood specials as well as a special children's menu. The Snapper will be open from 12 noon to 10 p.m. for Mother's Day Dining.

The new Sorrento II, located on Rt. 1 in South Walpole, says "Mother Your Mother on Mother's Day" and the Sorrento is going all out to help you do just that.

The Italian Kitchen, Dedham, is featuring (in addition to its fine selection of Italian Specialties) sirloin steak and baked stuffed jumbo shrimp along with a children's menu for the not so hearty eaters.

"Mother's expecting!" is the headline of the Marriott Motor Hotel . . . she's expecting to be pampered on Mother's day they go on . . . and the Marriott is going all out to cater to Mom and her family on Sunday.

Gagliard's Restaurant in Dedham offers both Italian and American specialties, and Mary Hartigan's, also Dedham, offers a complete menu from soup to nuts for Mom and special children's plates for the little ones. The Village Inn in Norwood offers entertainment and dancing at night as well as its famous dinners throughout the day and evening, and the Red Coach Grill in Newton (over the turnpike) is also ready to pamper Mom on her day.

So make it a perfect day, take mom out for dinner on Mother's day . . . away from the hot stove and dirty dishes.

Recreation Schedules Playground Improvement

Recreation Commissioner John B. Penney has announced that several capital improvement projects already approved by the Mayor and Board of Aldermen in the 18 month budget are well along in the planning stage.

These projects include the renovation of three ball fields this summer following the closing of the city's schools. They are located at the Franklin School in West Newton, the Williams School in Auburndale and the Cold Springs Playground.

The infields of each of the diamonds will be completely renovated and grass sod replaced. The outfields, where needed, will receive similar treatment.

In addition, two new hard surface basketball courts will be constructed. The new facilities will be at the Emerson School in Newton Upper Falls and the Angier School in Waban. Plans are now being drawn up by the engineering department.

A night lighting porject has also been scheduled for the basketball court at the Brewer playground in Newton Centre.

One major repair project has also bee authorized. That is the resurfacing of the four tennis courts at Weeks Junior High School in Newton Centre.

This resurfacing project and the two hard surface basketball courts at Emerson and Angier will be included in a single bid invitation according to Commissioner Penney.

Penney expects that the projects will be completed in late summer or early fall.

YMCA Unveils Plans For Field House Complex

The announcement of plans to build a field house-type gymnasium and locker room complex highlighted the Newton YMCA 96th Annual Meeting held last week at the "Y" in Newton Corner.

Vice President and Building Campaign Steering Committee Chairman Cooper Eastman announced that within six months, ground will be broken for the field house, which will include a 6,300-square foot gym, apparatus room, offices, lobby, men's and women's locker facilities, and sauna baths. Eastman noted that the complex will be the first step in the eventual construction of a new "Y" building adjacent to the present structure.

Eastman, who steps down as vice president this year, was the recipient of the annual service award presented by Executive Director Chester L. Mosher.

Eastman of 190 Harvard Circle, Newtonville, was cited for his efforts with the building campaign, as vice president, and as a member of numerous committees during his long association with the "Y."

Three presentations, entitled "Your YMCA In Action," provided those in attendance a glimpse of the varied programs the organization offers. An adult folk guitar class taught by Robert Gahton, the judo and karate classes of John Hogan, and Associate Physical Director Robert Bryant's gymnastics group demonstrated their skills for the gathering.

After the meeting, a board of directors business meeting resulted in the election of new directors Mrs. William Bruce, Warren H. Coveney, Robert P. Lury, Sidney A. Marston, Louis H. Morrison, Eldred M. Peterson, Walter H. Phillips, Charles E. Smith, and Dr. R. Emerson Sylvester.

Also elected by the board were President Charles E. Smith, Vice President Robert G. Hennemuth, Assistant Treasurer Francis J. Rice, trustees Nathan D. Bugbee and Kenneth W. Rogers, and youth representatives George Domeniconi and Helen Moffitt. Treasurer Sidney A. Marston and Clerk Eldred M. Peterson were reelected at the annual meeting itself.

COOPER EASTMAN (left) of Newtonville accepts the Newton YMCA's annual service award and the congratulations of President Charles E. Smith at the recent 96th Annual Meeting of the "Y." Eastman was honored for his efforts as vice president, as the chairman of the building campaign steering committee, and as a participant on a number of other communities over the years.

MEMBERS OF COMPANY 'B', First Battalion, 101st Infantry of the Massachusetts National Guard took part in a "Paint-up, Fix-up, Clean-up" Sunday at Newman House, Newtonville. The West Newton based guardsmen spent a "civic action" day, instead of going through their normal drills, painting the drop-in center inside and out and landscaping the yard.

Hospital To Show Latest Equipment

A new echocardiograph machine, which enables doctors to see the movement of structures in and around the heart, will be on display Saturday, May 12, from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. at Newton-Wellesley Hospital.

The echocardiograph, valued at nearly $8,500, is featured in a special exhibit of some of the hospital's latest life-saving equipment, which is open to the public as part of Newton-Wellesley's observance of National Hospital Week.

Echocardiography, a relatively new diagnostic technique, relies on sonar or ultrasound frequencies (Frequencies above the range of human hearing) to diagnose various cardiac problems. When the machine's transducer, which looks like a microphone, is placed on a patient's chest at an angle over his heart, it takes pictures of the heart by recording the ultrasonic echos bouncing off it.

Thus one of echocardiology's greatest advantages — it is non-invasive and can diagnose certain heart problems without the need for physical entry into the patient's body as required by cardiac catheterization.

Other cardiac equipment, including a cardiac pacemaker that triggers heartbeat and an electrocardiograph machine, which is used to read the patterns in heart beat, will also be on display, as will intensive and cardiac care monitors and special x-ray and rehabilitation therapy equipment.

In addition, Saturday's visitors will be able to tour the hospital's diagnostic laboratories and its new X-Ray Department, considered a model for this part of the country.

Hospital visitors will also be offered free blood pressure checks during the open house hours.

Take Registrations

Registration for the Newton Community Service Centers' nursery school for the school year to commence in September is now underway.

The nursery school, located at the First Unitarian Church, 1326 Washington Street, West Newton, includes two classrooms and an outdoor play area.

The school year includes five-day weeks, Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to noon. Children should have attained three years and two months of age prior to September 1 of the school year.

Generally, the school is designed to provide an enriched childhood experience, according to C. Michael Gardner, senior supervisor at the Center.

While stressing nursery education, he said, the combined efforts of an educational Community Service Center involvement and local community resources aid in development of the total child.

Camp Staff Chosen By YMCA

Ron Laffin, a senior at Massachusetts College of Art and a counselor for four years, will be the assistant director.

The aquatics staff is headed by James Cutler, who is a junior at Colorado College. Cutler was a counselor for two years and served as assistant aquatics director the past two summers.

A senior at Springfield College, Eliott Baker, is the assistant aquatics director and Ken Gorfinkle, a sophomore at Brandeis University, is an instructor. Baker and Gorfinkle total seven years' experience at Chickami between them.

Quote of the Week

Before rebuilding the Administration, a critical change must be effected in Mr. Nixon's outlook. He must himself begin to develop toward Congress, the judicial system and the media the respect which is the secret of civilized political life. Unfortunately the speech Monday night does not suggest that Mr. Nixon has even begun to understand what is truly the matter with his approach to public office. Joseph Kraft

Chinese Festival Set

The Greater Boston Chinese Cultural Association will sponsor a cooking and art festival on Saturday, May 19, 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. at the Meadowbrook Junior High School in Newton.

This annual fund raising event enjoys active participation from suburban Chinese families. This year, a program of cooking demonstrations will be added to the agenda and is expected to draw a wider audience among the Chinese food lovers.

The festival will feature continuous demonstrations of authentic Chinese regional cooking — the way it is done in the home. Home cooked Chinese food (lunch and snacks) will be served; one can taste the dishes and watch how they are done.

Chinese arts and crafts will be exhibited and demonstrated. The audience can participate in workshops, learning traditional crafts and games.

Eugenia Yang of Concord is in charge of the cooking session. She teaches Chinese cooking in adult education programs at the Concord-Carlisle and Lincoln-Sudbury High Schools. She has invited many local cooking enthusiasts to demonstrate their favorite recipes.

Among the participants will be Nadine Wu of Weston, an experienced Chinese cooking teacher at the Natick YWCA.

The art session is organized by Dora Hsiung of Newton. She does tapestry on commission and has taught non-loom weaving at the Boston Weaver's Guild. Mrs. Hsiung has lined up a team of talented artists to show various facets of Chinese arts and crafts.

Chinese paintings will be exhibited and demonstrated by Jo Wang of Groveland, Mass., a graduate of the National Academy of Arts in Taiwan. She specializes in landscapes, birds and bamboo and has exhibited internationally, including Washington, D.C.

They are shown taking part in a driving quiz from the Decision Driving program earlier this week at the Youth Fair held at the Commonwealth Pier Exhibition Hall. Assisting the brothers is Gilbert N. Drake, an automotive safety specialist from an insurance firm. The exhibit was part of a Registry of Motor Vehicles automotive safety display. The Phillips brothers live at 206 Waban Ave.

Art Centers Begin Enrollment

Registration is under way for the Newton Creative Arts Centers for Summer, 1973. Newton South High School will house the main secondary center with students entering grades seven-12, while the Pierce and the Mason-Rice Elementary Schools will each house an elementary center with students entering grades one-six in September.

Centers will run from July 2 through Aug. 3 and will open daily at 9 a.m. The elementary centers will close at 12 noon, the secondary at 12:30 p.m.

The Newton Creative Arts Centers attempt to serve young people who have a strong interest in arts. At the center a child may work at his own pace — working with others on a group assignment or on his own program. Instructors are chosen for their rapport with young people as well as their skill as teachers and practitioners of the arts.

A portion of the curriculum changes each year as the centers respond to the shifting interests of children or as they discover a teacher with something "special" to offer.

This year will see new programs in photography and television as well as a dance specialist for each elementary center. The elementary centers will have two non-gaded groups (grades one and two and three and four) which will operate as an open classroom of the arts. Fifth and sixth grades will choose from an array of arts specialists. There will be a total staff of over 20 teachers plus four or five work-study assistants.

Students will be accepted at the Centers on a first come, first served basis. Tuition for the total program is $60, with an additional lab fee of $10 for those students accepted in the film animation class. For students who wish to enroll in the instrumental music program only, not the total center program, the fee is $15.

This summer it will be possible for senior high students, if they wish, to receive credit for courses taken in photography, ceramics, general studio, and film animation.

Brochures and registration forms have been distributed to all schools. If your child has not mentioned it, check with your principal and-or art teacher in the elementary schools, the art, music, drama staffs in the junior and senior highs, and the house offices in the senior highs. For further information, or brochure, call the Art Office at 969-9810, ext. 297.

Senior Citizens Hear State Secretary Leff

Recently, 250 senior citizens attend a meeting concerning the reorganization of the Massachusetts Department of Elder Affairs with Jack Leff, secretary of Elder Affairs, as the main speaker.

This meeting was sponsored jointly by the Newton, Weston, Wellesley and Needham Councils on Aging. The Newton Community Service Center helped coordinate the program.

In his remarks, Leff described Governor Sargent's plans to reorganize the Department of Elder Affairs and he outlined some of the priorities that the state will set for programs related to senior citizens.

After his presentation, a panel of four representatives from the various communities raised a series of questions for Secretary Leff. Serving on the panel were Alex Miller from Newton, Mrs. Marjorie Glassman from Wellesley, Mrs. Mary Palmer from Weston and Mrs. Esther Rea representing the Massachusetts Council of Older Americans.

The questions from the panel and from the audience focused on the need for the state to take seriously the plight of senior citizens with limited incomes living in suburban areas. Several questions were also raised about the Department of Elder Affairs' plans to establish a Home Care Program.

Three of Newton's State Representatives were present at the program and were introduced to the audience: Rep. Paul Guzzi, Rep. David Mofenson and Rep. Lois Pines. Mayor Mann also addressed the group.

After the presentation and discussion, a reception was held in the City Hall Cafeteria under the direction of Miss Adelaide Ball of the Council on Aging. At the reception individual senior citizens were able to talk with Secretary Leff, Mayor Mann and the state representatives.

GOOD GARBAGE

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Household garbage is helping beat the energy crisis in St. Louis. Union Electric Company, an area utility, is using municipal solid waste to produce electricity. Each ton of low sulphur refuse burned in the utility's boilers generates 1,000 kilowatt hours of electricity.

The solid waste also is being mined for natural resources. Steel cans and other ferrous metals are magnetically removed from the garbage for recycling. A local steel company will use the scrap cans in place of an equal amount of iron ore to make new steel."

PICTURE THIS

NEW YORK (UPI) — Cameras now are being given Social Security numbers. The numbers are machine-engraved onto the cameras along with the owner's name or initials as a deterrent to theft and resale of stolen cameras.

Police departments throughout the country accept the engraved information as "positive identification" of stolen or lost goods, says Honeywell Photo Products, which does the engraving on the Pentax cameras. There is a small charge for the engraving, available at service centers in New York, Denver and Los Angeles.

BRAILLE PHONES

HANNOVER, Germany (UPI) — Braille telephones are being installed in the West German Center for the Deaf and Blind. The telephones, developed by the Siemens Company, use a Braille typewriter to transmit, while the receiver raises dots on a tape.

Calls are dialed in the normal way. A bar rises to indicate a called number is engaged. A deaf and blind person discovers he is being called by feeling the telephone vibrating.

The Seminole Indians elected Alice Brown Davis as their first woman chief.

By United Press International

Ten Cents on the Dollar, by Sidney Rutberg
(Simon and Schuster, $6.95)

Bankruptcy at one time was regarded as a social stigma but now it has become something of a popular pastime.

A merchant usually goes bankrupt because of bad judgment, such as overstocking merchandise that won't move. But sometimes bankruptcies are planned by entrepreneurs looking for a fast buck.

In Ten Cents on the Dollar, Sidney Rutberg takes his readers on a trip through the fantastic world of bankruptcy, delighting them with witty and sometimes biting descriptions of the predators and their prey and those in-between.

Rutberg, financial editor of Fairchild Publications and secretary-treasurer of the prestigious New York Financial Writers Assocation, writes in a breezy language that makes his book easy to read.

He illustrates the conniving at frauds with amusing dialogues. "Ed, I hear you had a robbery at your place last week," a friend remarks to a cheater. "Not last week, stupid, next week," the crook replies.

Rutberg tells how millionaires go broke, citing the misfortunes of Lammot duPont Copeland, Jr.

The book, which offers advice on how to avoid bankruptcy, proves that business writing does not have to be dull. It contains enough amusing material to make a Broadway comedy.

William D. Laffler (UPI)

Joseph, Go Home! by Robert Beckman
(Exposition Press, $7.50)

Newspaperman Robert Beckman has done a skillful, compassionate job of weaving the Biblical account of Jesus' life into his novel about the forgotten man in "the greatest story ever told" —Joseph, father of Jesus. Joseph's search for his son is a moving story that deepens understanding.

The Legend of the Green Man, by Sara Hely.
(RANDOM, $5.95)

Lady Kitty Harcombe might have stepped off the pages of Georgette Heyer as she flees scandal in London only to be involved with intrigue, rebellion and, of course, romance in Ireland suffering the aftermath of the 1798 rising. Well-plotted, with some surprises and, naturally, a happy ending.

A Palm for Mrs. Pollifax, by Dorothy Gilman
(Doubleday, $5.95)

That unlikely, white-haired secret agent is at it again, this time trying to uncover stolen plutonium in a lavish Swiss hotel clinic. Armed with a Geiger counter hidden in a jewel case, and her karate chops, Mrs. Pollifax sorts out the jewel thief, the Arab family and other odd characters.

Knifeman, by David Craig
(Stein and Day, $5.95)

Odli, a schoolmaster with an unhealthy degree of self-contempt, tries to prove something to himself by dissembling to the police about a gangster shootout and attempting to handle the situation himself. The author's investigation of character puts this one above average, even though the police probably could have handled the crime lots better.

Masquerade in Venice, by Velda Johnson
(Dodd, Mead, $4.95)

When Sara Randall goes to live as a companion to her Italian great-aunt in Venice, she finds plenty of trouble—including a former fiance, a peculiar family and murder. She also finds, as will the reader, the charm of Venice in the 1880s in this better-than-average Gothic.

The transistor was discovered in 1948 by three scientists working for the Bell Telephone Laboratories — John Bardeen, Walter H. Brattain and William Shockley.

Wallace's Fateful Trip Almost Cancelled

By BESSIE FORD

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (UPI) — Gov. George C. Wallace started to cancel his presidential campaign trip to Maryland on May 15, 1972—not because of any premonition of danger but because the pilot who was to fly him hadn't shown up on time.

When Wallace and his security people arrived at a local landing field that warm Monday morning, the plane was fueled and ready to take off. However, the pilot had misunderstood the schedule and was nowhere around.

Wallace's campaign director, Charles Snider, was notified of the mixup. He assured the impatient Wallace he would get the pilot to the airport and the trip could be made, even if the departure was a little late.

E. C. Dothard, Wallace's chief state security man, remembers the day well, and how the governor sat in the back seat of a car reading the morning paper while the group waited for the pilot to arrive and fly them to Maryland.

The First Went Badly

The first rally of the day was at Wheaton, Md., and it went badly. Hecklers hurled eggs and other missiles at Wallace. They got so rough he decided against wading into the crowd to shake the few friendly hands.

Dothard was glad when the governor stepped quickly into the waiting car rather than risk aggravating the crowd further.

Wallace and the rest of his group went on to lunch. Wallace had a hamburger.

Because of the heckling at Wheaton, Dothard recalls that he and the other security men were worried about the next rally, at Laurel. They thought that perhaps the hecklers from Wheaton might follow them there.

But they were pleasantly surprised by the Laurel crowd, gathered at a shopping center. It gave Wallace and his party a very friendly welcome. They were so friendly, Dothard said, that he did not object when Wallace decided to shake hands with the people, leaving the bullet-proof shielded podium that was part of his standard campaign travel equipment.

"That crowd was 98 per cent for us," said Dothard, who Wallace subsequently promoted to director of public safety and chief of the state troopers.

Shot Rings Out

Wallace had autographed several pictures, pumped the hands of many well-wishers who leaned over the ropes to greet him, and had just about reached the corner of the cordoned area when the first shot rang out.

According to some versions of that assassination attempt, Arthur Bremer, a blondish former busboy from Milwaukee, Wis., was thought to have called out to Wallace to shake his hand to get near him. Neither Wallace nor Dothard, who was standing at his boss' left shoulder, can remember Bremer in the crowd.

Dothard thought the first shot, from a .38 caliber revolver was a firecracker that had been thrown from the back of the crowd by an anti-Wallace spectator. But more shots rang out, and Wallace and Dothard were knocked backward, both hit as were a Secret Service agent and a woman bystander.

Dothard received only a flesh wound in the abdomen. From where he was sprawled, he could see that Wallace, lying on the ground, was still conscious although his blue short-sleeved shirt was spattered with his blood.

Mrs. Wallace, who had moved away from Wallace just before the shooting to talk to a woman who was an enthusiastic Wallace supporter, threw herself on top of her husband to protect him. His blood stained her yellow dress.

Whisked Off to Hospital

After first being put in a station wagon and then shifted to an ambulance when it arrived, Wallace and Dothard and some 10 other persons were loaded into the emergency vehicle and whisked off to a hospital. Wallace has said he prayed during that trip, and that he was in considerable pain.

Dothard, who had been at Wallace's elbow almost constantly since 1963, remembers asking one of the other security men how fast they were traveling. "When he told me we were going 110 miles per hour, I thought that was mighty fast," he said.

Summer Travel Topics

By MURRAY J. BROWN
UPI Travel Editor

If you are among the millions of Americans expected to vacation by car in the United States this year, a few facts about highway travel might help make yours a more pleasant trip.

For example, barring extensive gas rationing, predictions are vacationing American motorists will travel more than 20 billion miles on our nation's highways and byways, but the average distance will be a relatively short 146 miles each way.

That means most of the driving will be done during the midday hours, according to a study made by The Road Information Program (TRIP). You'll probably find traffic lighter early in the morning and late evening, it noted.

As might be expected, vacation travel reachs its peak in August, with July as the second heaviest travel month. The three lowest vacation travel months are January, February and March in that order. This pattern is reversed in most winter resort areas, but the national average heavily favors warm-weather driving.

Even if you travel during the least popular vacation months, you can expect the roads to be crowded, according to TRIP, a non-profit research and information agency representing road users and the road construction industry with headquarters in Washington, D.C.

You'll Share the Roads

You will be sharing the nation's 3.7 million miles of roads with an estimated 115 million vehicles, or 4.6 million more than occupied about the same amount of road space last summer.

There is, however, slightly more room on the roads you probably will be using most during vacation. An additional 1,405 miles of the federal Interstate Highway System have been completed in the past year. That means 41,709 miles of the 42,500-mile nationwide network of superhighways has been opened to the public.

According to TRIP, in addition to providing up to 50 per cent faster travel, the interstate highways are nearly twice as safe as other roads. The study said there are only 2.7 accidentrelated deaths for each 100 million miles of travel on the interstate system compared with 5.2 deaths over the same distance on the other highways.

TRIP also said motorists can save nearly two cents a mile in operating costs by driving on interstate highways which require no stopping or starting over long distances.

And—of particular interest to families—there are more than 7,000 rest areas along the interstate system. All have washrooms and a place to change clothes. Some have vending machines, tourist information and picnic tables.

There are four interstate highway routes—all still incompleted: I-10 between Jacksonville, Fla. and Santa Monica, Calif.; I-40 between Greensboro, N.C. and Barstow, Calif.; I-80 between New York and San Francisco, and I-90 between Boston and Seattle. Construction of the system began in 1956 and was scheduled to be completed in 1972. Now, the completion date has been moved forward to 1976.

Not All are Happy

Not all of America's roads are happy highways, TRIP said. In fact, the 1972 National Highway Needs study reported that some 700,000 miles of roads many Americans will use during vacation travel are below "minimum tolerable" standards.

As a result, many have inadequate surfacing, poor shoulders, reduced "sight distance" because of too many hills and curves and dangerous intersections, TRIP said. It added many are being improved on a continuing basis but the reconstruction work during the summer slows traffic. Vacationers can check on whether highway improvements are under way on their planned routes by phoning a local office of the state highway department or checking with local automobile associations.

TRIP also noted that vacation driving accounts for only 13 per cent of all recreational driving, which in turn is only 18 per cent of all driving mileage. That total figure is expected to be 1.25 trillion miles this year—equivalent to 2.5 million round trips to the moon.

Maxine Kumin's reading of brief selections from her latest book of poems, "Up Country," will conclude the program.

Dr. Hurwitz, in releasing the evening's program, stated, "I don't see how anyone with the slightest interest can afford to miss the big evening that awaits us on May 13 at Boston College."

"I think that those who come will be amazed at the amount of talent in our city, and will be even more impressed with the quality of performance," added Hurwitz.

Library Features Famed Poets

An outstanding group of poets from the Boston area, Ruth Whitman, Fanny Howe, Peter Dawson and Harold Bond, will read selections from their works at a gala poetry festival, presented by the Newton Free Library, 414 Centre St., Newton Corner, Friday, May 11, at 7 p.m.

Checkered tableclothes, fresh flowers, and light refreshments will provide a coffee-house atmosphere to the Newton Free Library's Chaffin Hall where the poetry festival will feature poetry readings by these four prominent New England poets.

Ruth Whitman, distinguished poet and translator of poetry, is a graduate of Radcliffe College and is widely known for her translations from Yiddish, French and Greek poetry. Volumes of her own poetry include "The Marriage Wig and Other Poems" and "The Passion of Lizzie Borden." She is editor of an "Anthology of Modern Yiddish Poetry" and "Selected Poems of Jacob Glatstein."

Fanny Howe is a young poet and short story writer who lives in Cambridge. She was educated at Stanford University and has taught poetry at Tufts University. She has published "Forty Whacks," a volume of short stories, and "Eggs," a book of verse.

Peter Davison, a graduate of Harvard University and a Fulbright Scholar at Cambridge University, is now the poetry editor of "Atlantic." He is the author of "The Breaking of the Day and Other Poems," "Pretending To Be Asleep" and "The City and the Island."

Harold Bond is a native Bostonian and graduate of Northeastern University and the Univerity of Iowa, where he was a member of the Writers Workshop. He has been an instructor of poetry and an editor of the magazine "Ararat," as well as publishing widely in anthologies and periodicals. He is the author of "3x3," "The Northern Wall" and "Dancing on Water," all volumes of verse.

Other highlights of the poetry festival include informal discussions with the poets, films of poets reading from their works, and refreshments.

The festival, coordinated by Library Director Virginia A. Tashjian and the Poetry Festival Committee with Mrs. Beryl Beatley, supervisor of Children's Services; Mrs. Sheila Brownstein, readers' adviser; Mrs. Edna Cohen of the Reference Department and Mrs. Patricia Marvin, supervisor of Circulation, at the Newton Free Library, and poetry critic for the "Library Journal," evolved as a result of the growing interest in poetry among all ages of the Newton Community.

The committee hopes to make the poetry festival an annual event and an overflow crowd of students, adults, poets, patrons, and all lovers of the written and spoken word are expected to attend the poetry festival.

The poets' works will be on display and will be available for sale at the poetry festival.

Newton Centennial 1873 - 1973

VOL. 103 NO. 20 NEWTON, MASSACHUSETTS. THURSDAY. MAY 17, 1973 PRICE FIFTEEN CENTS

Money Tree

Williams School in Auburndale took its $50 seed money from the Centennial Commission and disproved the old adage: "Money doesn't grow on trees." Money certainly "grew" on their money tree. Through community efforts, $50 more magically appeared from the school PTA and then another $50 grew out of donations from the Auburndale Garden Club. The school community has a $500 fix - up project planned for Williams, and, at last report, were nearing their goal. Proudly displaying the money tree are, from left, Mrs. Marolyn, Mrs. Nancy Ryan, Principal Anne Carr and Patricia Meredith; seated, Tony Caruso and Scott Wedekind. (Photo by Tony Lupo Jr.)

Luxury Elderly Housing Proposed In Auburndale

BY ELIZABETH McKINNON

A proposal for a "life care center," a new kind of living for the elderly was presented by word and picture this week at an aldermanic Land Use Committee public hearing.

The site on which the proposed seven-story, 200-unit retirement facility would be built is a three and a half acre parcel on Stanton Avenue, Auburndale, formerly under option to the Newton Community Development Foundation for construction of low—and moderate—income housing and now owned by Dr. Edwin Guiney of Newton.

The building would consist of 200 units — 20 one-room, 60 one-and-a-half-room, 110 two-room, and 10 three-room — a dining room, social rooms, a library, other public rooms, and an infirmary-nursing unit.

The outstanding difference between the proposed facility and a residential hotel would be the 20-bed nursing home, an integral part of the concept, and the provision of daily medical attention to those who require it in their apartments.

The estimated cost of life care would start with the $10,000 "life care fee," a one-time charge for lifetime occupancy of a one-room unit (a two-room unit would cost $20,000, and so on). Maintenance charges would be $2160 per year per room, which includes all utilities, use of all facilities, linen service, daily maid service, and up to 30 days' care in the nursing unit. Additional nursing care will be $14 per day.

Residents will be encouraged to have their meals in the dining room in order to receive proper nutrition although the rooms will be equipped with stove surface burners and refrigeration for preparation of breakfast and snacks. The cost for three meals a day in the dining room will be $1,800 per year.

Extra living expenses have been estimated at $300 - 450 per year.

The presentation, by Arthur Ullian, an associate in the enterprise, stressed that for about $5,500 per year, after the initial "life care fee," aged residents would be assured of a comfortable, dignified life in a setting of total care, both physical and psychological, yet would be as active and independent as their condition allowed.

He compared this cost to that of remaining in a private home, which he figured at $6,000 per year, an efficiency apartment at over $4,500, a rest home at $14,000, and a nursing home at $18,000.

Several members of the Newton community, including former Alderman Adelaide Ball, who is 75; Edward Becherer, chairman of the Newton Council for the Aging; and Jerald Stinson, director of the Newton Human Resources Department, spoke of the need for such a facility and the care it would provide.

Alderman Matthew Jefferson asked Ullian what provision there would be for people without $10,000. Ullian said that his group had discussed a plan with the Newton Housing Authority. (Ullian, at a recent Authority meeting, suggested that for the first three years there would be nothing for the Housing Authority, but then Life Care could take one low-income person per year for the succeeding five years.)

Ullian presented a report by Alan M. Voorhees Associates, traffic consultants, which stated that projected traffic volume on Washington Street, the main thoroughfare near the site, would be increased by only about 13 vehicles in the morning and by 20 in the evening peak hour.

The report said also that analysis of data on ownership and use of cars by persons over 65 years of age shows that between 20 and 25 per cent own cars, but seldom use them.

The Voorhees report said that in similar developments in California and Connecticut, it has been found that residents prefer to use public transportation when possible, tend to use available facilities at the center and remain on the site for extended periods of

Open Space Discussed

The first of what is planned to be a series of annual "open space action conferences" sponsored jointly by the Boston College Environmental Center and the Newton Conservators, Inc., held last Saturday at Boston College, yielded a number of important recommendations to the city administrations and put political candidates on notice about their views on how to deal with open space in Newton.

The conference gathered together not only members of the sponsoring organizations but also members of the Charles River Watershed Association, concerned individuals, representatives of city departments, and experts on conservation economy and law.

The idea that it may be cheaper in the long run for the city to buy all available open space for public and conservation uses was introduced by Robert Lemire, Lincoln Conservation Chairman, who pointed out that the cost of educating the number of children who would live in houses that might be built on, for example, a golf course, together with the cost of city services, might be about equal to, and probably less than, the amount to be gained by the city in real estate taxes and increased valuation.

Lemire proposed a 20-year bond issue of $10 million to buy 1,000 acres of threatened open space. The cost of the bonding would cost each household less than $40 per year, he said, and some of the total would be reimbursed through federal and state aid. Since the cost to residents would be proportional to the value of their houses, the poor would not be paying disproportionately for services to the more well-to-do.

For every new house built that does not pay its way, Lemire said, taxes rise. "If we are going to save open space, the rich are the best able to pay for it, and the poor are the least able not to have it. So it's politically feasible as well as economically feasible to do something like this."

After hearing from other speakers on various aspects of Newton's open space, the group of about 100 split into four workshops, where the recommendations were hammered out.

The most innovative and warmly received suggestion, which was approved unanimously by the group, was to include in the city's capital improvement program each year an amount of money representing $1 on the tax rate to be earmarked for acquisition and maintenance of open space.

Related to this was another agreement that there should be a commitment by the city not only to immediate acquisition of open space, before it is no longer available, but also to a long-range program of open-space acquisition, using the guideline of the federal Bureau of Outdoor Recreation of 15 acres per 1,000 population. Newton now has only 9 acres per 1,000 population.

A strong concern was expressed about the lack of a comprehensive plan for the city, which would coordinate questions of zoning, open space, planning, traffic and transportation.

Recognition of the importance of passive recreation - walking, "comtemplating," enjoying solitude - was encouraged in a recommendation for education of the public in the use of open space for other than organized sports and a warning to the city not to overlook the need for such passive use of its parklands.

Candidates for office this year may be rated according to their

Newton Children Affected By Washington Impasse

By LEN BATEMAN

Almost 400 students at the Emerson and Lincoln-Eliot Schools in Newton stand to lose a great deal if President Richard Nixon makes good his threat to impound any funds voted by Congress for continuation of Title I of the Education Act of 1965.

Congress has actually voted twice this year to continue funding the "Better Schooling for Educationally Deprived Children" programs throughout the nation but has been rebuffed both times by presidential vetoes.

The White House has also hinted that impoundment is the next step in its battle with Capitol Hill if the Congress overrides the vetoes.

Newton school officials are clearly worried over the fate of local, Title I programs and the 400 pupils who stand to lose the most from the cutback in federal funds.

At a recent meeting of the Newton Citizens for Education, several of the invited guests, including Mayor Theodore Mann, Superintendent of Schools Aaron Fink and several school committeemen voiced their concern with the effect such vetoes and impoundments would also have on the Newton property owner.

Congressman Robert Drinan was scheduled to be on hand for the conference entitled "Impact of Federal Budget Cuts On Education," but was detained in Washington by the vote on discontinuation of funds for the bombing of Cambodia.

With the passage of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965, Congress and the Johnson Administration provided local communities with the necessary monies to help disadvantaged children with reading and other related school problems.

Local school boards were urged by the federal government at that time to concentrate their efforts in areas meeting certain financial standards.

Newton chose the Emerson and Lincoln-Eliot districts because they contained the highest number of families meeting Washington's criteria.

Since the establishment of the Title I program over 2,000 Newton pupils have benefited from the special attention the extra money from the federal government can afford.

Demand Reorganization Plan Before Voting On Vacancy

A request from the Public Works Director to fill the $17,000-plus position of general superintendent last week brought demands from the aldermanic Finance Committee that the reorganization plan for the department be revealed by Mayor Theodore D. Mann.

DPW Director Richard Dudman submitted his plan to the mayor several weeks ago, and the administration is reviewing the changes suggested. One aim of reorganization is to vest control of the several divisions of the Department of Public Works within the director. At present the director is limited to an advisory role.

At a meeting of the aldermanic Public Works committee, which approved Dudman's request 6-0, Dudman said the position of general superintendent gives the Street Department "greater operational control" and is the only position that "can cut across divisions," as is necessary to shift equipment and personnel in snowstorms and unusual situations.

Dudman stressed the value of a general superintendent as a person out in the field who knows what is needed in different situations and has the authority to order appropriate actions.

The position has been vacant since January, 1972, but money was put into budget reserve for the salary for 1973.

A Civil Service examination was called "two or three months ago," Dudman said, but no date has been received. The job would be filled temporarily by one of the six division foremen, and it is expected that one of the foremen would get the Civil Service appointment.

Acting Finance Committee Chairman Louis Egelson wanted to know whether the filling of the general superintendent's job is part of the reorganization plan; Dudman said it is, but "regardless of reorganization, we still need him."

Egelson continued, "Years ago we said the Public Works Department needed reorganization, including improved supervision, and we spoke to Street Commissioner Bolduc about using the foremen adequately to tell him what's wrong. I told this to you when you were up for your job (last November). I had hoped to see some improvement by now."

One Way To Take An Imaginary Trip

Senator Kennedy chats with students.

By CYNTHIA BLACK

Part of a new fourth grade social studies unit in Newton schools involves planning an imaginary trip to Washington, D. C.

Uarda Parnell's fourth grade class at Cabot School apparently had so much fun planning their imaginery trip that they decided to take it.

Earlier this month, 54 Cabot fourth and fifth graders, 17 parents and two teachers embarked on a one-day tour of the nation's capital. Their itinerary included the Capitol and the White House, Arlington Cemetery, Jefferson, Lincoln and Washington monuments, the Bureau of Engraving and the Smithsonian Institute.

"Big" seemed to be the word that cropped up most frequently when the class was interviewed last week. Everything was "big—" except the Hope Diamond.

It was Stephen Shapiro who said everyone is always told the Hope Diamond, displayed in the Smithsonian, is such a large gem.

"It's not," he reported. "It's only about the size of five marbles."

Christine Reyroft, as was true of many of the students, commented on how much fun it was to visit the Smithsonian. She enjoyed her brief visit even more, she said.

"I got lost and saw a lot more stuff."

Lisa Spergel liked the Post Office Hut in the Smithsonian because there were "all kinds of stamps" there. She said she also liked the "old movies from the 1940's and 50's."

Mehreen Hussain was particularly impressed with the reconstructed dinosaurs at the institute, she said; and Joel Bard liked the World War I exhibits, including all the airplanes, and the photo exhibits.

Kim Hassett liked the Washington Memorial because "it was so high" and Arthur Vanesian was impressed with the Lincoln Memorial because he did not know "Lincoln was so big."

The White House and its furnishings and paintings garnered a little popularity of their own. John Prince liked the White House although Washington disappointed him a little: "I thought it would be something special, but it turned out to be just like Boston," he said.

Laura Goodwin enjoyed the White House art collection but said she thought the White House was going to be "much prettier."

The Bureau of Engraving, where all that money is, was another high spot of the visit.

Carmen Counsels Caution In All Cable TV Actions

Mayoral candidate William Carmen has called for "strict compliance" with state and federal regulations when Newton considers applications for cable television licenses.

Reacting to reports that Mayor Theodore D. Mann plans to meet with the Board of Aldermen to discuss cable television, Carmen said, "the Massachusetts Community Antenna Television Commission is very explicit in its statement of how cable television proceedings are to be initiated and conducted.

"The regulations specify that any one of three actions may trigger a community's consideration of cable television:

"An applicant may apply for a license; one half of one percent of the community's citizens may petition for cable proceedings; or the mayor may himself invite applicants and initiate the proceedings.

"Following the triggering procedure, the rules call for a public hearing to ascertain community reaction to cable television. Within 60 days of the hearing, the mayor must decide to either move ahead with the licensing process, or terminate his community's consideration of cable television at that time."

"To the best of my knowledge," Carmen said, "no applicant or citizens group has petitioned the city to initiate consideration of cable television. This indicates that the mayor intends to invite cable applicants himself.

"Cable television offers Newton many exciting possibilities. A successful cable system in our city has the potential of providing Newton citizens with a great public service as well as a new sense of community spirit," Carmen said.

"But there are also dangers in cable television. Cable presents an opportunity for a very lucrative business. The temptation to neglect the public interest for the selfish profits of a few is often great.

"It would be a serious violation of the law and of the public trust if our cable proceedings were not conducted in the spirit of the Massachusetts cable regulations — the intent of this law is openness and community participation."

Carmen also called for the disclosure of a plan to reorganize the Department of Public Works that was reportedly submitted to Mayor Theodore D. Mann last week by Public Works Director Richard Dudman.

Carmen said, "the Mayor defended the controversial appointment of Richard Dudman last year because he believed Mr. Dudman could reorganize the Department of Public Works and make it more efficient. Yet when it is reported that Mr. Dudman has prepared a proposal for the reorganization of the department, the citizens of Newton are denied access to it."

Carmen stated he hopes the Dudman plan "will call for a streamlining of the Public Works Department that will make it more efficient at the worker level, and more economic at the management level."

League Operates Daily Phone Information Line

Sylvia Appelbaum, Beatrice Krim, and Jane Rediker of the League of Women Voters of Newton are three of approximately 25 volunteers taking calls at the Massachusetts League of Women Voters Voter Information Phone (VIP), a new project of the state league.

The phone is the first of a series of programs planned to honor Lotte E. Scharfman of Lexington, who died in 1970 while serving as president of the state league. The Scharfman Memorial Fund is a tax-deductible non-profit educational trust devoted to helping people participate in their government.

The Voter Information Phone is staffed from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Monday through Friday, by volunteers. Callers may ask about their representatives and about all sorts of bills such as those on day care, special education, daylight saving time, and the budget. The volunteers are trained to find the answers to a broad variety of questions. Most can be answered immediately from the information at hand and some callers are referred to the proper officials for their final answers.

Three Newton Schools Struck By Vandalism

Three Newton schools were victimized by vandalism during the past few days and police were also kept busy investigating five burglaries, three of them in laundromats.

The Franklin School at 125 Derby St. was entered during the night and vandals ransacked several classrooms, scattering articles and breaking several windows.

The break was discovered by Officer Kevin Mooney while he was making his rounds, but the guilty party or parties had vanished by the time the entire building was searched police said.

The Bowen School at 280 Cypress St. was entered through a previously broken window and police investigators later found several second floor classrooms damaged.

Police said the culprits discharged two fire extinguishers and threw paint around the room before they departed the vandalized building.

The library of the Meadowbrook Junior High School on Meadowbrook Road received some damage after vandals entered the building through a second story window according to investigating officers.

School authorities could not determine if anything was missing immediately after the vandalism was discovered but planned to take inventories after teachers and pupils arrived for classes.

Approximately $300 in cash and some liquor was reported missing from the Beacon Lunch at 761 Beacon St. earlier this week and officers report the establishment was entered through a forced rear door.

The home of Joseph Rosenberg at 16 Malia Terr., Chestnut Hill, was also burglarized recently and the estimated loss in jewelry was believed to be about $1,000.

Missing, according to the police report of the incident, were one gold watch, a set of gold cufflinks and a gold bracelet.

Police theorized the house was entered sometime during the day when the intruder slipped a lock in a side door leading to the interior of the structure.

Three self - service laundromats were forcibly entered and various amounts of money were taken from change machines.

Police suspect, they said, the same person in all three crimes which netted $30 from the Coin-Op Laundry at 980 Boylston St., Newton Highlands, and an undetermined amount from the Maytag Laundromat, 1191 Walnut St., Newton Highlands, and the Coin Laundromat, 166 California St., Nonantum.

Chestnut Hill School Elects Trustees

At the annual meeting of the Chestnut Hill School Corporation was held in the Lee Building of the school, the following were elected as trustees: H. Day Brigham Jr. of Chestnut Hill and president of Eaton and Howard was elected for the one year term.

Other trustees elected for a period of three year terms were: Henry C. Brooks of Newton Centre and a professor of Psychology at Newton-Andover Theological School; William Ebersol of Boston and vice president and general manager of the Ritz-Carlton Hotel; Jerome L. Rappaport of West Roxbury and partner in the firm of Rappaport and Rakov, Inc; Norton Sherman of Newton Centre and product manager of the St. Regis Paper Company, Sherman Division.

Mrs. John Randazzo of Wellesley was elected president of the Chestnut Hill School P.T.A. for a one year term. Following a very brief business meeting the faculty of the New England Conservatory of Music presented a concert of early music.

Elders To Luncheon

Edward Becherer, chairman of the Newton Council for the Aging, announced that the Annual Newton Senior Citizens' Luncheon, sponsored by the Council for the Aging, will be held on Wednesday, May 23, at 12:30 p.m. in the grand ballroom of the new American Legion Post No. 440 Building at 295 California St., Newton.

This is the sixth annual spring luncheon for senior citizens and this year's menu calls for a half roast stuffed chicken dinner. As has been the case in previous years, the Mayor, members of the Board of Aldermen, and various city officials will serve as waiters and waitresses on this occasion. John Penney, recreation commissioner, is in charge of planning this part of the program.

Bertram Martinson, a member of the Newton Council for the Aging, is in charge of the event and will act as master of ceremonies. He and Mrs. Isabel Coleman, of the Council on Aging, are also arranging for a program of varied entertainment for the luncheon.

Tickets are available for any Newton senior citizen at a cost of $2.50. They may be obtained from Mrs. Esther Toher of the Recreation Department, Mrs. Isabel Coleman of the Pomroy House, at the Community Service Center in West Newton, or at the Council on Aging's office in City Hall. Transportation will be provided.

Davis PTA Spring Fair Set Saturday

The Davis School PTA will hold a Spring Fair Saturday (May 19), rain or shine, from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. on the school grounds, 492 Waltham St., West Newton.

A bicycle and doll carriage parade will take place. Races, games, a white elephant table and pony rides will be some of the highlights.

Mr. and Mrs. Gerard Byrne and Mr. and Mrs. John Sullivan are in charge of the event, assisted by Davis School teachers and parents.

Planning For Memorial Day

Newton's Memorial Day Parade Committee has announced its plans for the 1973 observance in the city.

By a vote of Newton veteran's organizations, the annual Memorial Day parade and wreath laying ceremonies will be held Sunday, May 27, in the afternoon.

The parade will form at Washington and Crafts street in Newtonville at noon and the parade will begin at 1 p.m.

The line of march will be up Washington Street to Walnut Street and then to Newton City Hall and Newton Cemetery. Wreath laying ceremonies will take place at the Veterans Monument, corner of Walnut Street and Commonwealth Avenue; at the GAR Monument and at the Veteran's lot in Newton Cemetery.

Jayne C. Driscoll, secretary of the committee, has advised that the 1973 marching units will consist of military, veterans and civic units, including seven marching bands.

Edward Edmunds, a veteran of World War I and a holder of the Distinguished Service Cross, has been named honorary marshal for 1973.

Edmunds, of Weston, is an active member of American Legion Post No. 48 in Newton and Disabled American Veterans Chapter No. 23 in the city.

Vale Appraisal Over First Hurdle

Members of the aldermanic Finance Committee, voting 6-0, will recommend the Board of Aldermen appropriate $4,000 to pay for appraisals of Webster Vale.

The question of whether or not the entire vale would be acquired by the city remains unanswered and actual city recommendations concerning the property will probably not be made until appraisals are made.

A compromise plan, though, has been worked out with vale owner Robert Cohen in which he would retain property on the west ridge for the development of four single-family dwellings and would sell other lots to the city.

Under the compromise, the land set aside for duplexes on Madoc Street and lots across the street, known as the Webb lots, would be purchased by the city.

Cohen also agreed to grant a perpetual conservation restriction on the actual Webster Vale with public access to the easterly portion of the vale up to the brook and 10 feet beyond. He agreed to leave the remaining portion of vale land up to the west ridge housing restricted, but without public access.

In return the city would agree to the installation of a roadway at the four proposed houses.

A previous compromise plan by Cohen was turned down last month by the ConservationCommission, which then voted to acquire the entire parcel.

The mayor would be ultimately charged with the responsibility of recommending what course the city will follow in regard to the land and the compromise.

Mayor Theodore D. Mann said Tuesday action on the compromise is "predicated upon what the appraisals show."

He also said he thinks this plan "would be in the best interests of the city because it does about 99 percent of what people want us to do here."

Authority Out To Bid By July 1

The Newton Housing Authority expects to go out to bid for construction of all three of its housing developments about July 1, according to Housing Authority Chairman Anthony Medaglia.

Estimates were sent recently to the funding agency, the state Department of Community Affairs, which responded with requests to cut costs wherever possible. Architect David Sheffield of the Architects' Collaborative, project architects, said that he will now design working drawings at "absolute rock bottom."

Approval of the working drawings by DCA will be necessary before bids can be invited.

The Housing Authority has asked the Newton city administration to find out what the city can contribute toward constructing the roads and sidewalks for the developments in order to reduce costs.

Newton's Director of Community Development Donald Levitan said Tuesday that he has not examined the proposal yet, but expects to do so later this week.

The Newton Housing Authority makes payments in lieu of taxes to the city. It alone among the city's tax-exempt organizations contributes, according to NHA Executive Director Frank Quinn.

The Housing Authority's three proposed housing developments will include the first low-income family housing to be built in the city. Four family units will be built along with 50 units for the elderly at Thurston Road, Newton Upper Falls, and 20 family units are to go up on Beaconwood Road, Newton Highlands.

Four family units are planned for a portion of Victory Field, on California Street, Nonantum. This 14,000-square-foot site was approved for sale to the Housing Authority at 25 cents per square foot by the Board of Aldermen at its last meeting, but a "reconsideration" filed by Alderman Andrew Magni, who represents the area, has put off final action until the next meeting, May 17.

Dig In

Parents, teachers and children of the Emerson School in the Upper Falls made their contribution to the beautification of the city at their Centennial Dig - In this month. Gordon M. Westwater (pictured), intermediate coordinator, assisted in planting shrubbery and the general sprucing up on the school grounds. The greenery was paid for by a donation from the Centennial Commission and out of proceeds from a Seed Sale held by school children. Maple trees were donated by Robert C. Dean of Wellesley.

West Newton Man Seeks Seat On School Committee

Gerry Byrne of 40 Byrd Avenue, West Newton, has announced his candidacy for the Newton School Committee seat in Ward 3.

He is seeking the spot being vacated by Richard Douglas.

"As we pause to celebrate our City's 100th Birthday " said Byrne, "we must reflect upon the high standard of education that we have established.

"As we enter into our second hundred years, we must accept the challenge to maintain this standard. Our problems are more complex today than they were a century ago.

"We are faced with rising taxes and outcries against fiscal autonomy. To be specific, we need repairs and updating of many school facilities and a need for more meaningful dialogue between the School Committee and other elected officials.

"As a business man, I understand the complexities of these varied problems. As a concerned parent, I am eager to devote my energy to help solve these problems."

Byrne is completing his second term as president of the Davis School P.T.A. During the past three years, as facilities chairman for Davis, he led the attempt to secure a much needed addition for the school. Byrne organized a committee of engineers, teachers, architects and non-professionals to assist him in the development of plans for the addition. At this time, drawings and specifications are ready for general contract bidding for the addition to consist of gymnasium, library and multi-purpose room.

Byrne serves on the Design Review Committee established in the Newton Charter effective Jan. 1, 1973, and had served previously on the Mayor's Design Review Committee.

"I feel strongly that the lines of communication should always be open between the School Committee and the community," he said. "Each school must feel free to express its needs and concerns.

"The people of Newton need the assurance that their concerns about educational programs, building costs and related issues will be heard by the School Committee impartially and with a dedicated search for solutions. Communication with other city agencies must be strengthened so that there is a mutual understanding of common problems and a clearer definition of common goals."

GERRY BYRNE

"Our goal is to give every child the education suited to his needs," he went on to say. "We must be open to the exploration of concepts, ideas, and programs beneficial for our children, and we must scrutinize what we do with a watchful eye. What are our results? What are our costs? What is the overall effectiveness of our programs?

"We must be sensitive to special needs of children and special problems of the taxpayer. It is imperative that we continue to attract the high caliber teaching staff without which we couldn't possibly sustain excellent programs."

In addition to his other activities, Byrne is the first vice president of the Newton Council of PTA's. He is general chairman of the PTA Council's Annual Spring Conference. In May of 1971, he became a member of the School Committee's School Building Advisory Committee and he continues to serve on that committee as executive secretary.

"Serving on this committee which consists of members of the School Committee, the Board of Aldermen, professionals, Mayor's representatives and non-professionals has shown me that many segments of the city can be brought together to work effectively," he commented. "Although this is a new approach, the results seem to indicate a need for committees such as this relating to other school problems."

Byrne is a graduate of Boston College with a degree in economics. He completed advanced studies at Babson Institute. He is employed as a construction specialist for the Dow Chemical Co. and manages their New England Low Temperature Space Division. His wife Mary is active in many community and civic groups. Both his children are attending Newton schools. Robert, age 8, is a pupil at Davis Elementary and Susan, age 14, is in the eighth grade at Warren Junior High School.

Pass Bill Favoring Access To Student Records

House Bill 6401, which permits parents and guardians of public school students to be granted the right to inspect student records, was passed by the Massachusetts House of Representatives and sent to the Senate for its approval.

The bill, acted upon favorably by the Joint Committee on Education, was introduced by Rep. Lois G. Pines (D-Newton). Leonard Bird and Sarah Noll, students at Newton North High School, were also sponsors of the legislation.

The measure to allow the parents and guardians of a student and-or students over 18 years of age to inspect their records is related to the deeply rooted right of citizens to inspect public documents of many kinds, Rep. Pines said.

Rep. Pines stated, "there is no valid reason for withholding a child's school records from his parents or from a student aged 18 or older and it would help to avoid classifications detrimental to the child and assure accuracy and fairness. This parental request for information is related to a general right-to-know interest which has found expression in certain areas of the law, especially as manifested in Section 3 of the Administrative Procedure Act and in the first amendment of the United States Constitution. It is also related to freedom of the press which is the very foundation for all those freedoms that the first amendment of our Constitution was intended to guarantee."

A bill that would allow the Massachusetts Department of Public Health to regulate ambulance services, require specific training of emergency medical technicians, establish a communications network between emergency vehicles and hospital facilities and set up an advisory board to assist the Commissioner of Public Health in coordinating a state-wide emergency medical care program which would remedy the present emergency health care inadequacies in Massachusetts, has been reported out favorably by the Joint Committee on Social Welfare and was referred to the House Committee on Ways & Means.

The Bill, H6491, was co-sponsored by Rep. Pines.

According to Pines, "statistics indicate that every citizen in Massachusetts will need emergency medical care sometime in the next 10 years and, therefore, should be critically concerned with a system that presently requires only a standard first aid course of approximately 26 hours of training for an emergency medical technician compared to 5,500 hours of training for embalmers!"

Rep. Pines also stated: "Last year there were over 29,000 deaths in Massachusetts due to accident, heart attack and stroke. More than 23 percent of the accident fatalities could have been saved, according to a University of Vermont study in 1971, and 30 percent of the heart attack victims should have lived, according to the American Heart Association if emergency medical care had been adequate."

County Hospital Serves All

Patients from every city and town in Middlesex County except one received care through the diagnostic clinic of the Middlesex County Hospital Out-Patient Department during 1972. Clinic services are all free of charge.

The clinic has an active case load of 4,426 patients. Although the clinic is open to non-county residents, 83.4 per cent of the patients come from the county.

The only town with no residents using the diagnostic clinic was Dunstable, however, this town was represented among the hospital's in-patients for 1972.

The clinic offers diagnosis, treatment and follow-up of respiratory diseases. Patients come by referral from private physicians, clinics and other health facilities, boards of health, Department of Immigration, local industries, school departments and screening programs.

In 1972, 2,150 new patients were seen in the Diagnostic Clinic, an increase of 234 over 1971. A total of 10,214 patient visits were made to the clinic. This was an average of 851 visits per month or 51 visits per clinic session. The clinic is open from 12:45 to 2:45 p.m. Monday through Thursday.

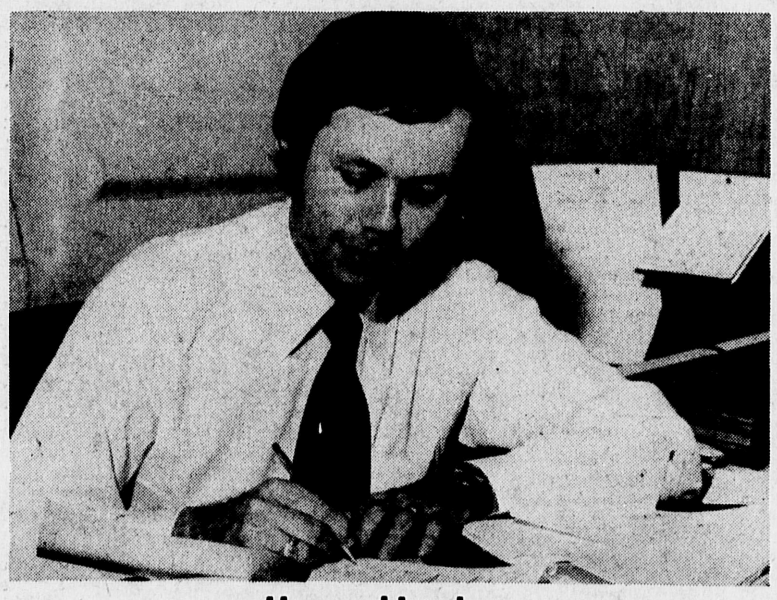
There were 460 patients from Waltham, undoubtably because the hospital is located in that town. Other figures include 321 from Somerville; 304 from Newton; 259 from Watertown; 206 from Arlington; 204 from Medford; 189 from Malden; 167 from Natick; 148 from Woburn; 142 from Lexington; 138 from Belmont; 136 from Framingham and 91 from Marlboro.

In addition to examination by a physician or nurse clinican, X-rays and skin tests, the Out-Patient Department provides other services, including a registered pharmacist to fill prescriptions for all tuberculosis medications prescribed through the Diagnostic Clinic and through private physicians who are treating patients for TB.

The laboratory provides a variety of tests for clinic patients and bacteriologic examinations for patients being followed by private doctors. Eye and hearing tests are given patients on medications which might affect the patients sight and hearing.

Besides clinic visits, the nurse clinician often telephones patients to see how they are getting along at home. This is also done to reassure the patient that the clinic is interested in his individual case.

The Out-Patient Department also offers a free Walk-In Clinic for skin testing for TB; screening, diagnosis and follow-up for TB through a series of satellite clinics and an X-Ray screening clinic at the county's House of Correction in Billerica.



Howard Levine

Dangel's Successor Chosen

Howard A. Levine, a 31-year-old assistant city solicitor for Newton, will be appointed city solicitor effective July 19, according to the office of Mayor Theodore D. Mann.

Levine has been with the city's Law Department for the last three years and was previously with the law firm of Princi and Lecomte in Boston.

He was born in Boston and moved to Newton at the age of nine, attending Newton public schools, Bowdoin College, and Boston University Law School, from which he received his bachelor of laws degree in 1966.

Levine is married to the former Karen Kornetsky of Portland, Maine. They are the parents of twin boys, Daniel and Morris, 13 months.

Levine replaces City Solicitor Melvin Dangel, who will retire July 15, after three years in the position and many years as an alderman. Dangel, who is 63, plans to continue his private practice of law.

The imminent retirement of Assistant City Solicitor Ernst Seyfarth, leaves one vacancy in the department. The vacancy occasioned by Levine's elevation to city solicitor has been filled by the hiring, as of July 2, of Kenneth Bagley who will be an investigator until he has passed his bar examination this summer.

Levine looks forward to a career in municipal law and to the fact that for the first time the city's Law Department will be staffed by persons who have been uninvolved in politics.

Open Meeting On Paying Aldermen

An open Citizen's Meeting will be held Wednesday, May 23, before the committee established to study the issue of paying aldermen.

The meeting will be in the aldermanic chambers at City Hall and is scheduled to run from 7:30 to 10:30 p.m.

Residents are invited to express their views on the advisability of giving Newton aldermen some form of compensation, that is, salary, reimbursements for expenses, stipends, etc.

Anyone wishing to speak is asked to call Edward English, clerk of the Board of Aldermen by May 22 at 244-4700.

The nine-member committee includes: Gary P. Brazier, Constance Kantar, Edward Kiley, Walter J. Leonard, James Morse, Allen Rudolph, Joseph Scalise, Lewis B. Songer and John Webber. Members were appointed jointly by the mayor and the Board of Aldermen.

Newton is the last of the Commonwealth's 39 cities not to compensate its aldermen. The committee's nonbinding recommandations are expected to be made in June.

New Night Hours At City Hall

Night hours at City Hall will continue on Thursdays from 5 to 7 p.m., but due to limited response, the number of departments being staffed has been reduced.

Now, the city clerk and mayor's offices are open during regular hours and the citizen's assistance officer is available to accept inquiries for referral to other departments.

Staff from the other city departments is available by appointment only during 5 to 7 p.m.

Secrecy's Offspring

On Thursday of this week daytime television soap operas will be darkened so that the cameras of the major networks can zoom in on the Senate Committee hearings on Watergate.

In our area alone four stations will carry the proceedings from 10 a.m. to the close of each day's hearing. The networks didn't decide on carrying the hearings together. Educational television made the first announcement that it would go live from Washington. One by one the "majors" followed suit.

We will hear a lot of how much it cost to drop regular program schedules so the Watergate hearings can be brought into homes and businesses everywhere. Some say the hearings will result in the largest audience in television's history.

One Boston station estimates it will lose $5,000 to $10,000 per day providing they can fill with a quiz show and a local program during the lunch break for the hearings. If the station can't break away from the network for lunchtime and if each day's hearings don't end at 4 p.m., as now scheduled, then the "loss" will be much, much higher.

The people who stand to gain most from the Watergate Specials are the members of the television audience. The people like you and me who live up the street and around the corner.

Now we can see and hear for ourselves some of the personalities and unanswered questions that have socked and rocked the sensibilities of every concerned citizen.

Secrecy and intrigue have taken on the most bitter taste in our lifetimes. And if nothing else, hopefully, we will realize that most often what goes on behind closed doors cloaked with the imprint of executive or privilege ultimately leads to total disregard for the rights of most people.

Watergate may not happen here. But decisions and judgments made behind closed doors in the Newtons and Needhams and Bostons could, with no stretch of the imagination, abridge the rights of many.

The television networks decided to go all out with the Watergate hearings because their statisticians found out the public's ire and desire to know has been aroused to the point where they beg for enlightenment.

TV won't provide all the answers. But it will outline with shadowy substance the monster that has emerged when secrecy and meetings they call "executive" are involved.

The next time you hear about a local governing body holding an executive session — meaning closed to you and me — ask yourself "why?" Better yet, ask the officials who held the meeting "Why?" Right here you should be able to ask one of your own elected or appointed officials that question before this day is over. Yes, executive sessions in your own hometown are far more common than you would ever believe.

POLITICAL HIGHLIGHTS

By JAMES G. COLBERT

Governor's Patronage May Save Pre-Primary State Conventions

Many Beacon Hill observers now believe that Governor Francis W. Sargent can save the pre-primary convention system of endorsing state-wide candidates such as himself — if he is prepared to dip into his bulging patronage bag and play the role of a political Santa Claus.

Several pundits suspect that Sarge will do exactly that to preserve the State Convention for posterity, the Republican party and his own reelection campaign.

A bill to wipe out the pre-primary conventions almost certainly will be enacted by the two branches of the State Legislature. It has the vigorous support of Senate President Kevin Harrington and House Speaker David Bartley.

But it faces a gubernatorial veto as soon as it lands on Governor Sargent's desk. Then will come the crunch.

The Democrats have big majorities in both the House and the Senate and possess the votes to override Mr. Sargent's veto in both legislative chambers.

However, the Governor could make a fight of it in the Senate if he uses his patronage power.

At the present time there are 31 Democrats and seven Republicans in the Senate. Two former Democratic Senators — Mario Umana and Andrea Nuciforo — have been named as judges by Governor Sargent, leaving two seats vacant in the upper legislative branch.

A 26-12 vote in the Senate would overrride Governor Sargent's veto. A 25-13 vote would uphold it. Governor Sargent can count on the support of the seven Republican Senators. In order to have his veto sustained he must get the backing of six Democratic Solons. That is not an impossible task if he is willing to pay the price in jobs.

Ted To Make Mission of Mercy To Alabama for George Wallace

The first real evidence that Senator Edward M. Kennedy may be considering a bid for the Democratic nomination for President in 1976 is the disclosure that he will speak for Governor Wallace in Decatur, Alabama, in July.

The political philosophies of Kennedy and Wallace are poles apart. Ted's trip to Alabama should help the paralyzed Wallace in his efforts to raise money to pay off his campaign debts.

It should also boost Senator Kennedy's chances of winning convention votes in Alabama and other southern states in the event he seeks them in '76.

Ted presumably would be able to call on George Wallace for whatever help he could provide at the convention or in the Presidential campaign although the pathetic and crippled Wallace is hardly in a condition to give much political support to anyone.

This writer, however, belongs to the minority which believes that Senator Ted Kennedy will stand for reelection to the Senate in 1976 and will not be a candidate for the Presidency at that time even though the Republican party then may be in shambles.

Our opinion is that Ted is planning a mission of political mercy to Alabama to give a helping hand to a man who has been unable to pay off his campaign bills because the bullet from a gun fired by a kook left him a hopeless cripple.

Ted Kennedy has a deep sympathy for men who are the targets of would-be assassins even though he may differ with their political philosophies. He will be performing a great kindness for George Wallace who would be a natural to move into the Republican party today if he were his old physical self.

Senate Hearings on Watergate May Draw Record TV Audience

The Senate hearings on the Watergate scandal should attract the greatest watching and listening audience in the history of television — if the TV networks have the sense to rerun the proceedings in prime time at night when workers will be at home and able to watch them.

Public attention centered on the hearings and the testimony it produces should even exceed that aroused by the Kefauver investigation into organized crime because there are far more television sets today than when Senator Estes Kefauver conducted his famous probe.

But the television viewers should try to sift facts from fiction, truth from falsehoods. They should keep in mind that even while the testimony will be given under oath, some of the witnesses will be primarily interested in protecting themselves and staying out of prison.

Not everything told to the committee headed by Senator Sam Ervin will be truthful. Some people may be falsely accused and unjustly implicated. They are entitled to be considered innocent until they are proven guilty. Those watching on their television sets should not jump too quickly to conclusions.

At the same time, however, this will be an opportunity for the people to see and hear the men they have been reading about in connection with the Watergate mess, to listen to their testimony, observe their manner and mien and how they conduct themselves generally on the witness stand.

Charges have been made — and with some justification — that the newspapers and television networks have gone beyond the bounds of fairness in covering the Watergate mess and have tried to outdo each other in reporting unsubstantiated rumors and reports.

Senator William Proxmire, Wisconsin Democrat and frequently an outspoken critic of President Nixon, declared on the Senate floor that the press had been "grossly unfair" in reporting secret allegations that Mr. Nixon knew about the cover-up of the Watergate case.

The editor of the Madison, Wisconsin, Capital Times indicated that Proxmire himself had pre-judged Nixon's participation in the Watergate cover-up.

He quoted Proxmire as telling him in a telephone conversation that President Nixon "is involved in Watergate up to his ears and that he (Proxmire) didn't see how he could get out of it."

Clare Booth Luce, one of the owners of Time Magazine, bluntly told a gathering of editors in Washington that their handling of Watergate had been "grossly unfair" and that she saw no difference between the theft of the Pentagon Papers and the theft of information from Democratic Party headquarters.

A great many people agree with her on her point about the theft of the Pentagon PApers and feel it is unfortunate the Ellsberg case became enmeshed with Watergate since Daniel Ellsberg did steal classified information and made it public.

Mrs. Luce, incidentally, did not exonerate the magazine of which she is part-owner from her charges.

The televised Senate hearings should help the average citizen to make up his or her mind as to whether President Nixon knew about Watergate ahead of time and if he attempted to cover up the scandal when it first became known.

Senator Sam Ervin is a man of great integrity. He will be attempting to get at the truth and will not play politics. He will not try either to protect President Nixon or to persecute him. He will let the ships fall where they will. The hearings over which he presides will make history.

Old-Time Pols Would Not Have Stooped To Level of Segretti

Back down the sweep of the years this reporter has observed the operation of dirty politics and the stealing of votes in Boston.

One well known politician who served on the Boston City Council, the School Committee and in both branches of the State Legislature would "run repeaters" on election day.

Repeaters were men who went from one polling place to another voting in the names of people who were dead, did not exist or were known to be away.

In the rare instance where a repeater was arrested for fraudulent voting, bail was posted for him and then forfeited.

Controlled voting was operated under another political boss who ruled the West End at a time when many immigrants lived there, were helped to get jobs and voted as they were told.

A political lieutenant would be sent into a polling place when it opened in the morning. He would obtain a ballot, put it in his pocket and walk out while the warden in charge, also named by the political boss, would look the other way.

Thereafter, each voter under obligation to the ward boss would be given a marked ballot to drop in the ballot box and would return with the ballot he had been handed in the polling place. In that way there was no danger a voter would forget his instructions. The last one to vote would deposit two ballots.

Those were the days of paper ballots, and not infrequently a counter would have a piece of lead under his or her thumb. As the ballots were flipped over, a cross might be marked where the voter had indicated no choice or even to invalidate a vote that had been cast by scrawling a second cross.

Candidates for public offices didn't always observe the rules of etiquette and good manners.

A pamphlet attacking Mrs. Christian A. Herter backfired in the 1952 gubernatorial election.

James M. Curley was famous for the quips he fired at opponents which eventually cost him votes although they seemed funny at the time he voiced them.

A less sophisticated campaigner won election to a local office in Roxbury's old Tammany ward by standing on the top of an overturned empty barrel at every street corner in the ward and calling his main adversary a milk bottle-robber.

He charged that his opponent made a practice of stealing empty milk bottles from the stoop where they were left for the milkman and taking them to a store for refunds. The alleged milk bottle thief protested his innocence to no avail.

But this observer has never known any politician who sanctioned anything like the alleged action of Donald Segretti, accused GOP saboteur who has been indicted for distributing a phony Muskie campaign letter charging two other Democratic Presidential candidates with sexual misconduct.

The old-time politician might have been careless with the facts at times. But he would have been revolted at the thought of accusing another man of fathering an illegitimate daughter or being a homosexual.

The most sleazy pol of yesteryear might have stolen an election when he could, and his standards of political conducts might have left much to be desired, but what Segretti is accused of doing would have been contrary to his code, bad as it might have been.

State Agencies Are Notorious For Not Paying Bills On Time

There are numerous areas in which the state government has a poor record. One of these is its failure to pay its bills on time.

Druggists, dentists, pharmacists and others, who supply services or medicine to welfare recipients frequently complain about the length of time they must wait before they are paid by the state.

The State Department of Youth Services has just survived a crisis because red tape caused a delay in the payment of bills to the so-called half-way houses where youthful offenders are sent for rehabilitation.

One house run by former convicts was forced to close because it couldn't get any more credit while it was waiting for the state to pay the money owed to it. Another house ran short of food when it couldn't pay its bills.

State officials say that it is necessary to process the bills carefully because two half-way houses are under investigation to determine if they have misused federal funds.

At the very best, however, the state is not prompt about paying its bills, and at worst it comes close to putting some of its creditors out of business by making them wait so long for their money.

Several hundred youngsters might have been turned out of the half-way houses if the Youth Services agency had not managed to get $800,000 to pay up some of its bills.

John V. Harvey Urged To Seek State-Wide Office Next Year

Middlesex County Register of Probate John V. Harvey is being urged to stand for state-wide office next year. Harvey has not yet decided whether he is ready to make a major political move, but he is closely watching developments on the political front.

A Democrat and a lawyer, Harvey is a personable, popular and very competent public official. He is a graduate of Boston College and Boston College Law School and was a hockey star at B.C. He is also a great golfer.

A hero in World War 2, he was wounded in the Battle of the Bulge.

Prisoners Would Deal Harshly With Subilosky If They Could

The punishment meted out to convicted murderer Joseph Subilosky by his fellow inmates on his return to Walpole State Prison would have been swift and sure if he hadn't been placed in solitary confinement for his own protection.

Subilosky's action in going AWOL while on a furlough from the prison disrupted the furlough system and prevented other convicts from enjoying a brief respite from the dreary routine of the institution at Walpole for a period of about a month.

It is unlikely that Subilosky would be alive for Norfolk County District Attorney George Burke to prosecute on escape charges if other convicts had been able to get at him in retaliation for upsetting their plans for a short visit to the outside world.

Their anger, of course, stems from the effect Subilosky's escape had on them, not from the fact that an estimated $250,000 in public funds was spent to get him back in prison or that he allegedly took part in a $23,000 bank robbery while enjoying his freedom.

He will not exactly be a good insurance risk when he finally is released from isolation and returned to the regular prison routine.

Sen. McGovern Denies Saying He Never Like Sen. Eagleton

Senator George S. McGovern gave an interview to a writer doing an article for the New York Times Magazine and then apparently did not like the way his statements showed up in print.

Perhaps the reporter, Joe McGinnis, author of "The Selling of the President 1968," was partly to blame because he says he interviewed McGovern while the latter was relaxing over a vodka and tonic in a motel room in Brookings, South Dakota.

Responsible reporters usually don't interview public officials while the latter are relaxing over vodka and tonic, and if they do, they generally make a tape recording so there can be no argument later as to exactly what was said.

But then George McGovern is moving in the political big leagues. If he allowed himself to be interviewed while he was sipping vodka and tonic, that's his responsibility.

He now says the article was full of inaccurate and fabricated quotations which did not reflect his true feelings or beliefs. Here are some of the things attributed to McGovern in that article.

The South Dakota Senator was quoted as saying he never liked Senator Thomas J. Eagleton of Missouri whom he first picked as his Vice Presidential running mate last year and then dropped. He said he would do anything he could to stop Eagleton from getting the Democratic nomination for President in 1976.

He declared that when his staff was doing a quick rundown on Eagleton he was told that Eagleton used to drink too much when he was Attorney General in Missouri but that it was nothing serious.

"He was the one guy I didn't know at all. And the funny thing is, I never liked him. Isn't that something? I didn't like him one bit. He had always seemed superficial to me. He had no dignity, no reserve. And there was always this nervousness about him," McGovern was quoted as saying about Eagleton.

McGovern reportedly said he decided on Eagleton for second place on the Democratic National Ticket after being turned down by Senator Walter L. Mondale of Minnesota, his best friend in the Senate, and after being persuaded to forget about his own first choice, Senator Frank Church of Idaho.

The statement attributed to McGovern in the interview that he and his wife almost moved to England after his defeat by a massive margin in last November's Presidential election probably did not help his reelection prospects in South Dakota.

Incidentally, news despatches disclose that Senator and Mrs. McGovern are selling their $115,000 Japanese-style house, one of the most unusual in Washington, and will move into an apartment.

Mrs. McGovern will make a number of commencement speeches throughout the country in the coming weeks and also is writing a book in collaboration with the former editor of the Ladies Home Journal.

Georgia Social Worker Advises Husband To Divorce Sick Wife

Maybe the idea has some justification which escapes us, but it seems incredible to this onlooker that a social counsellor in Georgia would advise a man to divorce his seriously ill wife in order that she might qualify for State Medicaid Assistance.

Nathan Bickers of Atlanta sold his home and furniture and used up all but $3000 of his savings to provide medical and hospital care for his wife when she suffered a stroke more than a year ago.

But when he sought Medicaid assistance from the Georgia Welfare Department for his wife, he was told the only way she could get it would be for him to divorce her since his salary plus his wife's Social Security disability payments put them just a little over the maximum qualifying limit for welfare.

It would seem that in so deserving a case the social counsellor would have tried to get a special law passed by the Georgia Legislature to aid Mr. and Mrs. Bickers rather than to advise a divorce. Bickers, incidentally, declined to divorce his ill wife.

THOUGHT FOR TODAY!

If the people of Cambodia don't want to uphold their government, why are we risking American lives and spending millions of dollars on bombing raids to try to uphold it?

If the Cambodian army doesn't want to fight, why are we making bombing attacks in a country which, as one Senator said, isn't worth a single American life?

What happens to our airmen taking part in the Cambodia raids if they're shot down and captured?

Discuss Likelihood of War Between Russia and China

A number of highly placed Washington officials have been declaring privately that they would not be surprised if a war broke out soon between Soviet Russia and Red China.

An even larger number, however, say they see no likelihood of a Russian-Chinese war in the foreseeable future.

The reason for both the conjecture and the difference of opinion is the great growth in China's nuclear capability during the past nine years.

Some observers believe this might cause Russia to attack China before the latter becomes even stronger. Others feel China already has enough nuclear power to deter the Soviet Union from an attack.

Back in 1969 Russia was rapidly building its military strength along its 4500-mile border with China and making little secret of its aggressive intentions. Now the Chinese leaders are warning visiting officials of the possibility of a Soviet attack. The Russians insist they have no intention of starting a war.

U. S. intelligence experts say that the Soviet Union has the power to cripple China but that the time has passed when Russia could knock out China's nuclear-missile capability.

China exploded its first atom bomb in 1964. Today it is believed to have about 50 nuclear-tipped missiles, all targeted against Soviet Russia and deployed all over China.

Some of the missiles have ranges of 700 miles, others of 1500 miles, and a few have ranges up to 3400 miles. China also has the world's largest army of 3,500,000 men.

Experts who study Soviet military affairs say Russia has 41 divisions along the Chinese border and that it would need 120 to launch a war.

Military men are agreed that a war between Russia and China would make the long conflict in Vietnam look like a Sunday school picnic.

Closing Shipyard Means Human Waste

Editor, Newton Graphic:

As both a resident of Newton and an employee of the Boston Naval Shipyard (I am the editor of the house organ published bi-weekly for all Shipyard workers), I feel compelled to respond to your recent editorial.

You appear to have swallowed the common, but groundless, assumption that private businesses are lined up ten deep, just waiting to get their hands on the property in Charlestown and South Boston now occupied by the Shipyard in order to start new industries or enlarge present ones.

First, there is no assurance that the federal government, which now owns this land, is going to sell it or otherwise make it available to the private sector. Second, the recent history of this Commonwealth suggests that industries are at least as likely to move OUT, or even go out of business, as they are to move IN, or start new businesses. Moving INTO the core city seems equally improbable; the flight to the suburbs has not been wholly residential.

Most of our skilled mechanics may indeed be eventually absorbed into private industry – no doubt at lower wages, and of course required to start all over again to build their seniority and retirement rights – no big deal for those who are 25, but something else again for those who are 52.

But what of the clerical force? What, for example, of the Supply Clerk who has mastered the Navy's highly complex supply system and thus knows exactly what to do to expedite the shipment of a propeller shaft so that USS WHATSHERNAME can sail next week on schedule for the Mediterranean? Not an ability likely to be welcomed by glad cries in private industry, however valuable it was to the shipyard.

What distresses me most is the human waste that will result from this closing. Many of our employees are eligible for a pension now, however small it may be. Most will have to find other work to supplement their pensions; a few may be able to survive on their pensions alone -- IF they move to some less expensive area of the country. Too many of those who will retire are in their 40s and 50s, still at the peak of their powers. Were it not for the closing, they would have ten or more highly productive years ahead of them. Instead, they will vegetate on the porch of a cottage (now a year-round home) in New Hampshire.

It may well be that the closing of the Boston Naval Shipyard will eventually be beneficial. After all, eventually everyone whose life is twisted by it will be dead. Your long-range view is very high-minded. But please spare a thought to the immediate effects on some very unhappy people who still have to pay a mortgage or rent and send their children to college, whether the Shipyard is obsolete or not.

Obsolete? We used to think it was historic, and were even naive enough to be proud of its great age.

Incidentally, know anyone who has a job for a Shipyard newspaper editor – or for any of my 5,000 co-workers?

Lauds Mayor

Editor, Newton Graphic:

I have been a rather outspoken critic of Mayor Mann over the past year or so. When credit is due I like to give it. . be it positive or negative.

This letter addresses itself to a very positive observation which I felt I'd like to share with you and your readers.

Of late, I came to Mayor Mann and asked him whether or not he would have time to drop by a fund-raising party which was a benefit for Medical Aid for Indochina. I was most pleased when he not only took time off from his hectic mayoral schedule to drop by the party, but followed up this action by issuing a PROCLAMATION OF CONCERN FOR CIVILIANS SUFFERING IN INDOCHINA no more than a week later.

Perhaps he and I have differed rather decisively on certain issues in the past, however, issues such as reparations are also controversial and I for one was greatly pleased to see our mayor take such a commendable stand.

I think that (pardon the overly used phrase) truly Mann is not "a man for all seasons". . .but he does come into season and when he does I plan to acknowledge it.

Admiration For Centennial

Editor, Newton Graphic:

I am moved to express my admiration and appreciation of the quality and scope of the programs presented under the auspices of the Newton Centennial Commission. Members of the Commission and our city officials responsible for the success of the celebration deserve our hearty approval and commendation.

The Commission's publication, "Newton Centennial Journal" is excellent. Interesting, informative, and most attractive, it is well worth having and I urge my neighbors to get their copy if they do not already have one. It belongs in every Newton home.

Dog Shooting 'Shocking'

Editor, Newton Graphic:

The recent shooting of the dog in Newtonville by an animal control officer is shocking to most people who do not think this kind of confrontation between men and domestic animals is necessary.

The shooting really represents our neglect and misunderstanding of what animal control should be and how it can best be carried out. We empowered the Police Department to perform a task which we often fail to do ourselves; namely, control our pets.

If it is protection we seek for our children, our animals and our property, we must take a more active citizen role in the operation of animal control. The ever-increasing dog and cat overpopulation now estimated at 10,000 born every hour means that more and more neglected, unwanted animals are roaming our streets in a state of distress that can be harmful to everyone concerned.

To tackle this very real situation the people of Newton and other communities must take a closer look at animal control in all its aspects. Such an examination must include consideration of the need for low cost spay clinics, school education programs regarding overpopulation and the environment, and finally, a specially trained and equipped animal control system. We are sure that the nucleus of such programs exist in this city now and many other cities look upon the Newton Dept. of Animal Control as a model to follow.

We of the Animal Birth Control Action League, a citizens' group committed to education and legislation policies which will solve these problems, invite everyone concerned to join with us this Thursday evening, May 17, at 27 Howland Rd., West Newton at 7:30 p.m. to discuss such issues and see to it that a repeat of the incident that killed "Strider" last week does not happen.

Anyone with information, suggestions or questions is welcome to call us at 965-4291. We hope that the citizens of Newton will respond to this unhappy event constructively by joining with the Newton Chapter of ABCAL as it begins its work here.

Mayor Theodore D. Mann, present for the finalization of the recommendations, cautioned against expecting too much from the city. "We have to stimulate citizens to come forward to give, preserve, conserve," he said, and pointed out that he is trying to get a new library built by public funding.

Announces Appointments

Newton Fire Chief Frederick A. Perkins Jr. recently announced two new appointments.

Edward B. Reilly Jr. of 167 Adams Ave., West Newton, has been promoted from the rank of captain to assistant chief. Reilly joined the department on Oct. 28, 1951, was promoted to lieutenant in April, 1959, and attained the rank of captain in December, 1969.

Karl W. Meinhart, Jr. of 182 Beethoven Ave., Newton Highlands, has been promoted to the rank of captain. He has been a lieutenant since July, 1965. Meinhart joined the department in December, 1956. Currently, he is assigned to Station Three in Newton Centre.

Reilly fills the vacancy created by the retirement of Assistant Chief Henry L. Murphy of 251 Tremont St., Newton. Murphy joined the department in 1931 and retired earlier this month.

Stacey Ann Winer of Newton recently received a bachelor of fine arts degree at commencement exercises of the University of Oklahoma.

The university's first commencement speaker in 20 years, Senator Walter F. Mondale (D-Minn.), addressed the candidates for degrees.

That wonderful substance we call fabric — we'd be mighty cold and uncomfortable without it!—remains a mystery to many people. Although we use cloth and its derivatives for almost everything under the sun, the fact remains that most of us are not exactly sure what it is we're wearing, draping, walking on, sitting on. And when it comes to caring for any particular fabric, confusion is compounded! In the weeks and months to come, we hope to bring to you some interesting facts about fabrics, their make-up, and how to keep them in fine condition. Follow us periodically on this trip through Fabrics: history, analysis, cleaning, spot removal, storage. We'll try to make your journey both educational and enjoyable!

MRS. ARTHUR A. PERLIS

Myra Stiller Is Bride Of Arthur Alan Perlis

Wed recently at the Blue Hill Country Club, Canton, were Miss Myra Barbara Stiller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Stiller, and Arthur Alan Perlis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Perlis, all of Newton.

Rabbi Robert Miller of Temple Beth Avodah, Newton, officiated at the ceremony at 6 p.m. A reception followed at the country club and the couple left for a wedding trip to Acapulco.

Rotarians Meet Popoff

Harking back to the days of vaudeville, Rotary members were treated to a performance by Paul Weinstein, former secretary of the Marblehead Rotary Club, at a recent local meeting.

Weinstein travels in his disguise as Nicholas Popoff, fire marshall of Bucharest, Romania, to various clubs. All proceeds of his appearances go to the assistance of crippled children, particularly those afflicted with dysantonomia, a disease affecting growth, eyesight, and hearing in babies.

Rotarian Charles Laffin also reports that all is "going well" for the big Centennial Homecoming Garden Party, to be held Sunday, May 27 at the Marriott.

More than 25 nationally known residents have agreed to attend, he said.

Deadline for tickets to the Rotary Pops Night is June 5. The evening includes dinner at the Pillar House and bus transportation to the concert. Ben Evans is in charge.

FIRE

Many March For Newton Mental Health Association

The Newton Jaycees and The Newton Mental Health Association are holding a "March for Mental Health" on Sunday, May 20, beginning at 11 a.m. All interested citizens are invited to participate, either to march or to sponsor a marcher.

Volunteer marchers and sponsors are asked to register now at either the Newton Mental Health Center, 64 Eldridge St. or the Cornell Insurance Agency, 1357 Washington St. After registration, the volunteer should procure at least one sponsor for a flat dollar amount contribution ($1 or more) and meet with the march co-ordinators on Sunday morning, May 20, at 10:30, at a nearby starting point.

All marchers will then bring their contributions to the finish line at City Hall. There are seven starting points around the perimeter of the city. They are (1) corner of Quinnebequin and Varick Roads, (2) Newton Upper Falls Playground, (3) Newton South High School Parking Lot, (4) Commonwealth Ave. at Boston College, (5) Boyd Park, (6) Albemarle Playground and (7) Burr School.

Participating in the march will be members of the Newton Mental Health Center, Newton Jaycees, city aldermen, state representatives, members of the mayor's office, school children and members of different civic and church organizations. Even the National Guard will be represented by SP-4 Robert Alkon who is a motor specialist of A Co. 187th Spt. Bn. from Hingham. Alkon is also a member of the Jaycees.

When it was mentioned that other groups have recently held fund raising events for Mental Health, Jaycee Chairman Ted Gross had this explanation of the Jaycees' March.

"The proceeds of this march will go to the Newton Mental Health Center for their benefit exclusively. We are asking the citizens of Newton to help our local chapter because they are concerned with the Newton residents who are afflicted with mental health problems.

"Another reason," Gross continued, "is that the previous fund raisers were concerned with long bicycle rides and marches. Our march is unique in that each route is only two and one-half to three miles long. Young children and older people are able to participate in this one because the routes are much shorter. Of course, we will have a car accompanying the marchers and a doctor will be on hand in the event of an emergency."

Refreshments will be served to all participants at City Hall.

For additional information, interested parties are urged to call Clara Friedman at 332-9516 or Jeff Cornell at 965-0200.

Pre-Schoolers Visit Hospital

More than 100 pre-school children from three local nursery schools will get a chance to listen to a stethoscope, try out crutches and ride in wheelchairs when they participate in a two-hour "Friendly Hospital" program, May 25, at the Newton-Wellesley Hospital School of Nursing.

The children, who attend Newton's ABC Nursery School, the Community Child Care Center in Wellesley Hills and Brook Garden Nursery School, Wellesley, will be the guests of 61 first-year nursing students who visited the nursery schools while enrolled in a child growth and development course at the School of Nursing.

Under the direction of Lorelle Pelletier, R.N., nursing of children instructor, who developed the program, the nursing students will show the children some of the tools used by doctors and nurses and teach them how they work.

Booths staffed by small groups of students will be set up to take the children's blood pressures and measure their heights and weights. At other stations, the children will be encouraged to try on hospital gowns and gloves, enter an oxygen tent, and learn some fascinating things about bandages, microscopes, thermometers and casts.

Tours of several hospital departments, including the Admitting Office and Clinical Laboratories, reading from children's books, and punch and cookies will also highlight the children's day at the hospital.

Angier School Seeks Talented Craftsmen

Talented craftsmen interested in displaying and selling their wares may contact M. Karger at 332-9149.

Senator Brooke Expands Hours

Senator Edward W. Brooke, recently announced expanded hours of operation for his Boston office. The new hours, now in effect, are from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m., Monday through Friday.

In announcing the change in schedule, Senator Brooke acknowledged that, "The normal business hours of many of our constituents are nearly the same as our old hours of 9 to 5:30, Monday through Friday. By opening one hour earlier in the morning and closing one-half hour later in the evening, we will be able to provide service to those people who would otherwise have to take time from their jobs to visit or call us."

The Senator added that the personnel manning the office during the new early morning and late afternoon periods would record the volume and nature of constituent visits and calls in order to determine, at some future date, whether the policy is an effective enough public service to be continued indefinitely. The office is located on the 20th floor of the John F. Kennedy Federal Building at Government Plaza.

The highest toll ever paid to pass through the Panama Canal was $32,196 paid by a Norwegian vessel, the "Vitoria," in June, 1968.

Boston CARIH Donor Dinner

Boston Chapter of Children's Asthma Research Institute and Hospital (CARIH) will hold its annual donor dinner on May 17 at the Chateau Garod in Brookline at 6:30 p.m. Greetings will be extended by Boston Chapter President Lorre Mehlinger.

Guest speaker of the evening will be Erwin Kornfeld, 1973 chairman of CARIH Auxiliaries Convention held annually in Denver at CARIH's hospital facility. Members of Boston Chapter of CARIH will be treated to Boston Chapter's adaptation of an original CARIH skit entitled Tribal Tribute.

Boston Chapter of CARIH is just one of the hundreds of Carih chapters throughout the United States and Canada whose men and women volunteer their time and effort to the support of intractable asthmatic children being rehabilitated at CARIH in Denver. CARIH is the only institution of its kind dedicated solely to the free care and treatment of these children and to an extensive research program into the causes of allergic diseases of which asthma is the worst.

Built-In Obsolescence In Men's Fashions Backfired in 70-71

By WALTER LOGAN

NEW YORK (UPI) — The men's clothing industry was hit by a tremendous recession in 1970 and 1971 for the simple reason that a man with a good suit wasn't about to throw it away because someone told him his lapels were too narrow. The industry has learned its lesson and men are buying again.

Tom McWhirter, senior vice president-marketing of Crickteeer, a division of the Joseph & Feiss Co., of Cleveland, Ohio, says it was because the clothing industry was trying to follow the Detroit lead and build in fashion obsolescence. It didn't take.

"The designers would change lapels from two to five inches overnight" he said. "But you would see big executives of big department stores wearing suits with lapels that weren't considered fashionable. They weren't about to throw away a good suit and neither was the average man."

During those recession years men simply lost credulity in suit styles and stopped buying. The basic styles were stabilized after that and along came the double knit which had tremendous impact on the market, reviving an interest that had almost vanished.

Tremendous Innovation

"Now there is a tremendous fabric innovation, a textured polyester," McWhirter said. "It simply means there is a certain amount of stretch and shape retention built in and it usually is called a stretch woven. Prices are up slightly because of a tremendous demand but it is somewhat higher than a knit and somewhat lower than a woven."

Prices of men's clothes are up an average 10 per cent currently — even more than meat—and the stretch woven may be the answer. Double knit fabrics cost around $2.50 to $3 a yard while good worsteds run as high as $7. The stretch woven is somewhere in between at $3 to $4 for some.

"If $10 is important to a man he must take a good look at what he is buying," McWhirter said. "But I don't know if that is the answer. The escalation of prices seems to have hit clothes more than other items. Men used to buying a higher-priced suit may have to scale down to a lower price range."

But McWhirter says the desire for new clothes is on the upswing after that two-year famine and this can be attributed to a number of things—new technology in fabrics and a return to the classic look which will stay put.

The Basic Suit

But as for models, the basic suit has a two-button jacket with a fitted waist and fairly wide lapels. The interest applies almost entirely to colors and fabrics and McWhirter says he is striving to keep a strong brand since in the days of galloping inflation a consumer must have a brand name in which he can have faith. The firm is the oldest in the country, founded in 1841, and is close to being the biggest.

McWhirter reports two of the hottest items for spring and summer wear are seersucker double knits and a three-piece suit which helps beat inflation by providing both a suit and a jacket that can be worn with the contrasting slacks.

"A man can wear a suit to the office then slip on his sports jacket with the same slacks for wear at a ball game or for weekend use," he said. "There is quite an interest in a natural look in this—and shades of the Gatsby era—the linen look, the silk look.

"White is predominant and it shows up either in suits or in white accents. Shades of red are creeping in, primarily in sports wear with red an accent in plaids. But wait until spring of 1974—you will see a lot more.

"We show a modified flare in our trouser, but nothing approaching the extreme baggie look. There are some pleats but they are modified and they are finding what I would call a disinterested acceptance. Cuffs, of course, are back."

WOMEN'S COMMITTEE OF THE KIDNEY FOUNDATION OF MASS. is completing arrangements for the "The Isle of Skorpios Ball and Bazaar" to be held Saturday, May 19 at the "57" Complex, 200 Stuart street, Boston. Friendship Dinner For Cong. Moakley

Cong. Joseph Moakley is giving a real service to the people of the Ninth District, is right on the main issues and has the personal qualities needed in public life today, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy told an audience of about 500 at a friendship dinner for the Congressman Friday night at the Statler Hilton Hotel.

In a lighter vein he said that John Connally in returning to a post in the Nixon administration was just trying to wrestle the GOP from Vice President Agnew and Frank Sinatra.

Seated at the head table were Mrs. Moakley, Atty Gen. Robert Quinn and Mrs. Quinn, School Committeeman and Register of Probate for Suffolk County James W. Hennigan, Ken Lyons, head of the National Assn. of Government Employees; William McCarthy of the Teamsters Union, Fire Commissioner and Mrs. James H. Kelley; and Rev. Msgr. Robert W. McNeil, director of the Archdiocesan CYO, who gave the invocation and the benediction.

The toastmaster was Larry Glick, a radio station announcer.

Both Congressmen Thomas (Tip) O'Neill and James A. Burke sent letters of regret for not being able to attend due to the pressure of business in Washington. Mayor Kevin H. White was also unable to attend due to a conflict in his schedule.

In his thank-you speech to those attending the affair, Cong. Moakley remarked that he and his wife had been kept busy the past few days opening the 4,000 telegrams received, all from The Committee to Re-elect the President.

Following the roast beef dinner and the speeches there was dancing in the main ballroom.

His life and his ministry have been dedicated to promoting friendship between man and man, race and race, Christian and Jew. His concern for racial equality has resulted in an honorary life membership of the NAACP. As Boston chairman of the Fellowship in Israel for Arab-Jewish Youth, he has spearheaded efforts to raise funds enabling Jews and Arabs to learn to study, work and socialize together in Israel through scholarships, seminars, clubs, and athletic events.

Special invitations were extended to over 3000 life members to attend the Awards Luncheon. Mrs. Joseph Soltz, Newton Center, is the Boston Life Membership chairman.

Fagan Wins Award In Chemistry Contest

Richard A. Fagan, 119 Harwich Rd., Newton, a student at Newton South High School, recently received the third prize of $100 in the 15th Annual Avery A. Ashdown High School Chemistry Examination Contest.

Presentations of the award were made before nearly 300 professional chemists and chemical engineers at Emmanuel College, Boston, where the annual "Student Night" program of the Northeastern Section of the American Chemical Society, sponsor of the contest, was held.

More than 300 students competed for the scholarship awards totaling more than $1200.

Mr. and Mrs. Tommaso Palermo of West Newton are parents of twin boys, born April 16 at Newton-Wellesley hospital.

Congratulations The Honorable Alfred L. He was congratulated on receiving the honor by outgoing Bar Association President Charles Schwartz, right, of Newton.

Newton College Receives Grant

Newton College received a grant of $19,200 this week from the National Science Foundation for support of a National Conference on the Development of a Mathematics Curriculum for grades 6 through 9.

The project will be under the direction of Dr. Uri Haber-Schaim, director of the Physical Science Group located at Newton College.

The conference, Dr. Haber-Schaim reported, will be held at the Ralph Waldo Emerson Inn on Cape Ann from Sept. 9-12.

"There is little doubt that the state of mathematics today at the junior high level is rather unsatisfactory. To find ways to remedy the situation, we propose to bring together a group of about 20 persons and join them in exploring ways for the development of better programs," Dr. Haber-Schaim explained.

"Since we look at mathematics as a structure which connects various other fields of study, just as English does, we feel that it is important that the participants of the conference be drawn not only from the fields of mathematics and mathematics education but also from the physical, biological and social sciences, as well as English," Dr. Haber-Schaim said.

The Physical Science Group has developed science programs at the secondary and college level that are widely used in the United States and abroad. The group is also very active in pre-service and in-service teacher education.

Housing For Elderly Discussed time, and have daily visitors equal to 7 or 8 per cent of the resident population.

Opposition to the life care center was led by Joseph Weinfield, of Stanton Avenue, who said that he was speaking for five other abutters, none of whom had been notified of the hearing, as is required by law.

Weinfield cited traffic on Washington St., saying it is "virtual suicide" to try to get into the traffic flow from a side street in the area, and said, "Imagine these people trying to climb the hill up Stanton Avenue."

But most important, Weinfield said, is the fact that "the people on Stanton Avenue bought there because of the wide open spaces—they were not told that business might be coming in."

Michael Bernard, another abutter, said, "I relied on zoning in the area when I purchased my house. This is commercial use. You don't go from a single-family zone to a cliff."

At the conclusion of the hearing, a show of hands requested by Alvin Barkin, chairman of the Land Use Committee, showed eight in favor of the life care proposal, two opposed.

The life care proposal, which requires the granting of permissive use and a waiver of height restriction by the Board of Aldermen, will be discussed at a Land Use committee meeting called for tonight at 8 p.m. (May 17), as will seven other requests for which public hearings were held this week.

Plan

Alderman Richard Bullwinkle asked Dudman, "Are you eliminating the position of assistant director of Public Works?"

Dudman replied, "I am not proposing an assistant director of Public Works."

Pursuing reorganization, Egelson said he would not vote for replacing the general superintendent until he sees the plan. Dudman said that he could not release it, that his responsibility is to the executive, and "given the year it is, it may take until December" for the mayor to make the plan public, referring to the upcoming mayoral election campaign.

Several of the division foremen spoke in favor of filling the job of general superintendent. They feel the position is a chance for advancement (it is the highest level job in the work force) as well as being important to the functioning of the Public Works Department.

The Finance Committee voted 6-0 to hold the request until more information on the reorganization is received.

Mayor Mann said late last week that study of the reorganization "will take as long as it has to take." He will not be pressured into releasing the plan, he added.

The mayor listed several improvements that have been made in the operation of the Public Works Department since Dudman's takeover, such as a reduction in the size of work crews, control of coffee hours, improved rubbish pickups, and implementation of environmental programs.

"We have already adopted many new management techniques to eliminate inefficiencies, and we will possibly be presenting certain ordinance changes that would change existing job roles," the mayor concluded.

Announce Award Recipients For Annual Goodwill Dinner

Alan King, star of stage and screen and outstanding TV personality, will be one of the three award recipients at the 35th annual Goodwill Dinner of the Massachusetts Committee, Catholics, Protestants and Jews, Thursday, May 24, at the statler-Hilton Hotel in Boston.

Thomas J. Galligan Jr., president of Boston Edison and chairman of the Massachusetts Committee, announced the award to King. Citations will also be given to General Benjamin O. Davis Jr., Assistant Secretary of Transportation for Safety and Consumer Affairs and to Hon. Cong. Thomas P O'Neill Jr., Majority Leader, U.S. House of Representatives.

The Mass. Committee is joining a host of organizations which have honored Alan King for his achievements and accomplishments in charity work and devotion to humanitarian causes. His philanthropic activities have benefited many foundations, educational institutions, hospitals and the needy.

Congressman O'Neill of Cambridge has received numerous public service awards including the distinguished Service Citation from the Disabled American Veterans and the 1971 "Federal Man of the Year Award" from the National Association of Mutual Insurance Agents. He currently serves on the board of directors of Boston College. Benjamin O. Davis Jr., who is being honored by the Committee, served with distinction in the U.S. Army Air Force and rose to the rank of Lt. General before he retired in February of 1970 following a distinguished career during which he saw service in North Africa, Italy, Korea, Japan, Germany and Formosa.

Thomas J. Galligan Jr., chairman of the Massachusetts Committee, will be general chairman of the Dinner Committee. More than 1200 members and guests of the Committee are expected to fill the Main Ballroom of the Statler-Hilton Hotel for this occasion.

Norman L Cahners, chairman of the Cahners Publishing Co., Inc., of Boston, will be toastmaster of the evening. Honorary chairman for the Dinner is Governor Francis W. Sargent and honorary vice-chairman is Mayor Kevin H. White of Boston.

A special report on the activities of the Committee will be made by Galligan. In the past year the Committee has been active in cooperating with the Good Citizenship Program of the Boston Park Department, Tufts University Civic Education Project, Brandeis University Three Chapels Program, Massachusetts Department of Education and the Human Relations Center at Boston University. Last month the Committee sponsored its 23rd annual junior Goodwill Dinner at Fenway Park in cooperation with the Boston Red Sox.

The Massachusetts Committee is responsible for the distribution of thousands of copies of educational material, dealing with human relations, to school teachers and heads of educational institutions. It also sponsors scholarships and other assistance for school teachers interested in human relations programs.

Head table guests for this year's Dinner will include outstanding religious, civic, and educational leaders in the Commonwealth. Also invited as guests of the Committee will be student representatives from all the major colleges and universities in the Greater Boston area.

The Committee on arrangements is headed by Ben G. Shapiro, secretary of the Massachusetts Committee. He is being assisted by John I. Ahern, Thomas G. Feenan, Robert Cusick, Gerard E. Hayes, Wyman Holmes, John Larner, Harold R. Masterman, Louis A. Miller, James Ryan and Isadore Zack.

WEIGHTY SYMBOL

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (UPI) — A statue of Vulcan, symbolizing Birmingham's iron industry and overlooking the city from Red Mountain, weighs 120,000 pounds. The statue of the Greek god holds a 300-pound hammer and stands beside a 6,000 pound anvil. The statue is 56 feet tall.

RECORD, OF SORTS

PERTH, Australia (UPI) — Don Pedro, 71, a pensioner with no fixed address, has received his 551st conviction for drunkenness in Perth Police Court.

"It's incredible," the magistrate said, and added he couldn't think of anything else to do with Pedro, so he jailed him for 14 days.

Summer Job Program

A summer job might mean the difference between returning to school next fall—or entering the school of hard knocks on the road to nowhere for an economically disadvantaged youth in the greater Boston area.

With the present scope of anticipated federal funding cutbacks, agencies such as the Neighborhood Youth Corps which traditionally supply summer openings, would not be able to maintain their regular program this year.

Along with pocket money, this means cutting off valuable work experience that might be the difference between finishing school, or becoming discouraged and "dropping out."

To re-direct the search for summer employment opportunities, a cooordinated effort of several Boston agencies, directed by the Division of Employment Security (DES), have been combing the private business sector seeking jobs.

Spearheaded by DES staff, agencies have pooled manpower, supplies, money and a centrally located office where all job orders are taken and distributed to youths after they are screened for both qualifications and background which must meet the federal guidelines for disadvantaged youth.

Over 2,000 telephone calls and 3,500 letters have already gone out to greater Boston businesses asking support for these youths for whom it otherwise could become a long, hot summer empty of any opportunity.

It has been estimated by Ronald J. Mahoney, director of the Boston Summer Job Program for the agencies involved, that there will be over 12,000 economically disadvantaged students seeking work either now, or immediately after Boston schools close next month.

He urged employers to give those youths a chance to learn self-confidence by providing a summer job experience, which if it is their first, might prove to be the door into a productive future.

Mahoney noted that employers could contact the program's central office at 5 Doane street, Boston, anytime if they have summer jobs they would like filled.

Other agencies participating in the program are the Boston Chamber of Commerce, the City of Boston. Action for Boston Community Development and the National Alliance of Businessmen.

Postal Service Purchasing New Vehicles

To improve mail delivery service, the U. S. Postal Service is buying 14,277 postal vehicles at a cost of $32 million from American General Corporation of South Bend, Ind., the Service announced today.

The purchase is being made by exercising options under existing contracts with American General. Ordered and now in production are 10,453 quarter-ton vehicles. An additional 3,824 half-ton trucks have been ordered for delivery beginning this month and continuing through December, 1974.

Each quarter-ton vehicle, with a 52-cubic foot storage capacity behind the driver, permits easy access to curb postal boxes and is maneuverable in residential areas.

The larger half-ton vehicle has a storage capacity of 12[illegible] cubic feet and will be used to haul heavy volumes of mail in more sparsely populated areas. Each vehicle will have a sliding work tray so that the carrier can handle his deliveries from inside the truck.

Annual Meeting and Open House Held by Red Cross

At the annual meeting and open house of the Greater Boston Chapter, American National Red Cross, held recently at the Service Center, 99 Brookline avenue, volunteers heard a special message from American Red Cross Chairman Frank Stanton in which he said that the organization's disaster relief funds are totally depleted.

Stanton called on the organization's 3,100 chapters to begin special fund campaigns at once to continue needed help to victims of recent disasters and to enable the Red Cross to meet its disaster relief obligations in the weeks immediately ahead.

"Wtih a record flood crest now moving down the Mississippi River and the spring disaster season at its peak," Stanton said, "the situation is precarious and will continue so for several weeks." The quota established for Red Cross Chapters in the Massachusetts Bay area is $117,207. Residents are asked to send their checks to their local Red Cross Chapter or to 99 Brookline avenue, Boston.

Two hundred eighty-eight volunteers were awarded service pins having completed their first five or another five years of service in 1973.

At the brief business meeting conducted by Vice Chairman R. Forbes Perkins, of Manchester, the following were elected as members of the board to serve for a term of three years.

Robert L. Allen, Lincoln; Samuel L. Batchelder, Jr., Chestnut Hill; Cleo R. Beauchamp, Chelmsford; Martin S. Berman, Boston; Miss Margaret Divver, Melrose; Charles M. Doucot, Jr., South Boston; Mrs. George N. Friedlander, Boston; Gerard A. Glass, Boston; William H. Guerin, Watertown; Allan E. Hart, Wakefield; Mrs. Christopher C. Ingraham, Westwood; Mrs. Anna G. Jackson, Lexington; Franklin King, Jr., Sherborn; Mrs. John W. Lothrop, Windham, New Hampshire; Paul L. McGill, Cambridge; Alan B. Rice, Brookline; Oscar Tenenbaum, Newton; Ben Ames Williams, Jr., Jamaica Plain; William E. Williams, Lynnfield; and Charles F. Woodard, Medfield.

Auction Week Volunteers

Area residents are among the more than 2000 volunteers who will be working before the cameras and behind the scenes of the 8th annual Channel 2 Auction. The nine-day auction begins June 1st, and continues through June 9th, with more than 100 hours devoted to the auctioning off of products and services donated by many local merchants.

Auction week jobs for volunteers have developed their own glossary of terms including: bid runners . . bid takers . . board markers . . confirmers . . flood planners . . lobby checkers, models, pick-up-and-pay . . table assistants, table unloaders . . table writers . . trouble shooters . . auctioneer hostesses.

During the early planning stages of go-getting for the auction and during the actual production of this "telephonic extravaganza," nearly 5000 volunteers from all parts of New England participate.

Auction manager is Hamilton Osgood, himself a volunteer since the Auction's inception eight years ago. Assisting him in key volunteer roles are: Mrs. Frederic Grant, Wellesley Hills, go-getter chairman; and Mrs. Grant LaFarge, Brookline, auction week chairman.

The following local women, who will head major job assignments during Auction Week, are: Miss Ursula Kent, Jamaica Plain, bid runner; Mrs. Kenneth Ball, Dover, board marker; Mrs. A. Gareth Keith, Needham data center; Mrs. Ernest Petrillo, Dedham, food; Mrs. Dan Healey, Norwood, pick up and pay; Mrs. Renee Winick, Newton, Prudential art preview; and Mrs. James Epstein, Sharon, table unloader.

WARDENS WARNED

SANTA FE, N.M. (UPI) — The New Mexico Game and Fish Department has warned its game wardens to be on the lookout for increased poaching of deer and elk because of meat prices.

Department Director Ladd Gordon said the agency expects the high price of meat will stimulate more people to shoot game out of season.

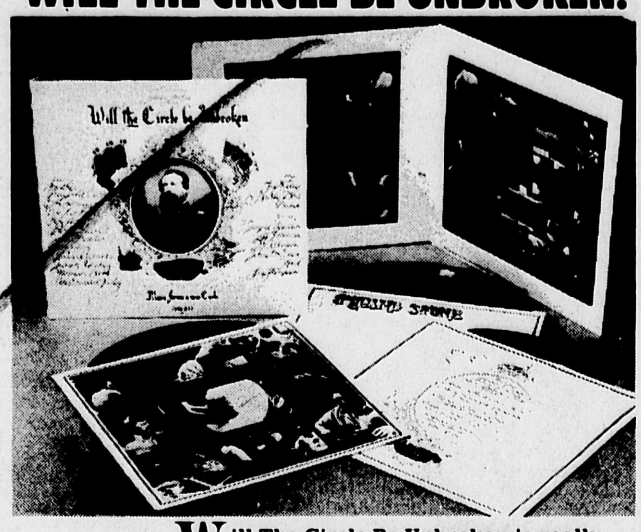
WILL THE CIRCLE BE UNBROKEN?



Will The Circle Be Unbroken is really more than an album. It's a 6 sided documentary, a retrospective of American Country Music... As The Nashville Tennessean said,*"The album the Nitty Gritty Dirt Band recorded with Roy Acuff, Jimmy Martin, Mother Maybelle Carter, Earl Scruggs, Merle Travis, and Doc Watson may well be one of the most important recordings done in the 45 years of the Nashville music business."

Innovations In Sound

You've probably never thought of your car as an ideal stereo listening studio. Well, it is! The minute you sit in your stereo equipped auto, you're blanketed in thrilling sound. You'll witness an entirely new perspective in stereo listening: a richness in stereophony and realism of sound reproduction that has never before been possible. Now, with stereo tape cartridges, whether you listen in your car, home, boat, plane or trailer you enjoy an unparallelled sound sensation . . . crisp clarity and maximum fidelity, superior craftsmanship . . . and a wealth of music for every taste from Broadway to The Beatles, from current hits to classical.

Stereo cartridges are carefully engineered to afford maximum reliability and convenience of operation.

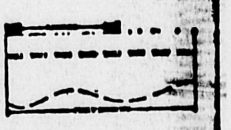
1. You never have to thread or even touch the tape.

2. You may change from one stereo program to another with the press of a button.

3. Tapes are continuous and never need rewinding.

4. With a minimum of care, the playing life of the tape is practically unlimited.

What is four-track and eight-track stereo tape? Within the ¼-inch tape width, music is recorded on four or eight parallel tracks which run the length of the tape. Two tracks play simultaneously and produce true stereo sound. Standard tapes provide up to 40 minutes of continuous music. Twin cartridges up to 80 minutes.



How does a tape cartridge work Stereo cartridges contain a tape in a continuous loop, which simply means that the tape runs from the center of the spool and is returned to the outer lap of the reel. Thus, never needs rewinding. Inserting the cartridge into the tape playback unit is probably as easy as replacing your cigarette lighter in the dash.

Seeing is believing, however, and perhaps the least expensive method for you to experience the unusual convenience engineered into a stereo tape is to visit a dealer and ask for a demonstration.

Realizing that stereo tapes are here to stay, Lechmere Sales of Cambridge and Dedham is now compiling substantial stocks. This foresighted record dealer and department store devoted exclusively to providing the consumer with even a larger and more complete musical selection than previously realized with the more traditional record album departments.

Long recognized as a retailing leader and innovator, Lechmere now features perhaps the largest selection of stereo tape cartridges in New England. It's a certainty that a visit to either Lechmere in Cambridge or Dedham will prove a most rewarding musical experience.

Now that the meat boycott has been over six weeks, what has it shown? According to one survey in 17 cities, beef, lamb and pork prices are as high as ever, if not higher. We also have heard that further boycotts could force farmers to cut back production, reducing the present short supply of meat, forcing prices even higher.

The boycott did demonstrate the ability of the housewives to band together for a common goal. During the first week in April, meat sales decreased as much as 50 per cent across the nation while overall volume of sales remained as high as ever, with sales up in dairy products, frozen foods and meat substitute specials.

Now that housewives have proved they can organize themselves, why don't they go further than singling out the farmer? Why not seek out money wasters who are often the shoppers themselves? How about a permanent boycott on overpriced junk foods that line market shelves, as well as the overpriced convenient foods which aren't really convenient.

Latest USDA food studies have shown a substantial increase in the consumption of snack foods and soft drinks instead of milk, vegetables and fruits containing nutrients people need. Due to this, diets in many families do not provide adequate nutrition.

Aside from the valuable loss of nutrition, what do these empty foods, high in calories, cost the consumer?

Potato chips sell for 59 cents for nine ounces. That is $1.05 per pound, about the same as a pound of ground beef. If you prefer sour cream flavor on your chips or ripple cut chips, you pay 59 cents for eight ounces, or $1.18 per pound. A five ounce bag of popcorn costs 39 cents or $1.25 per pound, the same price as a one pound four ounce can of unpopped corn.

Crackers that come in six festive shapes sell for 51 cents for eight ounces. A crispy potato cracker sells for 48 cents for five ounces, $1.54 per pound. How does that price compare to a pound of chuck steak? A box of crackers seasoned with artificial bacon flavoring costs 49 cents for 4.5 ounces, a whopping $1.74 per pound. You can buy a pound of bacon for less. If you want crackers, why not buy saltines for 37 cents a pound and add your own flavoring?

Next you have the dry breakfast cereals, many of them little more than sugared vitamins for which you pay on the average, 94 to 96 cents a pound. Many of the pre - sugared variety are introduced to your children during those Saturday cartoons. These sugared cereals, which are most costly and least nutritious, contain artificial flavoring, coloring and other additives you probably know little about.

Nutritionists have been pointing out the inadequacies of a dry cereal breakfast for some time, but cereal manufacturers have added more vitamins to their products, claim one can receive a nourishing breakfast from cereals, protein rich with the addition of milk. If one consumes the stuff with a soup ladle, maybe, but how much milk does a person drink with a teaspoon? The addition of vitamins does not make a food wholesome. Few breakfast cereals contain more protein than a slice of whole wheat bread. Some cereals are made of whole enriched grains, are convenient, and can be a nutritious addition to the morning meal, but they are not a complete breakfast and they will not make you feel like a million bucks.

Consumer Reports last year said that since 1967 the fat content of hot dogs has increased from 19 to 30 per cent, and the protein content has dropped from 20 to less than 12 per cent. The remaining composition includes water, cereal, flour and what have you. No hot dog boycott resulted even though protein in a hot dog costs about $10 per pound.

Consumers purchase gallons of drinks, canned, frozen and powdered, containing little more than sugar, corn syrup, artificial color and flavor. Who needs to consume artificial coloring and corn syrup each time he is thirsty? Imitation fruit juice advertisements may beguile the housewife into believing she is buying a nutritious beverage. Vitamin C added to sugared water is not nutritious. You can buy pure orange juice and dilute it with your own water and sugar.

Convenience food can be a boon to some people if it really is convenient, but but not if it requires as much work in preparation as would cooking from scratch, and the price difference . . . well, let's see. If you used a popular mixture that comes with its own plastic shaker bag to bread your chicken or fish during the meat boycott, you paid 25 cents for two ounces of wheat flour, bread crumbs, shortening, corn syrup, spices, preservations and artificial color. The price you paid per pound was $2. If you used another product to add to your tuna, you paid 57 cents for eight ounces of noodles you had to cook and a small packet of cheese mix. That comes to $1.14 a pound. A noodle dinner, containing beef flavor, noodles you must cook and a packet of sour cream mix costs 41 cents for six ounces, $1.09 a pound. For only nine cents more you can purchase a whole pound of noodles and a cup of pure sour cream. Rice mixes with various flavorings such as beef, chicken, or saffron costs 39 cents for seven ounces, 89 cents a pound. Since you must cook the rice anyway, why not buy plain enriched rice at 20 cents a pound and add your own flavoring, beef bouillon or chicken bouillon?

Pancake mix sells for 49 cents for two pounds, 24.5 cents a pound. It contains enriched flour, corn, oat and rice flours, leavening, dextrose, salt, nonfat dry milk, propylene glycol (an additive for moisture retention) and artificial color. You still must add milk, eggs and shortening. Buy five pounds of enriched flour at 69 cents, 13.8 cents per pound, measure, add eggs, milk, shortening plus baking powder and salt to make your own pancakes sans the artificials. You can even stir in your own corn, oat and rice flour, powdered milk and sugar for less than 24.5 cents per pound. Cake mix that sells for 41 cents for one pound and three ounces is too expensive when you have to add your own milk, eggs and sometimes shortening. Nineteen cents for a chicken pot pie that only contains an ounce of chicken is no bargain. A two-pound frozen turkey entree costing $1.49 is no big buy when the principal ingredient is gravy. Cheese, an excellent source of protein, is reduced in value and increased in cost when it has been processed with water, pimentos, vegetables, vegetable gum and other additives.

There are thousands of processed and prepared foods on the market, few listing the exact percentage of ingredients. The majority contain additives and fillers that cut down on nutrients. Some chemicals are needed to preserve foods. Some add enrichment, such as those in flour and rice. However, many chemicals in food are unnecessary, such as artificial color. Other chemicals have not been as thoroughly tested as they should have been.

The housewife should know what she is getting for her dollar. Consumer advocates are pressing Congress for truth in packaging laws, but their progress has been slow and costly. A simple law, if applied, could help solve this probelm. It is the law of supply and demand. If housewives would direct their efforts toward boycotting products that do not list the exact amount of contents, the supply would dwindle.

If housewives reduced their demand for junk foods, substituting more nutritious foods, the supply of junk would decrease.

If housewives would take time to read labels and compute unit costs of convenience foods, rejecting those overpriced in terms of convenience and taste, the supply would dwindle.

The cost of maintaining a supermarket has increased and will continue to do so as long as it is necessary to accommodate the many products requested by consumers. If housewives reduced their demand for junk foods, over priced convenience foods and insufficiently labeled products, it could reduce the overhead of supermarkets. That could affect the price of meat. The idea, at least, is food for thought.

Soccer Talk

By PAUL ELDRIDGE JR.

On April 28, the American Soccer League appointed Jim Karvellas as Commissioner Spokesman for the League.

Karvellas is President of the Baltimore Bays Soccer Club, formerly of the North American Soccer League.

The BAYS switched allegiance this year to the American Soccer League. ASL President, Walter Cleaver of the Delaware Wings, said, "Jim brings with him a national image in a number of sports areas, including basketball as the voice of the Baltimore Bullets."

"His national travel and expertise will assist us greatly in spreading the word about the ASL, America's largest and fastest growing professional Soccer Entity."

Kervallas will work closely with John Paris, National Public Relations Director of the ASL, in formulating a nation-wide campaign of promotion, publicity and merchandising, not only for the ASL, but for Soccer in general.

In accepting the position, Karvellas said, "A professional league in the United States, regardless of the sport, must achieve the high standards demanded by the American public."

"Young American Soccer athletes must look to the professional ranks for encouragement and guidance, and the ASL is obviously the place for them to look."

"I'm encouraged with the restructuring of the ASL and its progressive attitude and I consider this position an exciting and challenging opportunity in America's next big sport . . . SOCCER."

Karvellas reorganized the Bays a little more than a year ago. He appointed Joe Speca, who was a standout player with the Bays when the team played in the old NPSL, as the new coach.

The first player to be signed was Karl Minor. Minor also had the distinction of being the first player signed by the old Bays. Among the array of former players and college graduates to sign with the Bays was goalie, Lincoln Phillips. Many people will recognize Phillips more as the coach of Howard University.

The 1972 Bays played a schedule of friendly games with NASL teams and foreign teams that were touring the country. They played the Moscow Dynamo to a 3-3 tie in front of 17,854 fans in late August. The Bays should be one of the class teams in the league along with the Astros and Greeks.

SOCCER SHORTS

Coach Joe Morrone recently announced that his Connecticut Soccer School will again this year be held at the Choate School in Wallingford, Conn. There will be three full six-day sessions, August 5-11, August 12-18 and August 19-25.

I went down there last year to see what the school was like, and I was very much impressed with it. Coach Morrone has assembled a fine staff of coaches to work with the boys. Among them is Graham Ramsey, a professional soccer player from England. He holds a coaching license from England, Canada, and a USSFA "A" license, the only non-American to have one at the present time.

Not only does the school have a great staff, but the facilities are just "super". There are two full-size playing fields, six fields for six-a-side games and plenty of room for other games and drills.

I believe that if a boy is really serious about Soccer, he wouldn't go wrong if he attended this school. You can get additional information and applications by writing Coach Joe Morrone at 25 Hillside Circle, Storrs, Connecticut, 06268.

There will also be a Soccer Camp held locally the week of August 19-25 at Dean Jr. College in Franklin. Information on this camp may be obtained by writing George Beim, World Cup Soccer Clinics, 5 Mitchell Lane, Hanover, New Hampshire, 30755.

E. Walpole lost their National Jr. Cup game last Sunday, (May 13), to B. W. Gotchee Soccer Club of Brooklyn, New York, by a score of 2-0. This game, if you want to call it one, was let out of control by the referee.

Because of USSFA rules that say that all Cup games must have a neutral referee, this referee came from the Southern New England Association, and in my opinion is not even fit to call a "D" Division Game. There were several near fights and some punches were thrown by the New York team. They (N.Y.) also kept taking cheap pot shots at the Walpole boys throughout the game.

The referee did not even caution the N.Y. team, even when one of them, protesting one of his calls, kicked the ball completely out of Bird Athletic Field.

All I can say is that, despite all of the referee's questionable calls and unnecessary and dirty physical contact, the Walpole boys can be proud of themselves.

Not once did I see them retaliate except with hard and clean Soccer. Their parents can be pleased that their boys went out there just to play Soccer and that was what they did.

Coach Bob Ellis and his team should hold their heads up high. They showed the crowd of over 250 how to play Soccer.

Congratulations E. Walpole, N.E. Champs, and good luck the rest of the year and next season.

Castro's 'Mortgage' With Russia Lasts Until 2010

By MARTIN McREYNOLDS

MIAMI (UPI) — Anyone who bought a home with a 30-year mortgage recently knows what it feels like to contemplate payments stretching into the next century.

The home buyer has something in common with the Cuban government, which has closed a deal with the Soviet Union calling for repayment of Soviet credit through the end of the year 2010.

Premier Fidel Castro signed the "mortgage" during his last December visit to Moscow.

Instead of a house, Castro got: (1) a 13-year moratorium on the Cuban debt, estimated at roughly $3 billion; (2) generous terms for Soviet purchase of Cuban sugar and nickel; (3) fresh credits to make up for Cuba's anticipated trade deficit with Russia in the next three years; and (4) a promise of more than $300 million in new Soviet aid to develop nearly every aspect of the Cuban economy.

Accumulation Halted

According to an announcement by Castro Jan. 3, the Russians agreed to forego all collections on the Cuban debt for the next 13 years, and to halt the accumulation of interest as of Jan. 1.

Payment in Cuban goods and services will resume Jan. 1, 1986, and run for 25 years—through 2010.

The agreement ends three years of uncertainty over how Cuba would pay what it owes the Soviet Union, according to Leon Goure, director of Soviet Studies at the University of Miami's Center for Advanced International Studies.

"I think the Russians have resigned themselves to the fact that their involvement with Cuba is a very long haul and that there are no shortcuts for making it a paying proposition, or even making Cuba self-sufficient," Goure said.

A Breathing Space

The 13-year moratorium on debt payments may give Cuba a breathing space to improve its ailing economy, Goure said.

However, he attached little importance to the announcement the Soviet Union will pay 11 cents a pound for Cuban sugar and $5,000 a ton for nickel—prices well above the current world market levels.

"It's a phony thing," Goure said. "It's a matter of bookkeeping. The Russians will get some propaganda value out of saying 'see how much we pay the Cubans for their products?'"

Overall effect of the new agreements it to draw Cuba further into the Soviet system, Goure said. He noted that Cuba became a member of COMECON—the East European version of the European Common Market—in 1972 and the Cuban economy has been meshed into the current Soviet five-year plan since 1971.

COLD WALKING — Despite cold and cloudy weather, over 3,500 people from Boston and surrounding towns of Dedham, West Roxbury, Needham and Newton walked in the May 5 March of Dimes Walkathon. The route started and ended at Boston College and passed through sections of Boston, Cambridge, Watertown and Newton. An estimated $50,000 was raised in this walk. (Chalue Photo)

Soviet Dam Being Built To Stave Off Future Floods

MOSCOW (UPI) — "...The weather was getting worse. The waves were billowy and it was howling. It was boiling like a big kettle and suddenly like a wild animal in a fit of rage it threw itself upon the city ..."

The flood the Russian poet Pushkin was describing in his masterpiece "The Bronze Horseman," devastated Leningrad, the the imperial capital, in 1824.

It killed 569 persons, destroyed 300 buildings and damaged 3,000 more. It was only one of the [illegible] recorded floods that have swept in off the Gulf of Finland and smashed into the nation's second largest city almost every year since its founding by Peter the Great in 1703.

It was worse than the great flood of 1724, but that one helped kill Peter himself. Fishermen found the czar of all the Russias foundering in the flooded waters and yanked him out, but he still died from an ensuing cold.

The Soviet press recently reported Soviet engineers have begun work on designing and building a 16-mile dam across the 10-foot deep eastern end of the Gulf of Finland to end the flooding.

Hydroproject, the nation's dam-construction agency, projected an earth and rock dam rising 26 feet above sea level. It said the dam would protect the city of four million from flood waters ranging up to 18 feet above normal.

The disastrous 1824 flood rose 14 feet above normal high water and one in 1924 hit the 12-foot mark.

In addition to hydroproject's work, another 20 design agencies have started drawing up plans for a waterfront along Leningrad's marshy gulf shores. The repeated floods have so far prohibited development of the low-lying shoreline.

Attend Safety Seminar By Homemakers Council

Fifty women from five Massachusetts counties attended a safety seminar of the Massachusetts Homemakers Council recently at the Norfolk County Agricultural School and heard Massachusetts described as the worst state in New England in which to drive.

Mrs. Theodore Yankee, state safety chairman for the Homemakers, served as chairman of the seminar, assisted by Mrs. Israel Langley, president of the Massachusetts Extension Homemakers Council.

The seminar revealed the "grim story of carnage on the state's highways caused by the abusive drinking driver."

Homemakers were faced with the statistics showing 991 killed last year on Massachusetts highways, and they were challenged to do something about those statistics within their own communities.

Seminar participants included three staff members of the Boston Alcohol Safety Action Project: Dr. Milton Argeriou, director of rehabilitation; Dr. Joseph Liftik, research psychologist, and Robert Cox, public information officer.

Also participating were James B. Press, chief supervisor, Registry Driving Division, and Mrs. Mary McGrath of the Alcohol Information Referral.

"Operation DIRE" (Driver Improvement, Rehabilitation and Education) was launced by the Massachusetts Homemakers Council members who will take the program back to their own counties and stage similar seminars there. "Operation DIRE" is a part of the commitment of the National Extension Homemakers Council to support the United States Department of Transeminar on Alcohol Countermeasures Program, now underway.

Mrs. Yankee who has long been involved in highway traffic safety, attended a national seminar on Slcohol Countermeasures in Washington, D. C., in February.

Opening the discussion, Dr. Argeriou explained that the countermeasures program in Boston attempts to apprehend, identify and rehabilitate, abusive drinking drivers rather than to turn them loose to again abuse their driving privileges.

He explained that the Department of Transportation has attacked the drinking-driver problem because alcohol is involved in half the highway fatalities in Massachusetts and throughout the United States.

An innovation of the Boston Alcohol Safety Action Project (ASAP) is a system of probation now being used, Dr. Liftik explained. Through this system alternatives are offered both the judge and the abusive drinker, to the standard punitive treatment.

Cox asked the women to become activists in their communities, publicizing the work of the ASAP. He requested them to write their legislators "to get the drunks off the road for their sake and for yours." He also urged support for the continuation of the ASAP program or a similar effort following the three year period of federal funding during which ASAPs will be pilot demonstration projects determining the most effective methods of handling problem drinking drivers.

Press listed personal responsibility and family discipline as two of the most important weapons in any safe driving campaign.

Citing statistics of 991 killed, Press said Massachusetts is the worst state of all the New England states in which to drive.

Press listed four other chronic driving offenses, in addition to the drunk driver. They include intersection crashes, rear-end crashes, mystery one-car, high speed crashes and auto-pedestrian accidents.

Mrs. McGrath called alcoholism "an equal opportunity disease" that is no respecter of sex, color or religion. She supplied telephone numbers of Alcohol Information Referral services throughout the state, where help is offered and where homemakers may volunteer their assistance.

A question and answer session followed luncheon. Mrs. Warren Whitted, assistant to the director of Allstate Insurance Companies Women's Safety Division, recapped the day's program. A film on women's abuse of alcohol, "The Secret Love of Sandra Blaine" concluded the seminar.

Mru. Santina R. Curran, extension home economist, assisted Mrs. Yankee in coordinating the program.

Zoo Cuts Admission For Senior Citizens

The Boston Zoological Society announced today the establishment of a new admission policy for senior citizens. Anyone 65 years and older will be admitted to the Children's Zoo at half price. The regular adult admission price in fact is 75 cents but since you can't charge half of 75 cents the Society has placed the senior citizens admission at 35 cents.

This new admission policy began on opening day, April 28 and is good on any day the Children's Zoo is open, Monday through Sunday from 10 a.m. until 5 p.m. The Children's Zoo is located in Franklin Park and is owned by the Metropolitan District Commission and operated by the Boston Zoological Society.

"The Children's Zoo is a great experience for anyone," said S. Russell Sylva, executive director of the Boston Zoological Society, not just for youngsters. It is one of the very few places where the children have fun, the adults learn, and the entire family has an opportunity to enjoy a day together.

Antiques and Flea Market on Sunday to Aid Jewish Hospital

Over 100 exhibitors from the New England and Middle Atlantic States will converge on the spacious grounds of the Stop & Shop Supermarket, Route 9, Newton, next Sunday, May 20, from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m., as the 2nd Chestnut Hill Antiques and Flea Market holds forth, under the sponsorship of the non-sectarian Jewish Memorial Hospital, Boston, and managed by Sonia Paine of Chestnut Hill, nationally-known charitable organization promoter.

The multi-auxiliary groups of the Jewish Memorial Hospital are the co-ordinating units under the chairmanship of Mrs. Phineas Gordon of Chestnut Hill. Mrs. Michael Seidenberg of Brookline, is hospital group president.

There will be a nominal admission fee, but children accompanied by parents, will be guests of the day. Acres of free parking will be available, in addition to dining facilities, and rest areas.

Membership in the auxiliaries includes 8,000 members coming from all Greater Boston communities.

The general public is invited to participate in the day's activities.

Monies realized from the admittance fees will go to the medical care and rehabilitation of the hospital's program.

For almost half a century, Jewish Memorial Hospital has stood in the forefront of Medical Care and Rehabilitation.

Its reputation — built on a combination of medical expertise and compassion — is known throughout the country.

Its partnership of community support, staff dedication and medical progress is one which never ceases to grow.

When Jewish Memorial opened its first 25 beds, the term chronic disease meant terminal illness. Now, as JMH has expanded to ten times its original size, rehabilitation and chronic disease are synonymous.

Jewish Memorial Hospital is an affiliate of the Boston University Medical Center, The Northeastern University School of Physical Therapy, Simmons School of Social Work and the Boston School of Occupational Therapy. These professional affiliations assure that JMH will always be involved in the latest developments in surgical techniques, medical treatment and therapeutic and restorative devices.

JMH's program for the 70's, involves one thing that will never change — the dedication of the staff and paramedical personnel. Their objectives are, care, comfort and cure, which has created an atmosphere of personal interest so necessary for the peace of mind of the patient and his family.

Health For All

KIDS AND SMOKING PARENTS

Children want their parents to kick the cigarette habit. Now.

A University of Louisville study of 2,000 children showed an astounding finding. Of those aged 7 to 12, some 72 percent said they would love their parents more if they stopped smoking.

That almost sounds like withholding love, a discredited parental tactic. Or a promise of extra love if the parents do what the kids want.

Actually, the statement should probably read that children would really love it if their parents quit smoking. Kids are hurt—and puzzled—when their parents persist in doing something they know is bad for them. Children want their parents alive and well.

A word about the kids themselves. They have to breathe in the smoke from their parents' cigarettes. And new research suggests there is even more tar and nicotine in the smoke that drifts off the burning end of the cigarette than in the drag the smoker takes. There are also high levels of other damaging substances, like cadmium and carbon monoxide.

If parents smoke, they inhale on each cigarette for about 24 seconds. The total burning time, in which toxic chemicals are released into the air, is 12 minutes. The pollution lingers for hours.

Parents who smoke at home can aggravate symptoms in some asthmatic children and even trigger asthma attacks. Researchers at the Mayo Clinic estimate there are 1.5 million Americans, children as well as adults, who are sensitive to tobacco smoke and can suffer smoke-caused asthma attacks.

Parents who want to quit can get more information from the American Lung Association of Boston, formerly the Boston TB and Respiratory Disease Association. It's a matter of life and breath. Theirs. And their children's.

TAX BITE

NEW YORK (UPI) — More than half the cost of a movie ticket in Russia goes to the government as taxes.

Sen. Brooke's Office To Expand Hours

Senator Edward W. Brooke, Monday, announced expanded hours of operation for his Boston office. The new hours, now in effect, are from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m., Monday through Friday.

In announcing the change in schedule, Senator Brooke acknowledged that, "The normal business hours of many of our constituents are nearly the same as our old hours of 9 to 5:30, Monday through Friday. By opening one hour earlier in the morning and closing one-half hour later in the evening, we will be able to provide service to those people who would otherwise have to take time from their jobs to visit or call us."

The senator added that the personnel manning the office during the new early morning and late afternoon periods would record the volume and nature of constituent visits and calls in order to determine, at some future date, whether the policy is an effective enough public service to be continued indefinitely. The office is located on the 20th floor of the John F. Kennedy Federal Building at Government Plaza.

Across The Kitchen Counter

Ruth Lenson

All young brides should be aware that behind every successful cook there lurks a well-filled garbage can that bears witness to her cooking failures. Old fashioned though it may be, it's still true, "Practice makes perfect."

And if a woman tells a tearful newlywed that she's never had a kitchen failure . . . well, she's either 1. done precious little cooking or baking or 2. telling a bold-faced lie.

Of course every new bride wants to be creative and chances are she'll try very hard to prove to her new husband that she's a good cook. It's a good idea to start with easy-to-make dishes because success does bring confidence. Follow the example of most experienced cooks and develop a repertoire of dishes that you know cannot fail.

When entertaining choose dishes that can be prepared ahead of time, freeing you of last minute panic—you'll then be able to relax and enjoy your own party.

Following are some helpful hints for new brides in the kitchen.

It's important to learn how to read a recipe. When you have chosen the one you want to try, give it your concentrated attention. Check the utensils needed . . . if you have nothing resembling the utensils you'll have to acquire them or choose a more suitable recipe. Go slowly in purchasing these utensils; make sure the ones you buy will be put to good use.

Check to see whether the ingredients needed for the recipe are on hand; then put what is needed on your shopping list. Shopping without a list leads to impulse-buying with the result that you end with a register tape that will make your head spin.

Being a good cook begins with a trip to the super market. List best buys; buy foods in season and prepare ahead of time menus for an entire week. DON'T buy torn or damaged packages. Ask your "check-out" person to put all perishables into one bag; be sure this is the first bag out of the car and into the house where proper refrigeration or freezing will keep foods fresh and eatable.

Every bride who is starting to keep house needs at least one comprehensive cookbook. There's a paperback book hot off the press entitled, "BRIDE IN THE KITCHEN," Doubleday, 338 pgs. $2.95 that calls itself, "A complete and commonsense introduction to your first kitchen, containing recipes galore, menu planning, basic cooking techniques, pots and pans and much, much more.

It's a little book that is both entertaining as well as informative. Well-seasoned cooks will enjoy the many down-to-earth suggestions and recipes. Following are samplings from the book plus a few easy-to-make desserts for the young bride.

(Thought you could boil water, eh? Read what Betty Watson has to say about that!) "Boiling: Despite all the jokes, there is something to learn about boiling water. There are two ways to determine whether water is boiling; in an open pan, the water (or other liquid) plops into bubbles. When thickened mixture, like a pudding or gravy, is boiling the bubbles are big and plop loudly. A thin liquid like water or meat broth has smaller, quieter bubbles, but they must be jumping up all over the top along with much steam before the liquid has come to a hard boil." When boiling water to make tea, or to make instant coffee, it is very important that the water come to a hard boil; in fact it should remain at a hard boil for at least a minute or two before adding the tea or coffee.

From the chapter on "WEEKDAY DINNERS TETE-A-TETE" (cooking for two):

CHICKEN TARRAGON

4 pieces chicken (2 breasts, 1 drumstick, 1 wing)
½ cup dry white wine
1 teaspoon tarragon
¼ teaspoon salt
2 to 3 tablespoons butter

Add tarragon to wine; let stand at least 15 minutes, then strain. Dust the chicken pieces with salt, melt the butter in your skillet (the 10-inch size is best for this) until it sizzles — but don't let butter turn brown. Add the chicken pieces, brown quickly over high heat, turning them as they brown. When very brown, lower the hear, add the tarragon-flavored wine, cover the skillet, let simmer for 20 minutes. If liquid should reduce too much, add just a little water. Serve the chicken with the unthickened sauce.

SCRAMBLED EGGS PORTUGAISE

3 eggs
2 tablespoons chili sauce
¼ teaspoon salt
Dash of freshly ground pepper
1 teaspoon minced parsley
1 tablespoon cream
2 tablespoons butter

Beat the eggs with a whisk or fork (NOT with an egg beater) until well-mixed but not fluffy. Stir in chili sauce, salt, pepper, parsley, and cream. Melt 1 tablespoon butter in a French omelet pan or your 7-inch skillet. Turn the heat as low as possible. Add the egg mixture and dot the remaining butter over the tops of the eggs. As the mixture firms, lift up and over with a spatula. The dots of butter will melt into the mixture. As soon as it is firm throughout remove from the pan onto warmed plates. Serves 2.

Following are four desserts prepared with one basic filling. The new bride can relax and serve these eye appealing tempters after spending a minimum of time in the kitchen.

BASIC SEMI-SWEET FILLING

Melt over hot (not boiling) water one package (1 cup) semi-sweet chocolate morsels. Remove from water. Stir in till smooth ½ cup light corn syrup, 2 tablespoons water. Reserve ¼ cup for use as chocolate glaze. Fold into remaining mixture 1 cup heavy cream, whipped, 1 teaspoon vanilla.

LADY FINGER DESSERT

Split and halve 8 lady fingers (32 pieces). Line 1 quart glass dish with 24 pieces. Drizzle half of the chocolate glaze over pieces. Pour in filling. Place remaining lady fingers pieces on top. Drizzle with remaining glaze. Chill several hours. Yields: 6 servings.

SEMI-SWEET GRAHAM LOAF

Place 5 graham crackers, broken in large pieces (to fit pan) in bottom of wax paper-lined 10" x 5" x 3" pan. Pour over one-third Basic Semi-Sweet Filling. Repeat to yield 4 cracker layers, 3 filling layers. Drizzle chocolate glaze over top. Freeze till glaze is firm. Wrap properly for freezing. Serve frozen — remove waxed paper, then slice lengthwise in half, crosswise in 2" slices. Yield: 10 servings.

CREAM PUFFS GLACE

Fill 8 cooled 3-inch cream puff shells with Basic Semi-Sweet Chocolate filling. Drizzle chocolate glaze over tops. Freeze till glaze is firm. Then wrap properly for freezing. To serve, let thaw 15 minutes. Cream puff shells can be bought at fancy bakeries to fill at home.

MINUTE ICE CREAM SAUCE

Increase water to ¼ cup in Basic Semi-Sweet Filling. Omit heavy cream and vanilla. Serve warm or cool over ice cream.

SOMETHING SPECIAL WHEN THE CROWD DROPS BY:

VODKA CHAMPAGNE

(To serve 10 persons)

1 bottle dry white wine
1 cup pineapple juice
1 cup vodka
1 large bottle club soda or ginger ale

Thinly sliced strawberries or oracge slices for garnish

Ice cubes or block of ice.

Combine wine, pineapple juice, and vodka several hours ahead. Pour over ice in pitcher or punch bowl (if in pitcher fill only two-thirds full). Add soda or ginger ale at last moment. Fruit is strictly for appearance, can be omitted. This makes about 30 drinks, can be served over additional ice in tall glasses, in cocktail glasses, or in punch cups.

FOR THE GROOM—What to serve at the bride's first "at home" party? The secret of all four desserts is one basic filling. Any one of these desserts rivals a gourmet's creation that takes hours to make. For the recipe, please refer to "Across the Kitchen Counter."

Home Seamstresses Reap Benefits

"Learn to sew? I used to hate the sight of a needle, and because of my dislike my mother did all my sewing such as shortening or lengthening my clothes. I recall that in junior-high school it took me two years to make one apron . . . it was sew . . rip . . sew all the way.

"But this spring I went shopping with a friend of mine who had made her entire spring and summer wardrobe. Every time I tried on a dress, she would look at the price tag and say, 'For heaven sakes, I could make three dresses for the price of this one dress!'

"Finally, I bought one of the Easy-to-Make patterns and my friend showed me how to go about sewing my first dress; it was so easy I've gone ahead on my own and have already made three dresses and a pantsuit!"

The above conversation took place in a fabric department as the young lady was awaiting her turn at the cash register, under her arm two bolts of fabric to be measured; in her right hand, two patterns.

This new wave of home sewing is the result of a gradual boom in the home sewing market. The number of home sewers—those who make at least 3½ or more garments a year—should grow considerably above the 45 million mark this year.

The main reasons cited for the continuing growth of the market (according to Women's Wear Daily) are: the trend towards individuality in fashion; the rising cost of ready-to-wear; the desire of women to save money; easier-to-make fashions and improved technology in patterns, sewing machines and aids; and the greater availability of home sewing products.

Women have also discovered that sewing is not dull—it's FUN! New technology in fabrics has also aided the home seamstress; the increasing number of good bonded fabrics, durable press fabrics, iron-on seam bindings, "invisible" zippers and an endless array of convenience notions have helped women turn out professional-looking garments.

According to a recent report by the Singer Co., two-thirds of the women who sew are under the age of 45 and between the ages of 25 and 35. Twelve million home sewers are teenagers.

First step in becoming a sewing buff is the investment of a sewing machine, and this is very similar to buying a car. A sewing machine should be considered a long-term investment; however, it is not recommended that the novice sewer buy a more extravagant model than is necessary.

Actually, no sewing machine should be purchased without first trying it out, and this should be done at your leisure when there are no distractions and when your sales person has sufficient time to explain all the intricacies of the machine.

There are three questions to ask when buying a machine: 1. Who is the manufacturer? 2. Where can I buy the parts if needed? 3. Where can the machine be serviced?

You might also consider purchasing a used sewing machine. Quite often women are gifted with machines by husbands who feel that just owning one is half the secret of sewing success. Rarely does this work, and so second-hand machines are many times available at very good prices.

There is a need for knowledge of sewing equipment. Nothing can be more discouraging, after spending time and energy to create a beautiful garment, than to find that every seam is puckered after the first dry cleaning.

Pulled threads in synthetic fibers is another big complaint. Most experts suggest the use of the ball point needle for all synthetic fibers. The ball point needle has a slightly rounded tip. It pushes the loop fibers apart when the stitch is made; this prevents damage to the fabric.

Perhaps it all started when hand-made ties were presented at Christmas time but today's woman is sewing men's clothing and doing a most creditable job of it, according to Bill Blass, who is one of the many well-known designers now involved in designing patterns for home sewers.

Today's woman is looking for new approaches in fabric, style, color and texture," says Blass, "and obviously the woman who is addicted to home sewing is not going to be content to dress only the female members of the family. Besides," he noted, "a woman takes a particular pride is sewing something for her male that really looks great."

The new menswear section of the Vogue Pattern Catalog has patterns for the most fashionable and wearable jackets, shirts, blazers, vests, suits and trousers. It's a contemporary collection created by Vogue Patterns' own designers with special patterns by Pierre Cardin and Bill Blass, so you can have hand-made designer originals.

Vogue encourages males to do their own sewing. Their recommendations are: "If your favorite seamstress is too busy sewing for herself, there's nothing to stop you from learning how to sew your own clothes. All you really need is a sewing machine and you can rent one locally while you're learning to sew."

"Then you should have someone take accurate measurements of your neck, chest and waist for you. Try making a vest first and choose a pattern by your chest measurement. Then you can graduate to a versatile knit shirt and select the pattern by your neck and chest measurement."

Pretty soon you'll be whipping up your own suits for less than half what they would cost you to buy ready-made. Are you longing to sew but afraid someone will accuse you of being a sissy? Never!

If Rosie Greer can embroider, you can sew!

HOME-SEWN ROBE and pajamas, Vogue, Pattern 2798 designed by Pierre Cardin, is long or short-wrapped and tied with patch pockets. Pants are straight-legged with elasticized sides and button waistband. Even the Cardin applique is included in this designer original pattern.

This is the reader's column. If you have a question or a recipe to share with other readers, please write to: Information, Please, Transcript Newspapers, 420 Washington Street, Dedham, Mass. 02026.

Mrs. D.W., writes: "In appreciation for many very good recipes we've enjoyed from the women's page, here are two recipes my family enjoys. The Cinnamon Sour Cream is an excellent topping for hot cereal and the other is a marvelous salad dressing that is quite unusual." Our thanks for the following:

CINNAMON SOUR CREAM

1 cup commercial sour cream
1 tablespoon sugar
½ teaspoon cinnamon
½ cup apricot nectar

In a medium-sized bowl, blend together sour cream, sugar and cinnamon. Gradually stir in the apricot nectar, continuing to stir until mixture is well blended. Serve over hot cereal.

CREAMY ONION DRESSING

¼ cup cider vinegar
¼ cup evaporated milk
1 pkg. onion salad dressing mix
½ cup salad oil

Pour vinegar into a shaker jar with tight-fitting cover. Add milk, then salad dressing mix. Shake until thoroughly mixed. Add salad oil and shake again. Serve on any bowl heaped high with salad greens.

Question: Doesn't it seem strange to you that very few recipes are ever printed where the vegetable rutabaga is used? I would appreciate such a recipe and also one for a good scalloped potato casserole. Thank you.

Mrs. O.R., Roslindale

Answer: You're right, the rutabaga does seem to hide in the shadow of the turnip—so, here in all its glory is your rutabaga recipe and a tasty scalloped potato and sausage casserole. Enjoy!

CHEESE-SCALLOPED RUTABAGAS

3 cups (1½ pounds) thinly sliced, pared rutabagas
1 cup boiling water
1 teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons butter
½ cup sliced onion
One third cup diced celery
Two thirds cup sliced green pepper
2 tablespoons flour
1 cup milk
½ cup grated cheddar cheese

Cook rutabaga slices in boiling water for 20 minutes or until tender. Meanwhile, saute onion, celery and green pepper in butter until crisp-tender. Stir in flour and cook for 1 minute. Slowly add milk, stirring constantly until thickened and smooth. Add grated cheese, stirring until melted. Pour sauce over rutabaga. Serve immediately. Serves 4.

SCALLOPED POTATO SAUSAGE BAKE

3 medium potatoes (1 lb.)
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
½ cup chopped fresh onion
¼ cup chopped green pepper
½ pound Polish sausage, sliced
1 cup grated parmesan cheese
4 eggs
1½ cups milk
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon dried leaf basil

Cook potatoes, covered, in boiling salted water for 35-40 minutes until tender but not soft. Drain and cool. Remove skin and cut potatoes into ⅛-inch slices. Melt butter in large skillet; add onion and green pepper and cook until tender. In greased 2-quart casserole or baking dish, layer potatoes, sausage, cheese and onion mixture, ending with layer of potatoes. In bowl beat together eggs, milk, salt, basil. Pour over potatoes. Bake in preheated 375 degree oven for 30 minutes or until custard is set. Let stand about 5 minutes before serving.

Our thanks to Mrs. G. who writes: "My Mother has asked me to send you the following recipe for your column. I do hope you will print it." (We do so with great pleasure!)

SPINACH AND RICE

2 pounds fresh spinach
1 cup uncooked rice
2 medium onions minced
1 small clove of garlic, minced
2 bay leaves
2 cups beef broth
2 tablespoons tomato sauce
½cup olive oil
Salt and pepper

Wash and dry the spinach; tear into pieces. Saute the onions, garlic and rice in olive oil until the onions are soft and golden; add tomato sauce and stir. Add beef broth; cover and simmer over low fire for 20 minutes. This dish is also excellent served cold. Serves 6.

Question: My husband has been after me to stop buying baby food for our young daughter and to start preparing my own. I've looked through many recipe books but haven't found baby food recipes; what can you suggest? Thanks.

A.I.M., Sharon

Answer: There has been much written recently about the safety, high cost and low nutritional value of commercially prepared baby food, therefore preparing your baby's food is really quite a good idea . . . and, you're in luck because an excellent book has just been published by Doubleday & Co., "THE COMPLETE GUIDE TO PREPARING BABY FOODS AT HOME" by Sue Castle.

There are chapters on nutrition, how to read labels, equipment for cooking and pureeing, storing foods and many other important information regarding the feeding of infants and young children.

Question: On May 28 we are going to do some entertaining and I would like a rather spectacular dessert that can be prepared the day before. Many thanks.

Mrs. F.S., Newton

Answer: The following is a pie guaranteed to cause a series of "Oooooh's and Aahh's" as you bring it to the table:

STRAWBERRY SUNDAE PIE

1 9-inch baked pie shell
1½ quarts vanilla ice cream
2 pints fresh strawberries, sliced
1 cup sugar
2 teaspoons cornstarch
½ cup water
½ teaspoon almond extract

Using an ice cream scoop, fill chilled pie shell with scoops of ice cream, rounded side up. Mound ice cream higher in center of pie. Cover lightly with foil. Freeze overnight or until very firm. Puree 1 cup of the strawberries; set aside remaining sliced strawberries. Blend sugar and cornstarch in saucepan; stir in water gradually. Bring mixture to a boil over medium heat; stir in pureed strawberries. Reduce heat and simmer, uncovered, for 5 minutes. Remove from heat. Pour mixture over sliced strawberries; stir until mixed. Cool mixture, then stir in extract. Chill sauce thoroughly. At serving time, drizzle some strawberry sauce over ice cream pie and serve remaining sauce in pitcher. If desired, serve pie with toasted slivered almonds and a bowl of sweetened whipped cream. Serves 8.

HELPFUL HINT: Dentists refer to crunchy, crisp foods such as celery, carrots and apples as "detergent foods" because they aid in removing particles of other foods from the teeth. A fresh apple eaten at the end of a meal, not only acts as a cleansing agent for the teeth and mouth, but is a refreshing, low calorie dessert. One average-size apple has about 75 calories.

Shaker Furniture on Sale at Museum

Museum visitors who have always wanted to take a work of art home with them will be able to now at the Museum of Fine Arts. Authentic reproductions of 19th Shaker furniture are now on display and offered for sale.

Included in the selection at the Museum will be pieces similar to those on view in the museum's American Period Rooms: Trestle tables, rocking chairs, candle tables, fruit trays and berry boxes and peg boards.

Shaker inventiveness, ingenuity and skill were an integral part of a unique experiment in community living in the 19th century. Their furniture is one of the truly original American furniture styles and is considered a major creative force in America's artistic heritage. The Shaker belief that "everything must be plain and simple . . . unembellished by any superfluities which add nothing to its goodness or durability" is evidenced in the simple elegance of the multi-purpose furniture pieces.

The furniture can be ordered at the Museum and will be shipped directly from Shaker Workshops in Concord, Mass. The majority of the pieces are available in kits and come complete with instructions and all material necessary for finishing and assembling.

Craftsmen at the Workshops use only carefully selected maple, birch, or clear pine wood, and fine workmanship is carried to the smallest detail. Slat back chairs are secured at the top by wooden pegs rather than by metal staples or nails. Each piece is produced individually in the Shaker manner.

A total of 80 volunteers at Newton-Wellesley Hospital were honored guests at the annual awards meeting of the hospital Aid Association held recently in Allen Riddle Hall.

Among the volunteers honored were those who work in various hospital departments and those who work on Aid Association projects such as the Coffee and Gift Shop and puppet program.

Seven area residents received 30-year awards: two were given 25-year awards and one. Hospital President Mrs. Winslow H. Adams received a 20-year award. Also honored were five volunteers who won 15-year awards, 11 who received 10-year awards and 16 recipients of 5-year awards.

Thirty-eight volunteers earned 100-hour pins.

Altogether, a total of 788 volunteers gave service at the hospital during the past fiscal year, Mrs. Marguerite Roggeveen, director of volunteers, announced. The total hours added up to 46,272, an increase of more than 9,000 over last year's total.

New Programs For Women

Area women who wish to expand their horizons can take advantage of three unusual new programs will be added to the growing list of courses being offered through the Center for Continuing Studies at Newton College on Centre St.

The new programs, to begin in September and which may be taken for college credits, will focus on Women in Political and Governmental Careers, Bilingual-Bicultural Education, and Special Arts. Inquiries may be directed by phone or mail to Mrs. Margaret Dever, director of Continuing Studies at Newton College.

The study-internship program titled "Women in Political and Governmental Careers" is designed to encourage and educate women in the intricacies and realities of the political world and to explore job possibilities, both appointive and elective, at local, state and national levels, and in all three branches of government.

The program will be divided into three trimesters. First, a series of weekly academic seminars will meet for 10 weeks during the fall. These seminars will focus on the political processes and on metropolitan problems.

The second trimester will be devoted to carefully chosen four-month internships in various government agencies or with state legislators. The seminars will commence again in April for a group evaluation of field work experiences and for presentation of written case studies on selected urban problems.

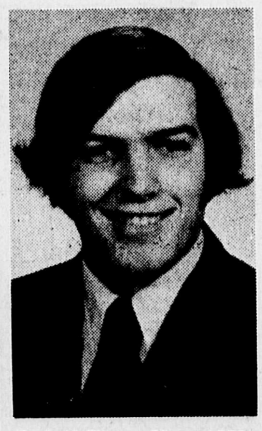
The program will be directed by Betty Taymor. Mrs. Taymor is a former Democratic National Committeewoman, an instructor, Master of Urban Affairs Program, Boston University, and a Member of the United States National Commission for UNESCO.

The Bilingual-Bicultural Education Program will include four different courses for which participants may make selections. The program is aimed at training specialists in the growing field of transitional bilingual education.

Courses in the program include Basic Language Methods and Materials in Bilingual Programs, Advanced Oral and Written Spanish, Latin American Civilization and Culture, Introduction to Linguistics, and Teaching English as a Second Language and Bilingual Classes.

The Special Arts Program, which will be the third of the new offerings, will include three courses a semester from which selections may be made. Courses for the first semester include Foundations of Studio Art - Drawing, Introduction to Two-Dimensional Design, and Filmmaking. Courses to be offered February through May include Introduction to Three-Dimensional Design, Foundations of Studio Art - Painting, and Filmmaking II.

The Continuing Education Program at Newton College offers a wide variety of options for women of any age and from a variety of academic and professional backgrounds. The college offers an opportunity for interested women to resume study on a full-time or a part-time basis either in degree or non-degree programs. In addition, special seminars and a program incorporating volunteer work in the Newton Public Schools are included in the offerings of the Center for Continuing Studies.



Kevin N. Fitzgerald, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Fitzgerald of 34 Harrison St., Newton, will graduate from St. Anselm's College, Manchester, N. H., recently. A history major, Fitzgerald was a member of the varsity hockey team, Order of the Hawk, the History Club; and was a participant in football and basketball.

Student Volunteers

Sandra Silver, daughter of Mrs. Marsha S. Parker, 26 Bothfeld Road, Newton Center, is a student volunteer in Boston University's College of Basic Studies Social Concern Program.

A senior in the University's School of Education, Ms. Silver has served as a volunteer at the Maynard Community Residence in Maynard, and the Fernald State School for the mentally retarded in Waltham. She is a 1970 graduate of Newton High School, where she was a member of the National Honor Society.

Communication Workshop Is Planned Here

Newton will play host to a Communication Workshop, to be conducted for social service organizations in eastern Massachusetts in June.

Slated June 7 at the Lower Falls Holiday Inn, the all-day event will focus on giving participants practical knowledge in assembling basic tools for dealing with the media and general public.

It will have four elements: communication planning, the use of communication tools, a group project and a "Meet the Press" panel.

Registration materials are available from the Foxboro Co., Foxboro, through Thomas Warren in the public relations department. The deadline is May 31.

According to Joseph Utka, coordinator of federal funds for the Newton schools, "reading is the basis for the program."

"It's the one area where most children experience their learning problems," he added.

The aim of the program has been to reach those disadvantaged students who are selected at the beginning of the school year through testing.

They are children who need help with their reading, have speech difficulties, psychological problems, home environments not conducive to learning or trouble with the English language as is the case at the Lincoln-Eliot School with its large Italian-born population.

In 1965, Title I funds received by Newton amounted to $314,770.17. This past year local educators had to make do with less than half that amount - $105,108.

Program directors are now asking for even less to continue their efforts to June, 1974, but they are not optimistic about their chances.

The program has always been funded on a year to year basis, and as Phyllis Margolin, a reading teacher, stated recently, "We don't know until July or August if we have a job again. That's when Congress decides on continuing funds."

This year is different, however, and next September may either see the end of Title I in Newton or an increase in the tax rate to continue it, depending on what happens in the nation's capital.

Louis J. Churchville has been named to head the federal Aviation Adminsitration's office of public affairs. The new assistant administrator is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence A. Churchville of Newton Centre.

"Husband A Meat Ball" . . .

ASK LUCY

By LUCY SORRENTO

Dear Lucy,
Yesterday my husband promised to take me to Sorrento II for dinner. What a meat ball he is! We landed in Providence, completely lost - needless to say we didn't eat. Directions please.
Mrs. Meat Ball

Dear Mrs. Meat Ball:
Roll your husband into the car, drive to Rte. 1, Boston-Providence Highway - from Boston it's one and one half miles before Schaefer Stadium on the right - from the opposite direction it's one and one half mile past Stadium on the left. Why don't you drive!

Dear Lucy:
I just returned from Rome. While there a handsome Italian waiter asked if I had ever dined at Sorrento II, in So. Walpole! Was he putting me on!
Miss Collins

Dear Miss Collins:
Yes! Did he have any luck!

Dear Ms. Sorrento:
We (our group) are concerned! Do you receive adequate remuneration for your service on behalf of Sorrento II? Just because you are a female - don't be bullied by Mr. Sorrento.
Women's Lib

Dear Women's Lib:
Yes, Ms. Sorrento is adequately remunerated - all the veal parmigian, pizza, pasta and antipasto she can eat. I wouldn't have it any other way.
Mr. Sorrento

Dear Lucy:
Come off it! Another Italian restaurant (Sorrento II) in the Walpole area. Big deal!
Weight Watcher

Dear Weight Watcher:
You must be the BIG DEAL — or you wouldn't be watching you weight!

Dear Lucy:
Since Sorrento II opened we've had dinner there three times a week. Will my family develop an Italian accent eating such great food so often?
Mrs. Goldberg

Dear Mrs. Goldberg:
Not if you serve bagels and lox for breakfast and chicken soup with matzo balls for lunch.

Dear Lucy:
My husband comes home three nights a week with spaghetti sauce stains on his necktie. Do you think he is eating out and being unfaithful?
Worried Wife

Dear Worried Wife:
Don't rush off to a marriage counselor. Maybe he just enjoys the veal scallopini at Sorrento II. Have his ties cleaned, then ask him to take you to Sorrrento II for dinner.

Businessmen Win Awards

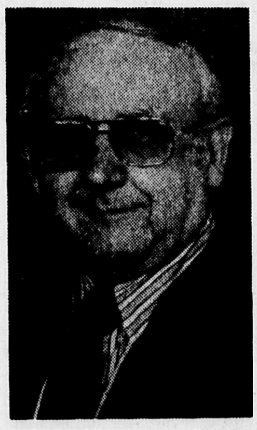
Andrew S. Macalaster of West Newton, president of the Merchants Co-operative Bank, Boston, and Michael T.K. Sullivan of West Newton, assistant public relations director for the Pneumo Dynamics Corporation, Boston, were award winners at the first annual Key Dinner held recently at Boston's Museum of Science.

The dinner was held to honor those who have made a key contribution in soliciting business support for the museum. Each winner received a certificate recognizing his accomplishment as a volunteer helping to enlist firms as business members of the museum.

This year's spring recruitment drive has resulted so far in 25 firms joining the museum's business membership program and ten members increasing their annual dues.

These businesses will enjoy a table at the Boston Pops concert, May 19, a bonus made possible by the Electronics Division of the Northrop Corporation in Norwood.

This is the third consecutive year that Northrop has offered a table at the Pops to each of the first 40 firms to initiate or increase support for the museum.



INSTRUCTOR — George Peters of the George Peters Insurance Agency, 825 Beacon St., Newton Centre, had been appointed an instructor at Tufts Dental School for special lectures to the seniors to prepare them for insurance when they graduate. Peters has been in the insurance business since 1936 and is the president of the Insurance Agents of Newton, a local association of professional agents.

First Mortgage

Fowler stated that the amenities of the development would include air conditioning, elevators, swimming pool and other recreational facilities. Its site is near a major shopping center in Revere.

The United States was awarded trusteeship of 14 Micronesian Islands in the Pacific after World War II.

Phone Pioneers Hold Benefits Symposium

The West Council Telephone Pioneers of America recently held a series of educational opportunity presentations under the heading "Planning for the Future" and "Is Your House in Order" at the Western Electric Building in Watertown.

The pioneers' mutual objective is to participate in activities that are of service to the community.

The speakers and their subjects were John B. G. Palen, vice president and senior trust officer of the Newton-Waltham Bank and Trust Company, "So You Want to Throw Your Money Away"; Lawrence S. Flaherty, a practicing attorney in the law firm of Flynn and Flynn of Waltham who spoke about joint accounts and trusts.

Jerome A. Packer of Newton Highlands, a practicing attorney and certified public accountant discussed "Estate Planning — Can You Afford to Die." Camp Chickami Announces Staff

Camp Chickami, the Newton YMCA day camp for boys and girls, has announced it will again employ a veteran staff during the 1973 season. Seventeen of its 22 senior staff members return to the camp which is set on 25 acres of woodland and field area in Wayland.

Steve Kendall, the "Y" Associate Youth Director and a graduate of Vanderbilt University, is the director after serving as a counselor for three years and the assistant director in 1972. Ron Laffin, a senior at Mass. College of Art and a counselor for four years, will be the assistant director.

The aquatics staff is headed by James Cutler, who is a junior at Colorado College. Cutler was a counselor for two years and served as assistant aquatics director the past two summers. A senior at Springfield College, Eliott Baker, is the assistant aquatics director and Ken Gorfinkle, a sophomore at Brandeis University, is an instructor. Baker and Gorfinkle total seven years' experience at Chickami between them.

Veteran counselors include Lisa Rosenbaum, a freshman at the University of Chicago; Doreen Quintiliani, a sophomore at Boston State University; Nancy Klingerman, a sophomore at Colorado College; Peter Wrenn, a college freshman; Ken Temple, a college freshman; Harvey Graham, a senior at Nasson College; Andy Schmidt, a junior at Boston State University; David Solomon, a sophomore at Harvard University; Marc Gordon, a senior at Newton High School; and Stan MacNeill, a senior at Dean Jr. College.

Counselors at Chickami for the first time are Candy Fisher, a freshman at Mt. Holyoke College; Victoria Di Rienzo, a junior at Framingham State College; Beverly Gibson, a senior at Watertown High School; Wayne Huminik, a senior at Newton High School; and Jay Jasset, a senior at Newton High School and an aquatics instructor last summer at Chickami.

Abby Altshuler, a junior at Emerson College, will direct the arts and crafts program, while the campcrafts director is Sarah Kendall, a freshman at Wesleyan University. Both have worked in their specialties at other day camps.

In addition to a great deal of experience, the staff boasts 12 senior life savers and four people with advanced Red Cross First Aid training. For more information about Camp Chickami, call the Newton "Y" at 244-6050.

Newton Nurse Wins National Recognition

At the National League for Nursing Convention, held in Minneapolis on May 9, Miss Rhoda B. Epstein, lecturer in the Nursing Department of Newton Junior College, received the Lucile Petry Leone Award for outstanding contributions to nursing and nursing education.

Miss Epstein received her B.S. degree from Boston University and her M.S. degree from the University of California. As an assistant professor at the University of Connecticut, she initiated the exploration of an integrated curriculum for nursing students and also introduced the integration of the community health experience with the psychiatric nursing experience. During this time she also participated in the development and teaching of a course in continuing education for registered nurses.

At Newton Junior College, she is the project director for a mental health grant to integrate the curriculum and implement a team teaching approach. She is also instituting a program which involves students in following geriatric patients from a state hospital into the community and she had developed a research project to identify ways in which student attitudes and values change during their curriculum.

Miss Epstein has been an active member of professional organizations, serving on several active committees and participating in convention activities and programs at both the regional and national level.

In addition to her leadership in nursing education, Miss Epstein has the distinction of meeting the criteria for eligibility for the Lucile Petry Leone Award. She has made "a significant contribution to teaching the nursing content in her field;" she is "a scholar in the subject matter of her area of nursing instruction;" she is able "to inspire and motivate students to a high level of competence and to the pursuit of new knowledge;" she "fosters in students an attitude of professional commitment to meeting the health needs of the people;" and she "promotes independent functioning and self-direction."

Miss Epstein is currently at doctoral candidate at Boston College.

Book Sale Benefits Library Fund

"Water the Library Seedling and Watch it Grow," exclaims Mrs. George Brewer, enthusiastic trustee and energetic and devoted member of the Friends of the Newton Free Library.

Right now her comment refers to an exciting 'first" for the Newton Free Library - a "Book Sale," sponsored by the Friends, on Saturday, May 19, from 10 a.m. on at the Newton Centre Methodist Church, 1210 Centre St.

Book lovers will be able to choose their treasures from a vast array of fiction and non-fiction, art books, encyclopedias, almanacs, magazines, paperbacks and much much more.

All proceeds from the "Book Sale" will be used as "seed money" for the new library and will be added to a special fund which already has $10,000 in it. "The Friends intend to raise as much money as possible for the new library," explains Mrs. Brewer. A dedicated group of Friends under the chairwomanship of Mrs. Alan Barkin, Mrs. Sue Schlossberg and Mrs. Jean Young is working for the success of the "Book Sale" on May 19.

The Friends, a growing group of active and enthusiastic supporters of the Newton Free Library, organized more than ten years ago to help foster relations between the library and Newton residents and actively supports the trustees of the library in their recommendations.

In the past the Friends have sponsored lectures, films, functions honoring Newton authors and two bookworm balls which have raised monies for the Library Building Fund. The Friends' activities for next year include plans for a unique art and crafts sale and a paperback book sale.

The Friends of the Newton Free Library welcome new members. Inquiries should be addressed to Mrs. George Brewer, 244-4165, or write Box 4, Auburndale, MA. 02166.

Remember the 'Book Sale,' Saturday, May 19 at the Newton Centre Methodist Church, 1210 Centre St. and "come by and buy."

Learn Tennis Easy Way at Sports Club

Over 2,000 people have been successfully introduced to tennis by the United States Sports Clubs. How? The United States Sports Clubs has developed a new, revolutionary method of tennis instruction, the Graduated Teaching Method. This course is designed for the beginner, but can also be of great value to those average players who have never had proper tennis instruction and have developed poor playing habits.

Basically, the United States Sports Clubs method of instruction which is via a structured learning process. Each tennis stroke is learned in gradual (graduated) stages.

For instance, to learn the forehand, you learn the starting position, then the impact position, and then the follow through position: by learning proper foot stance, weight distribution, racquet position and swing.

By comparison, conventional tennis instruction teaches the entire movement at once; (omitting the structured learning process) which can be far more complex and frustrating for the beginner.

The United States Sports Clubs course includes instruction in the forehand, the backhand, the serve, basic court techniques, scoring, and rules of the game.

The courses are taught by United States Lawn Tennis Association instructors. All instructors are certified by the United States Sports Clubs to teach the Graduated Teaching Method.

The U.S.S.C. course includes six hours of instruction over a three week period (three, two hour lessons).

As you drive into our electronic bays, a highly precisioned front end machine will check your car to determine how reliable the front end steering is. 4 feet beyond that point your car will travel over a 24 foot louvered brake tester, where 4 miles per hour is equal to 50 miles per hour highway speed. This incredible test will individually check front left and right brakes, as well as rear left and right brakes. This test may show that just a minor adjustment has to be made that can keep you driving safely. These 2 tests are the most important functions on a car since they determine stopping and steering performance. The next step would be a 30-step electronic tune-up check and calibrated basic timing check.

Following is a 40-step electronic analysis on our Marquette M-215 Solid State analyzer which electronically road tests the engine and is automatically self calibrating to double check our diagnostic car check. Our technicans would then check out all the steering components, shock absorbers, full exhaust system and your tires at NO COST or OBLIGATION WHATSOEVER.

'Duo-Vision' Hurdles Natural Space And Time Limitations

"Wicked Wicked" sounds as if it might be a Gothic horror story of medieval days or else it might be one of the new pornographics.

Actually this picture is the introduction to a new form of film-making which its creators have named the Duo-Vision process. The men responsible for presenting the picture through M-G-M, Richard L. Bare and William T. Orr, explain that the basic idea is to see two elements of a story at the same time, through the means of a double screen.

"In other words you see both the protagonist and the antagonist but you hear dialogue from only one side of the screen," explained Bare. "The protagonist, or hero, perhaps, is the major interest. But on the other side of the screen you will see the villain planning for his death."

"This is not a split screen sequence, not multiple imagery. It is better described as simulatenous parallel action, to show cause and effect, truth and untruth, flashbacks in time and visions of the future, without interruption of the story's main continuity.

"The audience is allowed to see the chaser and the chased, no matter what physical distance lies between them. They can see a situation as one character believes it to be and the way it really is."

Bare and Orr showed me various illustrations which don't explain much unless you are looking at them in the theatre. Bare speaks of an "active" screen and a "passive" one. The scene praised in a New York review is that in which one sees a security man searching for a murderer's hideout on the left (the principal side) while the killer is sitting in his attic sharpening a knife on the right.

Says Bare, "This way the natural limitations of time and space are hurdled effectively and dynamically. Duo-Vision sounds the death knell to the old cliche, 'Meanwhile, back at the ranch.' "

Admittedly a lot more time has to be spent preparing the picture for the screen. It took 32 weeks to edit "Wicked Wicked" instead of the customary three or four weeks.

Mr. Orr maintained that Duo-Vision is an important step in the progress of the cinema art.

"First came sound. Then color, then Cinemascope. Also 3-D. I believe Duo-Vision will bring about a whole new style of picture making. It won't be today or tomorrow, but it may be expected within a couple of years. Remember, it took a long time for color in pictures to be popular. Cinemascope was a novelty at first. But it finally did away with old flat process.

"If we can be as successful as Cinemascope with this introductory film we'll be very happy. But remember, all stories don't lend themselves to Duo-Vision any more than all stories are best in Cinemascope.

Are audiences at all confused by this process of seeing two images at once, I asked.

"Not at all," explained Bare. "Young people today are quite accustomed to dual images. Look at your undergraduates who study for an examination and at the same time have a favorite TV program in front of them. They are not distracted by two forms of stimulation."

The partners — Bare and Orr, are young men who have had interesting careers outside of Duo-Vision. They look more like business men than discoverers of a new way to tell stories on the screen, and their quiet manners would indicate the assurance that usually goes with success.

Orr was an executive at the Warner studio where he helped launch the careers of half a dozen TV stars. It was he who first saw the possibilities of an intense, serious young man in the School of Performing Arts in San Diego and chose Randolph Roberts to play a psychotic killer in "Wicked Wicked." Randolph was a medic in Vietnam.

As for the heroine, Tiffany Royce Bolling, she has been on both TV and in pictures. Her best part to date was when she played the lead in the Hollywood TV Theatre's presentation of Lillian Hellman's "Another Part of the Forest."

Bare, writer, director and producer, chose David Bailey for the lead role because he saw the young man in a commercial. In the commercial Bailey lies nude in bed, half covered with a sheet, and discusses his favorite deodorant.

Bare took a chance on the young man's ability to act out of bed, but he decided finally he would be just the young man to play the part of a hotel detective chasing a killer who likes to murder blondes. And the actor gets the opportunity to wear his clothes all the time.

Cinema Review: Discreet Charm Of Bourgeoisie

"La Charme Discreet De La Bourgeoisie." What has happened to that idol of the avant-garde and the subject of some 11,987 theses in college film courses—Luis Bunnel?

He has turned mellow, that's what he has done. Through the years I have come out of his pictures hating much that I saw, due to his hatred of the church, the Establishment, sentiment, political power and, above all, tradition.

And now he has made "The Discreet Charm of the Bouregeoisie" as a delightful, perceptive, ingenious and wholly brilliant thrust at hypocrisy. All his great talent at picking out the most penetrating and telling facets of humanity has been put to work in the French comedy and the result is a movie of intelligent fun.

For the student of cinema technique there are still plenty of fascinating subjects of interest. Seldom have bad dreams become such an integral part of a film, fading in and out of the story so smoothly that it's hard to see where the dream starts and how much it is mental recall.

What plot there is—or rather, what plot there isn't—has to do with six smart people looking for a dinner party and getting involved in such things as a "working Bishop" who acts as a gardener; a restaurant where the owner is laid out on his bier on one dark corner; a political discussion which ends in a duel; various arrests and one massacre.

Most of the violence is encountered in the dream sequences and everybody is living gaily at the fade-out. As for cast Fernando Rey who was a heroin dealer in "The French Connection," Delphine Seyrig and Jean-Pierre Cassell appear to advantage.

South Baseball Streak Is Snapped

By LEWIS H. FREEDMAN
Ass't Sports Editor

Yep, it's spring alright. The game that young men's fancies turn to this time of year was disturbed a little bit, though, by another outstanding characteristic of the season—rain.

On two of the days Newton South had scheduled baseball games for last week, Wednesday and Friday, God decided that he'd rather do other things, so in addition to their Monday game, the Lions had to settle for a compromise of Thursday, and thus got only two out of three games played.

The Lions started the week by having their six-game winning streak ended, 5-2 by Middlesex League transfer Concord-Carlisle. That moved the Patriots into a tie for the Dual County League roof with the Lions. They are both at 7-1.

The game was billed as a pitching duel between South's Jim Kavanaugh, who had not allowed a run in 15 innings, and Concord's Sam Griffith, who was 5-0 and who had permitted just one unearned run in 32 1-3 innings.

The first five innings were a scoreless tie and both hurlers were living up to their reputations. Kavanaugh allowed one hit through the first five frames and Griffith scattered three singles.

Righty Kavanaugh and his then-20-inning scoreless streak were blasted for five big runs in the sixth and the game accompanied them. A collection of miscues which usually provide the Lions with victories this time worked the other way around and helped Concord best Kavanaugh.

South ended Griffith's scoreless skein at 23 1-3 in the same inning with both of its runs. Griffith bore down, though, and the inning ended with the bases loaded.

Griffith finished up and moved his record to 6-0 with a six-strikeout performance. Kavanaugh took the loss after two wins. He fanned 10.

The Lions, sparked by Steve Tresca's two singles, managed five hits off Griffith. Tony Lombardo, Bob D'Angelo, and pinchhitter Mark Fogel had the others.

Tip Wayland

Southpaw Fogel upped his own slate to 4 - 0 with a 2-1 decision over Wayland. The blazing twirler whiffed eight batters and permitted just three hits, but pitched himself into trouble with six walks.

The teams each scored once in the third inning and carried that score through the regulation seven innings until the Lions used their favorite play, the suicide squeeze, to push across a run in the top of the eighth.

Tresca was hit by a pitch, stole second base, and was sacrificed to third before coming home on catcher Jon Rosenberg's squeeze bunt. It was a typical South run and a typical South win—good pitching, smart baserunning, good bunting.

The run was important and proved to be the game-winner, but things were by no means secure in the last half of the inning.

Fogel chose to allow one of his three hits at a bad time. Gary LaMont led off with a double and South coach Neil McPhee decided that Fogel should watch the rest of the game from the bench.

Kavanaugh came on in relief and immediately raised everyone's blood pressure by walking one man and allowing another to reach on an interference call (actually Rosenberg's glove allowed it). That left the bases loaded and one out and a whole bunch of fingernails being piled up in front of the respective benches. Kavanaugh struck out the next batter and got the last man on a ground out to end the ballgame.

Peter Miller and Ned Moan stroked two safeties apiece to pace the Lion offense and D'Angelo registered the only other South hit. Moan drove in Miller for South's first run of the contest.

South Names Hoop Coach

Newton South High has a new basketball coach.

Dick Walker, long-time Newton public school teacher and coach, inherited the post from Chandler Phinney, South Athletic Director George Winkler announced last week. Phinney resigned in March after four years, citing travel problems from his home in Walpole as the main reason for his departure.

Walker has coached Weeks Junior High's excellent hoop teams and also coached baseball there and jayvee baseball at South for one year. During the 1968-69 season he tutored the Newton Junior College basketball team.

Although the 1972-73 Lions were just 6-12, Walker is the recipient of an improving junior varsity and a solid returning nucleus on his varsity roster.

Harvard Hockey Stars

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. — Two Newton area residents played prominent roles on Harvard's varsity hockey team during the 1927-73 season.

Senior defenseman Bob Muse of Newton was the team's top scorer among defensemen, with two goals and 13 assists for a total of 15 points. Muse skated a regular shift on the blue line this year, and finished his Harvard career with a total of 36 points on four goals and 32 assists.

Sophomore right wing Ted Thorndike of Chestnut Hill finished seventh in the team overall scoring race with nine goals and 11 assists for 20 points. He caught fire in the latter part of the season, scoring six of his goals and seven of his assists in the team's last ten games, and his late surge was part of the reason for a better-balanced attack for the Crimson.

Harvard had its best regular season in ten years, but was upset by Clarkson in the ECAC tournament first round and wound up with a 17-4-1 record. "It was a tough loss for us," noted Coach Bill Cleary, "considering how hard the kids worked through the year. But I'll take a regular season like the one we had any time."

A graduate of Deerfield Academy, Muse is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Robert Muse of 82 Church Street. An alumnus of Phillips Andover Academy, Thorndike is the son of Mr. Augustus Thorndike of 531 Hammond Street.

Tennis Class Begins At Y

The Newton YMCA, 276 Church St., Newton Corner, will offer a series of tennis lessons beginning on Tuesday, May 29.

A tennis pro on his summer circuit will be the instructor with beginner, advanced beginner and intermediate classes scheduled.

Pupils may choose the time of their instruction, Monday and Wednesday mornings or evenings - Tuesday or Thursday mornings or evenings, twice a week for three weeks.

The YMCA has two clay courts and any non-member, but student in a tennis class, has the same privileges as Y members to use the court for practice during the days and evenings.

A new series of classes will meet every month until October. More information may be obtained by calling 244-6050.

South Golfers Lose Pair

It wasn't what you would call your basic happy week for the Newton South golf team. After breezing through its first five matches unscathed by the opposition South was rudely toppled twice, last week.

Early in the week newcomer to the Dual County League, Concord-Carlisle, put an end to the Lion winning skein by carting off a 5½-3½ decision. Then, after a one-day delay due to rain, Wayland, the only team to defeat South last year, eked out a 5-4 win.

The team of Steve Owens and John Whelan came through with two of three possible points in their matchups, but the rest of the South scoring went downhill from there in the Concord match.

Captain Brian Corcoran and Steve Hoffman split evenly in their matches for 1½ points, but the real blow came in Peter Sherman's and Jay McCory's matches. Sherman and McCory were shutout in the point-scoring as Concord's David Thompson and Paul Schofield totaled the decisive three points.

Wayland moved into first place in the league standings with a 5-1-1 mark on the strength of junior Glenn Davis' blistering 34 round. The Warrior twosome of Bill Eagen and Greg Brynjolfsson tallied three points in blanking Corcoran and McCory.

South got all of its points from the squads of Owens-Hoffman and Whelan-Sherman. The new pairings produced two points each.

Owens posted the Lions' best score of the day, a three-over-par 37.

A third match scheduled for the week was washed out by Friday's rain. South will most likely add Maynard to its relatively empty schedule for this week. Presently, Weston is the only foe scheduled.

North High Enrollment

Students wishing to enroll at Newton North High School in September, 1973, should call for an appointment with a counselor.

The telephone number is 969-9810, extension 246.

Registration will take place June 1 through June 7, and placement tests will be given Friday, June 8, for students entering the 10th grade from private or parochial schools.

New students must bring a record of their previous work beginning with grade nine and a birth certificate and must be accompanied by a parent when coming for their appointment with a counselor.

Newton South Tennis

By LEWIS H. FREEDMAN

A week ago, when assessing his suddenly jelling Newton South tennis team's chances for a state tournament berth, Lion coach Bob Franke expressed the opinion that one Dual County League team which might present an obstacle (besides Weston) was Wayland. There was reason to be wary.

Scheduled to face the pesky Warriors twice last week, South was spared the aggravation by rainfall. The rain may have been a blessing. Concentrating on just one matchup with Wayland South managed to record a 3-2 triumph and appraise itself of just how stiff a foe Wayland is.

The Lions outlasted the visitors by sweeping the three singles matches. Wayland notched its points in the doubles

Umberto Fugundes was the victor in second singles by virtue of a 6-3, 7-5 tally, and Roger Gordon had even less difficulty in third singles with 6-2, 6-2 win.

The real trouble in the singles was the battle between South's Billy Karol and Wayland's Rich Grey. Grey took the first set, 7-5, but Karol, a junior, righted himself and bounced back to dominate the second and third sets, 6-2, 6-1.

Dave Fisher and Ben Cohen were soundly thrashed, 6-1, 6-2, in the first doubles match, and Jeff Levin and Peter Schwartz offered only slightly more resistance, going down 7-5, 6-2 in second doubles.

The win boosted South's slate to 6-2, including six straight victories.

Tip Concord

Earlier in the week the South netmen manhandled Concord-Carlisle, 4-1 for their fifth consecutive win.

Sophmore Fugundes, this time playing first singles, absorbed the Lions' only defeat. After winning the first set, 6-2, an act which did not portend the events to follow, Fugundes melted before Rich Soleau, and dropped the next two sets, 6-1, 6-Karol, in second singles, and Gordon, in his customary third spot, had little difficulty dispatching their opposition, Karol winning, 6-2, 6-2, and Gordon triumphing, 6-1, 6-2.

Fisher and Cohen won convincingly in first doubles, 6-4, 6-2, and Levin and Schwartz did the job in second doubles, 6-2, 6-3.

Weston and Westwood are on the list for this week, and oh yes, pesty Wayland will move into an open date. The Lions beat Westwood by a 5-0 count and there is no reason why they can't do that again, but a victory over Weston will be a little bit harder to come by. The undefeated defending Dual County champs already slugged South 5-0 this year and although South has improved Weston rates as one of the state's top four clubs. A win against the Wildcats is doubtful.

Karol, who did very well last year as a sophomore, Fugundes, and Gordon represented South in the state individual championships, last weekend.

In a new format each team was allowed to enter three players. In the past two players from each school were permitted. The extra entries swelled the total list to almost 200 players in four regions.

The Lions, competing in Region IV., had the advantage of playing on their home court.

Karol captured his first round match by blasting Jim Lewiecki of Hingham, 6-2, 6-2, and continued in the second round by eliminating Alan Rosenthal of Malden, 6-0, 6-1. Gordon also faced a Hingham player, Dave Allen, and lost the first set, 7-5. But then he regained his form and won, 6-4, 6-1. In the second round Gordon topped Mark Sadowsky of Brookline, 6-3, 4-6, 6-3. Fugundes, who drew a first round bye, also advanced past the second round by besting Bill Mitchell of Weymouth South, 6-3, 6-1—LEWIS FREEDMAN

Kaplan Stars In South Track

By LEWIS H. FREEDMAN,
Ass't Sports Editor

Almost never was worth much more than a slap on the back and a "Better luck next time." and Newton South's 69-62 track loss to Wayland High, last week on the winners' home track, ends up recorded simply as another Dual County defeat, the fifth straight of the spring for the lions.

The Warriors, who always field a well-balanced squad, captured six events and earned a sweep in the triple jump to build a 69-57 lead entering the final event, the relay. The Lions then won the 880-yard baton pass to make the final score deceptively close.

For the first time this year the Lion tracksters earned more first places than an opponent, eight including the relay, but this time depth in the second and third slots was the key.

Senior Barry Kaplan, rounding into top form and aching to duplicate his feat of four double victory meets during the winter season, chalked up his second such effort of the spring campaign. Kaplan tossed the shot-put 44-11, his best throw of the year, and copped the high hurdles in 17.2. Kaplan fell while leading the pack in the 180-yard low hurdles. Against Westwood this season, Kaplan won three events.

A second double winner for the Lions was Al Podufly, who had developed into an outstanding point-scorer. Podufly took top laurels in the long jump at 18-6½, and took over in the low hurdles when Kaplan bit the dust, recording a winning clocking of 23.3. He also grabbed third in the high jump competition.

Two other important contributors to the Lion efforts were Chuck Bond, who won the discus with a spin of 104-6, and who placed second to Kaplan in the shot, and Scott Baron, who won the 100-yard dash in 11.0 and who finished second in the 220.

Senior Rich McMahon, who has been a consistent placer, but never a winner, captured his first race by churning out a 2:11.6 in the 880.

Sophomore Chris Capeless, who started the year strongly in cross-country and faded and then duplicated the occurrence during the indoor season is reversing himself in the spring. After slowly working himself into shape he came through with a 4:59.7 mile win against Wayland.

Additional South points were provided by Dave Hahn, second in the discus, Scott Green, second in the 440, Steve Shulman, third in the 100, Dave Lein, third in the two-mile, Dave Robinson, third in the mile, and Dave Fine, third in the pole vault.

Although the sweep of the triple jump was a major factor, Wayland's 8-1 dominance of the high jump, two-mile, and pole vault also led to the Lion demise. That combined total meant a deficit of 33-3 to overcome. Few teams can surmount that big of a lead. South was also scheduled to do battle with Concord - Carlisle last week, but the rains came heavily enough to pur the meet off to a future date.

When Weston blasted Lincoln-Sudbury 107-24 last week the Wildcats had the satisfaction of recording six personal records. That should make any coach happy.

Most notable among the marks were Tom Phillips' 4:32 mile, Tim Scott's 6-3 in the high jump, and Dave O'Connor's 22.9 in the 220, all quality marks.

THE TUX SHOP on SPORTS
by TOM McCULLOUGH
Ever hear of a rolling pick-up? In water polo, the rolling pick-up is a very important move in the game. To secure and lift the ball and then rotate it until the palm is underneath. Quite understandably, even a large hand needs some practice in this art. The fact that this pick-up allows you to retrieve the ball with only one hand, leaving the other hand free for swimming, is what makes the pick-up so important.

On The Move

Newton High Lacrosse

By DAVID CUTLER

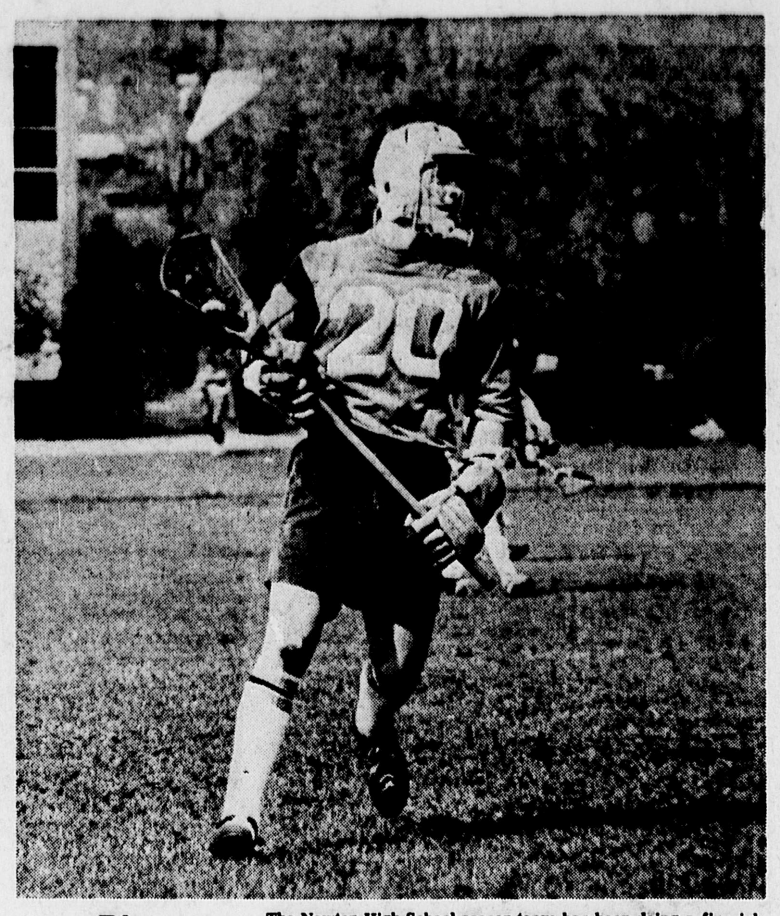
Barring an unfavorable outcome in their game with Framingham South this past Tuesday, May 15, Newton High School's State Championship Lacrosse Team will meet Needham on Friday, May 18 in what may well amount to a battle for the Southern League Title. In addition to pitting the two strongest teams in the league against each other, the Newton-Needham game is a showdown for two of the best teams in the state.

Newton had been undefeated in public school play before it faced Concord-Carlisle on Friday, May 4. After falling behind 2-1, the Tigers took a 3-2 halftime lead. Concord-Carlisle came on very strong in the second half though, scoring four unanswered goals. NHS cut the margin to 6-4 near the end, but the outcome dropped Newton's overall record to 3-3.

In another non-league encounter Newton met Pinkerton Academy on Monday, May 7. The 11-9 defeat was a good showing for most of the team, but Steve Forte had his first bad day in the Newton nets. Pinkerton only took 16 shots and at times when it looked like Newton's offense would get the game under control, Pinkerton would come back and score. "You couldn't blame the defense," said Coach Tom DePeter. "I don't think anything like this will happen again."

Forte made a great comeback against league and city rival Newton South on Wednesday, May 9. Steve played three quarters of shutout goaltending before Jimmy Glick came in to spell him. The Tiger offense was rolling in the first half as it outscored South 9-0. The pace slowed in the second half as the final score was 14-1. Co-captain Jay Tutunjian netted five goals for the victors. The win boosted Newton's league record to 3-0 and 4-4 overall.

If the Tigers beat Framingham South, an almost certainty, then they and Needham will go into their Friday contest undefeated in the league. It is Newton's biggest game of the regular season, and one they can not afford to lose.



Big Scorer

The Newton High School soccer team has been doing a fine job this year and came up with a big performance last week when they rolled over arch-rival Newton South 14-1 with Co-Captain Jay Tutungian scoring five goals. (Gail Blauer Photo)

Newton High Sailing

Competing at home has a tremendous advantage in many sports, but none more so than sailing. Knowledge of the boats, winds, currents, and course often give the home team an insurmountable edge. Newton High School's sailing meets have all been greatly influenced by this. The Tigers have won all their home races, but have lost all the races on foreign waters.

Going into the month of May the Newton team boasted a 1-0 record by virtue of an April 25 victory over Brewster Academy. Newton's home course on the Charles River in Boston was the scene of a meet with Andover Academy on Wednesday, May 2. The Tiger squad's second home meet ended as the first one did, in a Newton victory.

NHS traveled to Tabor Academy in Marion, Massachusetts on Saturday, May 12. The strong winds and currents of Buzzard's Bay made it difficult for the Newton team to cope with an entirely different type of boat than they were used to. "Our kids just couldn't control these sailboats," explained Coach Malcolm Marshall. Tabor won convincingly.

A home meet against Boston Latin on Thursday, May 10 brought Newton's record up to 3-1. But the Tigers couldn't break the jinx when they went to Providence to meet Moses Brown on Saturday, May 12. The rough conditions in Naragansett Bay caused three Tiger craft to capsize giving Moses Brown a one-sided victory.

The difficulty the Newton team has had in strong winds is due greatly to the small stature of virtually all the members. "We don't have anyone who weighs more than 160 pounds," said Marshall. "In a heavy wind the 420's we sailed in at Moses Brown just won't stay upright without more weight. Moses Brown had two skippers who weighed 220 and 190 pounds," he added.

Captain Don Sostek, Jean Blagborough, Jeff Sudikoff, Mark Barrow, Peter Jerome, and Roy Leader have been some of the top sailors for Newton. "Don Sostek has shown himself to be the most consistent sailor on the team," said Marshall. "But his small size made it necessary for him to withdraw himself from some races where the wind has been very strong."

Newton faces Tabor again on Wednesday, May 23. This time in the friendlier waters and boats of Community Boating in Boston. The fact that Tabor's sailors practice all summer makes them very difficult to beat anywhere. "It will be very interesting to see if their greater skill can offset our home course advantage," mused Coach Marshall. So far, the home team has always prevailed, regardless.

Tennis Tips

By BUCKY ADAMS

The Forehand

The first thing you learn on a tennis court is how to grip the racket. This, perhaps, is the most important thing you will learn. The grip that is successful for most players is the Eastern grip. To get this grip, hold the racket at the throat with your left hand. The racket should be straight in front of you. Put your right hand flat against the strings of the racket. Slide your right hand down the shaft until you get near the bottom of the racket. Close your hand so that you're holding the racket tightly. The "V" between your thumb and index finger should run straight down the side of your racket.

When you're waiting for the ball to come to you, face the net. As soon as the ball is hit to your right side, take your racket back and pivot on your right foot so that you're facing sideways. Do not step on your left foot, yet. The racket should be pointing straight behind you (180 degrees from the net). Your right arm should be straight, hanging down by your side.

Now you're ready to stroke the ball. The swing is basically level, but it should come "up hill" a little to make sure that the ball travels over the net. As you start the forward swing, step on your left foot. The step should be a little in front of you and a little to the side. You want to feel your weight transfer from the right foot to the left foot as you are swinging through the ball. The desired spot to meet the ball is next to the left foot, and when the ball is at waist height. The finish should be high with the racket pointing in front of you and your arm straight out.

If your shots are going into the net, you may be taking the racket back too high. This is a tendency especially among players who are trying to hit the ball too hard. Slow down and drop the head of your racket to waist level. Your wrist should not be cocked. If your shots are going too high, you are probably turning your wrist underneath the ball. Concentrate on keeping your racket straight, hitting behind the ball instead of under it.

These directions are for right hand players. Left handed players do the same thing only use the opposite hand or foot.

St Sebastian's Sports

It is not often that the St. Sebastian's track team gets any of the acclaim or publicity of the major sports at the school like basketball, football, hockey or baseball.

The team is small and competes against other schools which do not have large squads. And basically, the winning and placing marks are not overwhelming.

Last week, though, some members of the Arrow squad turned in some pretty impressive performances in a 71-60 loss to Browne and Nichols.

Peter Flynn who als won the 100-yard dash in 10.7, set a new school record in the long jump with a leap of 20-7. Dave Walsh matched his feat by establishing a new school standard in the two-mile. He logged a 10:30.8 for the eight laps.

\+ + +

Another Arrow squad also found it difficult to impress Browne and Nichols, last week. The baseball team was upended, 8-3.

Browne and Nichols raked St. Sebastian's for 15 hits and two runs in the third and fourth innings and three in the seventh to put the game out of reach.

Ed O'Flaherty and Dave Bowen accounted for three of the hits apiece.

The Arrows, who had nine safeties of their own led 2-0 after one inning, but weren't in the game much longer than that.

Mark Canavan duplicated O'Flaherty's and Bowen's efforts by slashing three hits of his own. Bob Connors added two hits for the Arrows and Kevin O'Malley, Tim Clapp, Bob White, and Dave Fish contributed one each.

Things went better for the Arrows in their other game, last week. O'Malley smashed a grand slam homer to propel St. Sebastian's to its seventh win of the season, 11-6 over Roxbury Latin.

Hapless Latin, which was losing its seventh straight, was leading, 6-3 entering the seventh inning, but a shattering eight-run rally destroyed its hopes.

O'Malley turned in two more hits and Canavan, Connors, and Fish each clubbed to hits to help him out. White, Devaney, and Kevin Mannix, added solo hits as the Arrows belted out 12 safeties.

Newton High Lacrosse Team Bombards South 14-1

Newton South High has never beaten Newton High in lacrosse. The Lions have never come close either. And last week South showed that it hasn't gotten any closer yet, falling 14-1 to a Tiger barrage.

The chief casualties from the onslaught were in the form of shellshock. The Tigers unleashed a 24-shot attack, but it was the manner of the deluge which disheartened South. Lion netminders Bob Lent and Scott Groper shared the job of target and managed to make just five saves apiece. The 14 Tiger goals came mostly on clean scores after Newton attackers had outmaneuvered the Lion defense for pointblank shots at Lent and Groper.

Newton, one of the best public school teams in the state, started things off with a six-goal first quarter and followed that splurge with four goals in the second period, one in the third, and three in the final frame.

Jay Tutungian did the majority of the damage, blasting five goals and collecting three assists. Bob Daniels, Steve Blauer, and Jeff Senior each added two scores.

South, which could come up with just six shots on Tiger goalie Steve Forte, scored its goal in the fourth quarter. Senior Paul Pattison registered the score.

The Lions were scheduled to face LaSalle Academy on Friday, but the sporadic downpour throughout the day caused its postponement.

The Lions, losers of six straight games since an opening-day victory, will meet Framingham North and Medford this week and probably LaSalle.

Our Lady's Baseball

Our Lady's of Newton split two contests last week to remain one game under the .500 mark for the season. The Lancers are 6-7.

Our Lady's built a 6-2 lead over Sacred Heart of Weymouth and carried it intothe seventh inning, but Sacred Heart exploded for five runs in the last inning to steal the decision, 7-6.

Once again the Lancers displayed a powerful hitting attack and weakness on the mound. The losers banged out eight hits, including two each from John Moran, Rick Paglia and Dennis Cameron and showed good power in the fourth and fifth innings when they scored two and four runs, respectively. But again in the clutch the pitching faltered.

Both Moran's hits were doubles and John Bartinelli contributed a triple. Tony Collela had the only other hit for the Newton team.

Cameron, who suffered the loss, struck out seven and allowed only five hits, but was victimized by five walks and a leaky defense.

Our Lady's pulled back to within one game of .500 by besting Hudson Catholic, 5-2, in a game where Lancer pitching played an important role for a change.

Gary Bearfield limited Hudson to four hits and fanned eight men to score a complete game victory. The Lancer bats provided him with a 3-0 first inning cushion and added two more runs in the fifth for a 5-0 lead. Bearfield tired slightly in the last frame, surrendering both enemy runs then.

Moran stroked two hits and had offensive help from Paglia, Bearfield, Cameron, Collela dnd Bob Franchi, who hit safely once each.

Honored By Brandeis

Barry Harsip of Newton was the recipient of the Morris Sepinuck Sportsmanship Award. It is given to a varsity athlete who not only displayed outstanding sportsmanship, but also made a significant contribution to the athletic and campus life at Brandeis.

Harsip, the soccer co-captain, was injured in the team's first game last fall, suffering torn ligaments in a knee. He played the entire season with the injury and underwent major surgery following the season.

Despite being injured, Harsip made the Greater Boston College League All-Star team for the second year in a row and also was selected to the New England Intercollegiate All-Star team.

Harsip also received the Lawrence Wien outstanding soccer player award. Wien is a member of Brandeis Board of Trustees and a former Board chairman. He is the founder of the Wien International Scholar Program, the largest privately-endowed foreign scholarship program in the United States.

David Goodman of Newton Centre received the Leif Otteson sportsmanship award for soccer. Otteson was a Brandeis athlete who died in 1968 while a first-year Wien student.

Thousands Parade For Israel's Freedom

"All the Jewish organizations, Hebrew schools, and synagogues in the City of Newton are joyously involved in the forthcoming Salute to Israel Parade, scheduled for Sunday, May 20," it was announced recently by Sumner Z. Kaplan, chairman of the parade.

John McCormack will be honorary marshal and will lead the parade. Some of the other honored guests include, Mayor Theodore D. Mann of Newton, and Congressmen Burke, Drinan, and Moakley.

The parade, linking Israel's rich biblical heritage with modern day achievements, will begin promptly at 1:30 p.m., at the underpass, Commonwealth and Massachusetts avenues, Boston. It will proceed along Commonwealth avenue, turn right on Arlington St., down Boylston St. and left onto Charles St. to the Boston Common where it will climax with an Israeli music festival featuring the Feenjan Group.

Parade participants represent more than 75 schools and Jewish organizations in the Metropolitan Boston area, totaling over 5,000 marchers.

The Israel Parade has become a new tradition. It serves as a focal point drawing the entire Jewish Community into the celebration of the new festival of 'Yom Ha'atzmaut - Israeli Independence Day.

Car Wash To Benefit Church Youth Work

The Junior and Senior High Fellowships of the First Baptist Church in Newton Centre will hold a car wash from 10 a.m. until 2 p.m. on Saturday, May 19, in the church parking lot at the rear of the building.

The money collected for this project will go to support future youth activities and field trips. The charge will be $1.25 per car which will include the cleaning of white walls. All Newton area residents are invited to bring in their cars.

The May 20 Sunday service at First Baptist will be the monthly Service of Celebration. This will be a time when members of the congregation will participate in aspects of the service.

Three generations of the Breed family will read the scripture: Mrs. William M. Breed, Sr., her son William M. Breed, Jr., and his daughter Lynne. Also assisting in the service will be Higinio Gonzales.

The sermond for the day, "How to Have Leisure Without Feeling Guilty," will be preached by Rev. Gene E. Bartlett. The service will be followed by a Children's Day program, marking another year of Christian education completed by the children of the Church School.

Doctors Mabelle and Rajanikant Arole

Union Church Women Host Founder of Health Program

The Women's Association of the Union Church in Waban will sponsor a dessert meeting on Wednesday, May 23, at 1 p.m. in the church vestry.

Dr. Mabelle Arole will be the guest speaker. Members of United Church of Christ churches in Newton, Wellesley and Weston are invited to share in the meeting.

Dr. Lynda Blake, president of the Women's Association, is in charge of arrangements.

With her husband, Dr. Rajanikant Arole, Dr. Mabelle Arole conducts an experimental health project in India which involves a wholly new concept of carrying on medical work among village people in a developing nation. It may, in fact, turn out to be a model to be copied, not only by the Christian Medical Commission of the World Council of Churches, but also by the government of India itself.

After graduating at the top of their class at the Vellore Christian Medical College in South India, they worked for two years in a rural hospital affiliated with the United Church of Christ in western Indian. There they rediscovered the desperate need for public health, family planning and basic health care in the villages where 82 per cent of India's 570 million people live.

During a period of advanced graduate study at Johns Hopkins University Medical School, Dr. Raj specialized in public health and Dr. Mabelle in family planning and maternal and child health, the Aroles drew up a plan for a daring innovation in Indian health work. In September of 1970, they returned to India to implement it. Already, in only two and one-half years, a miracle has come to pass.

Dr. Mabelle Arole addressed in April the International Health Conference in Washington, D. C., a conference sponsored by the National Council for International Health and the American Medical Association.

Temple Shalom Sets Teacher Reception

Temple Shalom will have a sherry hour Monday (May 21) at 8 p.m. at the temple, 175 Temple St., West Newton.

Newly appointed teacher-director, Nessa Siegel, will be introduced.

Mrs. Siegel taught in Cincinnati, Ohio, for two years and worked with the Headstart program.

She believes that "a good nursery school should serve as a bridge between the home and the regular school environment which begins in kindergarten."

She stated that the atmosphere in a good nursery school must be a stimulating one which "neither limits nor pressures the child, but rather helps him to establish his identity through social, verbal and intellectual progress."

The teacher's main objective at Temple Shalom Nursery School is to "meet each child at his or her own level and provide the tools and resources which foster balanced growth," she said.

The sherry hour will be an open house for parents and prospective parents of children of the new nursery school.

Anyone interested is invited to attend. For further information, call: Emily Lipof . . . 244-5254 or Elaine Shulman . . . 969-8338.

Happy Anniversary Little Temple In The Woods

Ten years ago, a nucleus group of 10 families met to discuss the need for a reform temple in the Newton Centre area.

For almost a year, worship services were held at Mount Ida Junior college, private homes, the Newton Woman's Club. . ."have Torah, will travel". . . any available space.

First a temporary home in what is now the Religious School, then, in 1971, a new temple, nestled in the woods on Puddingstone Lane. In just a decade, membership has increased to over 200 families, and Temple Beth Avodah has proved the axiom, "If you will it, so shall it be."

And this Friday evening, May 18, the Little Temple in the Woods celebrates its tenth anniversary.

Rabbi Robert Miller will conduct a special worship service, and the congregation is pleased to welcome the guest speaker, Rabbi Albert S. Goldstein, D.D. Rabbi Goldstein, senior Rabbi since 1955 at Temple Ohabei Shalom, Brookline, lended his support and assistance from the time the temple came into being.

Newton Junior College Bestows Honors, Citations

The Annual Newton Junior College Awards and Honors Convocation was held last week in College Hall.

President Charles W. Dudley welcomed the students and guests and stressed the importance of this event.

In acknowledgement of benefactions to the college, Dudley stated that this year he would "pay tribute" to those who had given moral support and devoted interest as well as to those who had generously contributed monies. In the latter category, he stressed the continuing support of the College Scholarship Fund by the Women's Council, which, under the leadership of Mrs. Alfred O. Weaver, this year donated $600 to that fund. The Highland Club of Newton was also noted for its annual contribution to the Scholarship Fund.

In appreciation of the School Committee, President Dudley said: "Quite aside from the matter of what the future of the college will be, one cannot ignore the fact that the School Committee has over the years been a source of moral and financial support. There has never been any question of the quality of its commitment. And for all this, the college is deeply grateful."

Dudley also acknowledged the continuing support of the Board of Directors and thanked them for their contributions of time and energy on behalf of the college.

Charles D. Merrill, dean of the college, announced the academic awards and read the Departmental Citations. He stated these awards were inaugurated by unanimous vote of the faculty in 1968.

The following awards were made:

In the Department of Business and Data Processing, in Business Administration, presented by Parker J. Dexter, associate professor: "For combining excellence in performance and intellectual curiosity in the field of business and the related cultural fields of liberal arts and sciences" to Craig Sweet of Newton.

"For highest academic honors in Data Processing and its related areas for the past two years" to Margaret R. Quebec of Newton.

In the Department of Humanities, presented by Cynthia Lawton, assistant professor: "For a superior, critical understanding of Contemporary Literature" to Robert B. Abboud of Newton.

Presented by Nadia Stevens, instructor, "For excellence in the study of the French language" to Deborah V. Pearson of Newton.

In the Department of Natural Sciences and Mathematics, presented by William E. Burns, chairman, "For scholastic excellence in Biological Sciences" to Craig Sweet of Newton.

In the Department of Nursing, presented by Ruth Thorp, assistant professor, "For honors standing for two years, for exceptional ability in the practice of nursing, and for personal qualities which are conductive to continued growth as a nurse and as a member of society" to Denise A. Taplin of Newtonville; honorable mention to Janice A. Hathaway of Auburndale and Jane M. White of Newton.

In the Department of Social Sciences and Psychology, presented by Robert J. Hybels, chairman, "For distinguished, scholarly achievement in History and Government and demonstrated ability to relate their studies to the world about them" to Geraldine V. DeSavino and Cheryl A. Proia of Newton.

"For consistently high scholarship in Psychology" to Deborah L. Neth of Newton Highlands.

"An interdepartmental award for outstanding comprehension of theoretical concepts in both Psychology and Sociology" to Michael F. Daly of Auburndale.

The Phi Beta Kappa Scholarship Award, donated by the Newton Phi Beta Kappa Group, "For excellence in scholarship, genuine intellectual interest, high moral character, and acceptance for study at an accredited four-year college" presented by Harvey Poock, dean of administration, to Gerard Fagan of Newton.

The Newton Junior College Service Awards: "In recognition of those students who, through voluntary service, have contributed markedly to the welfare of the College" — presented by Leo P. Judge, dean of Student Personnel, to Carol Cohne, Richard Hartford, Peggy Lennon, Craig Sweet, and Denise Taplin, all of Newton, as well as William Award, William Bankert, Janice Brooks, Elizabeth Higgins, Rose Mason, Louis Poisson, and Johanna Santacroce.

Dean Judge also announced those students who were elected to Who's Who Among Students in American Junior Colleges in recognition of their academic standing, service to the community, leadership in extracurricular activities, and future potential: Ernest H. Roberts, Craig S. Sweet, and Denise A. Taplin of Newton, as well as Rose M. Mason, Janice L. Brooks, and William I. Bankert.

Mabel Greeley, college librarian, presented the Alumni Association Book Award, "given annually to a member of the graduating class who combines citizenship with an appreciation of good books and how best to use them" to Joyce Valente of Newton.

The Honors Ceremony, until this year an event celebrated at a separate convocation, was introduced by President Dudley. He remarked that this ceremony pays tribute to those who have distinguished themselves by high academic excellence and scholarly achievement. He noted that the college takes great pride in its 99 honor students, this year the largest number in the history of the college. Honors Citations were presented by Selma F. Stonberg, associate professor, Department of Humanities.

Recreation Notes . . .

GetInTheSwimOfThings

Swim programs are among the most popular activities sponsored by the Newton Recreation Department and an estimated 2200 young people and adults will be taking advantage of the classes being offered this summer at the Gath Memorial Pool at the Albermarle Playground and Crystal Lake.

In addition to the classes, thousands of other Newtonites indulge in recreational swimming during the summer season.

Registration for the programs at Crystal Lake was held this week while registration for the classes at the Gath Pool are scheduled for May 22 and May 24 at the Horace Mann School Gym between the hours of 3 p.m. to 6 p.m.

Registrants must be six years or older. Beginners and advanced beginners will be registered on May 22 and adults and intermediates on May 24.

Recreation Supervisor Fran Towle reports that there will be eight classes for beginners and eight classes for advanced beginners in the first three week session. In the same period there will be four classes for intermediates and adults. The classes are scheduled between 9 a.m. and noon, Monday through Friday.

Girls Basketball

Fran also said there is an opening for one more team in the Girls' Summer Basketball League sponsored by the Newton Recreation Department. Entries will be accepted on a first come, first serve basis.

The league for girls 16 and over will begin play on June 19 and the first rosters are due on June 4.

There are up to a dozen players on each team and the average age of the players is 19.

Women's Softball League

The Newton Women's Twi-Softball League at its recent organizational meeting voted to enter a float in the City's Centennial Parade. The float will represent all the girls' and women's sports activities sponsored by the Newton Recreation Department.

League officers elected are: President Carol Stapleton; Vice President Louise Kiley; Secretary Nancy Bartley and Treasurer Kathy Sweeney.

Mini-Bike Track

Mini-Bike Track

Attendance at the Recreation Department's Mini-Bike complex on Winchester Street, Newton Highlands, increases each week according to Recreation Supervisor William J. Barry who reports that 65 to 70 are riding their bikes between 10 a.m. and 4 p.m. each Saturday.

There are three tracks, a mile, half mile and quarter mile. Those using the facility must register their bikes with the Recreation Department for a one-time fee of $5 for the season and also have a $1 certificate to be eligible to ride.

Barry emphasizes that this track is a safe and legal place to operate these mini-bikes. They cannot be used on public highways. Safety precautions are observed and all bikes are checked by the track Safety Officer Bob Braceland. All must have the prescribed safety equipment. Director of the program is Paul Patriacca.

Tennis Programs

Mr. Barry announces that all Adult Tennis Lssons have been oversubscribed and will remain closed until fall. He also announces that an Adult Tennis Tournament will be held about the first of August.

Lessons for young people will be held at the various playgrounds throughout the city starting June 28. This free instruction will be in the form of an eight-week course, one day a week. During the summer playground season a tournament will be held.

Twi-League Softball

Twi-League Softball

Barry announced the Newton Twi-Softball League sponsored by the Newton Recreation Department has gotten off to a good start despite a few rainouts. He feels that all three divisions, A, B, and C, are well balanced as the close games in the first week indicate.

Summer High School Basketball

Plansare being formulated by Barry and League Director Richard Maloney for a Summer High School Basketball League which will play at Cabot Park beginning the first week in June.

Maloney is Assistant Varsity Basketball Coach and Head Baseball Coach at the Massachusetts Bay Community College.

Antique Car And Trolley Buffs Meet At Library

Run, jog, fly, swim, bike, drive or row. . . but do come to the Newton Free Library's fifth Centennial Celebration on Saturday, May 19 at 3 p.m. at Highlands Branch, 20 Hartford St., Newton Highlands, where "From Foot to Wheel in Newton," a discussion of transportation, then and now, will highlight the afternoon's activities.

Avid and knowledgeable antique car and trolley buffs Robert Wild, Brent Campbell and Norton Clark, will participate in a panel discussion and look forward to sharing vast amounts of information with the audience.

Robert Wild of Newtonville, a sculptor and artist whose large dioramas are in the Science Museum in Boston and in many museums throughout the country, restores antique cars and also collects historical data on them. He owns and drives a 1910 Hupmobile, is on the Board of Trustees at the Museum of Transportation in Brookline and is a member of several antique car clubs.

Brent Campbell of Cochituate owns and drives a 1910 Stanley Steamer. He is a member of the Veteran Motor Car Club and the Stanley Steamer Club. His lifelong interest and enthusiasm for the steam car began when as a young boy, he and his grandfather often worked together on steamers.

Norton Clark of Newton Highlands, the third panelist, is a well-known collector, lecturer and owner of antique fire engines, trolleys and trains. Clark owns many engines used by the Edaville Railroad and is on their board of directors. He is a member of several railroad clubs including the Historical Railroad Club of Boston.

An unusual exhibit outside the Highlands Branch Library will include a Stanley Steamer, a display of old bicycles and antique cars.

Indoors, a collection of license plates, pictures of antique cars and memorabilia from the early days of motoring will be on view.

All Newton residents are invited to attend the panel discussion, to view the exhibits and to remain for refreshments at the Newton Free Library's fifth Centennial Celebration, Saturday, May 19 at the Highlands Branch.

And remember to reserve Sunday, June 10 at 3 p.m. for the sixth Centennial Celebration, a river walk along the Charles, beginning at the Upper Falls Branch of the Newton Free Library.

AUTO FACTS
BY GEORGE BALIAN

You probably keep the top and sides of your car relatively clean, but what about the bottom? A shower for the bottom of your car can save the underbody from rust and corrosion. A lawn soaker is all you need to do this seemingly impossible task. Coil it up in your driveway, turn the water on full force, and drive your car backwards and forwards over it several times. This rinses sand and salt off easily. Do it often to preserve your car.

NEWTON AUTO SUPPLY, 438 Lexington St., 969-1191 has a complete selection of car beauty items with which to preserve the outside of your car. We carry touch up paint, polishes, waxes and cleaners in addition to a complete line of Delco automotive parts. Open: 8-6 Mon.-Fri., 8-4 Sat.

HELPFUL HINT: Never operate windshield wipers on a dry window, since it could scratch your windshield badly.

Take away your filter and what've you got?

A lot of brands are talking about their filters lately.

That's all well and good. The filter is an important part of your cigarette. (We know. We give you the most famous one of all: the Kent Micronite filter.)

But how many cigarettes have something to say about the other end? The tobacco end. The part that gives you what you smoke for... taste.

One brand that has plenty to say is Kent.

24 quality tobaccos are blended into each Kent. And we go to 3 continents, 4 countries and 10 states to find them.

We also insist upon the lower-leaf tobaccos for Kent. They're a lot milder than the leaves at the top of the plant.

In fact, we place as much importance on our tobacco as we do on our famous filter.

Because without either one, we couldn't give you the mild, smooth taste that makes Kent what it is: America's quality cigarette.

Mild, smooth taste. Micronite filter.
Kent. America's quality cigarette.

Moliere Put Dropouts In Spotlight

By GREGORY JENSEN

LONDON (UPI) — Dropouts are nothing new. Jean-Baptiiste Poquelin had them taped a good three centuries ago.

Poquelin's real name was forgotten even before his dramatic death 300 years ago, but not the name he adopted. He called himself Moliere.

As an anniversary tribute Britain's top-flight National Theater has put into its repertoire Moliere's bitterest comedy, "The Misanthrope," built around an archetypical dropout. For once an English production does the old Frenchman proud.

This one puts Diana Rigg into flowing, deep-cleavaged gowns which leave her distinctly underessed, a languid Brigitte Bardot in a Shirley Temple wig. As the humanity-hater himself it has Alex McCowen in his first National Theater role.

And what it does to Molieire would have had Jean-Baptiste Poquelin slapping his thighs in glee. You might say it saves Moliere from himself.

Courtiers Transplanted

First it transplants Moliere's bewigged Sun King courtiers to the "court" of Charles de Gaulle. His marquetry and ormulu salon becomes a plastic and hi-fi pad for Beautiful People.

Then it puts poet Tony Harrison to work on Moliere's blasted Alexandrines. That's where Moliere in English always comes unstuck.

In France, though not always elsewhere, Moliere is what Shakespeare is to England—one of its classic greats. He was his era's leading actor as well as its greatest playwright, a favorite at Louis XIV's court, a pioneer of the Comedie Francaise.

His death was as dramatic as anything in his plays. He played the lead in his new play about a hypochondriac, tottered offstage, coughed blood and died a few hours later.

Moliere wrote genuinely funny comedies about people with one fatal flaw. His misanthrope, for instance, doesn't really hate people: He hates peoples' imperfections. His flaw is that he cannot keep his cool about them.

They're With Us Still

He rages about hypocrisy, about injustice, about lies and flatterers and gossips and deceits. The things in "this age" which set him off are with us still.

In the end he opts out of society's whole rat race for a solitary life in the country.

The trouble is, Moliere wrote plays such as this in classic, stylized French—and in Alexandrines, which are rigidly rhythmic rhymed couplets. Couplets in a steady stream are much inclined to make men scream. A rhyme or two may not be bad, but evenings of them send men mad.

This kind of thudding, pounding monotony is what Harrison's new translation avoids. The style is here, and Moliere's form, but Harrison's people sound natural and unforced, even in rhyme, and some of his lines are the pure gold of poetry.

The result, in John Dexter's impeccable production, shows English audiences for perhaps the first time just how glorious, and gloriously funny, old Moliere can be. Pity it took 300 years.

U.S. Environmental Agency Sets Up Answering Service

The Regional Office of the U. S. Environmental Protection Agency in Boston announced today the establishing of a 24-hour answering service for the notification of oil or hazardous substances spills.

John A. S. McGlennon, regional EPA administrator, noted that oil spills must be reported to the U. S. Coast Guard or his agency. The Coast Guard is responsible for overseeing the cleanup of coastal spills while EPA has responsibilities for overseeing the cleanup of inland spills.

The number to call to report spills to EPA is (617) 223-7265.

The regional administrator added that anyone causing a spill is required by Federal law to report it immediately to the Coast Guard or the EPA.

"We intend to prosecute those who do fail to make such a report. Oil and other hazardous substances can cause grave environmental damage if they are not immediately cleaned up," McGlennon explained.

In a recent court decision a Massachusetts firm was fined $3,000 for failing to report an oil spill it caused.

"This is the largest fine ever handed down for this type of violation and it is a sign that the Courts and our Agency intend to vigorously enforce this statute," McGlennon concluded.

SENSITIVE CANCER

Q. I was born under the Sign of Cancer on June 29, 1932 at 10:10 a.m. in Boston, Mass. Is it true we are all overly sensitive people, but hide or try to hide it?

C.H.D.

A. The Sun was in the Sign of the Zodiac Cancer on your date of birth but that is only part of the horoscope which contains the positions of the eight planets and Moon as well. These and their House positions and Aspects to each other must be considered. That is why all folks born in the same Sun Sign are not alike in many ways.

All those born when the Sun is in Cancer are very sensitive, which is one of the things they have in common, but not all try to or are capable of hiding it.

At the moment of your birth the Sign Aquarius was on the Ascendent and the Moon was in Taurus. These indicated that you like people, can charm them and since you're able to sense their desires and needs, you are likely to have most folks like you.

It is your Moon, Ascendent and Saturn positions that enable you to try to hide your inner feelings and be considerate of the other persons desires.

All this notwithstanding, you have a strong will and can be quite determined. You are inclined to take your duties and obligations quite seriously and will not neglect them even if the fulfilling of such requires some self-sacrifice.

A keen mind which is very active combines with a good memory enabling you to absorb knowledge and retain it. You have sound common sense and should be able to express your ideas clearly and cleverly.

At times you may be impatient to bring matters to a conclusion and by haste or rushing them create problems. You can prevent this by self-control.

For questions to be answered through this column, mail the birth data and question to Ask Oscar, Box 114, Canton, Mass. 02021. Please sign your name which will not be published. Selected questions can only be answered through this column.

Trim The Fat (Cats) From Government

Virginia Payette says:

All of a sudden, what with the scandal and all, nobody wants to work for the White House. And this may be the only good thing we'll get out of Watergate.

Anthing that prunes the government payroll can't be ALL bad.

After all, hasn't Mr. Nixon been talking for years about streamlining the monolithic maze of bureaucratic bumbling? Well, here's his chance. Let's hope he grabs it.

Instead of scrounging around to fill all those empty jobs, why not just declare them (to use the in word) "inoperative." Chances are, once the screaming dies down, he'll discover what most everybody already knows: Many a paper shuffler at the public trough wouldn't even be missed.

Maybe a little less "government" is what we could all use more of right now. At the very least, it would save us millions in salaries. And, if we could weed out the people stumbling over each other in duplicate jobs, it might even turn out to be more efficient, too.

It would take some getting used to, of course. Federal featherbedding has been a way of Washington life for so long the "cold turkey" cure would come as a shock. Some government employes might even have to do a full day's work.

Better yet (and we can always dream), if White House recruiters are having so much trouble filling all those jobs, it might even dawn on them to reconsider whether all those jobs really need to be filled.

Many a taxpayer is already ahead of them on this. One thing the President has never made perfectly clear is why the government needs so many thousands of bureaus and commissions and consultants, anyway.

If he can spare a moment from the Watergate mess, Mr. Nixon might find time to wonder if he couldn't get along without appointing ANYBODY to those 50 top-level Federal jobs nobody seems to want.

As for hunting up bodies to fill 26 sub-Cabinet posts, why bother? Half the time he acts as if the 11 top Cabinet officers weren't there, either.

Ditto for the 400 vacancies in lower and middle-level government. It might mean fewer Federal reports and statistical studies and bureaucratic backgrounders (in triplicate, of course). But that would free employes still on the job to get at the important work piling up on those 400 empty desks, such as stamping everything "top secret."

Besides, by this time, Mr. Nixon may be having second thoughts about the efficiency of advisers anyway. A smaller staff might be easier to keep an eye on.

The shortage of ambassadors is another sticky problem. Despite the many fat cats on the Presidential campaign honor roll, there are still 23 countries waiting for us to send them a top fund contributor (pardon me, diplomat).

Tradition probably requires that Mr. Nixon fill those political appointments eventually. But, remembering a few of the amateurs he's sent abroad in the past, one wonders if we wouldn't be better off without anybody in some of those foreign embassies.

When you get right down to it, Henry can handle almost anything that comes up. And, so far, he hasn't quit—he's got compassion.

The SLIM Gourmet

Calorie-Conscious Cooking

By BARBARA GIBBONS

Spaghetti? Rice?

Neither need be off-limits if you're a Slim Gourmet cook.

Even starchy foods can have their proper place in a trim-down plan . . . within reason! But the knowing cook will want to be wary of pairing such food with buttery toppings, rich sauces or fatty meats. Spaghetti and rice can be calorie-sponges, the favorite hiding place of poundage-adding fat!

Here's a pair of easy recipes based on hamburger . . . but not ordinary hamburger! Have your chopped meat ground-to-order from fat-trimmed beef round, and leave the extra calories behind in the butcher shop. The calorie savings are worth the extra cost. After all fat doesn't add any protein to your family's diet.

The first recipe is a quick skillet spaghetti, all in one dish. The second is an easy-do meat loaf that gets its flavor from canned Spanish rice.

SKILLET SPAGHETTI

1 pound extra lean ground round, trimmed of fat and ground to order
5 cups water
1 can (6 ounces) tomato paste
1 teaspoon garlic salt
1 tablespoon dried onion flakes
½ teaspoon oregano
1 tablespoon grated Romano cheese
6 ounces very thin spaghetti, broken

Break up the ground meat in a large, heavy non-stick skillet. Place over moderate heat. Brown slowly without adding fat, stirring constantly to avoid sticking. (Add a little water, if needed.) Add all remaining ingredients except spaghetti, bring to a boil. Add spaghetti, cover and cook stirring occasionally until spaghetti is tender, about 25 minutes. Serves six, 237 calories each.

SPANISH RICE MEAT LOAF

2 pounds extra-lean ground round, trimmed of fat and ground to order
1 can (15 ounces) Spanish rice
2 eggs, beaten
¼ cup dried onion flakes
1 teaspoon garlic salt
¼ teaspoon ground pepper
1 tablespoon prepared mustard

Combine all ingredients. Shape into a meat loaf and place in a shallow baking pan. Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven for 1 hour. Makes eight servings, 216 calories each.

Queen Waiting To Abdicate

There she was, the lovely Miss America — Terry Anne Meeuwsen — standing there and greeting the people who wanted to see her, to shake her hand, to get her autograph, to tell her how enchanting she is.

"I hope they don't pick up any splinters," one said, as the hippies shuffled, barefoot, along the boardwalk.

We rode, we three judges, from the Sheraton-Deauville Hotel at one end of the boardwalk to Chalfonte-Haddon Hall at the other end, escorted by some very patient policemen. We stopped to award corsages and invitations to attend the awards party at Haddon Hall whenever we found an unusual Easter parader.

There was NO DOUBT the best-dressed family: Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Philp, of Atlantic City, and their EIGHT children! ALL GIRLS! And all in matching coats and hats.

A nicer group you never saw — Kathy, Linda, Chris, Carrie, Patti, Andie, Jackie and Bobbie — all, along with their mother in matching white, yellow and blue plaid double-breasted knit coats. They carried straw bags and wore white crochet hats with blue ribbon trim.

I asked Mr. Philp (and that's the way he spells his name — Philp) whether he's going to try again — for a boy. "No," he said, with a big grin, "I think this is it. After all, I work for the Jersey telephone company and, big as the company is, there's a limit to what it can pay me!"

The prizes were awarded at a tea and reception in the Pennsylvania Room in Chalfonte-Haddon Hall where the city's new mayor, Joseph F. Bradway Jr., and his new wife of two weeks, were host and hostess.

Mrs. Bradway, a tall, stunning brunette, was one of the most stylishly dressed ladies of the day and a lady who knows her tells me that she's the kind of gal who likes to maintain a large and expensive wardrobe. This, however, shouldn't trouble Mr. Bradway too much because, in addition to being Mayor, he owns a batch of banks!

Today's Story

by norton mockridge

And, among the people who approached, was a beaming gentlemen who had his little son, about six years old, in tow.

The man just stared at Terry, overwhelmed by her charms, and then he turned to his son and said:

"Isn't she the most beautiful girl in the world?"

The kid shrugged, and said: "I dunno. I haven't seen ALL the girls in the world!"

Well, that's the way it goes; you win a couple, you lose a couple. And Terry told me quite a bit about what's happened to her since she won the Miss America title at Atlantic City last September and then hit the road.

We talked as we sat in a rolling chair and slowly moved along the boardwalk at Atlantic City on Easter Sunday, judging the prettiest bonnets, the best-dressed couple, the best-dressed family, and so on.

"I've had a ball," said Terry, "and I couldn't begin to describe all the things that have happened. Funny things — like the little boy who couldn't evaluate me because he hadn't seen ALL the girls — and sad things, too. It's been the most exciting and rewarding experience of my life, and yet, you know, I hardly can wait for the year to end so I can get to New York and begin to take advantage of my scholarship."

Terry, who used to sing with the New Christy Minstrels, wants to study singing and acting, and she's going to have personal coaching in New York. Marriage is lurking there in the background — not ruled out — but the career is the thing she wants first.

And she'll probably make it big. I can say that impartially because I didn't have a hand in picking her as Miss America. My four years as a pageant judge ended the year before, but I guess that HAD I been a judge last year, I'd have picked Terry Anne Meeuwsen, of Wisconsin. It would have been easy.

But it was a tough job on Easter Sunday, rolling along the boardwalk among the many thousands of people, and picking out the prettiest bonnets, and frocks, and suits.

Yet Terry, flanked by old ex-judge Norton on her right, never let down for a moment. She was gracious, and smiling, and charming to everybody — even to some stupid hippies who glared at her and sneered.

As June 14 Approaches, Better Check Your Flag

by Amy Vanderbilt

"DEAR MISS VANDERBILT: The Flag we have had for many years is stained and needs repair. Is it permissible to have this done? If I decide to wash the Flag myself, must it be hung on the line in any special way?—Mrs. J. J., Dayton, Ohio.

The Flag may be washed or dry-cleaned. Most cleaners will dry clean the Flag free of charge throughout the year. Some may limit this service to early June, in time for Flag Day, June 14.

If you wash the Flag, hang it in any careful way. There should be no suggestion of carelessness or disrespect. A flag that is beyond repair should be respectfully destroyed, preferably by private burning.

I have listed 30 rules concerning the care and display of the Flag in my book, "Amy Vanderbilt's Etiquette" (available in your library).

The Veterans of Foreign Wars distributes free of charge "Questions and Answers on the U. S. Flag." To obtain a copy, write to Americanism Dept., Veterans of Foreign Wars, National Headquarters, Dept. A., 34th and Broadway, Kansas City, Mo. 64111.

You may certainly fly a Flag that is out of date but in good condition. There is no federal law that prohibits the flying of the Flag at night if it is illuminated.

A Fag should be a proud emblem. Perhaps this is the year to replace yours.

TRAIN TRAVEL

"DEAR MISS VANDERBILT: Two couples, living together but not married, want to take an overnight train trip to Forida. We plan to take a bedroom suite of two rooms. Will they ask if we are married?—D. B., Boston, Mass."

AMTRAK tells me they may not ask any more if a couple applying for such quarters is married.

Two married couples would be entitled to the family plan, however, a considerable saving.

PROBLEM

"DEAR MISS VANDERBILT: My son and his girlfriend who are living together plan to get married in some more or less foreseeable future and now consider themselves engaged. I have had a very formal upringing and know, when an engagement is announced, that the family of the boy pays a formal call on the family of the girl.

But the girl doesn't even have a ring, and they don't think in terms of a formal engagement.

"Under these circumstances, would we be excused from making the first move concerning the traditional call? I think the young people will quietly go out and get married someday and then tell us.—Mrs. E. J., Great Neck, N. Y."

I am sure your dilemma is one facing many parents. Certainly there is nothing to do now. If they finally determine a marriage date, even without a formal engagement, you should then make every effort to call on the girl's parents.

I still believe, even in these liberated cases, that the young man should talk to the girl's father about his own ability to support his future bride or at least to contribute to her support.

Too often such marriages occur at the spur of the moment, with no consultation with the parents involved. And too often, later, these parents are expected as a matter of course to help the young people financially. The old "talk with father" is more than ever needed today.

(Amy Vanderbilt welcomes your letters and strives to answer all those of general interest in her column. Send your questions and comments to Miss Vanderbilt in care of this paper.)

U.S. Senators In Moscow Found Brezhnev Tough Nut

When Leonid I. Brezhnev comes to Washington, probably in June, for the new summit talks which he eagerly wishes to have with President Nixon, it won't be entirely for sweet chitchat about expanding Soviet-American trade.

Seven United States senators caught a glimpse of the Soviet chieftain's toughness the other day when they were in the Kremlin, listening to glowing stories about how American farmers could sell billions of dollars worth of their products to the hungry Russians.

The subject of the Soviet's "education tax" on departing emigrants came up, and it was somewhat like waving a red flag in front of an angry bull.

If the senators wanted to talk about that Brezhnev snapped, then he would feel free to discuss "The six million unemployed people in the United States, Wounded Knee and civil rights."

That was his way of saying, in effect, "if you gentlemen wish to needle me about my internal problems with dissident minorities, then I'll needle you about yours."

Brezhnev is irritated because of constant U. S. agitation for his government to abolish the heavy tax it imposes on emigrants to check the flow of highly educated Jewish people to Israel.

He has assured Nixon that the Soviet government is suspending (but not abolishing) its exit visa fee, and allowing free emigration except for limited cases involving "state security."

That is as far as Brezhnev intends to go on the matter.

In return, he wants Congress to forget all about the Jackson amendment that would allow Russia the "most-favored nation treatment" and lower U. S. tariffs on its products, only if Moscow would drop all its curbs on emigration.

Some of the visiting senators assured Brezhnev that the amendment should not be a serious impediment to passage of Nixon's new trade expansion bill. Nevertheless, its sponsor, Democratic Sen. Henry Jackson of Washington, claims enough votes to put it through the Senate, at least.

Presidential advisor Henry Kissinger, seeking to keep the Kremlin on the side of "restraint" in Southeast Asia and the Middle East, has solemnly warned key senators that the passage of the original Jackson amendment could even cause Russia to break off the second round of arms-control talks.

Brezhnev does not share Nixon's problems with a Congress controlled by his opposition. The Soviet leader has tightened his iron grip on the ruling Politburo by kicking out two critics. One is Pytor Shelest, the Ukrainian who led the hard-line clique opposed to Nixon's Moscow visit last May.

Brezhnev has brought into the Politburo the veteran foreign minister, Andrei Gromyko, and displayed him in a place of honor during his talks with the traveling senators.

The senators—Democrats Cannon of Nevada, Hartke of Indiana, and Moss of Utah, and Republicans Griffin of Michigan, Beall of Maryland, Baker of Tennessee, and Pearson of Kansas—came away impressed by the Russian's spiel in favor of long-term, five-to-10-year contracts to exchange their oil and gas for American wheat, feed grains and soybeans.

"They've just failed to become self-sufficient in food and they're not going to be," Baker said. "They've got to have some of ours."

Baker was depressed by the "sombre attitude" of the Russians and "the gray, heavy atmosphere" in Moscow. When he tried to take snapshots of people on the streets, they would turn away—apparently afraid to be caught associating with Americans.

The senators became pretty tired of the hard-boiled eggs and bread they were served for breakfast each day, along ith the Russians' poor imitation of American coffee.

An American motel chain is dickering to build a 2,000-room hostelry in the Soviet capital, Baker said. "By God, I hope they do," he added. "I hope it has a restaurant, too."

Presenting

Sounds of America's Soul— The Newton Jazz Jubilee

By LEN BATEMAN

The sweet, musical sounds of America's soul rose over the Boston College campus last Saturday evening and the almost 4,000 Centennial celebrants in attendance knew they were home.

The man who helped to bring them there, dubbed the "World's Greatest Jazz Impressario" by a chairlady of the event, was himself double crossing Thomas Wolfe.

George Wein had come home to Newton and he brought his friends along.

Wein didn't really appreciate being called the greatest anything, and he told the audience so.

They loved it.

For a man who started out antagonizing his neighbors on Ward Street by rehearsing a 15 piece orchestra in his basement, Wein was the greatest.

It's been a long time since those post-World War II days, but it seemed insignificant when Wein and his cronies, led by the great Max Kaminsky, took all those present, the older, the younger, and those of us in-between, on the original magical tour.

It must have been very easy for some to close their eyes and dream again of Storyville in Boston, of others to remember those summers in Newport when a few minutes of sleep on Second Beach sufficed for the whole Fourth of July Weekend.

It was easy because George Wein and his friends were the greatest.

The original letdown when Wein announced certain of his friends from the jazz world were unable to make the Jubilee vanished as soon as the artists present picked up their instruments.

"Thelonious Monk has another gig," Wein said; but after awhile, it really didn't matter.

There was something for every lover of American music. It came from the quays of New Orleans, the streets of Harlem and the dance halls of Dubuque.

The Preservation Hall Band spun the nostalgic audience around in a whirl of sights and sounds. Their "Closer Walk With Thee," made immediate converts, and "Georgia On My Mind," took everyone's away for a while.

It was great to just sit and feel — let that old time music just wash over you; and for awhile, that dirty Watergate, and the grocery bills and the property taxes belonged to a society that couldn't create such sounds.

In the case of the Preservation Hall Band of New Orleans, this was true. Their music reflected a different age in our nation's history.

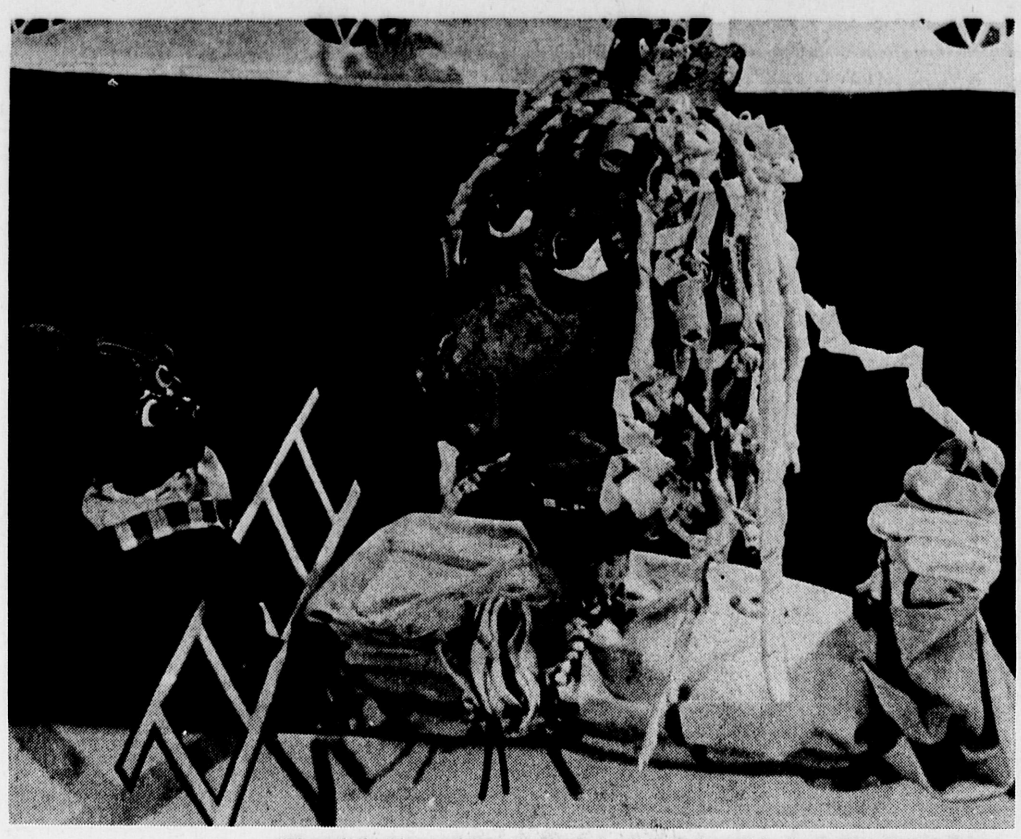
The Newport Ensemble, now appearing at the Half Note in New York, brought the audience up to more modern considerations.

Duke Ellington's "Take The A Train" sped through Chestnut Hill and it had four thousand riders enjoying every minute of it.

Dizzy Gillespie got on at the last stop and everyone clamored for a return trip.

George Wein believes that jazz, like any other art form, reflects the state of society from which it springs and he proved it on Saturday evening to the delight of those lucky enough to be in McHugh Forum.

Many of those present had memories enough to be nostalgic, many tried to forget the riots that almost ruined George Wein in summers past, many seemed too young to remember past the Beatles. George Wein brought all up to date on the history of jazz and our society.



Puppet Techniques

"Through the River and Over the Woods," will be performed by the Poobley Greegy Puppet Theater every Sunday at 2:30 p.m. beginning May 20. A demonstration of puppet techniques will follow the show. Audience participation is encouraged and the group uses multiple stages and hand puppets with moveable legs. The puppet drama combines phrases and stories that children know with an original story line that puppets can best perform and has plenty of action without resorting to violence. Mrs. Joan Green of the Newton Public Schools serves on the board of trustees of the sponsoring organization, The Center for Visual Communication. The puppet shows take place at the Boston Film Center, 25 Church St.

To Stage Gala Birthday Party

A huge birthday party and picnic, marking the 20th anniversary of the Countryside School, Dedham Street, Newton Highlands, will be celebrated by students, parents and community leaders beginning at 6 p.m., Thursday, May 24.

The picnic, to be held on the grounds of the Countryside School, will feature a series of special events including a party hats display and competition in which the students will parade their specially prepared birthday headpieces.

Birthday cake and beverages will be served by the Countryside PTA throughout the picnic-party which is expected to draw former students and some who attended the school during its inaugural year.

Following the picnic, the group will gather in the school auditorium for the formal dedication of the contemporary playground which was recently created and completed through the combined efforts of students, parents and neighbors of the Countryside School.

Innovative forms, huge rubber tires and strategically placed telephone poles of varied sizes comprise what has already proven to be an exciting and unique play area for the youngsters.

A special musical program by members of the school's various classes and a commemorative presentation are among the several special events planned for the evening-long series of celebrations that is open to the public.

Students Present 'Charlie Brown'

Students of Newton South High School, 140 Brandeis Rd., Newton Centre, are now preparing for their final theatre arts production for the current school year.

A presentation of the musical comedy, "You're A Good Man Charlie Brown," which has only three rehearsal weeks remaining, promises to be entertaining and tremendous fun for people of all ages.

The cast includes Rick McLellan in the lead role of Charlie Brown, David Alpert as Snoopy, and Caron Palder as Lucy. The part of Linus will be played by Joshua Stone; Jon Oshima will portray Schroeder and Leslie D'Ercole will play the part of Patty.

Settings are being designed by David Weisman and the lighting design will be by Randy Wayne. The small orchestra will be under the direction of Eric Ziering, class of 1974.

The entire production is under the direction of Ronda Flashen and Rick McLellan, seniors at the school.

Performances will be held Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday, May 23, 24 and 25 at 8 p.m. in the school auditorium. The price of admission is $2.

A special matinee performance for young people will be held Saturday, May 26, at 2 p.m. and admission will be only $1.50.

Tickets may be reserved for any performance by calling 969-9810, ext. 342, between 8 a.m. and 2:30 p.m. weekdays.

Tickets will also be available at the door.

Country Players Enter 'Miss Reardon' In Festival

The Newton Country Players will present a condensed version of Paul Zindel's Broadway success "And Miss Reardon Drinks A Little" at the 20th annual New England Theatre Conference Drama Festival for community theatres, to be held Thursday through Sunday, May 24-27, at Brandeis University.

The entry is directed by John Deming of Newton Highlands.

A total of twenty-three groups will vie for top honors in the festival, with the players, Newton's sole representative, slated to perform on Saturday, May 26, at 1:30 p.m.

In order to obtain impartial judging, the winner of the "Best Production" award will be selected by a member of the Judging Team of the Canadian Dominion Festival, David Gardner of Montreal. Host group are the Entr' Actors Guild of Worcester.

In their initial festival attempt in 1969, the players' entry of Van Itallie's "War" received Honorable Mention and two of the five major awards, "Best Director" by James Cooke and "Best Supporting Actress" by Patricia Pellows. As a result of their noteworthy showing, they were invited, and accepted, to make seven guest appearances with the Entr' Actors Guild at the Fenwick Theatre, Holy Cross College, Worcester.

With their condensation of Genet's "The Balcony" in 1970, the players were selected for the finals, and the following year, they were the only group to enter an original, unproduced one-act play into the competition.

Last spring the players entered an original and whimsical "who-dunnit" for youngsters, "Sam Stiller, Private Eye," staged and directed by Daniel Kosow. While not the ultimate winner, it was the first and only children's show ever selected as a finalist in the NETC's 19 year history and Kosow was the recipient of the "Best Director" award.

The cast for the festival includes Sandy Deming, Mikki Krassin, Patricia Pellows, Robert Reed, Paula Grossman and Ben Berg. Stage manager is Jimmy Sloane.

Working on production are Bert Krassin and Bucky Rosenberg, set design; Sandy Deming, Mikki Krassin, Linda Louri, Lee Pinkofsky and Soni Tick, set decor; Joe Colella, John Deming, Bert Krassin, Paul Lourie, Allyn Pinkofsky, Bucky Rosenberg and Gene Tick, set construction; Lillian Breen and Barbara Role, props; Paul Lourie, lighting; and Danny Kosow, publicity.

The festival will raise the curtain with performances on Thursday, May 24, at 7:30 p.m.

Competition will continue with two sessions on Friday, at 1:30 p.m. and 7:30 p.m. Three sessions will follow on Saturday, at 10 a.m., 1:30 p.m. and 7:30 p.m. Final presentations will be given at the two sessions on Sunday, at 10 a.m. and 1:30 p.m. At the conclusion of the afternoon session, the festival's "Best Production" winner will be announced.

On Sunday at 7:30 p.m., the Connecticut, New Hampshire and NETC Festival winners will vie for the honor of representing Region I in the National FACT Festival, June 14-16, in Lincoln, Nebr. The National FACT winner will then represent the United States in the World Amateur Theatre Festival in Monaco.

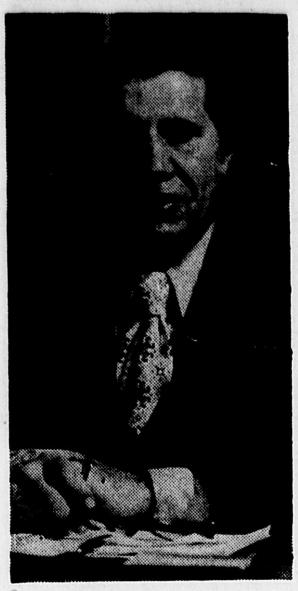
Unveil Reorganization Plan



Included in this edition is a special Centennial supplement to the Newton Graphic. Mayor Theodore D. Mann has issued the following letter in conjunction with its publication.

The much-heralded plan for reorganization of the Department of Public Works, released in part Wednesday, so far consists largely of changes recommended by the 1968 report of the Booz-Allen, Hamilton consulting firm.

To the average taxpaying citizen the best news about the reorganization plan is that it can be put into effect with no increase in the Public Works Department budget, according to Richard Dudman, director.

The first section of Dudman's report explains that "to attempt more extreme changes (than called for in the BAH report) is not justified until it can be ascertained that the changes in that document are no longer adequate to the need."

The need, as perceived by Dudman, began "as long ago as 10 to 15 years," when "PW began to deteriorate. In particular the last six years have seen an enormous acceleration of the process . . . it appears that size along might be a major cause."

The report continues, "The import of the problem of growth is that what at one time was a department with technical problems slowly became an operation with technical and operational problems."

To relieve some of the burden on the Street Department, which is responsible for some 75 per cent of all Public Works functions, Dudman plans to transfer the Sewer Division into the Water Department and to create a separate Sanitation Division, following closely the Booz-Allen, Hamilton report. The major variance from BAH is that instead of establishing a new department and commissioner for Sanitation, Dudman proposes a division foreman who would report for the next year to the DPW director.

Combining the sewer and water functions under the present Water Department would further relieve the Street Department, but would require ordinance changes because of budgetary considerations.

Filling of the vacant position of general superintendent, which was requested by Dudman at a recent aldermanic Finance Committee meeting, is a part of Dudman's plan, although the BAH report recommended abolishing the position.

Dudman said at the Finance Committee meeting that the position is essential for "operational control," since the general superintendent "has the ability to cut across divisions" in ordering shifts in personnel and equipment when necessary.

Dudman's reorganization plan sees the general superintendent as allowing the Street Commissioner to return to management responsibility, which in turn will relieve the Director of Public Works from assuming some of the duties of the Street Commissioner, as has been necessary in the past.

The rest of Dudman's reorganization plan, expected to be completed later this week, covers the need for computerized management reports in order to make possible exploitation of the data being accumulated, systems analysis, changes in city ordinances required by the reorganization, and budget and inventory control.

The reorganization plan resulted from nearly five months of work by Dudman and the administration.

Dudman said Wednesday that the planned reorganization will be tested as presented. If the BAH recommendations are found to be wanting in the light of being five years old, and if his other suggestions do not achieve the desired goals, further and more extensive measures may be revealed.

THEODORE D MANN
MAYOR

Dear Friends:

I congratulate the Newton Graphic on the publication of this special edition commemorating the Newton Centennial. It is particularly appropriate that this newspaper take special recognition of our Centennial celebration since the Graphic has been a responsible and potent journalistic voice in our community since before we were a city.

As we near the climax of our Centennial celebration we look back to the overwhelming successful events that have been conducted -- the Ball, the Jazz Jubilee, the Music Spectacular, the Youth Concert, the Education and Urbanology Conferences and the unforgettable Family Picnic with almost 10,000 participating and we look forward to our Garden Party, Elementary School Field Day and Parade that will climax this month long festivities.

We are particularly proud of the community response and we are grateful to our citizens who participated in the planning and the thousands who attended as spectators. Our non-profit Centennial Commission drew the membership of its numerous volunteer committees from every corner of our city -- all age groups, all religious groups and from every economic stratum. In all, approximately 2000 of our fellow citizens served on Centennial committees. We are all indebted to them for their dedication.

We are especially proud that we have been able to achieve another unprecedented goal. Not one penny of city funds has been appropriated to carry on this unique city celebration. Our business community and individual citizens generously contributed the necessary funds for planning and for operating capital that has enabled the Centennial Commission to bring to our community such a wide variety of events.

This year, as we have rallied together the different elements of our community in art, religion, education, entertainment and in an unparalleled citywide beautification program, let us pledge that our next century together as Newtonians will reflect the spirit of 73 that has been created and nurtured during our Centennial celebration. I earnestly hope that during this next century and far, far into the future the Newton Graphic will continue to report the activities of our city and its progress with the same diligence it has manifested throughout its illustrious history.

Sincerely yours,

Theodore D. Mann
Mayor

Dudman Appointment Official

By ELIZABETH McKINNON

The controversial appointment of Richard Dudman as permanent director of the Newton Department of Public Works will take effect June 3 after motion by Alderman Peter Harrington to reject the appointment failed by a 6-10 vote at Monday night's meeting of the Board of Aldermen.

Before the vote, members of the board closeted themselves with Mayor Theodore Mann in a closed session, which is allowed under the state open-meeting law when the reputation of a person will be discussed.

During the secret hour-long session those observers who stuck it out heard snatches of loud and heated attacks against Dudman.

Alderman Richard McGrath, one of Dudman's most vociferous opponents since his appointment as temporary director last December, said that Dudman is "not qualified, and fouls his information up." He claimed that Dudman "is afraid to come before the board" to ask for needed appropriations.

McGrath referred to difficulties with the sand and garbage contracts under Dudman's regime as examples of Dudman's "inability to cope."

Alderman Richard Bullwinkle asked the mayor about the long-awaited reorganization plan, which, the mayor replied, would be ready in the next few days. Bullwinkle left the room, slamming the door loudly.

"All form and no substance," was Ald. Joseph McDonnell's comment on Dudman's performance.

Mayor Mann at one point could be heard through the closed door to say, "I'm trying to tell you I've got a guy who really cares about how the city runs. You don't work with him day after day. I see his commitment, and it ranks very high on my scale. I see him out on the streets, I see his time commitment, I see him working on ecology and environment programs. I see his devotion to the city, I see the best public works document I've ever seen."

Alderman Matthew Jefferson questioned Dudman's utilization of the former Public Works Director, Willard Pratt, who has become Water Commissioner since Dudman's advent. "I don't know whether they even speak to each other, Jefferson said, "even though when we voted for Dudman we voted to retain Pratt. Pratt in my mind is very competent."

"Dudman came with false credentials," said Harrington. There is no question about his devotion to the city, but he's not what you need — you need a strong man. Pratt came up with real answers about why he needed something."

"He's getting on-the-job-training here," Harrington continued. "We hope he'll learn his job."

Dudman's supporters could not be heard, but at the vote they registered their opinion. Opposed to rejecting him were Aldermen Michael Antonellis, Alan Barkin, Wendell Bauckman, David Cohen, Harry Crosby, Robert Gaynor, Joseph McDonnell (chairman of the aldermanic Public Works Committee), Edward Richmond, Robert Tennant, and Board President Eliot Cohen.

Lower Falls Association Backs Developer

Heeding the advice of its executive board, the Newton Lower Falls Improvement Association voted unanimously this week to support the development proposal of the firm of Spaulding and Slye for the commercial parcel at the intersection of Washington street and Route 128.

The Newton Redevelopment Authority is currently contemplating the choice of a developer between three remaining bidders and has been engaged in what one member referred to as "jockeying for position" during the past several weeks.

Authority member Richard Clarey, a resident of the Lower Falls area, appeared before his neighbors Tuesday and gave a rundown on authority members' "maneuvering."

According to Clarey, both he and Chairman Cecil Cadwell are in favor of the Spaulding and Slye proposal, while members Mario DeCarlo and Lawrence Sullivan remain publically uncommitted.

Robert G. Davidson, the final member of the authority, is committed to the bid submitted by the Woodland Realty Trust, a firm owned by the J. F. White Construction Company of Newton, developers of the Gateway Center in Newton Corner.

Clarey questioned the motives of both Sullivan and Davidson in his presentation at the Improvement Association meeting, and labeled Sullivan a "labor man."

"Organized labor has some type of gripe against Spaulding and Slye and it seems Sullivan, organized labor's representative on the authority, is against the firm for that reason," Clarey stated to his neighbors.

"Davidson," Clarey added, "has confined his opposition to nit-picking the designs submitted by Spaulding and Slye."

"He really has not said anything positive about the Woodland plan but concentrates on attacking the best plan for lack of docking space as called for in the authority specifications."

The Lower Falls residents were told by both Clarey and Richard Spaulding, representing his firm, that the plans did provide for adequate docking space as called for by the specifications and city ordinances.

"We have the complete backing of the authority's design consultant and the city's inspection department," Spaulding said.

Hugh Arcese, a resident of the Lower Falls area, responded by stating, "Mr. Davidson will then have to answer to this community on why he is holding out."

Clarey added to his remarks by calling for a full turnout of Lower Falls residents at the next meeting of the Authority on June 7.

"Some members of the authority have a penchant for conducting their business in executive session and if there are enough of us there they might not be able to do that," he explained.

"We have assembled a competent staff under an able executive director and they have built up a great deal of goodwill in the community over the past year. I would just hate to see that all go to waste by the 'jockeying for position' now going on between certain members of the authority," Clarey concluded.

Association President Donald Budge had previously explained the executive board's position on a developer and the reasons for picking Spaulding and Slye.

He called on Edward Jones, civic chairman for the association and an architect, to explain the reasons for such a choice.

Jones termed the chosen design "superior to the others," and commented on the amenable transition Spaulding and Slye had designed into the boundary between the commercial and residential parcels.

Brigham's Offers Cash For Program

The Brigham's chain of candy and food stores have offered $1,000 to start a program of youth workers on Newton streets to help allieviate the summertime problem of "hanging around."

The offer was transmitted at a recent meeting of the Newton Youth Commission, at which a proposed summer program, submitted by a member of the School Department, was discussed.

The proposal, for "establishing contact with students on the street as well as contacting various store owners in troubled areas of the city," would last eight weeks and would cost $2,000 for each street worker.

Brigham's also indicated a willingness to try to raise money from other businesses in Newton.

A Brigham's spokesman said early this week that no response had been received from Mayor Theodore D. Mann about their proposal.

The program, if established, is expected to be a pilot program. The street workers will work in cooperation with other youth-service agencies in the city, such as the Newton Community Service Centers, and the Newton - Wellesley Multi - Service Center.

The background gained from this experience would then determine whether the program should be made permanent or should be integrated into programs of existing agencies, according to Youth Commission Chairman Rev. Charles Coyle.

Urbanology

No Man Is An Island Anymore

"America has to turn away from unlimited opportunity–it can no longer be 'every man for himself' " articulated by former chairman of the Boston Redevelopment Authority Edward Logue, was a recurrent theme of the Urbanology Conference held last week as part of Newton's Centennial celebration.

America's, and Newton's responsibility to think not as an independent entity but as a part of a whole was repeated throughout the two-day conference that brought together experts in urban planning, transportation, conservation, and housing.

Logue presented his "urban agenda" not so much to get or provide solutions as to stir the minds of his audience. Logue's number-one item was slum housing, which he said blights and blunts the aspirations of those living in it. The blighted neighborhoods, he pointed out, are creeping beyond the central city and will impact on Newton.

Transportation, which Logue called "the most selfish in the world," was another item high on the agenda. Logue feels that we must change from automobile transportation to planned urban transit, no longer adhering to "the old frontier idea that we can do as we please."

Land-use policy must be developed on a local, metropolitan, regional, state and national level, according to Logue. "We must accept the idea that our land supersedes economic opportunity and personal and national ambition. Being Number One is not really the highest and best standard by which to judge a society."

The national government has been a failure at providing low- and moderate-income housing, Logue noted, yet he believes that no private enterprise or state can provide funding. His solution would be to return housing to local and state initiative, but "we don't need federal supervision, we need federal funds."

In an afternoon workshop moderated by Donald Elliot, former chairman of the New York City Planning Commission, Brandeis professor David Austin, a Newton resident, gave Newton three choices-to be a defensive city, a developmental city, or a leadership community.

Defensively, Newton would "draw a ring around itself and be Newton for Newtonites, with little innovation and good housekeeping services." Austin said that "this strategy will never succeed because Newton is washed over by forces from the outside."

To become developmental would mean bringing in office buildings, industry and business. Austin believes this is unlikely to happen becasue Newton's residents do not lean that way.

A leadership city is, in Austin's opinion, Newton's best future role. "Newton has more leverage on what happens in the metropolitan area that Boston does," Austin said, it can give leadership in social and educational services and be the link between the large city (Boston-Cambridge) and the outer suburbs, and at the same

Vail Appraisal Approved

After considerable debate on the cost of the appraisals of the Webster Vale, the Board of Aldermen Monday night approved the $4,000 appraisal fee and gladdened the hearts of the many spectators and aldermen wearing the silent sentiment, "Save the Vale."

Two appraisals are necessary to qualify for federal and state funding for landtaking costs if the city makes the decision to acquire the seven-acre vale, once part of the huge Webster estate.

Recent statements by the present owner of the vale, Robert Cohen, that he intends to subdivide the property to build houses, galvanized the neighboring residents and hundreds more throughout the city into action to try to prevent the destruction of the ecologically unique parcel.

A compromise was reported last week which would allow Cohen to construct four single family houses on the West ridge of the site and would leave the actual "vale" part of the vale untouched.

The final aldermanic vote was 18-1 in favor of the appraisal appropriation. Three aldermen were absent. The dissenting vote came from Alderman Joseph McDonnell who said he was voting against the appropriation because he felt it was being drawn from the wrong budgetary account.

City Hall: Quite An Education

By LEN BATEMAN

For Karen Kozlowski, a 20-year-old University of Massachusetts coed, the past five months spent in the environs of Newton City Hall have been a college education in themselves.

Karen, up until last January, was running to classes and lugging books all over the Amherst campus. She eventually got fed up with it.

She decided she needed a change of pace but really didn't want to leave school and give up the three years' investment she had made in money, time and brainpower.

Karen got her change, is still investing her time and brainpower, only now, unfortunately, money does not enter the picture. Payrolls are not made up for what Karen has been doing for Newton, or for what Newton has been doing to Karen, for that matter.

With the help of a few understanding professors at the university, Karen was accepted into a novel program which places student interns into various governmental agencies in Washington, D.C. and three Massachusetts cities.

Newton was chosen for Karen by the administrators of the "Outreach" program and the mayor's office arranged for her to live at the home of Mrs. Sadie Gould at 16 Otis place, Newtonville.

For a young girl, born and brought up in the rustic tranquility of a small town in the foothills of the Berkshires, Newton proved to be quite bewildering at first.

"But I've learned a great deal," explained the pert blonde who in the few short months since her arrival has done a great deal for a wide variety of Newton citizens.

In describing her activities, Karen stated, "We have to deal with the sociological aspects of municipal government."

What she meant in concrete terms was that now hot lunches are served to the city's senior citizens in school cafeterias and the retired set is now whisked to points of special interest in the area on a city-owned bus.

But Karen is realistic enough to know that providing a service and getting people to take advantage of it are two separate problems.

"There are 18,000 senior citizens in this city," she said, "and we only see a very small fraction of them eating our meals and enjoying our bus rides."

Karen's course in human nature is progressing nicely.

"We read about this type of situation back at school," she added, "but you really can't imagine how frustrating it is until you are involved in it personally."

Asked if there were any other frustrating experiences involved in her work as a student intern Karen only made a brief reference to "unyielding civil servants."

Someone Forgot Student Parking At New High School

Charles J. Thomas, planning director for the City of Newton, recently completed a study of the parking problem yet to be faced at the New Newton North High School.

In a letter to the mayor, the Board of Aldermen, the School Committee and the Traffic Commission Thomas stated, "Since this concern comes many years after a number of decisions, the possibilities for dealing with either traffic or parking in the high school area are severly limited."

Evidently, in the early stages of decision making on the new school it was determined that only teachers and other school personnel would be provided parking spaces.

At that time it was determined to provide only 300 parking spaces on site. It is now estimated that an additional 500 - 800 additional spaces will have to be provided for student cars.

Thomas presented the city officials with various alternatives, all of which were accompanied with predicaments.

One action would be to permit student parking on the street. However the relocation of the school will force a reorientation of street parking to the Lowell Avenue side of the site instead of the currently used Walnut Street side.

The planning director estimated a street frontage of from 2.3 to 3.8 miles will be needed to accomodate student vehicles in an area previously free of heavy on street parking.

Another alternative, according to Thomas, would be to prohibit student parking altogether or selective bans on students by school department.

Several participants at a recent traffic commission meeting called this alternative impractical in light of open campus and the demands of employment on most students.

The third alternative, to provide student parking on site, might involve one of three plans.

The first would take over portions of the site already set aside for athletic use.

Thomas informed city officials in his letter that a reduction of athletic space would force the relocation of playing fields to other sites in the city.

Expansion of the site to accomodate additional student parking would necessitate the acquisition and demolition of more than 20 properties for 500 vehicles and at least 30 residential properties for 800 vehicles.

Thomas explained this proposal would "encompass virtually the entire area between Elm Road and Otis Street," if spaces are made for 800 cars.

The third plan forseeable under the last alternative of providing student parking on site would be the construction of a garage.

According to Thomas, "two to three additional parking levels would be necessary," on top of the area already set aside for teacher parking.

School Committeewoman Eleanor Rosenbloom, a participant at the Traffic Commission meeting, stated such a plan would be the most functional.

"Sooner or later the momentum will come to build upward and by that time it will cost twice as much," Mrs. Rosenbloom stated.

According to Donald Levitan of the Community Development Department, up to 100 per cent funding for a garage may be obtained from federal Department of Transportation.

For eligibility Newton would have to ban all on - street parking up to one - quarter of a mile from the high school.

"The city would also wind up paying the bill if Washington decides to cut funds at any time," according to Levitan.

Whatever alternative is finally chosen, school and city officials must come up with a viable decision sometime between now and the opening of school in September.

Inquiry Clears Patrolman In Davis Case

Patrolman Harold Travers was recently cleared of all charges brought against him by the Rev. Ernest Davis' attorney after three hours of testimony before a board of inquiry composed exclusively of his fellow officers according to Police Chief William F. Quinn.

The charges stemmed from the arrest of the black minister, a student at Andover Newton Theological School, on Union Street, Newton Centre, during the early morning hours of Jan. 4, after he refused to identify himself.

Police learned of Davis' identity at their headquarters and gave him an opportunity to sign a release and have the "rude and disorderly" charges dropped.

Davis refused to sign and requested a court trial "to see that justice was done." The judicial proceeding eventually closed without making a final determination on the police charges.

The clergyman then countercharged in a citizen's complaint and accused Travers of unreasonable force and uttering abusive language.

The complaint was filed under guidelines issued by the Civil Rights Division of the state's Attorney General's Office and Police Chief Quinn explained that the formal three-hour inquiry which cleared Travers was conducted according to the same guidelines.

According to the Chief, who also acted as chairman of the board of inquiry, the hearing consisted of a panel of superior officers who, after asking questions and "much deliberation, unanimously voted that the evidence did not substantiate the charges.

According to Davis, the accused patrolman had pointed a gun at his head and used obscene language.

Quinn stated, "We found Travers had every right to pull a gun under the circumstances, but did not put the gun to Davis' head. He only pointed it in that direction."

According to the Chief, "The abusive language charge did not hold any water, either."

The only non-policeman in the room during the hearing was the Rev. Jerald Stinson, exacutive secretary of the Newton Community Relations Commission.

Quinn later said that he gave Stinson the opportunity to ask questions and make comments but the observer declined.

Stinson explained that his silence was motivated by a firm conviction the inquiry was entirely one-sided. "I did not want to give it the seal of my approval," he said.

Neither Davis nor his lawyer, Arthur Sullivan, was present in the room at the time of the questioning of witnesses and according to Stinson and Sullivan, they were not invited.

Quinn stated Sullivan never gave him the impression he wanted to be present. "They were entirely welcome to be in the room," he said.

The questioning was conducted solely by Capt. Albert Yanco, commander of special services for the police department, and Joseph McPartland, lawyer for the police union. City Solicitor Melvin Dangel was present to advise Chief Quinn.

In later commenting on the inquiry, Stinson stated, "I don't consider either of the two interrogators unbiased. Both Davis and Sullivan should have been invited to offset the one-sidedness."

"All I wanted to see was a fair hearing, but it is my opinion they did not have enough evidence to make a final determination," added Stinson who also explained he believed the hearing may not have been conducted in accordance with the guidelines set down by the Attorney General's Office.

Chief Quinn stated the panel's findings had been forwarded to Boston and would be reviewed by the Attorney General.

In commenting on Stinson's silence throughout the hearing Cheif Quinn stated, "I felt he was a little uptight but I thought the Community Relations Commission was supposed to bring people in the city together not tear them apart."

Stinson declined to comment on the Chief's remark but stated he "felt it more important to question the legality of the entire proceedings."

Attorney Sullivan pointed out that neither he nor Davis had been informed of the hearing.

Sullivan said he realized Chief Quinn had a lot of discretion under the guidelines of the Attorney General, "but we feel you cannot have a fair hearing when only one side is represented," he said.

Chief Quinn said he had sent a letter to Sullivan apologizing for not informing him of the meeting and the attorney acknowledged receipt of the letter.

"But we are not going to take this lying down," explained Sullivan. "We are now looking for options open to us to pursue the matter further," he concluded.

A First

Mrs. Geri Hackel Polcari has been appointed the first woman constable in the city of Newton. A 14-year resident of the city, Mrs. Polcari has actively participated in civic and scholastic affairs. In 1972, she received the appointment from the governor's office as a notary public; and at present, anticipates further study in matters of legal procedure. With her at the swearing-in ceremony were members of her family Jodi and Peter, and Rabbi Robert Miller of Temple Beth Avodah.

Guzzi Wants More Time To Study State Reorganization

Representative Paul Guzzi (D-Newton) has joined with other representatives in urging Governor Sargent to extend the time for considering reorganization legislation. A recent vote in the House received overwhelming bipartisan support to extend the reporting deadline 90 days to July 25.

The reorganization plan involves placing all state agencies within ten secretariats. It also calls for internal restructuring of many existing departments. Some agencies will be abolished altogether with their duties assigned to other agencies.

While supporting the rationale for the proposals, Representative Guzzi indicated that "the Legislature should not be forced to act in a rushed manner on such important legislation. Each plan should be carefully reviewed, with public hearings, to give everyone an opportunity to air their views."

Guzzi cited the proposed reorganization of the Department of Human Services as one example of the need for careful scrutiny. "We have recently seen that sections within this plan could adversely affect the quality of medical care offered to patients throughout the state.

Members of the nursing profession, as well as other providers of health care services, have brought some serious flaws in the proposal to the attention of the Committee on Social Welfare. As a result, the Committee is amending the bill. This process should be repeated with every single proposal in the Governor's plan."

Representative Guzzi noted that millions of dollars of state money, as well as four years of study, have already been invested in the reorganizations proposals. "It would be foolish after all this time and money has been spent to act without careful review. At this point, an extra one or two months to study the plan is a reasonable request. Our priorities must include high quality state services, as well as streamlining the government to save money."

Mofenson Opposes Corrections Transfer

Representative David J. Mofenson (D-Newton) has announced his "strong opposition to the proposed transfer of the Department of Corrections from the Office of Human Services to the Office of Public Safety."

In a statement last week, Representative Mofenson said, "Transfer of the Department of Corrections would be a pronounced step backward for prison reform in this Commonwealth. To remove the Department of Corrections from Human Services, it seems to me, would be a totally inappropriate approach to prison reform."

Several weeks ago, the proposed legislation was given a public hearing before the Committee on State Administration, of which Representative Mofenson is a member. Since that time, the committee has voted 13 to seven to give a favorable report to the proposal, with Representative Mofenson as one of the seven dissenters. The measure now awaits action in the Senate.

In 1971, Massachusetts adopted a major tool for overhauling its correctional system by enacting Omnibus Corrections Legislation, emphasizing a commitment toward rehabilitation.

Mofenson further stated, "The rehabilitative end of the prison reform spectrum must be emphasized because the basic fact is that 90 per cent of presently incarcerated inmates will one day return to society."

Mofenson further indicated that the modern view of crime and corrections as social and psychological problems, mandates controls that are themselves essentially social and psychological in nature.

He indicates that such controls can be developed far more appropriately in connection with agencies concerned primarily with understanding and treatment of human problems.

Representative Mofenson indicated that "Modern penologists emphasize rehabilitation and re-education of sentenced offenders as an essential goal in carrying out the duty to protect the public. The Department of Public Safety deals with questions of law enforcement and enforcing standards of industrial safety. In no state is the Corrections Department a division or bureau within the public safety arm of government."

Car Safety Bill Passes House

A bill to prohibit the removal of seat belts from automobiles, except for repair purposes, has passed the House and been sent to the senate.

The proposed law was co - sponsored by Representative David J. Mofenson and Sally Barnett, both of Newton.

The measure was introduced as the result of statistics demonstrating that motor vehicle accidents are the leading cause of death of persons under the age of 24, and a frequent cause of death of persons between the ages of 25 and 44.

Representative Mofenson said, "There is sufficient evidence to prove that safety belts reduce the number and extent of injuries. Both Mrs. Barnett, and I feel it is incumbent upon public officials to act responsibly by making seat safety belts available for automobile passengers."

Representative Mofenson further, stated, "Even if the owner - operator thinks seat belts are of little worth, they should at least be at hand for the protection and benefit of those riding with the operator."

By federal law, seat belts are required to be present in all new cars sold in the United States; there is, however, no prohibition against seat belts being removed.

Equal Rights Group Examines Racism

The Newton Committee for Fair Housing and Equal Rights presented Dwight Wilson, member of the New Quaker ministry, at its annual meeting recently.

The subject of Wilson's talk was "You Just Might Not Be A Racist!" The meeting was held at the Auburndale Congregational Church at 64 Hancock St.

Venezuela is about 1½ times the size of Texas.

Candidate List Grows

The list of Newton's prospective office seekers recently expanded to include a few more incumbent aldermen, a mayoral candidate and members of the School Committee.

School Committee incumbents Eleanor Rosenblum (Ward 2) and Joan Needleman (Ward 5) have obtained their nomination papers from the Election Commission office, as well as challengers Gerard Byrne of 40 Byrd Ave., seeking the School Committee seat in Ward 3.

William Carmen, who has already announced his candidacy for mayor, also picked up his nomination papers since the last report.

Incumbent Aldermen Richard J. McGrath (Ward 4 alderman), Michael Antonellis (Ward 5 at large), Jason Sacks (Ward 7 at large), Louis Egelson Jr. (Ward 4 at large), Andrew Magni (Ward 1 alderman), David W. Jackson (Ward 4 at large), Alan Barkin (Ward 8 alderman), and Matthew Jefferson (Ward 3 at large), have taken out their nomination papers.

Aldermanic challengers include: Alvin P. Huberman, 282 Grove St., Ward 4 alderman-at-large; John J. Deefe, 365 Austin St., Ward 3 alderman; Dominic Taglienti, 350 Langley Rd., Ward 7 alderman-at-large; Terrence P. Morris, 115 Mt. Vernon St., Ward 2 alderman-at-large; and Douglas Howard, 97 Farwell St., Ward 2 alderman-at-large.

Jury Questionnaire Deadline Imminent

Jury questionnaires mailed by the Newton Election Commission on May 1 must be returned to the commission by May 31, Executive Secretary Alan Licarie reminds citizens this week.

Penalty for nonreturn is a summons to report to the Election Commission.

Women with children under age 16, entitled under the law to exemption from jury duty, may waive their exemption.

Names are selected at random from the residence list and drawn for jury duty by the Board of Aldermen.

About 1,000 questionnaires are sent per year. Jurors are selected and names remain on the list of potential jurors for three years. Once a name has been selected and put on the list, whether or not the person is called for duty, that name is exempt for the following three years.

Newton jurors serve mainly in Superior Court in Cambridge and Lowell.

Pre-Primary Conventions Have To Go, Mrs. Swift Says

The elimination of the pre-primary convention is viewed by many of her party as a serious threat, but Newton's Gussie Swift is pushing her minority point of view in councils of the Republican State Committee and she is being taken seriously.

Mrs. Swift favors the abolition of the pre-primary convention, something that is far from the majority position of the committee.

Mrs. Swift is chairman of Newton's Ward Four Republican Committee and an associate member of Issues Committee of the Republican State Committee. She has done a vast amount of reading up on the subject and she is convinced history backs up her position.

In her written minority report submitted to Otto Wahlbar, chairman of the State Committee, Mrs. Swift briefly traces historical backgrounds of the pre-primary convention and concludes: "The primary unquestionably gives the voter a larger share in the nominating process . . . the continued surge of the democracy ideal demanded more direct voter participation and contributed to the downfall of the convention." She feels that this trend is continuing and is basic to the pressure to increase even more direct nomination of candidates.

"The direct primary" she points out "did not initiate the practice of spending money to receive nominations.

In the convention system candidates have been known to spend large amounts of money. Campaigning to win votes at the polls of course costs money, but so does campaigning for convention delegates."

Mrs. Swift believes that a Party Conference should be substituted for the pre-primary convention and that it should be devoted to matters other than candidate selection. "In many states", she notes, "a form of conference is recognized by law as the drafting agency for party platforms. Such a Party Conference in Massachusetts could very well serve to sustain party loyalties and enthusiasm as well as organized participation. The creation of party platforms, tryly responsive to the needs and thoughts of the people of today, is a real area of challenge."

She concedes that the abolition of the pre-primary convention will further weaken control of party organization, but she counters, "over the years we have been moving to more direct primary selection of candidates and this is a trend that is continuing and this fact has to be accepted.

"The party organization of both major parties," she adds, "must look to the future and be prepared for our ever-changing society. Party organization needs to be a constantly improving process and with it must come the raising of sights and standards of its leadership and participants."

These views vigorously expressed at various conferences are stimulating a good deal of thought that is beneficial regardless of what ultimately happens with regard to the convention itself.

Likely Bridge Dedicated

Family , members and friends and neighbors of the late Corporal Richard Allen Likely of Auburndale gathered Sunday, to dedicate the bridge at Auburn and Grove Streets in his memory.

Corp. Likely was killed in action in Quang Tri Province, South Vietnam on April 27, 1971, while on combat patrol.

Likely was a Newton High School graduate and leaves a wife and daughter both named Virginia Ann, his father John, who is a Newton Police sergeant, mother Anna, brother James, and sisters Barbara, Judy, Janet Lee and a nephew Paul, in addition to an adopted sister, also named Barbara.

Six months before Corporal Likely was killed in action, he wrote to the editors of Newton's newspapers an account of his activities with Vietnamese children and families. In his final paragraph he stated, "Vietnam is something different to everyone, but this is how it is to me: one lonely soldier fighting for peace."

The schedule of events include a parade of Marine Corps League Colors led by Newton Police Cadet William E. Byrne Jr., a detail of Newton Police officers led by Chief William F. Quinn and the Newton Police Drill Team led by Lt. Thomas Dargan. There was also an invocation by Father William McGlone, Corpus Christi Church, Auburndale.

The unveiling of the plaques was by family friends, Sgt. Paul Robinson, Officers Robert Braceland and Robert Fitzpatrick.

Robert Whiskey, commandant of the Marine Corps League will give a short presentation.

Senator Irving Fishman D-Newton and Rep. David Mofenson (D-Newton) will present the act, which names the bridge, to the General Court and the Toll Road Authority.

Alderman Richard McGrath and Thomas Concannon represented the Board of Aldermen and Mayor Theodore D. Mann brought the greetings of the citizens of Newton.

Sgt. Charles E. Feeley delivered the eulogy and acted as master of ceremonies.

Following the eulogy, the Marine Corps League fired a volley as a final salute.

The benediction was given by Father William E. Lowe, Church of the Messiah, Auburndale.

Arrangements were made by Robert Fitzpatrick.

A Final Salute

Board Finished On Victory Field

Reconsideration of the sale of the 14,000 square foot, city-owned Victory Field site in Nonantum to the Newton Housing Authority for four units of family housing failed to pass the Board of Aldermen Monday night.

The failure of the reconsideration, which was filed after the May 7 meeting by Alderman Andrew Magni, cears the way for the eventual acquisition of the land by the Authority. The board previously had approved the sale, with the reservation that the deed not be executed until the Authority had acquired title to the two other parcels of land in its projected housing program.

Housing Authority Executive Director Frank Quinn said Tuesday that nothing further has been heard on the negotiations for the Thurston Road site in Upper Falls or the Beaconwood Road property in Newton Highlands.

The Authority has received preliminary approval from the state Department of Community Affairs to construct a total of 50 elderly units and 28 family units on the three sites.

The first mayor of Atlanta was paid $200 per year and each member of the City Council got $20 per year.

Beckwith Seeks Reelection To School Committee Seat

Manuel Beckwith, chairman of the Newton School Committee, has announced his intention of running for re-election as a school committee member from Ward 4.

Beckwith has been a member of the committee since 1956 and chairman since 1968. A resident of 21 Kingswood Rd., Auburndale, he has been active in many Newton civic ventures, including village improvement societies, charitable drives and served as president of the Burr-Williams-Murray Road PTA and as the first president of the Newton High School PTSA.

In making his candidacy official, Beckwith stated, "I have always been a forceful spokesman for a non-political and non-partisan school committee, one which should concentrate on a constantly improving educational program for Newton children."

"It is my belief, emphasized at school committee meetings anf to other Newton Groups," added Beckwith, "that, with a falling school population and a maximum utilization of all school personnel, it is entirely reasonable to improve programs, pay salaries in keeping with the 'cost of living,' improve physical plant and still continue to hold the line on budget."

"The schools can maintan progress and continue to consume less and less of the city's budget," concluded Beckwith.

The candidate is owner of Holly Hill Antiques of Boston, president of Arden Associates, Inc., and a partner in Berbeck Realty Co. of Boston.

Will Bauckman Run Again

Alderman Wendell Bauckman of Ward 8, guest speaker at the Newton Centennial's Urbanology Conference at Boston College last Saturday, looked back from a perspective of 31 years in city government and found the view pleasing.

Looking forward, Bauckman, who customarily does not announce his intention to run again for the Ward 8 aldermanic seat until the last minute, perhaps hinted at a decision not to run when he said, "No one should stay this long. You should make way for the young."

"I irritate people by relating to the past," Bauckman, who is 68, said. When I first started on the board, I used to regard one of the older aldermen the same way as some of them now regard me. But after living all these years, I realize that you must relate the present to the past."

"I have served under mayors from Paul Goddard through Ted Mann," Bauckman recalled. "These people have all been dedicated by their love of the city to do the right thing."

Bauckman added, "I have never found any individual in government that seems one bit tainted."

The complexity of today's municipal government disturbs Bauckman, who during his current term as alderman is referred to as President Emeritus of the board, in recognition of his many years as president.

"The business of the day is so much more involved and time - consuming than it used to be. There is not so much more population, but people are demanding more and want to be involved," Bauckman said, but cautioned people against being to demanding: "I think we have the finest public buildings, but bricks and mortar do nothing. Other communities have old buildings, but the kids still get into college."

"When I vote on the board, I say, 'Is this a necessity, or is it just a nice thing to do?' "

Sanford Family

Maybe you knew the Richard M. Sanford family that was involved in the fatal Route 3 accident last Sunday as they headed home to Kingston from a church field day in Dedham.

And if you didn't know them, that's all right too, you could help a little if you wish.

The father, mother and two of their daughters died as a result of the crash. Three other children of the Sanford family, richard Jr., 14, Jodi, 16, and Shauna, 18, are survivors. They were not in the car with the rest of their family.

A group of acquaintances of the family have quietly formed a trust fund which they hope will finance the education of the Sanford children in the days and months and years ahead.

We mention it here for consideration of all those who might like to help. It would only take a moment as many of pack up in preparation for a family outing this Memorial Day weekend. We don't have to know the Sanfords personally. For them it will be a different weekend, a different life.

If your heart goes out to them you may be inclined to send a small check. It should be made out to "The Sanford Trust Fund" and sent to: Hancock Bank, Dedham Mall Branch, Dedham, Mass. 02026.

Inside Walpole Prison

Governor Sargent must go further if he really wants a competent and complete investigation into the latest million dollar riot at Walpole State Prison.

In the aftermath of the wall-battering chaos that took place at the prison this past weekend the state's chief executive officer asked Norfolk County District Attorney George Burke to make the investigation.

But Burke needs more than the official go-to-it from the Governor. He needs more manpower and it will come as no surprise when D.A. Burke requests that additional officers from the State Police be assigned to his office to go inside the prison walls for a first hand, professional examination of the factors and personalities that led to the weekend riot.

If the Governor sincerely wants answers on the Walpole situation he will move swiftly to see that the necessary manpower is placed at Burke's disposal.

It could well be that the ultimate blame will be laid directly at the governor's doorstep. For in the chain of prison command and responsibility that descends from the governor's office are the Sargent supported Secretary of Human Services Peter Goldmark and Correction Commissioner John O. Boone.

Those who are acquainted with Burke believe he will be thorough and fair and candid. George Burke has the habit of laying it on the line when it comes to explanations instead of alibis.

Whenever a felony is committed within a county it is the job of the district attorney to investigate. Although his jurisdiction takes in 27 communities it is a not surprising fact that much of the trouble in Burke's county comes from two places, the minimum security prison facility at Norfolk and the next door maximum security prison at Walpole.

Burke probably has more pipe lines into the prison system than any other man. And they are certainly not all among members of the inmate population. Some of the past superintendents at Walpole, for example, probably have talked with Burke more than they have talked with the top prison manBoone.It's no secret that one past superintendent who rode briefly on the permissive merry-go-round came to Burke and said: "I'm quitting. The system won't work. It can't. My hands are tied."

There is little love lost between Burke and the Goldmark - Boone "system." Almost every time he speaks out on the prison confrontation as it exists now in Massachusetts someone will tend to play down his observations and criticisms saying Burke is ultimately running for governor. Don't let the critics subtract the weight and worth from Burke's words.

Right now he is running the district attorney's office in Norfolk County. And his investigation and subsequent recommendations will demand a careful listening. To date no one else has defined the scope and limits of a prison system that was not able to blend defiance and destruction with rehabilitation and rekindling of hope.

Burke's office counts nearly 40 stabbings that have taken place within prison walls in recent times. The grim tally sheet also includes 10 murders within the same institutions. And there have been 22 escapes since the debated furloughs from prison have been instituted.

Some believe that Governor's appointment of Burke as top investigator is a move to take the heat off the executive office.

The call to "Let George do it" will, we believe be returned with significant and meaningful answers from District Attorney Burke providing he gets the manpower to get the job done.

Bill For Increased Gambling Seen Likely To Win Approval

Present indications on Beacon Hill are that a bill providing for a weekly state - operated betting pool on college and professional sporting events will be approved despits sharp opposition from the world of athletics.

Professional football and basketball players are fearful that they will be suspected of "fixing" the point spreads on games when large sums are wagered on the contests.

Despite the concern of the athletes that they may be suspected of "being in the tank" when they strike out, boot a ground ball or miss a field goal, many law - makers view expanded legalized gambling as a painless way of getting new revenue for the state.

They are convinced that greater legalized gambling would be a blow to organized crime although there is some doubt that there is enough gambling on sports events at the present time to be worth talking about.

Most people wouldn't know where to go to place a bet on a football, basketball of baseball game.

Officials in the various branches of professional sports obviously are genuinely worried that public suspicion that a game was fixed might kill interest in that particular sport.

This does not seem to be of great concern to most legislators, and the gambling bill apparently is headed for passage.

The State Lottery has been operated in a most praiseworthy manner under the general supervision of State Treasurer Robert Q. Crane. However, gambling on professional and college games, with point spreads involved, would be much more complicated, and upsets do occur on the football field.

Meanwhile, plans are going forward for the expansion of the year - old State Lottery to include an "instant game" where winners will be notified as soon as they buy their tickets.

Whether Governor Sargent will seek to block the move for more legalized gambling is uncertain. He probably can do so if he wishes.

Quinlan Makes Strong Case Against State Prison Boss

Perhaps the most telling criticism yet directed at State Correction Commissioner John O. Boone came from State Senator John M. Quinlan of Norwood.

Quinlan is no hard - line law and order man. He is a liberal Republican Senator. Last year he supported the prison reform movement which resulted in Boone being brought to Massachusetts.

Now, however, he believes Boone has not done the job he supposedly came here to do, and he makes a pretty convincing case to show that conditions have got completely out of hand at Walpole State Prison under Boone.

Commissioner Boone isn't likely to resign because Senator Quinlan called upon him to do so, but Quinlan's statements certainly gave Governor Sargent cause for some sober reflection.

This writer, like Senator Quinlan, favors prison reform and believes the furlough system is a good thing if it is carefully controlled so the public safety is not endangered.

Some mistakes, of course, have been made in granting furloughs which should not have been approved and which did jeopardize the safety of the general public.

In all fairness, a program such as the furlough system cannot be administered perfectly and flawlessly. Some convicts on impulse will go AWOL rather than return to the prison on schedule even though they know the odds are against them in doing so.

From a percentage standpoint the furlough program at the Walpole State Prison has worked reasonably well, and it probably has played a part in helping to rehabilitate those prisioners who can be rehabilitated.

But the conditions at Walpole State Prison described by Senator Quinlan are shocking and warrant a call for Boone's resignation. And Quinlan knows what he's talking about.

He charges that the State Department of Correction has clearly lost control of the inside of its maxium security prison. This is true, and it is a dangerous situation. The inmates actually are in control of the cell blocks, and guards are afraid to patrol them. They are fearful of being killed or seriously injured.

Quinlan pointed out that there had been 12 murders and 38 stabbings at the prison during the period Boone had headed the correction department. Those figures could increase between the time this column is written and it appears in print.

The Norwood Senator cited that violence prevails at Walpole State Prison and that the inmates possess both drugs and weapons in abundance.

That obviously is dangerous not only for the guards but also for those prisoners who may be unable to fight off an attack by a fellow inmate and who are entitled to protection during their term of incarceration.

In his reorganization bill Governor Sargent proposed that the State Department of Correction be made a division in the State Department of Public Safety.

A good many thoughtful persons who have given careful consideration to that proposal do not feel it is a good idea.

They think the Department of Correction is sufficiently important and its functions unique enough so that it should remain an entity by itself in the state government headed by a modern - day penologist.

Commissioner Boone is a penologist with up - to - date ideas on prison reform and how best to rehabilitate the men and women who are deprived of their freedom and sentenced to spend time behind prison walls.

But a feeling is growing that Boone is not a good administrator and that he has allowed hazardous conditions to develop at the Walpole State Prison. Whether anyone can practise prison reform and keep things under control is a question on which there is a difference of opinion.

Conventions Dropped in 1938 Because of Delegate Payoffs

The pre-primary convention system of endorsing candidates for state - wide offices was abolished in Massachusetts back in 1938 after charges that delegates had been bribed and that money had been passed openly at the 1934 and 1936 conclaves.

Former Governor Paul A. Dever reiterated those allegations in 1952 when he vetoed a Republican - backed bill to revive the state convention Dever had been a candidate at the '34 and '36 conclaves.

GOP leaders were trying to restore the convention method of picking state tickets after losing the 1948 and 1950 gubernatorial elections by landslide margins to Dever who was an outstanding Governor.

Dever blocked their efforts, but the Republicans held an unofficial state convention at Worcester in 1952 and endorsed a ticket headed by Christian A. Herter for Governor and Henry Cabot Lodge for U. S. Senator. GOP chieftains then invoked party discipline to make the endorsements stick.

The young Republican legislator who implied recently that Herter stole that 1952 convention from Sumner Whittier didn't know his facts.

Laurence Curtis and Whittier were squaring off for a battle for the Republican nomination for Governor when a delegation of top Bay State Republicans waited on Herter in Washington and persuaded him to become a candidate for Governor.

Herter, then a Congressman, an expert on international problems, later an exceptional Governor and Secretary of State, at first wasn't sure he wanted to leave Capitol Hill but finally consented to do so.

This reporter, who has covered all the State Conventions since they were revived unofficially in 1952 and officially by Herter in 1954, has never seen any evidence of payoffs to delegates.

Some delegates at both party conventions obviously have been influenced by offers of jobs and other political favors and forms of patronage. But there are now too many delegates for even a Governor to buy up a majority of them.

Governor Francis Sargent didn't terrorize any delegates at the 1970 Republican State Convention. He did call in balky delegates and talk with them, and he used his patronage power very deftly.

The Republicans have utilized the pre - primary conventions system to their advantage, and the Democrats have not.

The GOP voters in Massachusetts have not overturned a convention decision in the last 20 years. Endorsement by a Republican State Convention has been tantamount to nomination.

Democratic voters, on the other hand, have rejected at least one choice of every State Convention, and this has created bitterness and dissention within the party.

Only two Democratic Governors have been aided by State Conventions. They were Foster Furcolo and Endicott Peabody.

Ironically, Furcolo opposed the pre - primary convention principle although he was endorsed by the conclaves in 1954, 1956, 1958 and 1960.

Furcolo believed, as did many political observers of that time, that a primary contest was not harmful to a candiate and could, in fact, give him momentum which would carry on into the election.

He also felt there was little point to holding conventions if the losing contenders were not going to abide by the actions of the conclaves. Some Democratic candidates have bypassed the conventions and carried their fights directly into the primary.

John F. Kennedy was opposed to the pre - primary state conventions and had as little to do with them as possible. He filed bills to scrap the convention system when he was Senator and President. His measures were all defeated.

Now, the Democratic legislators have done what Foster Furcolo and JFK urged years ago. The only question is whether Governor Sargent can muster the necessary support to sustain a veto of a bill repealing the pre-primary convention system.

From our vantage point the most obvious arguement against the state conventions is that the delegates attending the conclaves are representative of the voters in their districts, and there does not appear to be any way of making them representative.

Ninety - nine out of every 100 voters in Boston could not name one member of their local ward committees if they were asked. They don't know who the committee members are, and except at convention time they don't really care.

The committee members get their relatives and friends out to elect them in a Presidential Primary and then they're heard from two years later at a convention.

A suggestion was made that the delegates be elected at caucuses, but most voters wouldn't bother turning out to participate in a caucus.

The fact is the pre - primary state convention serves little useful purpose for the average Democratic voter or the average Democratic candidate. The Democrats might regain the habit of winning gubernatorial elections if the pre - primary state conventions are junked.

Priest Reports On Thieu's Prisoners

On April 8 South Vietnam's President Thieu told Pope Paul that he holds no political prisoners but other Vietnamese and outside observers estimate that, by means of the US tax dollars which maintain him, he has imprisoned at least 200,000, mainly , neutralist opponents of his policies.

At 8 p.m., Tuesday, May 29, at Eliot Church, 474 Center St., Newton, Father Robert Manning, S.J., Holy Cross College Chaplain, will discuss his personal experiences during a week's fact-finding trip in late April to investigate these conflicting claims. He accompanied two Roman Catholic bishops, Thomas Gumbleton of Detroit and Guy Bellanger of Quebec, on the privately financed trip. The Newton meeting is sponsored by Clergy and Laity Concerend and by American Friends Service Committee.

In addition to Father Manning's talk a supplementary report will be given by Mrs. Katherine Knight of Newton Center who was the only american delegate to an International Conference on the South Vietnamese Political Prisoners called in Paris in mid-April. Mrs. Knight is a staff member of the AFSC, Cambridge.

Geo. McGovern Tragic Figure In Viewing Presidential Race

Developments in the wake of last November's Presidential election, which have seemed incredible to this observer, have been the arrogance, stupidity and trickery of some of the people who ran President Nixon's campaign and the naivety of Senator George McGovern and his top backers.

Senator McGovern apparently has never recognized that Mr. Nixon was not really a popular candidate or that the reason Nixon was overwhelmingly reelected was that he was somewhat less unpopular that McGovern.

A group of astute Democratic politicians were questioned the other day as to whether President Nixon would be reelected today in the face of the shocking Watergate scandal.

Almost to a man, they agreed that Richard Nixon would still defeat George McGovern at the present time despite the handicap of the Watergate mess but that he probably would be beaten by a candidate such as Maine Senator Edmund Muskie whom McGovern defeated for the Presidential nomination.

Now it appears that some of the dirty trick manipulators in the Nixon campaign may have knocked down Muskie last year and helped to build up McGovern so that he might finally become the standard - bearer against President Nixon. That is amazing in a contest for the Presidency of the United States.

One person who probably would never believe that is George S. McGovern who is still talking about his traumatic experiences in last fall's campaign and is blaming just about everyone for his defeat except himself.

The more closely one studies some of the statements attributed to McGovern in his recent interview with Joe McGinnis in the New York Times Magazine, the more clearly one realizes why McGovern denied them when he saw them in print.

For example, McGovern is quoted as saying that his wife developed such a hatred of the press during the campaign "because of the way they were misrepresenting me" that it became pathological. "I've got to keep taking her out to dinner and getting her loaded all the time in order to get her mind off it," he declared.

McGovern at times seems somewhat inconsistant in his interview. He expressed the opinion that Ted Kennedy will not be a candidate for President in 1976 but said that he thought last year he could persuade Ted to be his Vice Presidential running mate.

The South Dakota Senator indicated he probably will not be a candidate for President in 1976 but that he expects to have a veto over the selection of the Democratic Presidential nominee.

"I really do feel that once a guy has had his chance, that's it. Next time let somebody else try," he was quoted as saying.

"Like who?" he was asked.

"Oh, the same old faces will be in there, I think. Muskie, Jackson, Humphrey. And Bayh and Hughes, I think, will be going after it in a much bigger way. Mondale might try, too, if Humphrey doesn't."

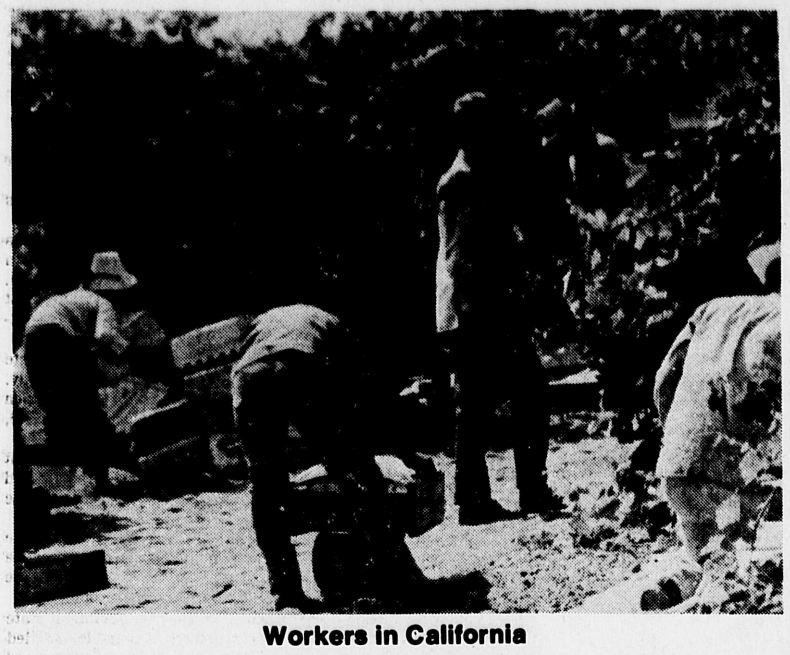
To this observer there is something tragic about George McGovern. He had his moment of great political glory. He had his chance to run for the most powerful office in the world against a man who was not really very popular."

But he feels he was done in by newsmen he had counted as his friends and by people such as those to boohed him viciously at a football game between the Washington Redskins and the Miami Dolphins. (President Nixon's tricksters could not have arranged that.)

He is unable to understand why he was boohed at a football game in Washington and Senator Thomas Eagleton was given a standing ovation at a game in Kansas City.

"My blood just ran cold," he said. "To realize this terrible injustice. That a man who had not leveled with me was being given credit by the public as an All - American type. While I was being treated like a bum."

Apparently, it never occurs to George McGovern to ask himself why those things happened and to what degree he might have been responsible for them.



Workers in California

Grapes Are Coming, Boycott Chapter Says

Editor, Newton Graphic:

In 1970, after five years of hard work and sacrifice, the great Delano Grape Boycott came to a successful end when 27 major grape growers signed contracts with the United Farm Workers (UFW).

Now, after three of the most productive years in the history of the grape industry, secret back door sweetheart contracts have been signed between the Coachella grape growers and the Western Conference of the Teamsters Union, denying the workers fair and just representation. Over 1,000 workers are now on strike as a result of these agreements, and hundreds more have been jailed without cause.

The Grower-Teamster contracts were negotiated to avoid the real choice of the workers. On April 10, a team of government officials, and church and civic leaders conducted a poll of grape workers in California's Coachella Valley. Of the 953 workers interviewed, 795 or 85 per cent wanted to belong to the United Farm Workers while only eight per cent wanted to be members of the Teamsters Union; 78 voted for no union. Less than a week later, the growers signed with the Teamsters.

Under a UFW contract workers benefit from such things as hiring halls, elections for union representation, bans on hard pesticides, medical coverage, decent housing, toilets and running water in the fields, and ranch committees to bargain collectively with the growers.

Teamster contracts provide lower wages and omit many of the protections farm workers need if their life expectancy of 49 years is to be raised. In addition, Teamster contracts reinstate the old labor contractor system used to exploit the farm worker and keep him dependent.

Teamster officials admit their attempts to obtain jurisdiction over field laboreres stem directly from a desire to protect the interests of their own workers. However, many Teamster locals have issued statements in support of the UFW, and the New York City Teamsters refuse to unload non-union lettuce.

The sweetheart contract with the grape growers is almost identical to one signed by the lettuce industry nearly three years ago. Both were signed without the knowledge or consent of the workers and both resulted in massive strikes.

On August 24, 1970, 7,000 workers struck the Salinas and Santa Maria lettuce fields in the greatest farm labor strike in U. S. history. Production was cut down to one-third of its normal output and only an injunction, repealed more than two years later, was able to break the strike.

Last year, in a 6-1 ruling voiding the injunction, the Supreme Court of California declared the Teamster contracts a fraud.

"From a practical point of view," stated the court, "an employer's grant of exclusive bargaining status to a non-representative union must be considered the ultimate form of favoritism, completely substituting the employer's choice of unions for his employee's desires."

The new Grower-Teamster contracts violate every principle of this decision. The Teamsters are providing a company union to thwart the true aspirations of the seasonal and migrant farm worker.

UFW director Cesar Chavez, has called for a Congressional investigation of government negligence in failing to take action on evidence of illegal payoffs between growers and Teamster officials. Last June, William Grami, the Western Conference's chief organizer was indicted by a Federal Grand Jury for allegedly accepting a $5,000 bribe. The government, however, refuses to prosecute him.

Jerome Cohen, general counsel of the United Farm Workers, charges further that cash from growers had been given to Teamster "goons" in $50-a-day payments to intimidate members of the UFW into agreeing to work under a Teamsters' contract. This was corroborated by Congressman Edward H. Roybal of Los Angeles who participated in the poll of grape workers. Mr. Roybal said that many of the workers to whom he had spoken said that they were being "pressured into accepting a union they did not want."

The Nixon Administration has demonstrated its opposition to the farm workers movement. In 1941 Congressman Nixon supported DiGorgio Fruit Corporation during the National Farm Labor Union strike. Both as a presidential candidate and as President, he continued to show that his basic position remains unchanged. During the 1968 presidential race, Nixon made a point of eating grapes at every campaign stop. Once elected, the Department of Defense increased its supply of grapes 350 per cent citing, "greater troop acceptability."

Five weeks ago, after the sweetheart contracts were announced, Nixon revoked all restrictions on travel between Mexico and the United States, and hundreds of thousands of aliens began pouring across the border, mainly for farm work. Despite a ruling from the U. S. Court of Appeals prohibiting seasonal commuters from entering without visas, the flow is expected to continue as non-residents are still permitted to commute without papers on a daily basis.

George Meany broke his long silence on April 18 at the AFL-CIO's Executive Board meeting in Miami, Fla with a statement pledging full support for the UFW.

"The Teamster union-busting drive would be absolutely disgraceful under any circumstances," commented Meany, "but for the nation's largest union to seek to destroy the small struggling union, representing some of the most exploited workers in the nation, is intolerable."

Deceptions In The Tax Rate

Editor, Newton Graphic:

During the last six months, we have seen Mayor Theodore D. Mann neglect the city in order to fulfill his campaign reelection plan to reduce the tax rate.

He has blatantly attempted to deceive the Board of Aldermen by misrepresenting the projected financial picture of the city.

The impact of the mayor's misadventure will be a double tax increase in next year's tax bill. The clear and obvious examples of this campaign year tax game are as follows:

—$3 off the tax rate by bonding of part of the school teachers' salaries.

—$1.50 off the tax rate by further reduction of our depleted labor force.

—$2 off the tax rate by the emasculation of the city's capital equipment replacement program.

—$1.50 off the tax rate by another curtailment of the city's gasping recreation program.

—$3 off the tax rate by delaying a year-old program to remodel the Lincoln-Eliot, Davis and Underwood Schools.

The foregoing $11 will have to be added to next year's tax bill.

This election year tax bill flim-flam has become nationally recognized as big city political deceit. It is a shame that Mayor Mann has introduced this ploy into a Newton mayoral campaign.

Although I have been a consistent critic of the Mann administration I deny it is as a result of Mann's Inauguration Day attempt to unseat me as vice president of the Newton Board of Aldermen.

In fact, I think the record will show that during the mayor's first six to nine months in office, any criticism by me of his ineptness was rare and mild.

It has been rumored in City Hall that Mayor Mann hopes to announce a small tax decrease for this year.

Concerning this rumor, I say that during the past six months, Mayor Mann has been trying to psyche out the Board of Aldermen and the Newton Taxpayers. First, he let out the rumor that there could be a $20 tax increase. Then, he announced a $5 to $8 increase. Then came his campaign brochure, thinly disguised as a Report of the Mayor, claiming that he would have a "surprise" when the tax rate was announced. Now we have a rumor of a possible tax rate decrease.

Next, Mr. Mann will ask the Board of Aldermen to transfer most of the surplus to decrease the tax rate. If any aldermen object or suggest that we hold back funds to pay for predictable expenses and salary increases or unexpected contingencies, the Mayor will charge "political intrigue at citizen expense" or some other pithy statement indicating aldermanic deviousness.

Obviously, the mayor has the upper hand. He is practiced at issuing favorable statements which demean expected criticism. He is a master at interpolating facts to favor his administration.

Finally, he has been lucky. Hard and conscientious work on the part of others, usually aldermen, have produced a political windfall which he has claimed as a result of his own efforts.

Citizens For Life Claim Rapid Growth

After last fall's election, the Ad Hoc Massachusetts Citizens For Life group, which had formed in September to fight against the abortion-on-demand referendum that was on the ballot in 18 cities and towns in our state, remained together to form a permanent organization known as Massachusetts Citizens For Life, Inc. And what began as several hundred now numbers in the tens of thousands and continues to grow rapidly every day.

An M.C.F.L., Inc. newsletter was recently mailed to more than 30,000 members; and, as of this writing, 24 chapters of M.C.F.L., Inc. have been formed. The official chapters extend as far west as Springfield, as far east as Boston, as far south as Barnstable, and as far north as Salem.

M.C.F.L., Inc. will be forming many more chapters in the next few months and will be adding many more members. This letter is directed specifically to each of you, reading this now an those among you who are invited to become members and are asked to write or call: Massachusetts Citizens For Life, Inc.; 430 Centre St.; Newton, Mass. 02158; Tel. (617) 965-5433.

For an age that prides itself on "telling it like it is," it is strange that many proponets of abortion will classify abortion (the deliberate taking of a life which has already begun at conception) as another form of contraception (which is the preventing of a life from beginning), while other abortion-pushers, among whom are much of the media, speak euphemistically of the "products of conception" and the "termination or interruption of a pregnancy," but will never give the more accurate description of abortion, which is "the destruction of an unborn child."

It has been said and sung that "what the world needs now is love . . ." I submit that the deliberate destruction of one's offspring is not the kind of love that the world is in need of. Rather, the love that is needed is a love, because of which parents, instead of sacrificing their children, will sacrifice for their children.

By becoming a member of Massachusetts Citizens For Life, Inc. you will play a part in the most important movement that will take place in your lifetime—the pro-life movement, which has spread to all of our nation's borders and beyond. Is there any one of you who can exempt yourself from filling that life-saving role which you have been called upon to play in this, the most shameful era in the history of so-called civilized society?

Pro-life persons will never rest until they succeed in reversing the Supreme Court's horrendous abortion ruling of Jan. 22, when the Court, speaking in your name and mine, legalized the killing of the unborn. To remain silent now and to do nothing is to share in the responsibility for the deaths of millions of the most helpless members of the human family. The infamous decision shall be reversed. There is no question of this, we are convinced. The only question is how long it will take, and the answer to that depends on each of you.

Executive Director

Replies On Revaluation

Editor, Newton Graphic:

This is my answer to Alderman Sidney T. Small's letter published in the April 26 issue of the Newton Graphic.

Now that he has written his first letter to the editor, it is hoped that he continues, for it is an office holder's duty to enlighten his constituents on the workings of the governmental process.

In my letter to the editor dated March 9, I cited the chapters and sections of the General Laws which specify 100 per cent valuation. It has always been the law, so will he tell me what they have been working on for years?

The assessors made a minor approach towards equalization in 1964, but nothing since. The aldermen in this period could have called on the assessors to make certain that the non-residential property was assessed at the same percentage of value as the rest.

Right now, the mayor and aldermen could request the assessors to give some relief to the homeowners by assessing the golf courses for 1973 at the same percentage of value as the residential property. Everyone knows that land in Newton is worth much more than 10 years ago.

The Charles River Golf course has about 6 million square feet assessed at three cents a foot. The city is asking $1 per foot for land it owns nearby on Winchester Street.

(When I asked Mr. Berquist why he did not increase the assessment on some vacant land adjacent to the city owned land, he replied he would do it when it sold for $1 per square foot, so that the person who pockets the $1 per square foot gets a break and the one who pays takes it on the chin. Terrible assessing.

If it is true, as the petitioners in Liebman vs. Manin allege, that property is assessed at 27.8 per cent of fair cash value, then this golf course and perhaps others should be assessed much higher. Why should the small homeowners support the overgrown playboys who spend their days hitting a little ball around? How much does it cost to join?

Why did the aldermen spend many months of examination, study and work on revaluation when the corporation counsel could have supplied the answer on request? Why not spend a little time on the removal of that hideous city stable on Craft Street?

I do not oppose revaluation, for it is the law. I have no enthusiasm for it because the poor are going to pay more taxes. The mayor is enthusiastic because he sees political advantage. There are 37 petitioners in Liebman vs. Manin and he sees 37 votes.

I made one suggestion about assessing practices when I ran for mayor in 1967 and was overwhelmingly defeated. In my answer to a question by the League of Women Voters I identified one parcel of commercial property which was assessed for $50,000, mortgaged for $300,000, the land assessed at 30 cents per foot, sold for $2.50 per foot.

The next year it had the same assessment. So why do anything?

I stated in my letter to the editor that generally newer residential property was assessed at a higher percentage of fair cash value than older residences of similar value. The 37 petitioners in the case of Liebman vs. Manin agree with me. Why does he not request the assessors, or have the aldermen request that the commercial property be assessed at 27.8 per cent of fair cash value?

About Our Trip . . .

Editor, Newton Graphic:

We sincerely appreciate your article on our Washington trip. However, we feel that you left out a very important part — our planning and financing the trip.

In the fall of last year we began working on our idea. We divided the class into committees. The Hot Dog Committee sold hot dogs at school on Wednesdays. The Bake Sale Committee held Bake Sales on alternate Mondays. A Flea Market was held on Fridays and a Runathon during the last few days. In addition most of the pupils did outside work to earn part of their fare and spending change. All monies went into a bank account previously established under the Washington or Bust Club. Another class sold pens, tote bags, hats, T shirts and jackets with "Cabot" on them. In this way $1,000 was raised to take care of the tour buses and all of the food eaten in Washington, D.C. We also plan to get a small refund when all monies are in.

This we wanted you to be aware of since we did not want people to think that our parents took care of all expenses. We feel that the trip was more meaningful for us since we really worked for it.

Again thank you for interviewing us. We hope to see you again sometime.

Marsha Tanger Weds Dr. Ginsburg In Brookline

Married last Sunday in the sanctuary of Temple Ohabei Shalom in Brookline were Miss Marsha Barbara Tanger, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Tanger of Newton, and Dr. Harry Michael Ginsburg, son of Dr. and Mrs. Edward Ginsburg of Quincy and Mashpee, Cape Cod. Rabbi Michael Barenbaum officiated at the double ring ceremony which was followed by a reception.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of white silk organza and Venice lace that swept into a circular chapel train, with a matching lace mantilla veil. She carried a bouquet of mixed white spring flowers.

Mrs. Christine Tanger of Foxboro was matron of honor for her sister-in-law. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Nancy Civin of Brookline, Mrs. Rhonda Weinstein of Stoneham, Miss Donna Brumberger of New Haven, Connecticut and Mrs. Sheryl Harriman of Norristown, Pennsylvania. The attendants wore identically styled dotted Swiss dresses, each in a different spring pastel, and each attendant carried an individually color-matched bouquet.

Best man was Dr. Joseph Burke, Jr., of White River Junction, Vermont. Ushers were Howard Tanger of Foxboro and Douglas Tanger of Newton, brothers of the bride, and Milton Gainor of Somerset and Louis Gainor of Randolph, cousins of the groom.

Mrs. Ginsburg, who is a graduate of the Beaver Country Day School and Jackson College, class of 1970, also attended the London School of Economics and Political Sciences and received a master's degree from the Boston University School of Social Work. She is now a regional planning associate for United Community Services.

Dr. Ginsburg is a graduate of Thayer Academy, Boston University and the Columbia University College of Physicians and Surgeons. He is presently a surgical intern at the Beth Israel Hospital.

After a wedding trip the couple will live in Chestnut Hill. (Bradford Bachrach photo)

Mrs. Jean V. Young of Newton recently received a citation, presented by State Representative Peter F. Harrington (right), from the Massachusetts House of Representatives in recognition of her election as commander of Newton Post No. 23 Disabled American Veterans Auxiliary. With them at the time of the presentation was Alderman Thomas Concannon (left).

City Hall A Good Place To Learn

She really did not elaborate on that statement, but it was easy to see that Karen had her share of skirmishes with a few City Hall regulars.

Several city officials were singled out as not belonging to that group and the young Agawam native enthusiastically described how great it had been working with people she "read about in the newspapers."

Among Karen's favorites were mentioned James Salter, administrative assistant to the mayor, Jerald Stinson, director of the Department of Human Resources, and Donald Levitan of the Community Development Department.

"Before I came to Newton, I naturally thought, like most people, that politicians are out to get everything they want," said Karen.

But she was quick to emphasize the fact that she has had to reassess and change her preconceived attitudes on the motives and methods of elected and appointed officials.

"Of course there may be a few rascals around," she added, "but I really haven't had time to look them up."

Karen really hasn't had much time for anything else besides her job as city government intern. When asked about her social life, she just smiled, blushed a little and went on to discuss her latest project.

Thanks to her initiative and determination, eight city high school students are now totally involved in a program very much like the one that brought Karen to Newton.

Specifically, the Newton Internship Program for High School Students brings the social studies classroom right into City Hall.

Each student is expected to attend a series of seminars on municipal government and work in various departments for ten hours a week over a ten week period.

Karen coordinated the program with the Office of the Superintendent of Schools and the social studies departments of the two high schools and each student is guaranteed two and one - half credits at the successful completion of the internship.

In the weeks since the inception of the course, each of the students has had an opportunity to discuss municipal government with such city officials as Mayor Theodore Mann, Public Works Director Richard Dudman, City Treasurer Theodore Scafidi and Assistant City Clerk Edward English.

In addition to their seminars the students are completely involved in various projects throughout the city administration.

Labeled "Municipal Course Tasks" the projects include establishing a forms control system for the Public Works Department, writing a report on the arrangements private schools and colleges in other cities have made for providing services and payments in lieu of property taxes and composing a booklet on Newton's municipal government for elementary school students.

Karen, as usual, is neck deep in all the various aspects of the program. She is determined to make it a permanent part of city hall life.

As part of her responsibilities she must take attendance. Karen really doesn't want to, but realizes she needs facts and figures to back up her argument for continuation of the program even after she leaves to go back to college.

Two of her charges recently tried to talk her out of the practice of monitoring the attendance of program participants, but were unsuccessful.

Ed Adleman and Bill Gordon, Karen felt, were correct when they protested they were dedicated and enthusiastic enough to not need to be checked out each day on their whereabouts. After all, both had constantly put more than the required amount of time each week and enjoyed every minute of it.

Karen was adamant. She will continue to take attendance, but knows that both Ed and Bill will continue to enjoy their roles as Newton Municipal Government Interns.

Urbanology Conference Tagged First of Many

time can experiment with how to link the state and the cities, he continued.

The only Newton city government official participating in the conference, Donald Levitan, director of Community Development, supported Austin's concept of the leadership community, giving as examples of what steps Newton has already made in that direction, such as the first effort toward regional waste disposal, services to the elderly, and asking services in lieu of taxes from tax-exempt institutions.

Levitan recognized poverty in Newton saying "to be poor in Newton is worse than to be poor elsewhere, because here there is a facade to be maintained." He spoke of large houses, well maintained on the outside, in which there was little furniture and sometimes no food; the owners did not want to leave the house or to be identified as poor.

Delivery of municipal services-what services are needed and how they should be given-is a problem, according to Levitan. "We are groping in the dark and by ourselves. We need an outreach program to get the people involved so that we can find out how they perceive their needs."

In a workshop combining two scheduled workshops on land use planning and goals for the future, former Newton City Planner James Miller, now deputy executive director of the Metropolitan Area Planning Council, again stressed Newton's relationship to the metropolitan area. He views housing, transportation and open space as regional problems requiring regional solutions. He deplored the "politicizing" of public housing, pointing to the recent controversy over four units of family housing in Nonantum to be built by the Newton Housing Authority, of which Miller is vice-chairman.

Newton must continue to support the MBTA deficit, Miller said, because there must be a concentration on public transportation.

"Newton needs a commitment on the part of politicians and taxpayers about the Charles River and open space," Miller said. "All open space should be for public purposes. We should not give an advantage to any private developer."

Goals for blacks in Newton, outlined by William Ramsey, a black, centered mainly on more participation in school curriculum planning and in "the public sector."

Some changes in black attitude Ramsey would like to see are support of low- and moderate-income housing, less passivity about inner-city problems, and a greater sense of community among blacks living in Newton.

Ramsey said the percentage of black residents of Newton is about 15 per cent of the total population. Unemployment for this group is less than elsewhere, he said, and income is higher than the Newton average. "We have elitist blacks here," he commented.

Despite general agreement in all parts of the conference on the importance of housing, public transportation, concern with other communities and other people and the "leadership role" that Newton should assume, the persistent tone of the conference, especially in questions from the audience, was not how Newton can help others but how it can retain its special qualities. Urbanology for Newton may mean how to keep the city as it is.

The Urbanology Conference was sponsored and funded by Boston Edison, and was arranged by Boston College urbanologist Allen Wakstein.

children CAN'T help WONDERING.

And they wonder a lot about God. They seem to have a natural awareness that He's here, and that He's important. But they want to know more.

In the Christian Science Sunday School, God's nearness and goodness become practical realities to children. They study and discuss weekly Bible Lessons, and how to apply their truths each day. They learn to look to God for His unfailing help.

No need for your child to go on wondering. Let him start discovering, at our Sunday School. We'll be delighted to welcome him and his friends.

On June 3, an al fresco Sunday supper with music will be held at Pine Manor Junior College, Chestnut Hill, to benefit the Hospitalized Veterans Service of Massachusetts, a branch of the Musicians Emergency Fund, Inc. of New York City.

The H.V.S. of Mass. was inaugurated in 1971 to raise funds to support and expand Boston's existing music therapy program. In this therapy program, music is used not merely to entertain but is adapted to patients individually and in groups for the purposes of restoring muscular function and co-ordination, alleviating tension and anxiety, rendering patients more amenable to medical treatment, and giving them incentive for recovery.

Says Dr. Francis B. Carroll, former hospital director of the Boston Veterans Administration Hospital: "For over 12 years this program has played a vital part in the rehabilitation of many handicapped and long-term patients. For the young returning Vietnam patient it has been most appealing and has assisted him in adjusting to hospital care and treatment programs."

H.V.S. was inaugurated in 1945 in New York City and became a pioneer in music therapy in hospitals. The national organization is headed by Mrs. Lytle Hull of New York and Arthur Rubenstein - the noted pianist - serves as Chairman of the Board.

Twelve years ago, the New York City H.V.S. expanded its program to include the Boston V.A. Hospital (150 South Huntington Avenue). Due to lack of funds, only one of the five needy V.A. Hospitals in the Boston area has had this therapy program.

The Boston Committee was organized in 1971 by Mrs. John Kerry and Mrs. Barry Head who have worked for the past year and a half with the help of a committee consisting of Mrs. Frank Ingraham, Mrs. John Dane, Jr., Mrs. Edward H. Culver, Mrs. Wilmot T. Pope, Mrs. Diggory Venn, Mrs. Harvey H. Bundy, Jr., Mrs. Charlton Ames, Mrs. Franklin Yoffe, Mrs. Thomas B. Frost, Mrs. Hugh D. S. Greenway, Mrs. Jerome Rosenfeld and many others.

This year the Boston Committee plans to raise $10,000 through its dinner dance. This money will be used for the continuation of the existing program in the Boston V.A. hospital and to expand this music therapy to the paraplegic and quadraplegic wards of the West Roxbury V.A. Hospital, the center in New England for the treatment of spinal cord injuries. Says West Roxbury V.A. Hospital director, Croydon F. Hear, Jr., "As you know, I am intimately acquainted with the marvelous work done by the H.V.S. in many of our V.A. Hospitals . . . Ever since my arrival here . . . I have truly hoped we could initiate some kind of program."

The menu will feature the following dishes: Helen's Indonesian eggs, Crudites en [illegible] Angela's Terrine de Campagne en Croute, Marina's Pate, Paulette's Specialites Nicoises, Mary Lee's Virginia Ham and Beaten Bisquits, Serita's Country-fed Turkeys, Ren's Three-alarm Chili, Evie's Quiche, Amelia's Obscenely Rich Mystery Cake, Les Savarins de Boulie, Linette's Mousse au Chocolat . . . and other good things.

Members of the committee and friends include: Mrs. Barry N. Head and Mrs. John F. Kerry, co - chairmen; and Mr. and Mrs. Charlton H. Ames, Mr. and Mrs. Roger Barzun, Mr. and Mrs. Philipps Berthet, Mrs. Shepherd Brooks, and Mrs. Harvey H. Bundy, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. George Butler, Mr. and Mrs. Norman L. Cahners, Mr. and Mrs. William C. Chick, Mr. and Mrs. Edward H. Culver, Mrs. George M. Cushing, Mr. and Mrs. John Dane, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Thomas B. Frost.

False Alarms Are Plaguing Coast Guard

False alarms, the habitual nemesis of fire departments, have begun to plague the Coast Guard, and as we enter another boating season, the seriousness of the problem becomes more evident. Search and rescue is a primary function of the Coast Guard (in New England last summer, over 1100 cases were handled in one month) and for each false alarm, the risks intensify for those actually in distress.

Lieutenant (junior grade) Douglas H. Eldridge, a coordinator at the Rescue Coordination Center in Boston, says that almost all the Coast Guard's false alarms originated on the citizen's band. After an extensive study of the Citizen's Radio Service, the Coast Guard has concluded that it does not have adequately established and enforceable provisions to justify its recognition and use as a national marine safety system.

The public should not in any way be led to believe the Coast Guard supports the C-B for marine safety purposes says Lt. (j.g.) Eldridge, who adds, that C-B is not monitored by the Coast Guard and a vessel broadcasting a distress signal over C-B instead of recognized frequencies, needlessly endangers himself.

Lt. (j.g.) Eldridge also stated that the vast majority of false alarms received over C-B frequencies are relayed by other citizens, making tracing action and verification difficult.

False alarms are not only costly, but dangerous. In March of this year, a report was received that a vessel was aground and sinking off Sampson's Island, near Hyannis. A helicopter was launched despite extremely hazardous weather conditions, thus endangering the crew. The report turned out to be a hoax but had a real emergency existed at the same time, a senseless additional risk to life and property would have resulted.

Over 3500 search and rescue cases were handled in New England last summer. As the number of real cases increase, so do the hoaxes and the results could be similar to what happens when a fire engine answers a false alarm while the town is buring.

The Coast Guard urges all citizen mariners to cooperate in efforts to reduce this problem by ensuring that only mature operators use established marine emergency frequencies to report distress and by employing C-B only for its designated uses.

THE ORIGINALS

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — During the mid-1800s men were discovering and drilling for oil throughout the territory that was to become Texas, but there wasn't a single "Texas oilman" among the bunch.

The men who drilled in those early, early days tried to process the crude oil, but had little success and made no money, certainly none of the fortunes that were to come a half century later. Only the Indians wanted the oil, and that was for medicinal purposes.

Help For The Small Business Man

The Greater Boston Chapter of SCORE (Service Corps of Retired Executives), a volunteer program that provides cost free management assistance to small businessmen and community organizations, has moved from the Kennedy Federal Building to the office of the Small Business Administration (SBA), 150 Causeway street, Boston.

David Stern, chapter chairman, points out, however, that anyone interested in obtaining the free services of an experienced SCORE counselor can still call the same telephone number under its SBA listing — 223-3196.

Stern said that the Greater Boston SCORE Chapter has some 70 members, all retired and greatly experienced businessmen, "who are most eager and willing to use their individual years of business expertise to help a faltering business, fledgling business or a community organization not moving as hoped towards its goal."

SCORE men and women, he said, in cooperation with SBA are available at the Causeway street facilities to counsel persons needing their specific skills and for workshops where interested parties can gain extremely valuable advice in the areas of: taxation, finance, advertising, accounting, production, marketing, banking, engineering, general management, etc.

Since 1965 SCORE — a part of ACTION, the federal volunteer agency, has helped more than 200,000 people to improve their business prospects.

ARRESTS UP

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The California Highway Patrol reports it increased its drunk driving arrests by more than 40 per cent from 1969 through 1971.

The agency said its stepped-up program of detecting and removing the inebriated driver from the road resulted in a reduction of more than 32 per cent in fatal accidents involving drinking.

Innovations In Sound

You've probably never thought of your car as an ideal stereo listening studio. Well, it is! The minute you sit in your stereo equipped auto, you're blanketed in thrilling sound. You'll witness an entirely new perspective in stereo listening: a richness in stereophony and realism of sound reproduction that has never before been possible. Now, with stereo tape cartridges, whether you listen in your car, home, boat, plane or trailer you enjoy an unparallelled sound sensation . . . crisp clarity and maximum fidelity, superior craftsmanship . . . and a wealth of music for every taste from Broadway to The Beatles, from current hits to classical.

Stereo cartridges are carefully engineered to afford maximum reliability and convenience of operation.

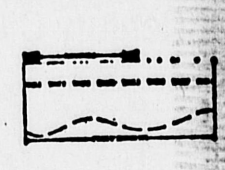
1. You never have to thread or even touch the tape.

2. You may change from one stereo program to another with the press of a button.

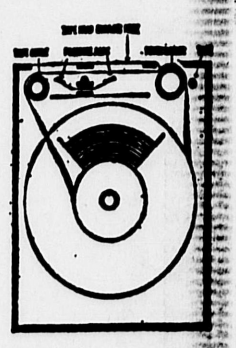
3. Tapes are continuous and never need rewinding.

4. With a minimum of care, the playing life of the tape is practically unlimited.

What is four-track and eight-track stereo tape? Within the ¼-inch tape width, music is recorded on four or eight parallel tracks which run the length of the tape. Two tracks play simultaneously and produce true stereo sound. Standard tapes provide up to 40 minutes of continuous music. Twin cartridges up to 80 minutes.



How does a tape cartridge work Stereo cartridges contain a tape in a continuous loop, which simply means that the tape runs from the center of the spool and is returned to the outer lap of the reel. Thus, never needs rewinding. Inserting the cartridge into the tape playback unit is probably as easy as replacing your cigarette lighter in the dash.



Seeing is believing, however, and perhaps the least expensive method for you to experience the unusual convenience engineered into a stereo tape is to visit a dealer and ask for a demonstration.

Realizing that stereo tapes are here to stay, Lechmere Sales of Cambridge and Dedham is now compiling substantial stocks. This far-sighted record dealer and department store devoted exclusively to providing the consumer with even a larger and more complete musical selection than previously realized with the more traditional record album departments.

Long recognized as a retailing leader and innovator, Lechmere now features perhaps the largest selection of stereo tape cartridges in New England. It's a certainty that a visit to either Lechmere in Cambridge or Dedham will prove a most rewarding musical experience.

INTERIOR OF NEW EMERSON RUG STORE at 1524 V.F.W. Parkway, West Roxbury, which opened this week. Firm returns to area, where its first store was opened 15 years ago. (Nocca Photo)

Emerson Rug Re-opens in West Roxbury after 15 Years

After 15 years, Emerson rug returns to the site of its first store in West Roxbury with a grand re-opening this week.

This new store opening represents the fifteenth unit in the Emerson chain, New England's largest specialty carpet retailer.

Ed Schlesinger, vice president and general manager says, "We are especially pleased to come back to West Roxbury. This chain started as a one-store operation, founded by John Reilly, and John Emerson right here in West Roxbury in 1931. For years we have been trying to find the right location to once again be able to service this exciting community with the kind of carpet values Emerson Rug has always been famous for.

"The store is a bright, beautifully designed broadloom center that makes it so easy to choose from the thousands of colors and samples. If you wanted a blue, you can see 120 different blues. And that goes for any color."

Located at 1524 V.F.W. Parkway, the store is readily accessible by car with ease of parking.

Emerson Rug was acquired by Allen Carpet Shops of New York about four years ago. As America's largest carpet chain, it has tremendous buying power and service ability. Emerson Rug is part of a 55-chain that extends from Nashua and Dover, N.H. South to Philadelphia and west to Chicago.

Schlesinger invites everybody to join him at the grand opening celebration.

Soccer Talk

By PAUL ELDRIDGE JR.

The overcast and threatening weather of last Sunday (May 20) did not deter over 400 fans from enjoying the two semi-final games of the State Cup.

In the first game, Sons of Italy from the Mass. Soccer Association's second division posted a 2-0 win over the first division team, Boston Sporting Club.

The first half ended 0-0 with Boston Sporting Club dominating the play at midfield. In the second half, Sons of Italy started to bring the play to Boston Sporting Club. Then at the 85 min. mark, Dave Teggart got loose and headed the ball into the net. One minute later, Frank Nicolosi caught the Boston Sporting Club goalie flat-footed and scored with a header into a wide-open net.

The star of this game was Sons of Italy's, Dick Dietrich. Dietrich, the former Boston Astro, was all over the field and made saves on three shots by Boston Sporting Club that were labeled as sure goals.

Dick, who was living in Sharon when he was with the Astros, is now living in Pelham, N.H. and will be taking his Bar exams in the very near future.

The second game of the doubleheader was a squeaker all the way. Emmanuel Ekama of the Norwood Kickers opened the scoring at the 17 min. mark of the first half on a grass cutter from 12 yards out. Ottavio LoGrasso of East Boston equalized at the 35 min. mark on a breakaway. After that the game seesawed back and forth with both teams rattling shots off the goalposts. At the end of regulation, the score was tied 1-1. It remained the same throughout the 30-minute overtime period. So, it all boiled down to penalty kicks, which East Boston won on 4-3.

Meeting for the Cup on June 10th will be Sons of Italy and East Boston. The game will be played at Archbishop Williams High School Field in Braintree starting at 2:00 p.m.

Meet the Boston Astros

We will open this series by looking at the American boys on the team.

Myles "Dusty" Richard[illegible], who hails from Brook[illegible], played his college soccer at Union College in Schenectady, N.Y. He is currently in his second season with the Astros.

Art Fr[illegible]er, who is also starting his second year with the Astros, was a teammate of Dusty's at Union College. He is that school's all-time leading scorer. Art and Dusty are not only teammates but also share an apartment in Newton.

The "Rookie" on the team this year is Bob Fleming, who comes from Cape Cod. Bob played college soccer for Niagara University in Niagara, N.Y. At one stretch of his collegiate career, he scored 22 goals in 8 games.

The Astros open their 1973 season this Saturday, May 26, at Boston College's Alumni Stadium against Waterford, the champions of Ireland. Game time is 6:00 p.m. General admission is $3.

Irish Night At the Pops On June 1

The annual Irish Night at The Pops, sponsored by The Eire Society of Boston, is scheduled for Friday evening, June 1. Reviving its custom of former years, The Society, under its president, Paul Kingston, has reserved the entire floor at Symphony Hall. The co-chairmen of the event, Mr. and Mrs. John T. Daley, of 344 Weld street, West Roxbury, report that while most tickets have already been sold, a few tables are still available for those calling them at 325-7839.

The music chairman for the evening, Miss M. Frances Fox, has made a thorough search of The Society's archives beforre recommending program selections to the Boston Pops Orchestra. Every indication is that the evening will be as memorable as any in the long tradition of The Eire Society, now in its 36th year of promoting awareness of the cultural achievements of the Irish people.

Forum Discusses Regional Government

Metropolitan Boston and suburban residents who will be directly affected by current proposals for new counties, new regions, or new middle-tier governments can hear the proposals and react to them at an open forum on May 25 at Cary Hall, 1625 Massachusetts ave., Lexington.

At the 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Regional Town Meeting Forum sponsored by Norumbega Association, spokesmen for the proposals will give a brief explanation of the need, background, and the draft plans which treat Boston and suburban communities as part of a larger unit for government and service delivery. The concerned citizens participating in the forum will be encouraged to discuss and react to the proposals now while they are still open to modification.

The first proposal, that the state be divided into eight common boundary regions for the delivery and administration of state services, will be explained by Robert Marden, executive office, Administration and Finance, after background comments by Robert C. Casselman, senior consultant to the State Reorganization Plan.

The second, for five separate newly defined integral cities, each with its own mid-level government within the metropolitan area under consideration, will be presented by Arthur Barnes, president of Norumbega Association in response to a background statement by David Austin, professor at the Heller School, Brandeis.

Robert O'Hare, chief of the U. S. Civil Service Commission, New England Region, and Richard M. Doherty, executive director of the Metropolitan AMREA Planning Council (MAPC), will present the background and the framework of an MAPC proposal that the council become the nucleus of a Metropolitan Boston Council of Governments.

The Greater Boston Chamber of Commerce proposal for an adaptation of Council Government for the Greater Boston area will be presented by John F. Collins, president of the Greater Boston Chamber of Commerce, and Philip H. Peters, vice president of the Chamber.

The background for the fifth proposal will be given by Robert Rotberg, MIT professor who worked on the Citizens Task Force Report, Middlesex County Reform, and a proposal to abolish counties and replace them with regional governments as outlined in House Bill H-5810 will be explained by its sponsor, Rep. Charles F. Flaherty (D-Cambridge).

The goal of this reaction forum will be to find areas of common response, for or against specific parts of these proposals, and to identify areas of disagreement. The authors and sponsors of the proposals seek community reaction and will be influenced by their understanding of the reasons for differing viewpoints in the suburban communities, and by compromises worked out in the communities.

The Town Meeting Forum is open to anyone interested but advance registration is required. Background materials and further information are available from Norumbega Association, 61 Chestnut st., West Newton, telephone 332-1270.

Curry Honors Oldest Alumnae

Mrs. Gertrude Whall Queen of Old Greenwich, Conn., 92, oldest known alumnus of Curry College will be an honorary degree recipient at that school's annual commencement exercise on Sunday, June 3 in Milton.

Mrs. Queen was graduated from the School of Expression, the original Curry College, in 1902, after majoring in physical education.

She is a native of Newton Center and lived for many years in Needham, where her husband owned and operated the Q-P Manufacturing Company, makers of engineering equipment and supplies.

Mrs. Queen was general manager of the company from World War I until it was sold in 1947.

Her husband was chief engineer of Admiral Byrd's Second Expedition to the Antarctic and took the first metal ship, the "Jacob Ruppert," into Little America in 1933-1934.

When the ship returned to Dunedin, New Zealand, to winter over, Mrs. Queen went by ship to meet her husband.

One of the first women to earn the Marine Corps Expert Medal for her prowess in shooting a .45 Colt pistol, Mrs. Queen was also chairman of the Knitting Committee of the American RedCross during World War I.

She was also the first Worthy Matron of Wisteria Chapter, Order of Eastern Star in Needham and served as president of the Needham Women's Club for two years and as a member of the Needham School Committee for six years.

She had three children, including a son, Frederic, who lost his life aboard the USS S-144 in World War II.

A daughter Junita, resides with her mother in Old Greenwich, while a second daughter, Evelyn Queen Adams, lives in Shelburne, Vt.

Campus Notes

Janet Russ, a sophomore at Chatham College, was recently elected treasurer of the Class of 1975. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William G. Russ of Adella Avenue, West Newton. Miss Russ has served on various school committees, is a representative of the Chatham Student Government and a student counselor. She is a 1971 graduate of Newton High School.

School Musicians To Perform

Three hundred elementary school musicians will present a concert at Meadowbrook Junior High School on Wednesday, May 30 at 7:30 p.m.

These talented fifth and sixth grade students from the Newton Public Schools are members of the All Newton Elementary School Chorus, under the direction of John C. Harper, and the All Newton Elementary School Orchestra, directed by Robert Giorgi and Karen Sorem. Both of these groups recently performed for an enthusiastically appreciative audience at the Newton Centennial presentation, "Newton's History in Words and Music."

Among the musical selections to be performed by the chorus are: "New World Coming" by Mann and Weil; "Childsong" by Diamond; and "Eliyahu" (from Havdalah Service) by Jacobson. Soloists for "Eliyahu" are: Jon Freedman, Ann Goldberg, and Jenny Sarrin. Lila Pradell is the accompanist for the chorus.

The orchestra will include in its performance, "Hymn and Banner Theme: Die Meistersinger" by Wagner; "Snow White Fantasy" by Churchill; and "Russian Choral and Overture" by Tchaikovsky.

The two organizations will combine for the finale, "Song of Brotherhood" from "Symphony No. 9" by Beethoven.

The public is cordially invited to attend this concert. There is no admission charge.

Young GOP Elects Officers

The Newton Young Republican Club held its annual elections meeting last Tuesday at the home of Thomas and Barbara Bruce.

Between discussions of the Watergate scandals and the unfairness of the proposed state redistricting plan, the Young Republicans elected Barbara Bruce to serve as president, Alan Katz as vice-president, Richard Levin as treasurer and Mary Byrne as secretary.

Ms. Bruce, in stating her goals for the Newton Young Republican Club, emphasized expanding its membership. "Currently we have 47 members, but too many of them are inactive. Our job is to show the young people of Newton that, although neither political party is perfect, it is the Democrats in this city who have gerrymandered Newton's state rep districts," she said.

"The Democratic party is juggling voters in Newton to preserve the seats of its officeholders. Here in Newton, we Young Republicans hope to show that control by one party causes injustice. The redistricting proposal, so convenient to Newton's state representatives, is only one example," added the new president.

"We invite anyone interested in re-establishing two party government to work with us, create with us, and hopefully, correct an unbalanced situation," concluded Ms. Bruce.

Ward Two Republicans Pick New Leadership

The Ward Two Republican Committee met last week to discuss reorganization and the election of new officers.

Newly elected officers include Chairperson Douglas Howard, Vice-Chairperson Barbara Schiller, Secretary Virginia Griggs, and Treasurer Samuel Schiller.

Plans for a pot luck supper with the Ward Four Republican Committee were discussed as was the possibility of arranging a debate.

Chairperson Howard stated that "I hope to make the Ward Two Republican Committee the most active one in the city. In light of the proposed redistricting plan, it is essential that our political ward organization - both Republican and Democrat - remain strong. They should not be crippled by decision-makers at the State House."

Howard pledged to work to "defeat the autocratic methods of the dominant party in the city."

Jaycees Begin 36th Year With Annual Banquet

The Newton Jaycees began their 36th year Wednesday with an annual banquet at Tallino's in Chestnut Hill.

Sworn in as new officers for 1973-74 were:

A. Jefferson Cornell, president. Cornell has been a Newton resident for six years. He and his wife, Beverly, operate an insurance and investment office in West Newton. Since becoming a member in 1971, he has acted as the organization's publicity director and served as a vice-president for 1972-73.

Robert Alkon, vice-president. Alkon is a product of the Newton School System. An accountant employed by John Vaccarro, C.P.A., in Newton, he has recently applied for certification himself. A member for two years, he served as membership chairman - and doubled the organization's membership. He also shared in a "Committee of the Year Award" with newly elected Treasurer Steven Gilman.

Dr. Wilbert Libbey, vice president. Dr. Libbey recently arrived from Illinois and established his practice of optometry on Washington street, West Newton. His credentials, including an award for High Standards of Professionalism and Ethics from the Illinois College of Optometry, and his leadership in Jaycee activities account for his election to this post despite the fact that he is a fairly new member.

Steven Gilman, treasurer. Gilman is also a product of the Newton School System. He joined the Jaycees with Alkon and has assisted him on the Membership Committee and shared in the "Committee of the Year" award. His contributions include work on the Crime Prevention Committee and different fund raising projects. contributions include work on the Crime Prevention Committee and different fund raising projects.

James Bishop secretary. Bishop has been a Jaycee for eight years which gives him more organizational experience than any other current member. His list of contributions and awards, dating back to 1965, are too numerous to mention. This will be his second term as secretary since becoming a member. He has also served as vice-president and treasurer. A 16-year employee at Brooks Brothers Clothing in Boston, Jim, his wife Sally, and 15-month daughter, Hope, make their home in Wellesley.

BISHOP

Jim Duncan, last year's president, automatically becomes this year's chairman of the Board of Directors. His last act as president was to recount the successes of the past year, such as a new Constitution, including a lowering of the age limits to 18, and the institution of Crime Prevention, Scholarship and Volunteer Probation Officer Programs.

He then presented the following awards:

Newton-Waltham Bank & Trust Co., represented by Vice President Richard Southwick, received an Award of Special Appreciation for their many years of strong support of the Newton Jaycees.

Jaycee John Marchese received the "Key Man of the Year" award for the volume and importance of his contributions to his organization.

Jaycee State Director Tom Humphrey, who swore in the new officers, was present the U.S. Jaycee "State Director of the Year" award.

A check for the proceeds of the May 20th "March for Mental Health" was presented to Barbara Rubin, representing the Newton Mental Health Center.

Cornell, in his first presidential speech, expressed his hopes for continued growth of the chapter.

"Our growth should not only be in the area of new members but in our importance within this community". He called for the Jaycees to take on more meaningful problems in addition to crime prevention and probation.

On the subject of the upcoming city elections he stated, "The Jaycees is a non-political organization. We cannot publicly back any particular candidate but, local government and the welfare of this city is just as important to us as it is to every other citizen in this community.

"This year Newton will not only elect a new Board of Aldermen, but a mayor who will serve the first four-year mayoral term in the city's history. So, you can see, even though this is an off-year election, it is a very important election for the City of Newton. I would like very much to have the Jaycees become involved in a concerted effort to get out the vote."

Jaycee membership is open to all young men between the ages of 18 and 36. For information, call Bob Alkon at 969-6032.

National LWV Calls For Solid Waste Funding Increase

The League of Women Voters of the United States has announced its position on solid waste management.

The position is based on a two year study by more than 1,000 local leagues including the Newton League of Women Voters which held its unit meetings on solid waste management in November, 1972. The position calls for increased federal funding and regulation of solid waste management and comes at a time when the federal budget has scraped 81 percent of the funding for solid waste programs.

National League President Lucy Wilson Benson stated: "It seems ironic that when our study results, which are based on surveys of local resources and accomplishments, show a strong need for active federal leadership, the administration is lessening its role in the field of solid waste management."

If solid waste problems are to be solved, the league feels that the federal government must take a more active role.

Recently, an Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) administrator called solid waste the number one environmental problem in this region; however, the federal government is ending its resource recovery, demonstration grant, and technical assistance programs in this field, and closing the main office of Solid Waste Management within the EPA.

"The league's job as an educator has become even more important," says Mary Adelstein, environmental quality chairman for the Newton LWV. "We need to continue to promote a better understanding of the environmental consequences of careless consumption and disposal."

The league's solid waste study recognizes the economic obstacles to the reuse of materials and its support positions include the elimination by the federal government of subsidies for extractive industries, of wasteful purchasing specifications, and of discriminatory freight rates favoring virgin over secondary materials. The elimination of such obstacles would encourage resource recovery and bolster existing recycling efforts without spending tax dollars.

The league position recognizes that major responsibility for solid waste management should remain with state and local governments and states that the federal government should assist local agencies in developing recycling facilities. The position also recognizes industrial and individual responsibility by calling for private industrial investment and users fees as additional sources of income.

For more information about the league's position on solid waste management please call Mrs. Adelstein, 527-5503. The Newton League of Women Voters Environmental Quality Committee has prepared a booklet on solid waste in Newton titled "The Effluence of Affluence." The booklet costs 50 cents and may be obtained from Beth Davis, publication chairman, 969-8626.

Bicyclists Aid Retarded

The gloom of the day did not dim the spirits of the hundreds of cyclists and volunteers who participated in the first annual Ride-A-Bike for the Retarded event sponsored by the Newton Teachers' Association recently.

An estimated 400 people, representing ten communities, gave themselves, their time, and their fortunes to ensure the success of the endeavor conducted on behalf of the Massachusetts Association of Retarded Citizens (MARC).

Ride-A-Bike Chairwoman Sheila McGourty of the Carr School publically extended her thanks to Newton Mayor Theodore D. Mann for sanctioning and supporting the event; to the Newton Police Department, especially Sgt. Charles Feeley, for aid in planning and patrolling the route and to the Newton Auxiliary Police for giving of their time and donating their expenses.

Thanks were also extended to the Charles River Wheelmen for guiding cyclists, especially small children along the route, to Msgr. William Granville for making available as a check point and rest stop the Mackenzie Center of the Sacred Heart Church; to the Harris Bikery for checking bicycles for safety and to the hundreds of Newton Public School students and faculty who worked for MARC.

Chetwynde Residents Work On Spring Fair

Residents of the Chetwynde Nursing Home in West Newton are making last minute preparations for their Spring Fair to be held Sunday, June 2, at 2 p.m. The fair will be held in the Chetwynde courtyard pending good weather. Should it rain, the fair will be held indoors.

In addition to the usual white elephant, food, and handicraft tables, the residents will be raffling off a patchwork quilt. The quilt was made by the residents. Raffle tickets will be sold at 25 cents each.

Profits of the Chetwynde Spring Fair go to the residents. It is the residents who decide what will be done with the money. Profits of the Christmas Fair were channelled into making a "Merry Christmas" for two Newton Welfare families. Star Market food certificates and Christmas gifts were purchased for each family. The residents wrapped each gift in holiday paper and presented all the gifts to the social worker of each family.

Beaver Day Selects New Headmaster

The trustees of The Beaver Country Day School in Chestnut Hill have announced the appointment of Philip E. McCurdy as headmaster of the school.

McCurdy will assume his duties on Aug. 1. Since 1969 he has served as headmaster of The Calhoun School in New York City, a private coeducational school with an enrollment of 430 students from nursery through grade 12.

McCurdy is a native of Massachusetts. After graduating from Wellesley High School in 1952, he received his A.B. in biology, cum laude, from Harvard in 1956, and his M.A.T. with honors from the Harvard Graduate School of Education the following year.

His teaching experience includes two years at Brookline High School and two years at The Loomis School in Windsor, Conn. as a biology teacher.

For four years he was chairman of the science department at the Rockland Country Day School in Congers, N.Y. and he received the 1964 Service Award from the Association for the Help of Retarded Children, Rockland County, New York.

From 1964 to 1966 he served in Nigeria as a specialist in science under the auspices of the United States Agency for International Development. From 1966 to 1969 Mr. McCurdy served with the General Learning Corporation, first as special assistant to Francis Keppel, former U.S. Commissioner of Education, and later as director of the Environment Services Department.

He is a member of the Board of Directors of the Guild of Independent Schools of New York and a trustee of The Schools Institute in New York City.

He is married to the former Marla Walkling, a graduate of Tufts University. Mrs. McCurdy is the Director of the West End Collegiate Playschool in New York City. The McCurdys have two daughters, Lisa Ann, aged 16, and Kristina, aged 10. They will reside in the headmaster's house on Woodland Road near the school.

McCurdy succeeds Donald R. Nickerson who will become headmaster of the LaJolla Country Day School in LaJolla, Calif., on July 1. Last year Beaver celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of its founding and is now completing its third year as a coeducational secondary school. McCurdy will be its fourth headmaster.

Centennial Track Meet Washed Out

The Centennial Track Meet scheduled for Dickinson Stadium last week was washed out by inclement weather and Senior Recreation Supervisor James E. Murphy reports that it will not be rescheduled.

The second Frisbee Clinic will be held at the Hawthorn Playground Thursday May 24 at 6 p.m.

Weather has also played havoc with the Twi-Softball League schedule. According to Recreation Supervisor William J. Barry even the Friday night makeup games are being rained out.

Adult tennis lessons sponsored by the Newton Recreation Department are extremely popular according to Barry, who says the women are thoroughly enjoying the program.

The lessons are given at the Newton Highlands Playground courts with classes meeting Tuesday and Thursday and Wednesday and Friday. The hours are 10 a.m. to noon, and 6 p.m. to 8 p.m. Each person in the program has a one-hour lesson twice a week.

The second session is scheduled to begin on June 6 and Barry reports that, should there be any dropouts, those on the waiting list will be accepted for the program.

Instructor is Leon Geller, assisted by Jeannie Boudreau. The program is designed for teaching the fundamentals of the game to beginners.

Recreation Intern Austin Moore has called a meeting of the Boys' Summer Basketball League for Thursday, May 31, at the Recreation Department Office, 70 Crescent St., Auburndale at 7:30 p.m.

Austin emphasized the importance of this first meeting at which rules and regulations will be formulated and rosters distributed, and urges all interested boys in grades six through nine to attend.

The games will be played Tuesday and Thursday nights at the Sacred Heart Gym in Newton Centre. Game time is 8 p.m. Last year there were six teams playing in the league and Austin expects that there will be at least a half dozen teams this year, possibly more.

There is also a good possibility that a two day a week Gymnastics Clinic will be held at the F.A. Day Junior High School this summer, according to Austin.

The program for boys and girls in the fifth through ninth grades is expected to get underway shortly after June 30.

The public tennis program conducted by the Newton Recreation Department at three locations throughout the city already has 700 to 800 participants according to Recreation Supervisor Robert E. Doherty.

The courts operate on a supervised basis and reservations can be made by Newton citizens with tennis permits.

The hard courts at Newton South High are in operation from 7 to 11 p.m. week nights, and from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. on Saturday and Sunday.

The clay courts at the Newton Centre Playground and Burr Park are supervised from 5 to 8 p.m. Monday through Friday evening and from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. on the weekends.

Reporting on the distaff side, Recreation Supervisor Frann Towle, says that the first rosters for the Newton Women's Softball League are due on May 23.

The season will open Sunday, June 3, at the Albermarle Softball field. Fran expects there will be six teams in that League this season.

Girls interested in playing Suburban Softball should contact Fran Towle at the Newton Recreation Department, 969-3171. This League is for girls 16 years and older.

Tryout practice sessions will be held at Cabot Park on Sunday, May 27 from 2 to 4 p.m.

Fran also announces that practices will begin soon for Suburban Basketball play. Girls, 16 years and over who wish to play in the League this summer, should call her at the Newton Recreation Department.

Hospital Has Special Clinics

Newton-Wellesley Hospital played host to nearly 600 visitors on two Saturdays during National Hospital Week. On the first weekend a "Lazy Eye" Clinic, sponsored by the Newton Lions Club, screened 195 children and detected possible eye problems in 13 of them.

Another 86 children received free foot checks at the next week's Podiatry Clinic, sponsored by the Newton Kiwanis Club, while more than 150 adults took advantage of blood pressure checks conducted in recognition of Hospital Week by members of the Newton-Wellesley Hospital School of Nursing.

Countless other visitors went on tours of the Hospital and viewed a "one-time-only" equipment display featuring some of Newton-Wellesley's newest diagnostic and life-saving machines.

Ward 2 Dems Meet

The Newton Ward 2 Democratic Committee unanimously passed a resolution opposing all efforts to repeal or weaken the intent of the action of the state racial-imbalance school law, and agreed that if modifications are necessary the committee would support only those proposed by the legislative Joint Committee on Education.

Representative Paul Guzzi reported on State House action of concern to Newton. One item, a revision of the NESDEC formula for school aid to cities and towns, has been reported favorably and would result in increased aid to urban areas, including Newton, Guzzi said.

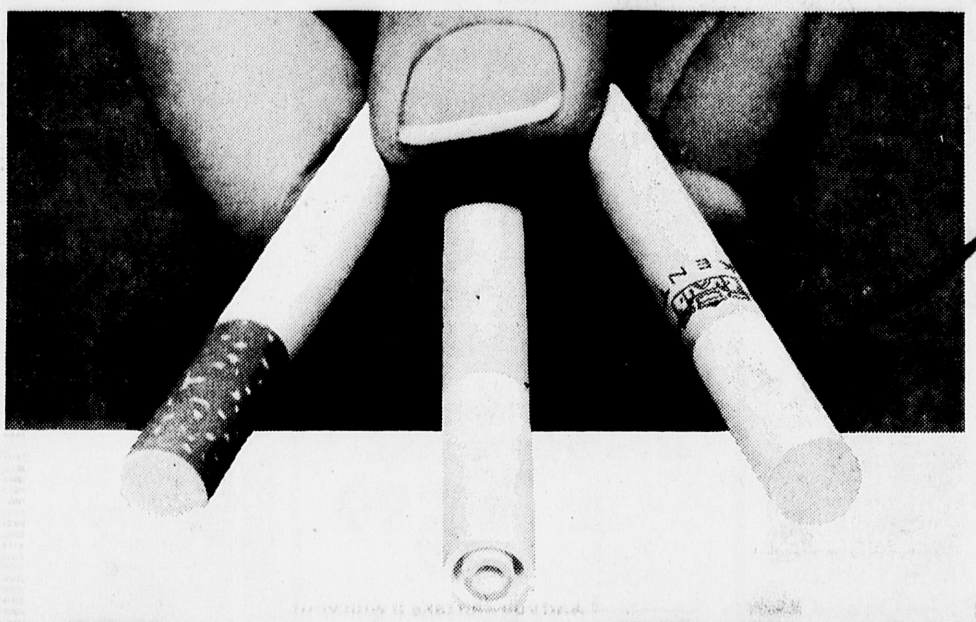
Harsh, blah or smooth taste.

© Lorillard 1973



What makes the difference?

Generally, two things make your cigarette taste the way it does.

The tobacco and the filter.

The tobacco gives it taste. The filter smooths it out.

And often, the difference between harsh, blah and smooth tasting cigarettes can be traced to their filters.

The beauty of the Kent Micronite filter is the way it smooths the quality tobaccos we use in Kent. Not too much, so that the taste turns blah. Or too little, so that the taste turns harsh.

It's done with a special process (so special it's patented) by which the Micronite filter actually chooses which tastes to hold back and which to let pass.

What it lets pass is the mild, smooth taste that makes Kent what it is: America's quality cigarette.

Mild, smooth taste. Micronite filter.

Director De Palma Derives 'Sisters' Chemistry From Hitchcock Formula

As the author and director of the film "Sisters," Brian de Palma was somewhat of a surprise when he dropped in for an interview at my apartment where I had been laid low with an injured knee.

His dark beard makes you think first of some avant-garde or foreign filmmaker like Bunuel or Truffaut; his 32-year-old face and his obvious enthusiasm veers the conversation to the current trend of young films by young people.

But his real love is Alfred Hitchcock, and it was the famous "Hitch" whose brilliantly individual style of film making was the inspiration of "Sisters." According to de Palma, Hitchcock is a classical stylist.

"Hitchcock has his own dramatic structure," said the serious young director. "His always involves the audience with the character that is killed very early in the film. He looks to suck in an innocent bystander in every psychological melodrama. Think back to the plot of 'North by Northwest,' 'The Man Who Knew Too Much' or 'Strangers On A Train.'

"Next he causes the voyeur to uncover the crime well beyond the need to reach the plot's climax. 'Rear Window' is a good example."

If you want to see how de Palma follows this formula, it is very easy to put your finger on the various quirks and tangles that de Palma first created and then directed with Margot Kidder, Charles Durning and Bill Finley for American International Pictures.

Jennifer Salt, daughter of the scriptwriter Waldo Salt and seen in "Midnight Cowboy," is the newspaper gal voyeur who first sees the crime from a window and then finds herself wholly involved in tracking down the killer.

Strange to say, a "Life" magazine article of a few years ago about siamese twins was de Palma's other inspiration for making the picture. Considering how things are going for this, his first use of straight narrative for storytelling, I was not unprepared to hear his present dream film.

A film in the horror genre titled "The Phantom of the Filmore," the proposed picture will have a score by Paul William, the singer of sad love songs, who will also impersonate "the tortured phantom."

"A sort of 'Phantom of the Opera' set in the modern-era world of Alice Cooper" is the way de Palma described the film with pleasure.

De Palma has been a picture maker since his undergraduate college days. He was the head of dramatic activities at Columbia College in New York, and after graduation attended school at Sarah Lawrence, where in the early '60's a male student was a novelty, because of the very fine theatrical department there.

"So I became a co-producer of the play 'Ondine' and cast Bill Finley as my Old Man of the Sea," exulted de Palma. "Now, Bill Finley plays a lead in "Sisters."

Not only did "Ondine" win honors for the young director, but he also received his Master's degree the same year — 1964.

For a short time things went very well for the young man who was viewed as a near prodigy. He couldn't afford to make talking pictures, but his silent ones created attention.

One of his earliest, "Wotan's Wake," starred his old teacher Bill Finley. With a style consciously derivative from "The Cabinet of Dr. Caligari," the old expressionist experimental film, the picture won the Rosenthal Foundation prize for the best film by an American under 25. The next step was a feature film.

"Greetings" was made in 1968," he remembered, "It won a Silver Bear at the Berlin Film Festival and has never been off the screens of art theatres and college revival houses since."

Early successes made the young man feel that his career was only beginning.

But he learned that tragedy often follows triumph.

De Palma learned all too well the heartrending problems of the young collegians who plan to follow a film career today, and he uses his own experiences to discuss them.

"First come the necessity of getting work," he says. "Then, when you have an idea and some hope of making it into a film, comes the terrible job of financing it. But even after the picture is finished, the need for a distributor appears to be insolvable. These are matters that should be taught in every college course dealing with the making of films. Of course the best way to overcome such difficulties is by trying to associate yourself with every side of picture making and selling."

At the moment de Palma is involved with a project taken from the book "The Sensuous Woman." Louise Lasser is rewriting some of her own dialogue and plans to appear in it.

There's one more piece of advice that de Palma has, which won't be popular with plenty of young women. The young writer-director says that aspiring film men shouldn't get married early in the game. "I never could have done what I did if I had had domestic responsibilities," he says. "You have to be single-minded about getting ahead."

Maybe a wife would find a better place for the beautiful Silver Bear he won in Berlin than the shelf of a corner bookcase. However, says its owner, the Bear is handsomer than any Oscar.

Cinema Review: Godspell

GODSPELL has been called "a tribute to joy" by the film's director, David Greene. And no matter how you feel about the modernized versions of old time religion, one must admit that this particular presentation is fun.

The trouble with "Woodstock" and many other photographed assemblies of the younger generation is that there are so few genuine smiles. Screams of adoration and rhythmic approval by hand-clapping and yells are all too plentiful. But there are no innocently happy faces.

What makes the average filmgoer pleased with "Godspell" is that the youngsters do smile and show affection, along with the jumping, leaping, singing and ebullient dancing.

I admit a personal feeling of shock at the characterization of Jesus Christ as an effeminate, beautiful youth without the strength and power of personality that I had visualized from my New Testament.

Yet the film is an effort to show that Christians should be filled with the love and joy of life, and who could exemplify the Biblical messages better than 10 extroverted young people from the streets of New York?

This film is a celebration. The music includes rock and ragtime, there are numerous songs already well-known throughout the country ("Day by Day" is the most outstanding) and what the kids do in depicting such parables as "The Pharisee" or "The Dishonest Servant" is hilarious and imaginative.

'SISTERS' STARS — After their television appearance, Danielle Breton (Margot Kidder) and Philip Woode (Leslie Wilson) enjoy an evening out on the town, in a scene from American International Pictures' "Sisters," starring Margot Kidder and Jennifer Salt.

Preview Concert At Hatch Shell

A special Bach Festival "preview concert" will be performed at the MDC's Hatch Memorial Shell beside the Charles River on Sunday, June 24, at 8 p.m.

The concert, by the 40-member Esplanade Mozart Orchestra, will be directed by founder Michel Sasson, violinist with the Boston Symphony Orchestra and conductor of the Boston Ballet Company orchestra.

In addition to the Sunday concert, an open rehearsal will be held at the Hatch Shell on the previous day, Saturday, June 23, from 4 to 7 p.m.

Soloist for the concert will be Deborah Ann O'Brien of Hull, Miss Massachusetts of 1972 and runner-up in the Miss America contest last year.

Memorial Day weekend means picnics and backyard barbecues heralding the great joy of summer cooking and eating outdoors. It's easy and relaxed; the food somehow tastes marvelous and even though the weather may be a bit on the cool side, it's good to be outdoors.

Some have an idea that you must have a chimney and elaborate brick edifice around it in a back yard full of manicured shrubbery to enjoy barbecue fun. Not so. Enough space on a back porch or driveway for a grill, table and chairs, and cookout fun is limitless.

Out come the barbecue grills. . .the supply of charcoal must not be skimpy. When are the briquets hot to grilling perfection? When they have burned long enough to show a surface of gray ash in the daytime or a red glow at night. Be sure to start your fire ahead of time — it takes one-half to one hour to bring the fire to the correct stage for broiling. A shallow fire is best for broiling; arrange a little tepee of crushed paper and small pieces of kindling wood in your grill. Light it and when it is burning well, drop the briquests on it, spreading them out as they catch fire. 25 to briquets are sufficient to grill steak or hamburgers.

Many commercial forms of lighting fluid, easily ignited mats, and other lighting aids are available. WARNING: AT ALL TIMES TAKE NECESSARY PRECUATIONS WHEN LIGHTING THE FIRE AND NEVER USE GASOLINE. For a smoky flavor, wood chips from apple, oak, maple, hickory and cherry give smoke flavor to fish. Soak chips in water at least an hour before using, so they will give maximum smoke and not burn too rapidly. On a charcoal grill, add a few chips at a time to the charcoal while cooking and if chips flame up, add more wet chips.

There isn't a better choice for outdoor cooking than a big, beautiful fresh fish caught by a member of the family or purchased in a local fish store. Whether the fish is caught on the spot or brought from home, give it a special touch with a marinade for about 3 hours. If everyone's too hungry to wait, brush the fish often with the marinade during the cooking. Remember — never overcook fish. Cook only until fish flakes easily when tested.

A barbecue, big tossed salad and elegant Strawberry Meringues and we're off to another glorious summer and the fun of outdoor eating!

GRILLED FISH

2 cloves garlic, minced
2 teaspoons oregano
2 teaspoons salt
1 teaspoon basil
1 teaspoon thyme
¼ teaspoon pepper
1 cup corn oil
½ cup chopped onion
3 tablespoons grated lemon peel
One-third cup lemon juice
1 (4 to 5 lb.) whole fish, dressed, head and back fin removed

Mix garlic, oregano, salt, basil, thyme and pepper. Stir in corn oil, onion, lemon peel and juice. Pour half of marinade in bottom of large baking dish. Lay fish in marinade. Spoon some marinade into body cavity and pour remaining over fish. Marinate at least 3 hours, turning and basting frequently. Remove fish from marinade. Strain and save liquid. Place onions and garlic in cavity. Close fish with skewers and place fish on wire rack on grill about 3-inches from source of heat. Grill 30-40 minutes on each side or until fish flakes easily with fork. Baste occasionally. Makes 6 servings

ITALIAN STYLE HALIBUT STEAKS

2 pounds halibut steaks or other fish steaks, fresh or frozen
2 cups Italian dressing
2 tablespoons lemon juice
2 teaspoons salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
Paprika

Thaw steaks if frozen. Cut into serving-size portions and place in single layer in a shallow baking dish. Combine remaining ingredients, except paprika. Pour over fish and let stand for 30 minutes, turning once. Remove fish, reserving sauce for basting. Place fish in well-greased hinged wire grills. Sprinkle with paprika. Cook about 4 inches from moderately hot coals for 8 minutes. Baste with sauce and sprinkle with paprika. Turn and cook for 7 to 10 minutes longer or until fish flakes easily when tested with a fork. Serve 6

PICNIC FRANK-BURGERS

1 envelope (1-½ oz.) seasoning mix for sloppy joes
¼ cup vinegar
¼ cup salad oil
1 tomato, chopped
½ cucumber, chopped
1 pound ground beef
4 or 6 frankfurter rolls

Combine contents of envelope of seasoning mix with vinegar and oil; stir 2 tablespoons of this into tomato and cucumber; refrigerate. Shape ground beef into 4 or 6 frankfurter-shaped burgers. Place in shallow casserole; pour seasoning mixture over them and let stand in refrigerator for 30 minutes. Grill over hot coals until done, about 10-15 minutes, basting occasionally with seasoned mixture. Serve in frankfurter rolls topped with vegetable mixture.

BARBECUED FLANK STEAK WITH VEGETABLES

Marinate a 2 to 2-½ pound flank steak for 4 hours in the following mixture:

¼ cup vinegar
1 medium onion, chopped fine
½ teaspoon mustard
1 minced garlic clove
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon dried basil leaves
¼ teaspoon Tabasco
¼ cup oil

When time to grill lift steak from marinade and place on greased grill. Cook 5 minutes on each side, for medium rare, or as long as necessary to suit taste. Slice with sharp knife, cutting against grain on the diagonal.

SUPER CHEF'S SALAD

1 clove garlic, sliced
1 rib celery, sliced
½ medium onion, sliced
1 (2 oz.) can anchovy fillets
2 tablespoons mustard with horseradish
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 teaspoon cracked black pepper
1 teaspoon monosodium glutamate
1 tablespoon corn syrup
3 eggs
2 cups corn oil
1 very large or 2 small heads iceberg lettuce
1 cup crisp croutons

Put garlic, celery and onion into blender. Add anchovy fillets, mustard with horseradish, lemon juice, pepper, monosodium glutamate and corn syrup. Run blender until ingredients are mixed. Add eggs; blend a few seconds. Add corn oil, ½ cup at a time, running blender after each addition. Tear lettuce into bite-size pieces into large salad bowl. Toss with enough dressing (¼ to ½ cup) to coat. Add croutons. Store remaining dressing in refrigerator for later use.

Note: to make dressing without blender, mince garlic, celery, onion and anchovy fillets. Mix very thoroughly with a wire whip.

STRAWBERRY ICE CREAM MERINGUES

12 saltine crackers, coarsely rolled (about ½ cup crumbs)
½ cup chopped pecans
½ teaspoon baking powder
3 egg whites
1 cup granulated sugar
½ teaspoon vanilla extract
1 (1 lb.) frozen whole strawberries in syrup, thawed
Water
1 tablespoon cornstarch
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 pint vanilla ice cream

Combine cracker crumbs and pecans; set aside. Add baking powder to egg whites. Beat until soft peaks form. Gradually add sugar and vanilla, beating until stiff and glossy. Fold in cracker mixture. Spoon, in 8 portions, on brown paper covered cookie sheets. Bake in preheated slow oven (300 degrees) about 30 minutes or until done. Remove to rack to cool. Drain berries, reserving syrup. Add enough water to make 1¼ cups; heat to bubbling. Stir cornstarch into lemon juice. Blend into hot syrup. Cook, stirring constantly, until clear and thickened. Cool; add strawberries. Using a melon scoop, make ice cream balls and arrange on meringues. Pour sauce over ice cream. Makes 8 (about 4-inch) meringues and 2 cups strawberry sauce.

Alcohol Information

A Kalamazoo psychiatrist seeks the latest information on diagnosing alcoholism. An Indian alcoholism counselor in Arizona needs to know about new techniques to help his clients. A housewife in Atlanta wants to know how to find local alcoholism services for her husband.

Now, a new information service is available to help meet their needs.

This is the National Clearinghouse for Alcohol Information, recently established by the National Institute on Alcohol Abuse and Alcoholism, a component of the National Institute of Mental Health of HEW's Health Services and Mental Health Administration.

The mission of the information service is, as an announcement says, "to quench the thirst of professionals and laymen alike for current knowledge about America's No. 1 drug problem."

Does it seem strange, calling alcoholism a drug problem? It may, but it is nevertheless true.

Dressing For Summer Evenings

Women love getting dressed up for summer partying. During the day it's a sweater-and-pants world, but after five when the invitation reads "Black Tie" the pulse quickens and it's time for forgetting daytime "functionalism" — time to indulge in a bit of frivolity.

Evening wear this summer calls for baring lots of skin with strapless tops, plunging halters and culotte-bra-and-shirt costumes that are most becoming to the slender figure.

Back in 1938 debutante Brenda Frazier set her own fashion wearing a boned (to keep the dress up) strapless evening dress. Followers of this style usually wore an undergarment that was either a "merry widow" or a strapless bra. Today's strapless gowns, all frilly and ruffly in lightweight floaty fabrics, are sometimes worn with very slight underlining — period.

Designers, such as James Galanos, envision today's calorie-conscious woman wearing these gowns with no supportive undergarments. Some strapless gowns have thin runs of elastic set at the top of the bodice; thus far no embarrassing slips have been reported.

In general, floating chiffons, georgettes, crepes and tissue-light jerseys carry out the romantic theme for summer evenings. If you thought polka dots were pretty by day, they add an amusing note to evening fashions. For example, Chester Weinberg spots his after five dress with lots of black coins and a random freckling of pink dots. Bill Blass combines blue, beige and pink in a flurry of pindots cascading down a polished cotton halter dress. With great panache and daring, Donald Brooks turns the dot into an exciting bull's-eye print in a cowl-neck evening gown that demands head-turning attention.

Try this — some enchanted evening make a grand entrance trailing clouds of airy chiffon. These gowns are generally termed "drop dead" evening fashions, meaning the reaction will be a stunning one as you sweep through the door.

Added to this bit of showmanship is the grand exit because summer styles dictate baring your back beautifully. Of course you'll be very sure that your back and shoulders are in good condition before wearing one of the new halter, one shoulder or strapless gowns.

There are designs to suit most figures — women with sagging arms and flabby backs would be advised to choose fashions with modified halters that cover the shoulder blades or long sleeves.

Should you give your back close inspection in a three-way mirror only to find it less than ideal, use a long-handled back brush or loofah with mild soap or cleansing cream and water to improve the circulation and skin tone. Use a moisturizing body lotion applied in firm circular motions. Another bareback must — stand tall because in many cases when you wear barely-there gowns and you slouch, you'll be exposing more than your back to interested eyes.

King of the elegant evening dress, Oscar de la Renta, commenting on his summer collection says, "I like romantic fashions with ruffles and beautiful embroidery. The caftan is excellent for less formal occasions and I prefer that evening clothes have a marvelous sense of bareness that is not provocative nakedness. I feel that women should show their beautifully kept skin which has been covered for far too many years." His entire collection of evening clothes is done in colors the tint of sugared almonds.

Cotton is no longer a housedress fabric. Designers treat cotton in a most formal manner with long bell skirts and often very bare tops. They are made of pique and polished cotton gabardine; new on the market is an amazing Italian textured cotton.

Pastel crepe is another fabric that lends a gentle shaping particularly in bias cut gowns. When color coordinated with a soft angora sweater, the look is particularly appealing.

The essence of summer dressing is freedom and this means soft fabrics with non-restrictive styling. Shapes like the tent, the loused-shirtdress, shirred waistlines, are all part of the look.

Embroidered voiles over layers of feather-light underskirts — airy fruit and flower patterns, such as the saffron-colored chiffon gown splashed with giant pink magnolia blossoms.

Designer Valentino allows roses to bloom on a sooty black chiffon gown, the neckline slashed to the waist, and a giant strawberry pink cabbage rose perched on the shoulder. In a more sober mood, his navy polka dot dress with poet sleeves and a modest bunch of white silk daisies at the neckline-waist — a blend of wickedness and innocence.

Every summer has its peek-a-boo dresses with midriff cut-outs. Not everyone can carry off those "window" dresses, but when the right body, tanned and firm, wears it the look is super. Before making the purchase, try sitting down in the fitting room — if puffy ovals or triangles of skin push their way through the cut-outs, second thoughts about the style are in order.

And what would you say of a pink clingy gown ruffled in front at just above the knee and cascading down to the floor in back . . . a ruffled yellow pinafore with a bodice that leaves the sides completely bare . . . a Grecian gown artfully draped in such a manner that it conceals flabby upper arms and "spare tires"? These gowns, designed by John Haggins, are nightgowns that are pretty enough for after-five partying. (If you don't tell, I never will!)

FEMININITY RETURNS with this raspberry chiffon halter dress which sweeps to the floor with butterfly panels shown in The New York collection at Jordan Marsh and available in the Designer Shop, second floor.

Question: I'm looking for chicken recipes that are a little different form the ordinary run of chicken recipes, please. — M. L., Dedham

Answer: Chicken continues to be a favorite not only because of its good flavor but also because of its compatibility with so many other ingredients. Following are three chicken recipes I'm sure you will enjoy:

CHICKEN BREASTS ROYALLE

4 whole chicken breasts, boned and skinned
1 egg
½ cup milk
½ cup flour
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon garlic salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
½ cup shortening
1 can (6 oz.) chopped mushrooms, drained
5 tablespoons margarine

Wash chicken and pat dry with paper towels. Cut each chicken breast in half. Beat egg with milk. In another bowl, combine flour, salt, garlic salt and pepper. Dip chicken into egg mixture, coating well on all sides. Roll in flour mixture thoroughly. Heat shortening in large skillet and fry chicken until golden on each side. Place in shallow baking pan. Spoon drained mushrooms over chicken; dot with margarine and broil 4 to 5 inches from heat until chicken is crispy. (About 4-6 minutes.) Serves 6-8.

COMPANY CHICKEN-IN-A-HURRY

1 large frying chicken or 6 large pieces frying chicken
2 tablespoons flour
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon paprika
⅛ teaspoon pepper
2 jars (6 oz. ea.) marinated artichoke hearts
2 tablespoons margarine
½ cup dry sherry wine
1 can (10½ oz.) cream of mushroom soup

Toss chicken pieces in paper bag with flour, salt, paprika and pepper until well coated. Drain marinade from artichoke hearts into large skillet. Add margarine and heat until melted. Arrange chicken pieces in skillet. Cook over moderate heat, turning pieces to brown all sides. Add wine and cover (if pan does not have a cover, use heavy foil). Simmer until chicken is almost tender, about 25 minutes. Add artichoke hearts and stir in soup. Continue cooking about 10 minutes longer until hot. Serve with sauce over fluffy hot cooked rice. Serves 6.

SLIM JIM BAKED CHICKEN

4 chicken legs (thigh and drumstick)
2 whole chicken breasts, split into halves
1 teaspoon garlic salt
2 teaspoons paprika
½ teaspoon oregano, chrushed
½ teaspoon grated lemon peel
One-third cup freshly squeezed lemon juice
½ cup water

Season chicken pieces with garlic salt, rubbing well into flesh. Sprinkle with paprika. Place in shallow baking pan, skin side down. Combine remaining ingredients; pour over chicken. Bake, uncovered, at 400 degrees about 40 minutes. Turn chicken and continue baking, basting with pan drippings once or twice, until done, about 35 minutes. Garnish with snipped parsley, if desired.

Question: My mother-in-law is visiting with us and asked me if I had a recipe for a double crust lemon pie. She said she used to make one for my husband many years ago but has forgotten the ingredients. Can you help me? Many thanks. — Mrs. R. O., Roslindale

Answer: There's nothing as refreshing as a lemon pie, especially when it's a double crust one baked to a golden brown perfection. Enjoy!

DOUBLE CRUST LEMON PIE

1¼ cups sugar
¼ cup cornstarch
¼ cup cold water
1¼ cups boiling water
1 tablespoon grated lemon peel
2 tablespoons butter
2 eggs, well beaten
One-third to ½ cup freshly squeezed lemon juice
3-4 drops yellow food coloring
Pastry for 2 crust pie

In saucepan, thoroughly combine sugar and cornstarch; blend in cold water until very smooth. Add boiling water and cook over medium heat until mixture boils, stirring constantly. Boil for 2 minutes; remove from heat; add lemon peel and stir in butter until melted. Add beaten eggs, lemon juice and food coloring, blending until smooth. Cool mixture thoroughly, stirring frequently. While mixture cools, prepare pastry and line a 9-inch pie plate. Pour in cooled filling; cover with top pastry in which slits have been cut to allow steam to escape. Seal well at edges by fluting. Bake at 375 degrees for 30-35 minutes, or until lightly browned. Cool on wire rack. Serve chilled.

Question: I would like a recipe for an applesauce cake with a cinnamony flavor, please . . . one that does not call for a tube pan please. Thanks.

Answer: Lucky you! Just received from the International Apple Institute, an applesauce cake that dates back to the colonial days. This cake keeps well, is moist and delicious and is baked in an 8-inch square pan.

MARBLEHEAD APPLESAUCE CAKE

½ cup shortening
1 cup sugar
1 egg
1 cup canned applesauce
1¾ cups sifted all purpose flour
1½ teaspoons cinnamon
1 teaspoon allspice
1 teaspoon nutmeg
¼ teaspoon cloves
½ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon baking soda
Vanilla icing

Cream shortening to consistency of mayonnaise; add sugar gradually, while creaming. Add egg; beat well. Add applesauce. Mix and sift flour, spices, salt and baking soda; add. Mix well. Bake in greased and floured 8-inch square cake pan at 350 degrees for 50-60 minutes. Frost with Vanilla Icing.

VANILLA ICING

1 pkg. (3 oz.) cream cheese
1 tablespoon warm milk
2½ cups confectioners sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 square unsweetened chocolate

Mash cheese with milk. Add sugar gradually and vanilla. Beat until creamy. Spread on cooled cake. Melt unsweetened chocolate and dribble from the end of a teaspoon over top of cake for lacy design.

HELPFUL HINT: did you know that baking soda is a great helpmate in the kitchen? It cannot scratch, cuts grease and is completely safe to use near food. For example: Keep dry baking soda close to the range.

If a grease fire should occur, toss handfuls of soda at the base of the flames. When heated, the soda releases carbon dioxide and immediately extinguishes the flames.

A solution of 3 tablespoons of baking soda in a gallon of water safely cleans painted walls and woodwork, even washable wallpaper. Especially good for the kitchen where grease stains are likely to occur.

Soak away collected grease and grime in a soda solution to remove dirt from range hood. Clean and deodorize inside and out of refrigerator with a solution of 3 tablespoons baking soda per quart of water.

After cleaning, leave a box of soda, with top removed, in the refrigerator to absorb odors as they occur. Stir up the soda now and then to keep a fresh layer on top.

After about 2 months put in a new box and clean the kitchen drains with used soda.

'Recovery' Program Explained

In recognition of the fact that the current month of May is designated as "Mental Health Month," the Recovery, Inc. Group of Dedham is calling attention to the program it offers the public.

The Dedham Group is now nearing its third year of service to Dedham and surrounding communities. Since June, 1970, Recovery, Inc. has held weekly meetings at St. Paul's School, 53 Church street, located next to the Public Library. Meetings are on Thursdays, at 7:45 p.m.

Recovery, Inc. has a two-fold purpose: to prevent relapses in former mental patients and to forestall chronicity in nervous patients. People in both groups can testify wholeheartedly to the fact that this dual goal can be achieved under the Recovery system of self-help.

Recovery, Inc. is a non-profit organization founded in 1937 by the late Dr. Abraham D. Low, former neuro-psychiatrist at the University of Illinois Medical School. Today Recovery is in the capable hands of lay people thoroughly trained in Dr. Low's methods.

Members of Recovery, Inc. include men and women who have symptoms of nervous suffering not of organic origin. Many have been referred by their psychiatrists, doctors or social workers, but it is not necessary to be referred nor is it necessary to have been hospitalized or under professional care in order to attend meetings.

Some common nervous symptoms from which members suffer are: dizziness, heart palpitations, tremors, depression, panicky feelings, chest pressure, fear of heart disease, difficulty in making decisions, strong feelings of inadequacy, inability to cope with difficult family situations, and many more.

Attendance and participation are on a voluntary basis and most members know each other by first name only. Meetings are open to the public and there is no charge.

In addition to the Dedham Group, meetings are held weekly in the local area in Milton, Newton, Boston, South Weymouth, Brockton, and Wellesley. For times and locations call (Newton) 969-0475. One of the group leaders is from Norwood and may be reached by calling 762-2150.

Employment Outlook Here Appears Stable

The local area employment outlook is stable, according to the latest independent survey conducted by Manpower, Inc., 199 First avenue, Needham.

The survey shows that 80 per cent of the local businesses polled expect no employment change during the second quarter of 1973.

An addition of personnel was anticipated by 20 per cent of those surveyed according to Lillian Whitman, supervisor of the local Manpower office.

The Needham Manpower office polled a representative sample of local businesses as part of a national employment outlook survey conducted by Manpower, Inc. offices throughout the country.

The survey shows the local employment predictions are slightly below the national average.

Nationally 22 per cent of the companies polled plan to add employees, while 60 per cent expect no change, and 5 per cent predict a decline. The remaining 13 per cent are unsure.

The national survey shows a continuing trend of optimism. Employment expectations continue to be higher than last year.

The percentage expressing optimism this quarter is a 5 per cent gain over second quarter 1972.

The employment outlook survey is the sixty second issued by Manpower Inc.

South Baseball Team Upset

By LEWIS H. FREEDMAN
Asst. Sports Editor

Slam, bang, oops, is the best way to describe the Newton South baseball team's experiences, last week.

The Lions destroyed Maynard, 12-2, and Weston, 12-3, to hang on to a share of first place in the Dual County League along with Concord-Carlisle, but then were upset, 5-4 by a Westwood team which sneaked to within a game of South's 9-2 mark.

The Weston game was more of a joke than a confrontation. The Wildcats committed nine errors and issued nine walks to aid the Lions' nine-hit attack. The gift was too much to refuse, though South did inject an event of real baseball into the proceedings by producing another perfect suicide squeeze play in the third inning when the game was still close. The Lions have utilized the play to such advantage over the last three seasons and can pull it off with such precision that even now, when every other team in the league is waiting for it, they can still make it work.

Such was the occasion against Weston. The South diamond nine had the bases loaded with one out and led 3-1 on the scoreboard. Most teams would swing away, but Bob D'Angelo laid down a bunt and so confused the Weston defense that Steve Tresca scored from third and Ned Moan came all the way around from second.

While Weston did its keystone cops imitation in the field, South pitcher Mike Lushan, heretofore limited only to relief appearances, was cruising through five and one-third innings of seven-hit baseball. Rick DeMichele relieved him and mopped up with hitless hurling.

After the Lions moved out to a 5-1 lead with the two-run bunt, Weston closed the gap to 5-3 in the fourth. However, the Lions tallied three runs in the fifth, one in the sixth, and three more in the seventh to ice the contest.

Phil Kramer and Steve Rittenberg paced the Lion offense with two hits apiece and Tresca, Moan, Jon Rosenberg, D'Angelo, and Mark Fogel, each added one safety.

There was nothing flukey about South's 12-2 destruction of Maynard. This time the Lions did it with their bats rather than with mirrors. They pounded out 13 hits.

Hal Bennett, who started the year in the outfield and then languished on the bench for a while, came through with a two-for-two day on a single and a double and drove in four runs.

Rittenberg, a sophomore outfielder with a lot of potential, had another good day, getting two hits and recording three runs and catcher Rosenberg swatted two hits.

The Lions scored once in the first inning and twice more in the second, but through three innings carried just a 3-1 lead. Four-run outbursts in the fourth and fifth put the game out of reach.

The hitting did the job. Tony Lombardo, Pete Miller, Moan, Fogel, Mark Malkasian, Greg Moan, and Kramer, each had solo hits and Kramer scored three runs.

Fogel Unbeaten

Fogel, a lefty twirler, went all the way to chalk up his fifth win against zero losses this season. He scattered four hits and fanned six batters and the only trouble he encountered stemmed from his persistent wildness which resulted in five walks.

That was the slam and the bang. The oops cost South a share of the league lead.

One chief asset the Lions have provided their pitchers with this season has been an early cushion. All pitchers appreciate the benefit of the pressure being relieved.

Against Westwood, South hurler Jim Kavanaugh didn't get his usual lead, though the Lions do score less for him than any other hurler on the squad. The roles were reversed this time and Westwood nicked Kavanaugh for single runs in the first and second innings and two more in the third.

While Kavanaugh was merely a shadow of his usual self, Westwood pitcher Brad Benson was near untouchable until the sixth inning. By that time South trailed 5-0.

In the sixth frame a two-run single by Ned Moan, a wild pitch, and an RBI double from Tresca accounted for a four-run rally, but Benson settled down in time to preserve the game.

Kavanaugh dropped his second game in a row, though he didn't go all the way. Lushan took care of the last inning.

The Lions managed just four hits, one each coming from Moan, Tresca, Rosenberg, and Lushan in their weakest hitting display of the week.

Concord-Carlisle leads the Dual County League with a 9-1 record. South is second a half-game back, and Westwood is now third with an 8-3 mark.

This week the Lions play Lincoln-Sudbury and Acton-Boxboro, two teams which gave them trouble earlier in the season, but two teams which they beat. The Lions topped Lincoln, 6-5 on April 30 and edged Acton, 2-1, on May 4. They can't afford to lose either game if they plan to catch Concord.

Bond Glitters For South Track Team

By LEWIS H. FREEDMAN
Asst. Sports Editor

Discus throwing seems to have a very agreeable affect on at least one Newton South trackman each spring. Over the last few years Areman Kojoyian and Charley Applestein have improved from obscurity to state - placing potential in single seasons. This year's find is Charles Bond (no relation to James, thank you.).

Up until two weeks ago, Bond, a junior, was just topping the 100 - foot mark with his tosses, and was a rare winner. But last week, as the Lions downed Bedford, 99-32, and fell to Concord - Carlisle, 74½ - 56½, Bond emerged as one of the top platter spinners in the Dual County League.

In the Bedford win he spun the disc a personal record 129 feet, seven inches to slaughter the competition, and against Concord he approached his new best with a mark of 120 feet even. The sudden improvement marks Bond as an almost sure placer in the League championships.

There were other big stories within the South track team, last week, the biggest being that the team won a meet, its first of the year, including the indoor season.

Admittedly, it was at least partly due to Bedford's ineptness, but the spirited Lions also came through with good individual performances.

Barry Kaplan went bananas, copping the high hurdles, 17.6, the low hurdles, 23.5, and the shot - put, 43-1, to tally 15 points in a fantastic performance.

And Kaplan wasn't the only double winner. Scott Barron, a regular single victor this season, turned the trick for the first time with five - point efforts in the 100 - yard dash and the 220. He also ran a leg of the winning 880 - yard relay.

Bond added three points behind Kaplan in the shot - put to accompany his five from the discus.

Al Podufly had a field day, finishing second to Kaplan in the low hurdles, winning the long jump, and tying for first in the high jump with Steve Berger. Berger added a second in the high hurdles and Jeff Stone took third in the high jump to complete the sweep in that event.

South also scored a sweep in the long jump with Steve Schulman, second, and Seth Averbach, third, taking the places behind Podufly. Schulman was also third in the 100.

The tracksters captured the remaining field events, too. Soph Peter Maples won the triple jump at 35 - 11 with John Mason third, and Bruce King and Dave Fine tied for first in the pole vault at 8-6.

Other strong individual efforts in the running events came from Rich McMahon, winner of the 880 in a solid 2:07.9, Dave Lein and Charlie Horioka, one - two in the two - mile, Chris Capeless, second in the mile, Jim Goodman, third in the half - mile, Jack Ferreri and Dan Perlman, two - three in the 440, and Scott Green, third in the 220.

It was definately a glorious day for Newton South track.

The meet with Concord was less than glorious, though it was a good effort. Concord simply had better individuals.

Kaplan continued to pile up points with a 23.9 victory in the low hurdles, and seconds in the highs and shot, but he didn't have as much help this time. Bond, and King, with another 8-6 effort in the pole vault, were the only other Lions to make it to the winner's circle.

Scott Hagfors was the man who did the Lions in. Hagfors copped the 100 - yard dash in 10.5, the 440 in 53.3, and the long jump with a distance of 19-¾ as well as running a split on the winning relay team. That was 16¼ points and the Lions lost by 18.

Baron earned seconds in the 100 and 220. Lein, two - mile, Ferreri, 440, Capeless, mile, McMahon, 880, Stone, high jump, Mason, low hurdles, Kotzen, triple jump, and the rapidly improving Schulman, long jump, each joined him with three - point contributions as second was the Lions' favorite spot of the day.

Maples, triple jump, and long jump, Goodman, 880, Horioka, two - mile, Dave Robinson, mile, and Schulman, tie in the 100, all finished third.

A third meet last week with St. Sebastian's, was rained out, and will be made up this week. Maynard is also on the list this week in South's final dual meet of the year.

South Tennis

Nobody really thought that Newton South would beat Weston, last week, especially in light of Weston's 5-0 win the first time the two teams met this spring.

South didn't win, but it surprised the Wildcats with a much stiffer tussle than expected before falling 4-1.

True to form, Barnaby Kalen dispatched Lion number one Bill Karol, 6-4, 6-3. Untrue to form, South sophomore Umberto Fugundes, upset Mike Hooven, 6-3, 2-6, 6-3, in second singles for the Lion point. Roger Gordon, who has improved steadily throughout the season, represented South in third singles against Ken Swain and played well, though he lost, 6-3, 5-7, 6-3.

Ben Cohen and Jeff Levin didn't fare too well in first doubles, going down, 6-2, 6-2, but the second doubles team of Mike Sklar and Dave Fisher gave Weston's duo a scare before falling, 6-0, 4-6, 6-3.

The match left the Lions' season mark at 6-3, not one of the most impressive records in recent Lion lore, but good enough to keep them in the running for a post-season tournament berth.

That is, if the netmen ever get their schedule played. Later last week, in what should have been an ego-booster, the Lions were rained out of a match with Westwood.

Earlier in the year the first Newton-South-Westwood match was washed out. When the two teams finally met South won, 5-0. It's a match the Lions could use. Also waiting in the wings to be made up is a match with Wayland, rained out the week before.

This week doesn't seem like the time for makeup work, however. Already scheduled are Lincoln-Sudbury, Bedford, Concord-Carlisle, and Acton-Boxboro. It's South's busiest week of the campaign and extra matches are not needed.

—o—

We last left our Newton South singles heroes safely entrenched in the third round of Region IV of the Eastern Mass. Singles Championships.

In the thirs round, Bill Karol defeated Dave Mintz of Brockton, 6-1, 6-3, Umberto Fugundes downed Carl Kravitz of Newton, 6-1, 6-3, and Roger Gordon bowed out, losing to Newton's Rich Birmingham, 6-0, 6-3.

That left an eight-man quarterfinal which drew three players from Weston, two from Newton High, and two from Newton South.

Kalen, Hooven, and Swain all made it from Weston, while Joe Mitchell and Birmingham represented the Tigers. Bill Brady of Xavier was the eighth man.

Mitchell downed Swain with ease, 6-3, 7-5; Kalen topped Karol, 6-2, 3-6, 7-6 on a tie-breaker; Birmingham crushed Brady, 6-0, 6-1; and Hooven outplayed Fugundes, 6-3, 6-3, who got his revenge later in the week.

Four players from each of the four regions combined for a round of 16, last weekend and the final four remining were: Mitchell and Birmingham, Steve Gallagher of Lexington, and Framingham North's untouchable Ferdi Taygan.

Taygan, only a junior, is the reigning state champion and is number one ranked in the country in 16-and-under singles. After a first round bye, he breezed through his three qualifying rounds without dropping a game. Wellesley's Robbie Hailer extended Taygan to 6-2, 6-0 to end that streak at six perfect sets.

At 11 a.m. last Sunday at Brockton High Taygan squared off against Birmingham and Gallagher went against Mitchell.

Gallagher, who looked impressive in the earlier rounds, didn't have it against Mitchell, and the Newton High number one advanced to the finals.

Taygan did a job on Birmingham, Newton's number two, demolishing him, 6-0, 6-3.

That set up a Taygan-Mitchell final, but though Mitchell gave Taygan one of his toughest fights of the year, it was still little more than a lamb being led to slaughter. Taygan waltzed to his second straight crown, 6-2, 8-6.

St. Sebastian's Sports

Mark Canavan scattered four hits and St. Sebastian's erupted for 15 hits as the Arrows routed Governor Dummer, 6-1, last week, to raise their season's record to 9-4 in Private School League play.

The Arrows scored two runs in the first, third, and sixth innings, to carry off the win.

Canavan also contributed mightily with his bat, stroking a double and two singles. Most of the St. Sebastian's batting order added to the team average as Tim Clapp joined Canavan as a three-hit man with a single, double, and triple, and Kevin O'Malley, Joe White, Dave Fish and Fred Carnes, each came through with two hits.

Canavan struck out six and walked two.

\+ + + +

The Arrow trackmen topped Belmont Hill, 71-51 to up their record to 6-4.

Paul King won the 220 in 23.5 and the low hurdles in 14.4 for 10 points to lead the Arrows.

Steve McCue's 5-8 high jump gave him a share of the school record, but McCue placed only third in the competition despite reaching the same height as the winner. He lost on the countback of fewer misses.

Rich Hinchley, 40-11½ in the shot-put, Tom Ricci, 10 feet in the pole vault, Peter Flynn, 10.6 in the 100-yard dash, Dave Walsh, 10:33.4 in the two-mile, Rich Mulroy, 2:09.2 in the half-mile, and Mike LeDoux, 122-9 in the javelin, each provided five points with individual victories in their respective events.

\+ + + +

The Arrow tennis team was trounced by Rivers, 16-2 in a match where St. Sebastian's did not win one point outright.

Dave Ablondi, 7-5, 2-6, earned a split in fourth singles, and Ablondi, teamed with Terry Grant, earned a 6-4, 2-6 split in doubles.

Tennis Tips

By BUCKY ADAMS

On Sunday, May 13, Bobby Riggs beat Margaret Court 6-2, 6-1. Riggs winning, was not so surprising. That he won by such easy scores, was very surprising. However, the most amazing thing about the match was neither the outcome nor the margin, but the manner in which he beat her. Below are some reasons why Bobby Riggs beat Margaret Court.

1. Riggs mixed up his shots so that Court never knew what he was going to do. On one point he would lob her deep, on the next point he would drop shot her. On one point he would stay back at the baseline, on the next he would rush net. One serve would be an easy slice another would be a hard flat serve.

2. Riggs kept Court away from the net. The basic shot that Riggs used was a deep slice. Court was waiting for a shallow ball so that she could hit an approach shot and come to net. The shallow ball seldom came.

3. Margaret Court played poorly. That is an understatement. She probably played better tennis when she was 15 years old. There are basically two reasons why she played badly. First, she was extremely nervous. She was not only playing for $10,000, but she was representing women's tennis. The pressure was tremendous. She's been in pressure situations dozens of times before and has come through, but Sunday she folded.

The second reason for her poor playing is that Riggs never gave Court the thing she likes most. This is shots that have pace on them. He gave her "junk" shots and this destroyed her timing completely.

4. Riggs played well. He was a lot less nervous than Court. This is simply his personality. Minnesota Fats doesn't get nervous when he shoots pool and Bobby Riggs doesn't get nervous when he plays tennis. He was in good shape and it looked as though Margaret Court was the more tired of the two players.

5. Margaret Court continued to play a losing game. After the first set, she had to change her strategy. She should have come to net off of her serve and return of serve. She needed to force Riggs to hit under more pressure. It was surprising to see a player of her experience stay with a losing strategy.

The best lesson that can be learned from this match, is that tennis is a very heady game. Strategy can make or break a player. A slow, easy shot can be just as deveastating as a hard one. And finally, beware of 55 year old men who give roses as Mother's Day gifts.

South Golf

Rain continues to plague the Newton South golf team's efforts to get its schedule played. The Lions have been trying to play Weston for nearly a month and now the jinx is spreading to other teams as well.

At the end of April the Lions were rained out of matchups with Weston and Westwood. On May 11 they were washed out against Maynard, and last Friday, Weston bit the dust, or perhaps mud would be a better description, for a second time.

In between the last two postponements the Lions scored a satisfying 5-4 victory over Westwood in the makeup of their original match. The win was of particular significance because Westwood topped Wayland earlier in the week. The Warriors handed South one of its two defeats this year and its only loss last year.

Steve Owens and John Whelan combined for two points and the team of Brian Corcoran and Steve Hoffman also contributed two points for 80 percent of the Lion linksmen's total. Corcoran recorded the low score of 38 at the Blue Hills Country Club.

The third lion tandem of Peter Sherman and newcomer to the lineup Ken Hausman, added the decisive point. Hausman replaced Jay McCory.

Lincoln-Sudbury, Bedford, and Acton-Boxboro cram this week's schedule, but with possible makeups and the omnipresent bad weather, the week could turn into a real adventure for the 6-2 Lions. — LEWIS FREEDMAN.

The glider is a sport for the rich and the daring. The glider is a heavier-than-air motorless plane. Technically, this sport includes both gliding and soaring. In ordinary gliding, the craft is constructed so that it constantly loses altitude never rising above its starting point. In soaring the craft may reach points above where it took off. The glider is a delicately constructed engine and requires a quick and skillful hand for the best maneuvering.

Clean our your brakes with fresh braking fluid. With a hydraulic braking system, the same fluid is used every time the brake pedal is pressed. Heat and moisture form a sludge in this fluid after a while, thus making the brakes sluggish or unreliable. A complete change of brake fluid once a year can minimize this effect. Do not forget that a sinking brake pedal signals a leak in the braking system.

Newton High Teams All Winning

By DAVID CUTLER

Again this year, Newton High School's spring athletic teams have been stronger in more sports than any other high school in suburban Boston, or all of Massachusetts for that matter. The six spring squads (baseball, track, golf, lacrosse, sailing, and tennis) are presently battling for victory in their final contests of the season. The results of these contests will determine the ultimate success of the team. Here is a brief look at where each of them now stand.

Baseball–Newton High has assured itself a berth in the Eastern Mass. Baseball Tournament. The Tigers are battling Arlington for the top spot in the Suburban League. The outcome of their May 24 contest could prove decisive. Next week, look on these pages for a wrap-up of the season and the final league standings.

Track–In what was billed as a rebuilding year, an inexperienced Tiger Track Team came awfully close to beating undefeated Suburban League Champions Weymouth South. The results of this and other recent meets, along with what happened at the Class A Championships at White Stadium will be in the next issue.

Golf–Newton remains in a battle for first place in the Southern Division of the Suburban League. If they succeed they will fight it out for the League Championship. From there they may go on to the State Team Championship. For the outcome of the team's season and how Newton golfers fare in the State Individual Championships, you'll have to wait one week.

Lacrosse—For the second consecutive year Newton High School has qualified for the State Lacrosse Tournament. But before that happens will they beat their arch-rival Brookline? Will the Tigers make it through the first two playoff games to the State Championship game? For the answers to these and other exciting questions come back next week; same time, same place.

Sailing–Newton's sailors are going up against Tabor's traditional New England Championship team. The Tigers will try to avenge an earlier loss to the Preppies. A Newton win would be a milestone for the Sailing Teams, only in its second season. Next week, a full report on the jibing, tacking, luffing, beating, coming about, hiking out, capsizing, and bailing of the Sailing Team.

Tennis--George Jessup's racqueteers smashed their way through another undefeated Suburban League campaign. They will now try to defend their Eastern Mass., state, and New England Titles. In the Eastern Massachusetts Singles Tournament two Newton players advanced to the semi-finals, and one-the finals. Each was knocked off in turn by the eventual and expected winner, Ferdi Taygan. The singles story and the team's progress will be reported next week.

For the teams making it into post-season play, remember this: during this past fall and winter three teams have advanced to post-season tournaments from NHS, soccer, football, and basketball. The Soccer Team lost 1-0 on a penalty shot. The Gridders lost 16-14 after a valiant last quarter drive. The Hoops los by one point on a last second foul shot. May the spring teams have better luck and the longest possible season.

TENNIS

Monday, May 14 the Weeks Junior High Girls Tennis Team defeated Bigelow 6-0. Singles matches were won by Sue Horwitz, Abby Greenbaum, Sheryl Griffin, and Wendy Shahon; and doubles by Sherri Foster and Shelly Polsky, and Sue Moss and Ellen Peck. This win was followed by a victory of 5-2 over Warren on Thursday, May 17. Winning singles players were Abby Greenbaum, Wendy Shahon and Sue Moss; and winning doubles were Chris Costellanos and Buthaina Shukri, Ellen Peck and Mary Moore.

Bigelow's Boys' tennis coach, Milton Rosenthal praised his team for their recent efforts against the Warren and Weeks squads. Bigelow's roster includes the following fellows:

Varsity—Billy Zani, Bob Cohen, Jim Sneider, Rickey Gelin, Jon Morris, Adam Stander, Stu Lerner and Norm Gaudet.

TRACK

The most influential element in the junior high track program this spring has been rain - and the resulting poor track and field conditions. Of 12 regularly scheduled meets this spring, seven have been postponed or cancelled altogether on account of bad weather.

The most important meet of the year, the All City Meet, will be held on Thursday, May 31, beginning at 1:30 p.m. (Rain date, Friday, June 1.) Athletes from all five Newton junior high schools will be competing for individual championships, as well as the school championship. All interested persons are encouraged to attend the meet, which will be held at the Newton High School track.

Newton High Lacrosse Team Looks For State EMass Championship

Setting one's sights on the State Championship before the season has even begun can lead to all sorts of maladies; one being pes in mustace (foot in mouth). But NHS Lacrosse Coach Tom dePeter still has this goal before him as his team heads into next week's opening round of the Eastern Massachusetts Lacrosse Tournament.

Four teams will qualify for the Tournament. They are the Four teams will qualify for the Trounament. They are the first and second place teams from the Northern and Southern Lacrosse Leagues. Interleague play between the first and second place teams will determine the finalists for the EsMass. Title. The winner will play the Western Mass. Champ for the State Crown.

Newton High lost its chance for the Southern League Banner when it lost to Needham on Saturday, May 19. Undefeated Needham won the League. They and the Tigers (5-1) will be the Southern League representatives in the Tourney. Framingham South was third with a 4-2 mark. The other teams in the league are Medford, Weymouth North, Framingham North, and Newton South.

The two top teams in the Northern League have yet to be determined. Depending on the results of this week's game, either Concord-Carlisle, Lincoln-Sudbury, or Brookline will not make the Torunament while the other two do. Newton plays Brookline in its final regular season contest on Friday, May 25. The two could conceivably meet again in the opening round of the playoff tourney.

The Tigers have just gotten through the toughest part of the regular season, three league games in one week. By beating Framingham South and Framingham North Newton nailed down a Tourney berth. The loss to Needham did more than determine a League Champion, it showed Newton that in the upcoming Tournament it would have to once again earn the title of State Champion.

Newton's 4-2 victory over Framingham South on Tuesday, May 15 boosted its league record to 4-0, and 6-4 overall. "We got great defense," said Coach DePeter. "They've been carrying us all year." The win assured Newton a place in the Tournament should Framingham South have had the same league record at the end of the season.

Newton met Needham in a battle of two of the strongest teams in the state on Saturday, May 19. Needham led 3-2 going into the final minute of the first half. But a goal with time running out in the half and two early Needham scores in the third quarter tilted the game heavily in Needham's favor. The margin grew to 9-3 in the final period before a Tiger tally made the final score 9-4. Eight minutes in Newton penalties to only four for Needham was a decisive factor in the contest. But the loss could not wholly be attributed to bad calls by the referee.

The Tigers put on one of their most consistent performances of the year against Framingham North on Monday, May 21. A 2-1 first period lead was widened to 7-1 at the final whistle. Jay Tutunjian and Freddy Boudreau scored twice for Newton while Gary Herendeen, Steve Blauer, and Paul Corrigan had single tallies for the victors. The win wrapped up Newton's Southern League season, leaving them with a 5-1 record.

South Lacrosse

No matter how you look at it, last week was not a good week for the Newton South High lacrosse team. And in a season filled with not good weeks, last week rated up there as possibly the worst.

In their previous four games to last week's encounters, the Lions were dismembered by scores of 15-1, 9-1, 8-2, and 14-1, against most of the best public school competition in the state, including Eastern Massachusetts finalists Needham and Newton. So it wasn't just the poor efforts of South's stickmen causing the consecutive wipeouts.

Last week the Lions faced off against Framingham North, a team with, unbelievably, a worse mark than South's own 1-6 at that time.

For two periods it appeared that South had met up with a squad of its own caliber. Jim Paglia and Mike McDonald each tallied a goal to give the Lions a 2-1 halftime lead.

Somewhere between the locker room and the fourth quarter, though, the fact that they were in the lead for the first time since April 16 versus Framingham South did strange things to the Lions' minds. In short order South fell completely apart and surrendered four goals in the third stanza and equalled the feat in the fourth quarter.

The Lions' only second half retaliation was a score by sophomore Bob Lent, and Framingham carted off a 9-3 victory.

Medford is another school in South's competitive range. However, the Lions ran into off-the-field problems last week and coach Tom Steeves suspended most of his upperclassmen for skipping practices. It was only a one-game suspension, but was more than sufficient to give Medford an advantage.

The Lions, playing with many junior varsity performers acquitted themselves surprisingly well, firing 16 shots on the Mustang net. Unfortunately, none of them went in and they lost, 2-0.

Martin Doto notched both Medford goals in the first quarter while most of the South team was getting its bearings under varsity conditions.

With more support in the later stages, South goalie Scott Groper made 12 saves and shutout the Mustangs for the rest of the game. The two first stanza goals held up, though.

The Lions are 1-8 on the year and face LaSalle Academy in their final scheduled game of the season this week. However, rainouts with Brookline and an earlier matchup with LaSalle may also be played. — LEWIS FREEDMAN.

Our Lady's Baseball

Our Lady's of Newton continued to flirt with the .500 mark, but for the third week in a row lost the chance to go over the barrier.

The Lancers crushed St. Mary's of Brookline, 11-2, in their first game of the week to move to 7-7 on the season, but then dropped a hard-fought 4-3 decision to St. Patrick's. Our Lady's is 6-5 in the Catholic Suburban League.

Our Lady's struck three times with big innings to demoralize St. Mary's. The Lancers exploded for four runs in the second inning, three runs in the fourth, and four more in the fifth.

Key men in the periodic assaults were Gary Bearfield, two hits, one run, and three RBI's, Tony Colella, three RBI's, and John Moran, two hits and two RBI's. In addition, Dick Lord tallied three runs.

While the batters were breaking down the fences, Lancer pitcher Rick Paglia was mowing down the enemy batters. Paglia used smart control rather than an overpowering fastball to set down St. Mary's through five shutout innings before allowing two scores in the sixth. Paglia finished with a two-hitter while surrendering just two walks. Lord, Bob Franchi and Colella each contributed singles to the seven-hit attack.

Our Lady's came close to pulling off a big upset against league-leading St. Patrick's. St. Pat's sprang out to a 3-0 first inning lead off Lancer starter Gary Bearfield, but as Bearfield bore down to pitch near-perfect baseball after that, the Lancers slowly chipped at the lead.

Our Lady's scored two runs in the third and added another score in the fifth to knot the game.

But after all the hard work the Lancers, looking to the Red Sox for their inspiration, beat themselves on mistakes in the final inning.

John Phillips reached on an error, went to second on a fielder's choice, to third on another error, and came home with the game winner on a wild pitch.

Bearfield and Moran provided most of the Lancer offense with two hits each and Paglia contributed a single for the only other safety.

Swimming At Y Camp

The Newton YMCA has announced that swimming lessons for boys and girls will be offered at the Y Chickami Recreation Center in Wayland in the Olympic size outdoor pool.

Classes will be held Saturday mornings beginning June 23. "Tiny Tots," ages 3-5, will be in classes from 11:15 to 11:45 a.m.; "Tadpoles," ages 6-7, will have class from 10:30 to 11:45 a.m. and 8 to 12-year-olds will be taught from 9:30 to 10:15 a.m.

Class enrollments are limited. There will be five pupils for each teacher in all classes and eight class sessions. Classes postponed due to inclement weather will be made up at the end of the course.

Registrations can be made at the Newton YMCA.

Lacrosse Action

The Needham High School lacrosse team copped the division championship as they tipped Newton 9-4 last Saturday. In this action are Newton players Alex MacKenzie (19) and Gardiner Olson and in white jersey's are Needham players Pit Martin (64) and Evert Ellison (40) (Gail Blauer Photo)

Needham Wins Title

Needham High School copped the Division title in high school Lacrosse when they defeated Newton 9-4 last Saturday to stretch their record to 9-0. Both Needham and Newton will compete in the state tourney next week. To Manage Waban Chiefs

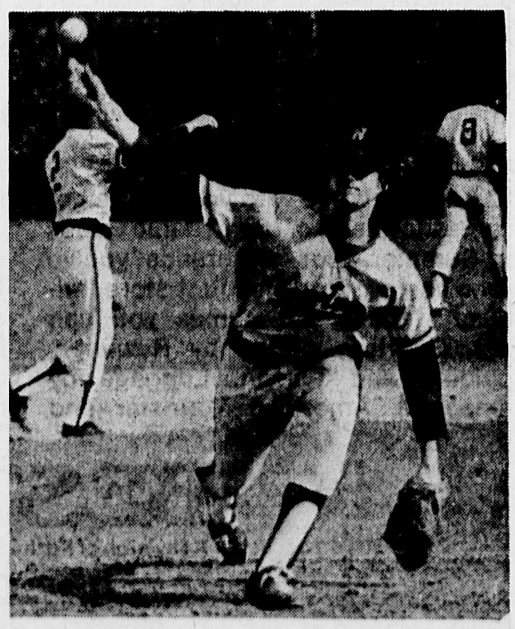
Former Oakland A's AAA pitcher, George DiBenedetto, and Peter Alevizos, Captain and star shortstop of the Noble and Greenough baseball team, have been named to manage the Waban Chiefs baseball team.

The two managers invite all interested players to contact them at 244-8726 or report to the tryouts at Lincoln Playground every Saturday at 10 a.m. until the league season opens in June.

Returning stars of last year's championship finalists Phil Small, Jim Young, Mike Lafferty, Bob Alevizos, Steve DiBenedetto, Carson Milgroom and Doug Moore form the nucleus of the 1973 team.

Al Huberman, after five winning seasons and a championship, had to give up the reins due to the pressure of his insurance company duties.



Tiger Hurler

Song Fest

The last meeting of the season of the sisterhood of Temple Beth Avodah will be held Tuesday (May 29) at 7:30 p.m. Outgoing president, Charlottee Shaer will be honored. Entertainment will be provided by the Troubadours and String Ensemble, under the direction of John Norton, director of music at Warren Junior High School. Guests are invited to attend.

Teachers Observe Colleagues

Taking the initiative in the professional development of teachers, the Newton Teachers Association (NTA) has evolved a plan whereby Newton teachers will be able to visit their colleagues in action.

Aided by, and co - administered with the administration of the Newton Public Schools, the NTA Visitation Day provides for the closing of the elementary, junior high, and senior high schools on May 14, 16 and 21 respectively in order that teachers at one grade level may visit Newton schools at the other two grade levels.

NTA President - Elect David Gelkie explains that objectives of the process for teachers include: observing the learning process at other age levels, sampling the learning climate at other grade levels; bettering teacher's sense of perspective by seeing what experiences their students will have or have had; and understanding the profession as a whole.

On his, or her, Visitation Day, a typical Newton teacher will be assigned to visit a Newton school at one grade level during the morning, and one at the other grade level in the afternoon. So that on May 14, for example, when the elementary schools are closed, an elementary teacher might visit one of the junior highs in the morning and one of the senior highs in the afternoon. Teachers were given a chance to indicate their preferences for schools to visit, then were advised of their assignments by the NTA.

Rudy Satlak, chairman of the NTA Professional Development Committee, indicates that NTA faculty representatives and school administrators will act as hosts and coordinators of the program in each school.

In a letter to school administrators, in which he noted School Committee approval, and strongly urged administrative cooperation, Superintendent Aaron Fink praised the NTA initiative.

Stamps Earn Half B.V.I.'s Income

By RENEE MASON

ROAD TOWN, Tortola, British Virgin Islands (UPI) — Only in the Caribbean could it happen: A pretty little blue and green stamp featuring a drawing of the Spanish boat, Santa Maria, of Italian Christopher Columbus, with a reproduction of the head of the British Queen, Elizabeth II, in the corner, and carrying the value: "1 cent (U.S. currency)."

This recently issued British Virgin Islands stamp epitomizes the combination, sometimes confusion, of cultures that makes up the modern Caribbean.

And it is this combination, plus some careful controls, that have made B.V.I. stamps the earner of half the territory's income. The other half, $300,000 a year, is earned by tourism.

The Santa Maria, of course, was the beginning of it all and is often honored on Caribbean stamp issues. The qeen is the head of the modern B.V.I. government, and the official currency, since the mid 1960s, has been American. That's because almost all business of the British Virgins is done in the U.S. Virgin Islands, less than a mile away at the nearest point.

Slightly More Autonomy

A group of 16 inhabited islands and another 60 uninhabited islands, with a population of about 9,000, the British Virgin Islands are just a step beyond the colony status, having slightly more local autonomy than they did as a Crown Colony a few years ago.

The nearness of the U.S. Virgin Islands, an economic giant by comparison, has kept the British Virgins out of the mainstream of the British-oriented Commonwealth Caribbean, and much more closely tied emotionally as well as economically to the United States.

It seemed quite reasonable, then, that the government recently issued a set of fi stamps commemorating pron
nent Quakers, one of whom w
William Penn, who nev ventured anywhere near t islands. But Penn, reasoned t authorities, brought the Quakers to Pennsylvania and from Pennsylvania a Quaker mission was sent to the British Virgin Islands. So Penn got the place to honor on the $1 U.S. currency—stamp of the issue.

Use Crown Agents

B.V.I. authorities use the Crown Agents of London to help them plan their stamp issues so that quality will remain high and there will be no glut on the market. The result has been that the little territory ranks seventh in sales among the agents around the world of the Crown Agents Stamp Bureau.

Plans are under way to improve the sales operation by setting up a Philatelic Bureau in Tortola.

Another new idea, to be inaugurated in June, according to the territory's financial secretary, Cyril Romney, is to couple a stamp issue with a commemorative coin issue. Stamps and coins will carry pictures of local birds. It will be the first time the British Virgins have entered the numismatic business.

ONCE BANNED

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Eric Remarque's classic antiwar novel, "All Quiet on the Western Front," was banned in Germany until the 1960s.

THAT'S A NO NO!

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — The first of two Academy Award "Oscars" won by Spencer Tracy was mistakenly inscribed to "Dick Tracy" in 1937.

V. A. Newsletter

College graduates have an average lifetime income that is $237,000 more than persons with only a high school diploma — $608,000 compared to $371,000.

The earning averages from Department of Labor studies were pointed out by Administrator of Veterans Affairs Donald E. Johnson in urging the use of G. I. Bill training by Vietnam veterans.

bound single veterans receive $220 a month for full time training, up to a maximum of 36 months of school attendance, or a total of $7,920. The monthly allowance is increased for veterans with dependents.

The G. I. Bill has other features. Veterans enrolled in high school studies also receive monthly allowances without a charge against basic eligibility, so that full G. I. Bill entitlement is retained for college attendance.

Those veterans in college on a half-time or more basis can now be tutored. Under the G. I. Bill, VA will pay veterans up to $50 a month for a maximum of $450 for tutorial assistance. Again, there is no charge against the veterans basic entitlement, Johnson pointed out.

Details are available at any VA office, or from the various veterans service organizations.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Veterans and their families are asking thousnads of questions concerning the benefits their Government provides for them through the Veterans Administration. Below are some representative queries. Additional information may be obtained at any VA office.

Q — My daughter draws a VA pension based on her veteran father's death. If she works during the summer, will her earnings affect her pension?

A — No. Under current pension law, earned income of a child is not countable in determining pension entitlement.

Q — I keep reading and hearing that World War II veterans received full tuition and $75 a month. This true?

A — World War II veterans received up to $500 for tuition, books and supplies for a full school year. All above that they had to pay themselves. The single full time veteran student did receive $75 per month, but he was restricted to a maximum wage earnings of $210ia month, including the $75 G. I. Bill entitlement.

Q — Is it true that VA is planning to close some of its hospitals?

A — VA has no plans to close any of its hospitals. In fact, several new ones were opened last year and more are under construction this year.

Local Girl Delegate At 4-H Conference

Sharon D. Turpin of 35 O'Rourke path returned this week from Washington, D. C., where she attended the 43rd Annual Conference for 4-H clubs.

Sharon was one of six delegates from Massachusetts who joined nearly 300 members from 50 states, District of Columbia, Puerto Rico, Virgin Islands, and Canada, to help plan 4-H programs for the future.

During the week there were 16 different advisory groups where delegates had the opportunity to present their ideas about new dimensions of the 4-H program. They made recommendations of ways to reach even more youth with widely diverse projects appropriate for the farm, city and suburbs.

Sharon, 16, was a member of the advisory group "Business, What Makes It Tick."

This was not one of her choices, but after her first meeting she was glad to be a part of it, she said. They discussed ways of bringing business and economics into 4-H in the future. They planned junior projects for kids, 9 to 12 years. The projects would be basic and simple, more advanced projects for older kids, for example: "General Awareness," "Plan Your Own Business," "Build Your Own Business," and "Own Your Own Business," these phases would extend for one or two years.

These business and economics courses would be taught in the cities and on the farm. Another idea presented by Sharon was to exchange, allowing city 4-Hers to experience farm 4-H groups and allow farm 4-Hers to experience city 4-H groups. Sharon learned quite a bit from this group and along with others, she thought it was most successful.

SHARON TURPIN

Sharon felt that the most exciting and educational part of the conference was "meeting and working with people from across the country."

The highlights of the week included special visits and tours. The delegation visited Capitol Hill where they were admitted to the floor of the House of Representatives to hear 4-H alumnus House Speaker Carl Albert welcome them to Congress. Their visits with Congress were exceptionally nice, Sharon said. The Massachusetts delegation met with Senator Ted Kennedy, Congressman Drinan, Congressman Donahue and Congressman Conte.

"They enjoyed meeting us and we felt honored to talk and take pictures with them," Sharon commented.

They visited the U. S. Dept. of Agriculture which was the official opening assembly of the National 4-H Conference. Another 4-H member addressed the delegates, Secretary of Agriculture, Earl Butz, then the delegation took a special tour of the White House.

The National 4-H Center has recently been expanded with the help of the 4-H members throughout the country. This year Massachusetts donated over $2,000 to the center expansion.

The annual 4-H Conference was planned and conducted by the extension service of the U. S. Dept. of Agriculture and National 4-H Foundation. The adults who accompanied the local delegation were, Ms. Viriginia C. Ouellete, State 4-H Leader and Home Economist, and Joe Cohane.

Sharon has been a member of 4-H for two years and is especially interested in, home economics, social work and theater arts. 4-H has helped her in all of these fields and she is planning to continue her work in 4-H, helping others as well as herself.

More information on 4-H can be obtained from her county extension agent, Ms. Ann Larkins: 95 Morton Village drive, Apt. 312, Mattapan, Mass. 02126.

Sealer of Weights and Measures Retiring After 36 Years in City

Newton Sealer of Weights and Measures J. Ellis Bowen retired after 36 years last week.

Bowen joined the official Newton staff in 1936 as an assistant to the city clerk. He was appointed to his present position in 1949.

Bowen is a member of the Massachusetts and Federal Bars, is a past president of the Massachusetts Weights and Measures Association and for five years was editor and publisher of the association's newsletter. He is a past chairman of the City of Newton Department Heads Association.

In 1963, as chairman of the National Conference on Weights and Measures Committee on Education Bowen instigated and promoted a home study self - education course for weights and measurers officials which was utilized by 826 weights and measurers officers over an area of 72 per cent of our 50 states and comprising approximately 25 per cent of such officers throughout the country. As such chairman he also nationally directed National Weights and Measurers Week.

In 1967, he was unanimously elected chairman of the National Conference on Weights and Measurers which is sponsored by the National Bureau of Standards.

Bowen has personally appeared presenting addresses relating to weights and measurers administration to many schools and civic organizations, and to professional weights and measurers associations on the entire eastern seaboard and as far west as Indiana. He has been prolific in writings in weights and measurers professional journals nationwide.

In recognition of his service as a weights and measurers law enforcement officer Sealer Bowen has received from other jurisdictions: A commendation from the International Bureau of Weights and Measurers in France, several commendations from colleagues in England, four citations from the National Conference on Weights and Measures.

He has been awarded Honorary memberships in the Indiana Weights and Measures Association, the Southern Weights and Measures Association consisting of 17 states and the District of Columbia, and the Massachusetts Chiefs of Police Association. The governor of West Virginia commissioned Sealer Bowen a general in the governor's Progress Corps.

Support Spaulding and Slye

Association members eventually voted, 50-0, to support the design submitted by Spaulding and Slye and then turned their attention to the most effective means available for making their voice heard in the authority's selection process.

Budge told them he would immediately forward a letter to Mayor Theodore D. Mann and the authority containing the desires of the community. Association members were urged to do the same.

Mrs. Mildred Colontuono of Moulton street rose to explain she had already talked with the mayor and was told "nothing can be done — the authority is autonomous."

Clarey again appeared before his neighbors and stated he did not believe this was true. "Political pressure can be brought to bear through the mayor, especially on those members, like me, appointed by him."

Mrs. Colontuono recommended a concerted effort to block the reappointment of Davidson whose nomination is currently pending confirmation before the Board of Aldermen.

"We can all certainly contact individual aldermen and let them know we no longer want that man as a member of the Redevelopment Authority," she said.

Joel Layton, chairman of the Lower Falls Project Area Committee, also told the neighbors present his group was supporting Spaulding and Slye and would stand together with the Improvement Association at the June 7 meeting of the Redevelopment Authority.

Library Features Student Art

"Pottery, Plaques and Prints," an exciting exhibit by creative sixth grade students at the Ward School in Newton, can be seen at the Main Library, 414 Centre St., Newton Corner, now through the end of May.

The art, an integral part of a history unit on ancient civilizations, was coordinated by Mrs. Jean Graves, history teacher; Miss Mary Baker, art supervisor and Joseph Gattuso, Ward School principal.

Imaginative and colorful scenes from the everyday life of pre-historic man decorate every exhibit board and glass case in the main circulation area of the Library.

The artistic sixth grade students used many media including papier mache, linoleum block prints, macrame, craypas, crayons, magic marker, watercolor and clay to depict scenes from man's earliest appearance on earth to the beginning of the period when his organized villages took the first steps towards civilization.

The linoleum block prints and the magic marker and water color printings are particularly vibrant. The sophisticated ability to demonstrate action and feeling is evident in the students works. The primitive style of the block prints and the exciting and innovative use of line, color and pattern in the magic marker and watercolor paintings appeal particularly to this viewer.

The pottery, shaped and decorated as some pots have always been, was made to resemble pots found in the desert beside the Nile, early in Egyptian history.

The students also used clay to make plaques of such Egyptian activities as hunting, partying, painting coffins, sailing, record-keeping and girls dancing.

The craypas and crayon scenes of people using fire, cooking, hunting and building represent some of the stages of man's development from the early stone period to the late neolithic.

Some of the students did macrame and used contemporary beads and bangles to create Egyptian-style jewelry.

Papier mache was used primarily to create prehistoric animals living along the Nile. The animals, such as Sevek, the crocodile, a favored god in the marshes, and later of lower Egypt, and Buto, the cobra, the personification of the sun's burning heat, represented the gods and personified the particular beliefs of the villagers.

Centuries after the Christian era when ancient Egypt had long lost its power, some gods were still pictured as a complete animal, while others had animal heads.

"Pottery, Plaques and Prints," an artistic and educational exhibit not to be missed, is on view through the end of month.

Library hours are 9 a.m.-9 p.m. Monday through Friday, 9 a.m.-5:30 p.m., Saturday and 1 p.m.-4 p.m. Sunday. Beginning June 2 the library goes on a summer schedule which means the Main Library and all Branches will be closed Saturday and Sunday.

Campus Notes

Robert C. Hahn, 60 Hartman Rd., Newton Center, graduated from Utica College, Utica, N.Y., during commencement ceremonies held Sunday, May 13, which featured Rod Serling as main speaker. Hahn, one of 450 graduates, received a bachelor of arts degree majoring in philosophy.

Three Newton residents were recently honored for their years of service to Wellesley College at a reception and dinner hosted by Wellesley College President Barbara W. Newell in Tower Court on the campus.

Dr. Jeanette H. Corwin, associate consulting phychiatrist in the college's health services, was honored for ten years service.

Miss Patricia E. Kearney, dormitory matron, and Mrs. Lois F. Spooner, kitchen worker, were each honored for five years service to the college.

Campus Notes

Lenore Borowsky, of Waban, has been named to the George Washington University chapter of Mortar Board, the national honorary society for senior year college women. She is the daughter of Mrs. Rose Borowsky, 131 Annawan Rd., Waban.

Miss Borowsky, who will be a senior this fall at GWU's Columbian College of Arts and Sciences, is one of 13 women formally initiated into Mortor Board at a banquet Apr. 25. She will serve as this year's Mortar Board election committee chairwoman.

Members of Mortar Board are nominated by the university community faculty, staff, and students. Final selection is made by Mortar Board's election committee, based on "scholarship, leadership, and service to the university." Members must have an academic average of at least 3.0 (B) on a four-point grading system.

Dudman In Charge

Favoring rejection were Richard Bullwinkle, Thomas Concannon, Peter Harrington, Matthew Jefferson, Andrew Magni, and Richard McGrath.

Dudman commented Tuesday, after his appointment had been made certain, "It is my intention, seeing the enormity of the task that exists in terms of developing an organization, to stay on at least through the completion of the task (of reorganizing the Public Works Department), which may well be more than two years.

"Now that we're past the machinations of appointment, perhaps we can settle down to the development of the proper management tools and procedures for better efficiency in Public Works.

"I think the one thing that has been lost sight of in the past 5 months is the fact that before you change things you have to have a good enough understanding of its weaknesses. To just start making change doesn't solve anything."

This incredible test will individually check front left and right brakes, as well as rear left and right brakes. This test may show that just a minor adjustment has to be made that can keep you driving safely. These 2 tests are the most important functions on a car since they determine stopping and steering performance. The next step would be a 30-step electronic tune-up check and calibrated basic timing check.

Following is a 40-step electronic analysis on our Marquette M-215 Solid State analyzer which electronically road tests the engine and is automatically self calibrating to double check our diagnostic car check. Neighborhood Opposes Lasell Expansion

By LEN BATEMAN

Lasell Junior College has run into a phalanx of opposed Auburndale neighbors in its efforts to construct a student union building on Maple Street.

Banding together into the Lasell Neighborhood Association, a total of 137 residents of the areas abutting Lasell properties have filed an environmental impact complaint with the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

The college had applied for federal funding under a provision in which the government will underwrite the cost of building structures designed to aid the commuter student.

Association members have been working behind the scenes for several weeks to gather expert opinion and documentation for their stand against construction of the building.

According to several association spokesmen, including James Broderick, Edmund Parker and Gail Densler, neighbors first became alarmed with the college's intentions when development plans were released to the press and potential contributors

College President Kenneth Greene, a former resident of the area, insists that the school intended to notify the community of its plans but a mixup in the development office lead to a premature release which precluded notifying neighbors.

Association members insist the college did not intend on genuinely discussing the matter with them and point out they had to delve into HUD files to find design proposals.

"That really alarmed us," stated Broderick, "Because they told us the college had not as yet made up its mind on a specific site or building plan."

The presence of surveyors on the site was another tipoff to the now irate neighbors and the filing of the complaint to HUD has effectively stopped construction, at least for the time being

In that complaint the association stated the new building "will adversely affect the natural environment in grievous ways" if constructed.

Gail Densler indicated the newly formed group had conferred with several environmentalists and was told construction of the building on the Maple Street site would dangerously alter the water table in an area already selected by the city as "flood prone."

The neighborhood association also complained to HUD that the "physical and social character" of the neighborhood would also be destroyed.

The community is composed mostly of late nineteenth century homes and as Mrs. Densler pointed out "the brochure for prospective candidates to Lasell boasts of our New England village atosphere."

"They will destroy that atmosphere completely if they erect a massive, modern building," she added.

The neighbors are also concerned with increased traffic in the area.

"Lasell's application to HUD indicated the building would be used as a center for commuter activities," Mrs. Densler stated.

"Right now the college has about 90 commuters, and if they are plannning to put up a large building, it must mean they intend to increase that number thereby bringing more cars into the neighborhood," she added.

The heaviest salvos from the neighborhood came when it was learned Lasell had applied for a beer and wine license for a student pub located in the new building.

That application was subsequently withdrawn by the college administration as "premature," but the association remains wary.

"Most of us have lived here several years without once complaining of the noise which is a standard feature of the dormitories around us. Now we face the prospect of Saturday night beer fests," Mrs. Densler said.

Broderick emphasized the Lasell Neighborhood Association was not opposed to the principle of a student union building, but only to the site apparently selected by the college.

He and other members of the association checked the 1972 property tax rate rolls for Newton and ascertained that Lasell owns approximately 62 acres of land in the Village of Auburndale.

"We have not yet received a firm statement from the college indicating their intentions as far as another site is concerned, though," Broderick said.

They would only say they preferred the Maple Street site," he added, referring to the discussions in the last of two meetings his group has had with college officials.

"Our main interest," Broderick continued, "is to get the community involved in long range building plans of the college."

In line with that objective, the association has proposed to the college administration that a seat be created on the institution's board of trustees for a community representative.

"We didn't get too many affirmative votes on that suggestion when we submitted it to college officials," Broderick said, but he did indicate his group was in receipt of a copy of a letter sent to the college by Ward 4 Alderman Richard J. McGrath which supported that proposal.

Alderman McGrath also indicated his support for a college to establish a committee composed of representatives from the school, the community and the city to discuss planning.

Actually Broderick has had extensive experience in town-gov. relationships and is currently serving on a University of Massachusetts - Boston faculty committee working with Dorchester residents on a workable plan for community involvement in the school's development.

"The suggestion for a neighborhood seat on the Lasell Board of Trustees came from the UMass - Dorchester deliberations," he stated.

"That seat is the best way to insure the neighborhood does know what is going on and can do something about it," Broderick concluded.

According to neighborhood spokesmen the only definite facts told them by President Greene is that they will be notified before bulldozers are to arrive at the embattled site on Maple St. and a beer and wine license will not be sought "during the summer."

In the meantime, the association is planning to conduct a tour of the area with HUD officials to point out other more suitable sites.

Bay Path Council Taking Summer Camp Registrations

Summer camp applications are now being accepted from all girls interested in attending camps operated by the Bay Path Colonial Girl Scout Council.

Day camp for this area is Mary Day in Weston.

Wabasso, the resident camp for older girls is in Bradford, N.H., and younger girls attend Camp Virginia in Bolton.

A Girl Scout Day Camp is a special outdoor site where girls from 7 to 17 can enjoy camp activities by day and return to the comforts of home at night. Brownie program for the 7-8 year-olds includes songs and games, swimming, nature hunts, folk dances and hand crafts. Once per session they will cook their lunch under the careful supervision of unit leaders and experienced program aides.

Junior Scouts (age 9-12) use their time at Day Camp to practice their outdoor skills, improve their swimming and work on nature badges. They do things which are not easily done in troop program during the winter The Kaper Chart gives everyone a turn at different housekeeping chores necessary to keep the site neat, attractive and safe.

Day Camp tests the ability of junior high age cadettes to plan and work together. Opportunity is provided to improve their skills in fire building, outdoor cooking and tent pitching; to go on overnight trips.

Senior Scouts of high school age serve as program aides, assisting the adult staff by sharing their skills and enthusiasm. It may be a worthwhile introduction for those who wish to pursue the counselor-in-training program.

Girls are transported to and from camp by special buses which pick up at convenient locations so that campers arrive by 9:30 a.m. and leave at 3:30 p.m. Low fees are possible because staff are adult volunteers, generally Girl Scout troop leaders, mothers and graduate Senior Scouts, who are willing to provide this summer experience for girls. Fathers and older brothers help put up the tents and waterfront equipment.

More detailed information on all camps is available at Bay Path Colonial Girl scout Office in Newton, telephone 969-8800.

Backyard Frontier

By POLLY BRADLEY
(Mass. Audubon Society)

A major victory over the destructive power of the automobile has been won by the ancient English towns of Windsor and Eton — a victory which began quite accidentally.

It seems that two years ago the cast ironwork of the bridge linking Windsor and Eton across the Thames River cracked, and the bridge had to be closed. Pedestrians and bicyclists could still cross, but the bridge was unsafe for trucks, cars, taxis, buses, or anything else with four wheels.

A public inquiry into the problem was held. The bridge could not be repaired. After much discussion and deliberation, it was finally decided simply to keep the old bridge and not build a replacement.

There is no longer a direct motor route from Windsor to Eton.

Patrick Ramsey, chairman of the Windsor and Eton Society, wrote in a recent letter to the London Times, "It is not overstating the case to say that as a result both towns have been saved. Vast schemes for roundabouts, or a 'circulatory system,' have been dropped. the planned destruction of many old buildings (in a perfect state of repair) has been abandoned, and pedestrians can once again walk about with pleasure. The prophecies of commercial disaster have not been fulfilled nor the dire warnings of traffic chaos at other Thames bridges."

Now visitors can look out from the rugged battlements of Windsor Castle, across the Thames to Eton's playing fields and its towers, spires, and turrets looking like a scene from a medieval romance, knowing that the two beautiful towns will not be destroyed by "progress."

The first king recorded as living in the Windsor area was Edward the Confessor. The Castle was begun by William the Conqueror, and down through the centuries it was added to, changes, improved, and lived in by English monarchs. It is a favorite weekend retreat of Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip.

Would Americans have the courage to make a decision so far removed from the "spirit of the highwaymen"? Many a beautiful and historic town in New England, though founded only yesterday in the time scale of Windsor and Eton, could benefit from the example of these famous towns in old England.

Nature's Ways

By WAYNE HANLEY
(Mass. Audubon Society)

The same thing that has happened to too many of us has happened to the myrtle warbler.

While he-she was away on a winter vacation they abolished the warbler's job and gave the poor bird a new title

So the bird that went south last fall as the myrtle warbler has begun trickling back north as the yellow-rumped warbler.

In this case, the "They" who ruined the warbler's seniority and job stability was the American Ornithologists' Union.

To the stay-at-home birder, shaking up the scientific classification of the myrtle warbler means very little. One need only remember that the myrtle warbler now is the yellow-rumped warbler and one's life list (the number of birds seen in a lifetime) remains the same.

But for those who have birded in both the east and west, a bit of bookkeeping is in order. We suffer the crushing blow of prying one number from the life list. For the A. O. U. name change was made so that what have been myrtle warblers and Audubon's warblers now can be recognized as the same species of bird.

For several years, many birders have suspected that the myrtle and Audubon's warbler had too much in common to be more distantly related than first cousins. The main difference between the two birds is that the myrtle warbler has a white throat and Audubon's has a yellow throat.

Perhaps the most unusual aspect of the A. O. U. decision was the new name: yellow-rumped warbler. As long as birders have been keeping track of birds, the advice always had been to look for the yellow rump when trying to determine whether a warbler may be a myrtle. Which meant one had two things to remember: yellow rump and myrtle. Now one may combine the two, provided they use discretion about the amount and location of yellow on a warbler.

There were several other victories for lumpers among A. O. U. decisions. Lumpers are those who would toss similar birds into the same species. For instance, the familiar Baltimore oriole now becomes the northern oriole, a name that covers what has been the Baltimore and Bullock's oriole. The Bullock's has been a western form of the Baltimore. It is distinct enough that birders have been able to tab those few Bullock's which sometimes wander in the wrong direction and spend the winter in New England rather than Mexico.

Ironically, two birds which are identical in appearance were split into two different species. For several years, field birders have noted that among Traill's flycatchers there are males which sing a "fitz-bew" song and others that sing a "fee-bee-o" song. The former Traill's flycatcher which sings "fitz-bew" now becomes the willow flycatcher. The one that sings "fee-bee-o" now is the alder flycatcher.

In the course of all this shifting around, of course, the birds have not changed at all. The only factor that has changed is man's way of looking at the birds.

NO. 1 CAUSE

DALLAS (UPI) — Diabetes has replaced glaucoma as the No. 1 cause of blindness in the United States, a University of Texas Southwestern Medical School professor says.

"Blindness from diabetes is definitely on the increase simply because medicine is now able to keep the diabetic alive and functioning quite normally," said Dr. John R. Lynn, a professor of opthalmology. "Years ago before it was learned how to control the disease these people would have died at an earlier age."

The Great Salt Lake is 4,200 feet above sea level.

The Health Food Boom

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The clientele—and the prospects—of the health food industry have changed dramatically in recent years, according to the biggest bank in the United States.

Once considered an insignificant adjunct of the grocery business, the nation's 3,000 health food stores sold an estimated $400 million worth of "organic" and "natural" foods and other products in 1972.

"Largely ignored by the general populace, forerunners of today's nutrition centers were frequented by aging arthritics, would-be Tarzans and all manner of food faddists," the Bank of America said in a recent report on the status of health food stores.

"But no longer can health food purchasers be summarily dismissed as 'hypochondriac health nuts seeking the proverbial fountain of youth,'" the report said.

Everyone Sampling

"Today, anyone and everyone —from counterculture youths to young matrons and corporate executives—can be found sampling and serving delicacies typically carried by health food stores. And every day new converts join the fold."

They are converted by heightened public concern over chemical additives and pesticide residues, mercury and botulism poisoning incidents and critical reports on conventional food processing methods.

The result has been a boom in recent years and projections of faster growth in the future.

"But most observers, hesitant about predicting unchecked industry growth, are adopting a let's wait and see attitude until clear and convincing trends emerge," the bank said.

Possible problems include increased competition, soaring retail prices, rampant abuse of health food terminology and impending labeling and advertising regulations.

Will Attract Competitors

"If consumer demand for natural and organic food continues apace, the field will attract aggressive competitors such as supermarkets, drugstores, discount and department stores," the report says.

"Another irritant to the industry is the rampant abuse of terminology. Unofficially defined, the terms 'organic,' 'natural' and 'health foods' have been subject to misinterpretation and misuse."

The bank warned that continuing scandals over unethical practices threaten the entire industry, which has few self-imposed standards.

"Recent converts, persuaded by a damning press that they are being hoodwinked, might abandon the quest for 'better' products altogether," the report said.

The main hope of the small health store owner of surviving in an unsettled market will be the loyalty of satisfied customers built up by high-quality goods and personalized service. The report, which discusses at length the requirements for opening a health food store, is available through the Bank of America in San Francisco.

Boating . . .

Tips For A Camera Aboard

By JACK WOLISTON

NEW YORK (UPI) — Most of the nation's pleasure craft forced onto dry land by winter's chills are out of their cocoons now, many already in the water.

The gritty sound of sandpaper and the smell of paint are heavy on the spring air. The weekend boater shows up for his regular Monday job with a tinge of linament mixed with his shaving lotion.

Ahead is a beautiful boating season, and one way to keep it from becoming just a blurred memory is to record it on film from start to finish.

Get out the camera and start with those fitting-out chores, then the launch—and from there on the possibilities are unlimited.

Still pictures or movies?

Can Do a Good Job

Many persons prefer movies but boating is one place where still pictures or color slides, especially when taken in sequence, can do almost as good a job of picturing action as movies, simply because boating action is rarely continuous.

An adjustable camera that can be set for action-stopping fast shutter speeds is an asset. Stopping the action overcomes —at least partially—one of the difficulties of boating photography, camera movement resulting from the pitch and roll of the boat.

One important thing to remember: Water reflects and intensifies sunlight, causing over-exposure unless precautions are taken.

More expensive cameras are designed to set the correct lens opening automatically. Without this type of camera, a light meter to measure the intensity of the sunlight is a big help.

Lens filters are also inexpensive aids. They filter out certain light rays and improve the contrast and sharpness of photos. They aren't always necessary for color photography, but help considerably with black and white pictures.

Few real boating enthusiasts have any difficulty in thinking of things to picture—everything's exciting to them. Scenes like:

Some Suggestions

—Shoving off from the dock (a good opener for a sequence).

—A girl's hair streaming back as she revels in the breeze at the bow.

—The skier behind the boat, perhaps silhouetted by shooting toward the sun.

—Cocktail parties aboard (start with preparations, then follow with the arrival of the first guests).

—Nature shots such as seaweed, barnacles, clams, jellyfish, lobster beds, etc. (A polarizing filter helps here, since these shots are made mostly directly into the water.)

—Sailboat racing. (A telephoto lens helps here. Also, get shots of the starting line, course, and finishing point before the race begins.

And in a more practical sense, here are a couple of more reasons for keeping a camera in your boating picture:

—The Internal Revenue Service accepts photographic evidence to substantiate losses due to fire, theft, hurricane, etc. It also allows a reasonable cost of taking these supporting photographs as part of a justifiable claim.

—Pictures of the boat and such valuable equipment as compass, radio, depth finder, etc., help authorities track them down through pawn shops, second hand dealers and fences, if they are stolen.

Art Theft By Commission

By BARRY JAMES

ROME (UPI) — The theft of a painting by German master Lucas Cranach illustrates once again the defenselessness of Italy's immense art heritage.

Thieves took the "Madonna with Child and St. John" by Cranach and eight lesser works by other artists from the picture gallery of a monastery near Florence.

Since all the stolen works were from the 16th century and the thieves ignored valuable pictures of other periods, police theorize the paintings were stolen on commission by a dealer or private collector.

There was neither guard nor alarm system to protect the paintings when the thieves, using a ladder, broke in during the night. The theft was discovered in the morning by a cleaner.

As has been proved time and time again, stealing from an Italian church is child's play. And the pickings frequently are beyond price.

The art works and archeological treasures in the care of the state are not much better protected.

Amount is Small

According to the Milan newspaper Corriere della Sera, the Italian government spends only 40 billion lire ($70 million) —about the cost of 18 miles of superhighway—for the upkeep, protection and restoration of 30,000 churches, 20,000 castles, 712 museums, 3,000 archeological areas and tens of thousands of monuments.

The figure amounts to only 1.5 per cent of the total budget of the Education Ministry, which is in charge of the national art heritage, and compares unfavorably with the 500 billion lire ($850 million) recently voted for the improvement of freeways.

A government report issued several years ago said Italy needed to spend a yearly $500 million for 10 years to put its artistic house in order. But even if the government were willing to spend such sums of money, which seems unlikely, it would be hard put to find enough skilled restorers and other experts.

The state now employs fewer specialists than do some foreign museums. For example, it has only 284 scientific and technical specialists, the same as in 1909.

The province of Rome has one inspector and three guards to look after thousands of acres rich with Etruscan archeological sites which are, as a result, an easy prey for night robbers.

It is small wonder that the Doria Pamphilj Park here was stripped of most of its ancient statuary within a week or two of being opened to the public or that half the museum space in Rome is closed for lack of guards.

25,00 Works Stolen

Authorities reckon that 25,000 works of art have been stolen in the last 15 years, many of them spirited out of the country.

In order to be able to better trace stolen works, the government now plans to set up a catalogue of art and archaeological treasures, with photographs. This in itself is a major undertaking, since the state is responsible for some 80,000 major works and many times that number of lesser pieces.

The church has already begun a cataloging system of its own, designed to mesh with that of the state.

Presenting

You Too Can Buy A Tree

Mrs. Edmund Payne, Jr., chairman of the Centennial Beautification Committee today announced that a public meeting has been scheduled in the Executive Suite, Newton City Hall, Thursday, May 24 at 8 p.m. where citizens may view the Commonwealth Avenue Arboretum Master Plan.

A color slide presentation will be made featuring views of the variety of trees to be planted on the Commonwealth Avenue median strip.

Citizens may purchase trees to be planted in their own names, in memory or in honor of a beloved individual, or in recognition of some family event such as birthday, anniversary christening, bar mitzvah, wedding or graduation. Trees may be purchased by individuals, business firms or organizations. Cost of trees varies from $250 to $1000, depending on size and variety.

The names of all citizens or groups who purchase trees for the Commonwealth Avenue Arboretum will be inscribed on a scroll to be placed in the Centennial Time Capsule, which will be buried at the end of the 100th Anniversary observance and opened in 2073.

Donations may be made in any amount to the Arboretum Fund and are tax deductible. Monies from the fund will be utilized periodically to purchase and maintain the tree plantings.

A copy of the Master Plan will be displayed in City Hall throughout the Centennial celebration.

Buses leave the Jackson Homestead twice daily on Tuesdays, Fridays and Saturdays on the Centennial bus tour of historical sites in Newton. Sponsored by the Centennial Sites Committee, headed by John P. Nixon, assisted by Mrs. E. Graham Bates, the tour includes more than 40 points of historical interest. Those wishing to reserve a place on the bus are invited to call the Jackson Homestead at 332-3920. Tours continue through June 2.

Grapes-

The United Farm Workers need your help more than ever before. Four thousand workers are threatened with the loss of all protections given them by UFW contracts. Please write immediately to Frank Fitzsimmons, President, International Brotherhood of Teamsters, 25 Louisiana Ave., N.W. Washington, D. C. 20001, protesting sweetheart contracts with the grape growers against the wishes of the workers.

The grapes are expected to arrive in a few weeks. Presently only two lettuce and grape growers still have contracts with the United Farm Workers. Therefore, the UFW asks you not to buy California table grapes or iceberg (head) lettuce unless you see the UFW Aztec Eagle seal on their crates.

For more information, contact the Newton Committee for Farm Workers, 527-2235.

Party Promises Everyone Something

Clowns, puppet shows, Indian dances, barber shop singing, Gospel music and an orchestra performance.

Once again the Newton Centennial offers a gala "something for everyone" event with the Sunday, May 27, Homecoming Garden Party at the Marriott Motor Hotel, sponsored by the community's service clubs.

There will be free ballons for the children and refreshment stands with old time prices dispensing hot dogs, peanuts, popcorn, ice cream and soda pop, as the committee recreates the good old days at Norumbega Park.

Huge murals, painted by Newton artists on easels erected by Newton vocational high school classes, will decorate the outdoor area at the lagoon behind the Marriott Hotel. Ticket prices for the day are $5 and $2.50 for adults. Children under 12 will be admitted free.

Gus Saunders, Newton's own popular radio personality, will be master of ceremonies for the entertainment program which will feature Willie the Whistle, the Channel 38 television clown the Eleanor Boylan puppeteers with the All Newton Music School and the Night Hawk Indian Dancers from Explorer Post 506. Adults will enjoy music of the Baron Hugo orchestra, which was a Norumbega Park favorite for romance in yesteryear, the championship Tri-City Chorus in a medley of Barbershop Quartet presentations and the New World Gospel Singers who earned a standing ovation for their program at the Centennial Music Spectacular last week.

There will be just a slight pause in the festivities when the community gathers under the big tent on the Marriott lawn to honor present and former Newtonians with the presentation of special centennial keys to the city by Mayor Theodore D. Mann.

Invited guests include Tammy Grimes, David Susskind, Jane Morgan, former Senator Leverett Saltonstall, Congressman Robert Drinan, Joe Cronin, Big Brother Bob Emery, Jack Sharkey, Tenley Albright, Fabian and Bradford Bachrach, Boston Patriots Stadium head Phil D. Fine, former Governor Foster Furcolo and many others. Also among the honored guests will be Mrs. Roy Gill, widow of the honored guests will be Mrs. Roy Gill, widow of the former owner and operator of Norumbega Park, who for many years was a ticket taker for the famed Totem Pole Ballroom.

Committee officials also announced this week that another popular Norumbega Park feature has been brought back for the Garden Party program. Celebrants will have the opportunity to rent canoes and enjoy the entertainment program from the lagoon.

Kids To Have A Field Day

The Newton Youth Commission for the Newton Centennial will present an afternoon of fun and games for all Newton youngsters on June 20.

Billed as a "Field Day Fantastic," the event will be held at the Albemarle Playground in West Newton from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m.

According to Newton Youth Advisory Board member and program coordinator Bob Lushan, the Field Day was a late entry into the City's birthday party.

"The commission did a great job bringing The Beach Boys to the older kids," he said, "but there were no events planned for Newton's elementary school aged children. By having an all City Field Day we are giving them the chance to participate in the Centennial celebration too."

Some of the activities planned, said Lushan, include a magic show, a demonstration by the Newton Police dog, numerous games, and continous entertainment.

In addition, the Newton Country Players will give a single performance of their musical ghost story "Gabriel Ghost" in the Day Junior High School auditorium from 10 to 11 a.m.

The Big Parade

It's all over on Sunday, June 3 . and it will really end with a bang.

The Centennial Parade, marking the close of festivities in observance of Newton's 100th birthday, will be the "biggest and best" ever held in the city.

Parade chairman Herbert Connolly announced that more than 3,000 marchers, including 25 musical aggregations and 38 floats, will be in the line of march, together with city dignitaries and representatives of many community agencies and organizations.

Featured in the two and one half mile parade will be the famed Continental and Heritage Platoons of the United States Army.

Connolly stressed that the parade will have an historical motif, with prizes being awarded to the marching units and floats best illustrating the Centennial theme.

PAINTINGS by Sue Speier of Auburndal are on display at the West Newton Branch of the Newton Free Library through the end of May. Mrs. Speier studied with John L. Head and at the Johannesburg College of Art in South Africa and now teaches privately. She has exhibited in Newton, Wellesley and Boston.

Attention Centenarians

Herbert Connolly chairman of the Newton Centennial Parade Committee said at a recent Parade committee meeting, "the theme of the Centennial Celebration is to provide an historic background for Newton citizens. Therefore, we should pay tribute to elderly citizens living in Newton."

Connolly urged his committee and Newton citizens who know elderly citizens 100 years or older to contact either him or Mrs. Alison Strain at 262-2630.

'Gabriel Ghost' Haunts Newton Centennial

The Newton Country Players will make their second contribution to the Newton Centennial with a command performance of their annual children's touring show, the merry musical ghost story for youngsters of elementary school age, "Gabriel Ghost."

The performance will inaugurate festivities to be held on Youth Day, Saturday, June 2, at 10:30 a.m., at the Frank A. Day Junior High School auditorium, 100 Walnut St., Newtonville. Admission is free and tickets are available at Newton City Hall on a first-come, first-serve basis. Seating capacity of the auditorium is 350.

Earlier this month, three members of the players, Patricia Pellows, John Deming and Daniel Kosow, served as narrators for the music spectacular, "Newton's History in Words and Music," at Boston College's Roberts Hall.

The mirthful and new suspense melodrama is staged and directed by Daniel Kosow of Chestnut Hill, recipient of the "Best Director" award for community theatres in New England at the 19th annual Drama Festival, held at Brandeis University last spring. Music director for the whimsical production, which brings live theatre to the community, is Wayne Kaufman of Newton Highlands, and choral director is Mrs. Ruth Boynick of Newton Centre.

Included in the cast are Joe Colella, John Deming, Jennifer Levey, Claire Whoriskey, Victoria Floyd, Tracey Pellows, Peter Levine, Drew Tick, Bob Reed, Tim Thorman, Howard Cohen and Ian Tick. In the chorus are Michelle Francer, Franny Osman, Jill Pinkofsky, Sue Rubin, Karen Sudbey and Jack Wernick.

"Gabriel Ghost" floats through one hour of spoof and spookery and more surprises than one can find in a witch's brew. Locale of the adventure is the super-natural, super-musical land of Scarum, and it relates the tingling tale of a young ghost's first assignment to haunt a house.

In charge of the Centennial Youth Day activities is Mrs. Judy Alpert of Newton Highlands. Overall chairman of the Youth Program is Rev. Charles Coyle of Newton Lower Falls. President of the players is Mrs. John Deming of Newton Highlands.

Now concluding their 17th year of community theatre activity, the Newton Country Players are a non-rpofit, philanthropic association comprised of local residents who, as an avocation, are actively engaged in the development, expansion and assistance of theatre activity on com[illegible] and educational levels.

For membership information phone 969-1867 or write P.O. Box 9, Newton Centre, 02159.

Mt. Ida Exhibits In Local Art Show

Members of the Art Department of Mount Ida Junior College, Newton Centre, are among the participants in Newton Centennial's Art Exhibit and Art Show and Auction.

Exhibiting at Memorial Auditorium, City Hall through Sunday, June 3, are faculty members Elain Mendelson, who has chosen to display acrylic painting, John Avakian, program director of the art curriculum, whose representation is serigraphic art, Marlene Oliver, showing work in acrylic painting, and Richard Wetterer, who will have a sculpture on display.

The exhibit is open daily, except designated Sundays, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Pen Women Meet

Jo Brewer of Auburndale, president of the Wellesley Branch, National League of American Pen Women, invited branch members to a demonstration of "blowtorch" painting with beeswax at her home following the annual meeting recently.

Among those present at the meeting were: members Marjorie Neagle of Newton Centre, Donella Lewis of Newton and Jean Husher of Waban.

From Needham — Christina G. Laurie, branch vice president, and a guest, Margaret M. Dunn, a member of the Boston branch.

Mayor Joins Grape Boycott

Mayor Theodore D. Mann has added his name to the list of Newton public officials and church and community leaders who have endorsed the United Farm Worker's boycott of lettuce and grapes.

Members of the Ward 2 Democratic Committee also endorsed the boycott at a meeting last week.

In addition, State Senators Irving Fishman and Jack Backman, State Representatives Paul Guzzi, Peter Harrington, David Mofenson and Lois Pines have indicated their support of the effort.

Newton Plays, Pays Tribute

Idyllic was the word for Norumbega Park 100 years ago(above), and that spirit was briefly captured Sunday at the Newton Centennial Homecoming Garden Party. Balky weather aside, a sizable crowd turned out at the Marriott to welcome home visiting luminaries and enjoy an old fashioned afternoon of fun. Another visiting luminary, the sun, peeked out long enough to set a few people high-stepping too (left).

On a solemn note, Sunday was also chosen as the day Newton would remember its war dead in annual Memorial Day ceremonies. Among the participants were two men who remember the subject of war well (upper photo) Edward Edmunds (left) and former Senator Leverett Saltonstall (right). Edmunds, a member of Newton American Legion Post No. 48 and Chapter No. 23 of the D.A.V., was honorary parade marshal this year. Among the stops for solemn observances was the one annually made at Coletti-Magni Memorial Park (photo left) where Roger Morrocco, adjutant general, led wreath laying ceremonies.

$1.75 Million More For Newton North?

By Elizabeth McKinnon

A request for a $1.75 million bond issue for completion of the new Newton North High School has been withdrawn by Mayor Theodore Mann pending "further evaluation and substantation."

Part of the delay is attributable to the need for a meeting with the state School Building Assistance Bureau, which may approve a 50-65 per cent reimbursement of the additional money required. A meeting is scheduled between John Gilleland, superintendent for business service of the School Department and the SBAB next week.

The School Committee also must vote approval of the final site plan and specifications approved by the Design Review Committee before a request for bonding is heard by the Board of Aldermen.

The $1.75 million bond issue, the third during the history of the new high school, brings the total to slightly over $20 million. In May, 1969, $15.4 million was bonded. In March 1970, after a long fight in the Board of Aldermen, another $3 million was authorized ($4million was requested).

Buildings Commissioner Charles R. Herbert last month, after conferences with school officials and the site consultant, submitted his request for an additional money to cover the following items: building contingencies (from architect), $215,000; water main fire lane, $15,000; demolition of five existing high school buildings, $450,000; construction of the mall at the rear of the school, $120,000; construction of the teachers' parking area, $155,000; construction of the balance of the site, $725,000; and additional furnishings, $490,000. There remains $397,000 in the original bonded account to be applied to these expenses.

Since Herbert's request, the bids received for demolition indicate that only $297,000 may be needed for this purpose. In 1970 the demolition figure was estimated at $150,000.

The mall, an outdoor area back of the school for sitting, lounging, and eating, was added late last year.

Furnishings were originally allocated $500,000, of which about $325,000 has already been spent, Herbert said Wednesday. Bids have been received for more than $350,000 worth of additional furnishings, which include hundreds of "designer" chairs for the public areas of the school and over 200 tables. The total for furnishings is expected to be $990,000.

Site development and construction were given $275,000 three years ago, but Herbert warned at that time that he'd "be very surprised if that were enough." It wasn't, and the construction will now total $1 million.

A letter from School Superintendent Aaron Fink to the mayor recently outlined what steps he feels should be taken to "expedite completion of the high school." Besides finding out whether the School Building Assistance Board will approve the mall, parking area, and athletic facilities, and obtaining the School Committee vote, Fink suggests releasing the money set aside for furnishings, and withholding awarding of contracts for the mall and parking area until additional bond money is provided.

Fink's letter states that according to Buildings Commissioner Herbert, "the current balance of $665,000 in the bonding account" will pay for some furnishings ($225,000), demolition of the old buildings, and completion of the construction contract.

Murder Probe Continues

Investigators are currently checking into possible underworld links in the shotgun slaying of Malcolm Buchsbaum last week while he sat in the den of his Oak Hill home, according to a statement made by Newton Police Chief William F. Quinn Wednesday morning.

Quinn termed the murder a "gangland killing by an assassin who came to the home for that purpose."

He stated Buchsbaum, part-owner of the American Cleaning Company, Cambridge, had been experiencing severe financial difficulties which were the result of heavy gambling losses.

According to a report Chief Quinn has termed "accurate" the slain man's company had a $200,000 life insurance policy, containing a double indemnity clause, on Buchsbaum's life.

The policy stipulated that the surviving member of the company would retain complete control while the widow would get the money.

The victim's business partner in the industrial cleaning firm, Joseph Sullivan Jr., of Brighton and Rhode Island, was questioned by the police in an attempt to determine possible leads in the still unsolved case.

According to Chief Quinn, Sullivan had been "most cooperative," during the questioning which took place Tuesday.

Newton police are being assisted in theprobe by State Police Det. William C. Nally of the Middlesex County District Attorney's Office.

Quinn indicated any important papers could have been removed from the desk and safe after the murder and before investigators conducted their search.

Det. Capt. Walter D. Drew and Det. Sgt. Edward Ceurvels are heading up the investigation for the Newton Police Department.

Chief Quinn also confirmed a report his department had requested assistance in the investigation from Assistant Attorney General John Irwin, head of the Organized Crime Division of the Attorney General's Office.

All investigators, Quinn said, are currently checking into reports that criminal elementas from southwestern Massachusetts and Rhode Island had moved into the operation of Buchsbaum's cleaning firm.

Air Views On Aldermanic Pay

Whether or not Newton's Board of Aldermen, the only unpaid municipal legislative body in the state, should receive compensation was the subject of a public hearing at City Hall last week.

Less than 20 persons attended, and most of these were past or present aldermen, aldermanic candidates or representatives of special-interest groups.

The Aldermanic Pay Committee, a group of nine members, three appointed by Mayor Theodore D. Mann and six appointed by the Board of Aldermen, was established early this year to study the question of pay or compensation for the Board of Aldermen, after a proposal by Alderman Matthew Jefferson for an aldermanic salary of $2,500 per year passed the board but was vetoed by the mayor. Another by Alderman Ernest Dietz for $900 per year "compensation for expenses" was withdrawn. The committee had had 10 meetings, including the public hearing, and expects to meet twice more before June 15, when it will announce its findings, according to Lewis Songer, committee chairman.

The City Charter adopted by referendum vote in 1971 provides that the Board of Aldermen may establish staff positions "to assist the aldermen in the performance of their duties," and it has done so by hiring a Clerk of the Board and a principal clerk. The charter does not mention compensation for aldermen themselves.

School Committeeman Alvin Mandell, who was a member of the Charter Commission that drew up the new charter in 1970, recounted at last week's public hearing the discussion leading to the decision not to incorporate any statement about salary in the charter. Mandell said the main reason was the reversal of an earlier decision by the Charter Commission to reduce the size of the board.

"I was one of the swing votes that returned the size to 24 members," Mandell said. "If I had had any idea that they would vote themselves a salary, I would have voted for the smaller board."

Mandell added that the Charter Commission had not been averse to reimbursement of out-of-pocket expenses and suggested that the pay committee listen to the tapes of Charter Commission proceedings.

Of the four aldermen who spoke, two were in favor of some kind of recompense. Alderman Robert Tennant opposes any compensation, believing there are enough people willing to serve without pay. Questioned by board committee appointee Walter J. Leonard, Tennant said he loses a minimum of $50 per week by being an alderman, not including loss to his business.

Leonard asked, "Would you consider yourself corrupted by $50 a week?"

Tennant replied, "I would feel I was not doing my duty."

Richard Bullwinkle, also opposed, said, "I enjoy being an

Hear Environment Report

By LEN BATEMAN

The School Committee received a report from students and teachers of the Environmental sciences Program of the Newton Public Schools at its regular meeting Tuesday and unanimously endorsed continuation of the unique curriculum.

The report, a combination slide show and lecture, was the same delivered before the 1973 annual convention of the National Science Teachers Association in Detroit, Mich.

The program is sponsored by the Newton Public Schools and is open to all junior high students in the city during the month of July.

Essentially it is a field-oriented ecology course, taught by a combination of former students of the program and teachers from the science departments of the various Newton Schools.

Each member of the staff leads a small group of from four to seven students on a daily bicycle or hiking trip to local areas to observe contrasting habitats, as well as several bus trips to locations in Maine, New Hampshire, Connecticut and Massachusetts.

The topics dealt with in the program include mountain zonation, the seashore, food chains, decomposition succession and the effect of weather upon an environment.

Man's interaction with his environment, especially in the realm of pollution, is also extensively covered.

The month-long study is capped by a three-day field trip to Mt. Washington in New Hampshire.

Local areas visited and studied by the students and teachers include Bulloughs Pond, the Charles River, Crystal Lake, the Dedham Marsh, Hammond Pond and Woods, Lost Pond and Norumbega.

Some locations outside the immediate area visited include the Blue Hills, Boston Harbor, the Nashua River, Kittery Point, Me., Mt. MONADNOCK, Woods Hole and the Yankee Connecticut Atomic Power Plant.

Scott Saroff, a former student and now instructor in the program, recently completed an extensive environmental study of the Neponset River, the first such report ever done on the meandering stream on the coastal plain south of Boston.

According to Peter Richter, a teacher at Newton South High School and coordinator of the Alan Katz of 19 Old Winchester St., Newton Highlands, has announced his candidacy for alderman-at-large in Ward 8.

Katz, 29, an attorney for the Massachusetts Labor Relations Commission, has lived in the city for all of his 29 years and is married to the former Barbara Parks, now a teacher at Newton High School.

"My goal as a Newton alderman-at-large," Katz declared, will be to reinstill a feeling of togetherness and cooperation among the citizenry of the city. Issues continue to polarize our community. They should not. We

City Workers Get Increase

All city employees under collective bargaining agreements will receive a 4.8 per cent cost-of-living increase retroactive to May 1, the mayro's office announced on Tuesday.

A letter verifying the figure was received this week from the Federal Bureau of Labor Standards.

James Salter, spokeman for Mayor Theodore D. Mann, said that a 4.5 per cent increase had been carried in the budget, and the extra 0.3 per cent will probably not require any additional appropriation.

Charles River Clean-Up Set For June 2

Plans are progressing for the Fourth Annual Charles River Clean-up scheduled this year for Saturday, June 2 from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

The Charles River Watershed Association (CRWA) reports that the river and its tributary streams and ponds are being surveyed by canoe and helicopter to aid in deployment of crews.

The Charles River Clean-up potential is a diverse one. Some community leaders have reported that three canoes and a dozen plastic bags will handle the local problem. Others have called in for a dozen trucks and a wrecker to operate all day.

Municipal landfills are being requested to remain open and available for disposal of the trash from their communities where in the normal course of events it would have found its way in the beginning. June 2 had been declared Charles River Clean-up Day by proclamation of many mayors and selectmen.

Trucks from both public and private sources are being assigned by the 22 local coordinators who are assisting the Charles River Watershed Association day-long project. In an effort to reduce the consumption of plastic bags, volunteers will be encouraged to empty their trash into waiting trucks if possible and reuse the bags as often as feasible.

The Department of Natural Resources, the Metropolitan District Commission, and the National Guard are assigning personnel and light and heavy equipment. In addition, communications centers will be set up at the CRWA, 2391 Commonwealth Ave., Auburndale, and at Castronics parking lot, 67 Village St., Medway to enable the most productive deployment of clean-up crews and equipment up and down the river.

Flyers are available for posting from the local coordinators or from CRWA directly, to remind the public that June 2 is clean-up day. Prizes are planned for the most unusual pieces of trash removed from the two sections of the Charles River above and below the South Natick Dam. June 3 is the clean-up rain date.

For furtherinformation call your local coordinator, your regional chairman: Lee Houde, 435-3078, nights - upstream questions; Chick Kennedy, 894-0958, nights - downstream questions; or Charles River Watershed Association at 527-2799.

Guidance Clinic Director Picked

A new director for the Newton Guidance Clinic has been appointed, according to Barbara Rubin, president of the Newton Mental Health Association.

Dr. Norman Bernstein, introduced at the association's annual meeting, has long been associated with Harvard Medical School at Massachusetts General Hospital, in addition to being director of psychiatry at the Shriners' Burn Institute.

In 1965, Bernstein received an award from the Society for Experimental and Clinical Hypnosis for a paper he had written.

Florence Rubin Heads League Of Women Voters

There were two Newton residents elected to the state board by the delegates to the League of Women Voters of Massachusetts State Convention held May 23 and 24 in Boston.

Florence Rubin was elected president of the Massachusetts LWV for 1973-75 and Leah Chernov was elected treasurer for the same period.

Mrs. Rubin is a past president of the Newton League of Women Voters and was chairman of the Newton Charter Commission. Mrs. Chernov is a past president of the Natick League of Women Voters and a past treasurer of the Newton LWV.

Delegates from the Newton League to the State Convention were Sylvia Apelbaum, Bonnie Carter, Leah Chernov, Miriam Erlich, Patricia Goldman, Judy Green, Jane Leighton, Priscilla Leith, Elaine Leppo, Ellen Lipson, Judy Obermayer, Bonnie Orlin, Jane Rediker, and Carolyn Weiner. The two-day program provided time for league delegates to debate, discuss, and plan the major direction that the Massachusetts League of Women Voters will take during the next two years. In addition to election of officers, the activities included adoption of the budget, determination of the state program including a new state study of transportation, and planning for future action.

Little Reaction To DPW Reorganization

Preliminary comments from labor on the reorganization plan for the Public Works Department, released last week, are sparse, and from the department most affected by the changes proposed, nonexistent.

Street Commissioner Edmund Bolduc said last Saturday that his comments would be given to Public Works Director this Tuesday. On Tuesday, it was learned that Bolduc has gone on a one-week vacation.

The president of Local 800 (State, County and Municipal Employees Union), Louis Rufo, pointed out that he had had little time to evaluate the reorganization plan, but commented, "I don't think it's worth five cents."

"I'm disappointed in it. I'd heard that Dudman (Richard A. Dudman, DPW director) had plans to close the incinerator and put the men in all the yards," Rufo said. "It took him all that time to come up with a plan that's five years old."

Rufo also criticized the administration for not consulting with labor in the formulation of the plan. "When I first read the Booz-Allen, Hamilton report in 1968, I said they should have spoken to labor about it. They still didn't talk to us about it this time."

Former Local 800 president Leonard Butman siad, "It's a five-year-old report," referring to the fact that much of the new reorganization is based on the Booz-Allen, Hamilton report of 1968. "How can it still be good?"

Zoning Ordinance Overhaul Sought

Fifty-two years ago, when then Newton alderman Leverett Saltonstall qas 29 years old, he helped write the city's zoning ordinances.

They have not been substantially changed or revised since.

A resolution proposed by Alderman Michael Lipof would have the Board of Aldermen appoint a select committee of seven legal zoning, building and planning experts to advise the aldermanic Legislation and Rules and Land Use Committees on how to bring the zoning ordiannces up to date.

Under Lipof's proposal, the Land Use Committee would interview candidates and recommend a slate.

Lipof expects the work to take about a yea.

The resolution will be presented at the June 4 meeting of the board.

Guzzi Backs Open Meeting Legislation

Representative Paul Guzzi (D-Newton) has urged immediate adoption of legislation to extend the state's open meeting law to the legislature and Governor.

Guzzi stated that "the intent of such legislation is to make the formation of public policy truly the public's business. House Bill 3858, which I wholeheartedly support, would require all executive sessions of committees to be open to the public and press. Only by a majority vote could the meeting be closed, and even then published records would be available." In all but two cases, executive sessions of committees are presently closed.

Rep. Guzzi also stated that he would support an amendment to extend the law to the Governor's deliberations on bills enacted by the House and Senate. "Some of the most critical decisions in state government take place either in closed-door sessions of committees, or behind the equally closed doors of the Governor and his staff. This aura of secrecy, which we have seen mushroom to produce such devasting results in our national government, should be removed immediately."

Massachusetts is one of thirteen states in the country where committee voting is not open to the public. A recent survey by the Citizen's Conference on State Legislatures indicated that twenty-seven states require open votes at all times. Nineteen states record and publish roll call votes on all legislative committee action.

Under terms of the bill supported by Guzzi, records of all meetings and votes would be maintained.

Attempts to bring "open meeting" legislation to the floor of the Massachusetts House have repeatedly failed in the past. However, Rep. Guzzi indicated that he is hopeful that future attempts will be successful.

"At a time when public confidence in the actions of our government has been shattered, and during a period when public concern over secrecy has been heightened, we should act quickly and decisively on all legislation designed to increase access by those we seek to serve," he concluded.

State GOP Elects Newton Woman

Mrs. Maudyea Campbell, a vice-chairman of the Newton Republican City Committee, has been elected third vice-president of the Masachusetts Federation of Repulbican Women.

She was elected at the federation's annual meeting held last week in Framingham, according to Julius L. Masow, Newton GOP chairman.

Others in the delegation representing the Newton Women's Republican Club at the event included Mrs. Evageline Marshall, Miss Augusta Hornblower, Miss Frances Shaer, Mrs. G.M. Swift, and Miss Charlotte R. Thornbury.

Continuing the schedule of ward meetings throughout the city, Masow also announced that the Wart Three Republican Committee is meeting Tuesday evening, June 5, at the Community Service Center on Cherry Stret, West Newton. The committee is headed by Lester Deneault.

Newton Has 'Poet Laureate'

Newton Mayor Theodore D. Mann and the Board of Aldermen have jointly issued a proclamation officially designating Pulitizer Prize Winning Poet Maxine Kumin as the city's "Poet Laureate."

Mrs. Kumin and her husband, Victor, have lived in their home at 40 Bradford road, Newton Highlands, for the past 22 years.

She was awarded the Pulitizer Prize recently for her book of poems, "Up Country."

Once described as the "female Robert Frost," Mrs. Kumin's book is the latest in a series of poetry collections that includes "The Nightmare Factory" and "The Privilieged."

Mrs. Kumin has described her award winning "Up Country," as a collection of nature poems — "a bony stare at life" from the viewpoint of water bugs, woodchucks and a hermit. The book is set in rural New Hampshire.

The text of the joint executive legislative proclamation is as follows:

RESOLUTION

WHEREAS, as one more accomplishment in her carrer as wife, mother, teacher, contributing Newton citizen, and writer of three novels and three previous volumes of poetry, MAXINE KUMIN has for her book of poetry, "Up Country," in this year 1973 been awarded one of the highest marks of distinction in literature, the Pulitzer Prize.

WHEREAS, the City of Newton is currently celebrating its Centennial Year, during which it is giving recognition to those citizens who have brought it special honor, and

WHEREAS, following the tradition two thousand years ago when the laurel was sacred to Apollo and the laurel wreath was given to poets and other heroes, the term "laureate" has come to identify merit and be an expression of esteem,

NOW THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED that — acting for the City of Newton — we, its Mayor and Board of Aldermen, do hereby congratulate Maxine Kumin for her richly deserved award and do hereby express our appreciation for the honor she has brought to our city, and

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that Maxine Kumin be officially designated "Poet Laureate" of Newton, Massachusetts.

Carmen's DPW Reorganization Would Eliminate Incinerator Use

A different reorganization plan for the Department of Public Works, eliminating the incinerator, was proposed last week by mayoral candidate William Carmen, on the day of release of a more detailed plan by the director of the department, Richard Dudman.

Carmen's proposal presents a new concept of what he feels a Department of Public Works should be.

"The very name evokes a nineteenth-century concept," he said. "I propose that this department become the Department of Environmental Affairs, and would include such major changes as the Sanitation Division becoming the Division of Reclamation, with the emphasis on incentives to make the collection and disposal or rubbish more efficient and economical."

Carmen continued, "Our incinerator must be rapidly phased out, and in its place we must develop regional recycling facilities for separation and recycling of our waste. Ultimately, Newton taxpayers could save, and earn, over one million dollars each year from this kind of operation."

Commenting on the administration's reorganization plan, Carmen said the "Modest" plan, which he claimed had taken nearly two years to come to light, "merely revises old concepts of the past, rather than thinking in terms of the future."

"Newton continues to be burdened with the wasteful problems of an incinerator in disrepair. As chairman of the Environment Subcommittee of the Board of Aldermen (1970-71), I urge the mayor to move toward reclamation."

Carmen estimated that Newton could save more than $1 million a year by using reclamation and regional recycling facilities instead of miantaining the present Newton incinerator.

Carmen's proposals are "merely one phase of reorganizing the Public Works Department," he said. "I have a complete plan that calls for the reorganization of the entire department, which will be presented at the appropriate time."

Prison Shuffle Draws Opposition

Representative David J. Mofenson (D-Newton) has announced his "strong opposition to the proposed transfer of the Department of Corrections from the Office of Human Services to the Office of Public Safety."

In a statement issued recently, Representative Mofenson said, "Transfer of the Department of Corrections would be a pronounced step backward for prison reform in this Commonwealth. To remove the Department of Corrections from Human Services, it seems to me, would be a totally inappropriate approach to prison reform."

Several weeks ago, the proposed legislation was given a public hearing before the Committee on State Administration, of which Representative Mofenson is a member. Since that time, the committee has voted 13 to seven to give a favorable report to the proposal, with Representative Mofenson as one of the seven dissenters. The measure now awaits action in the Senate.

In 1971, Massachusetts adopted a major tool for overhauling the Massachusetts correctional system by enacting omnibus corrections legislation, emphasizing a commitment toward rehabilitation.

Mofenson further states, "The rehabilitative end of the prison reform spectrum must be emphasized because the basic fact is that 90 per cent of presently incarcerated inmates will one day return to society."

Mofenson further indicated that the modern view of crim and corrections as social and psychological problems, mandates controls that are themselves essentially social and psychological in nature.

He indicates that such controls can be developed far more appropriately in connection with agencies concerned primarily with understanding and treatment of human problems.

Representative Mofenson indicated that modern penologists emphasize rehabilitation and re-education of sentenced offenders as an essential goal in carrying out the duty to protect the public. "The Department of Public Safety deals with questions of law enforcement and enforcing standards of industrial safety. In no state is the Corrections Department a division or bureau within the public safety arm of government.

Revives Canoeing

Canoeing on the Charles - one of the most popular recreational activities for generations past - has begun a full-scale comeback under Metropolitan District Commission guidance.

MDC Commissioner John W. Sears said that a new canoeing program has been launched at two Charles River locations: Auburndale and Wellesley. The caneoing revival is under lease to Lincoln Guide Service, Inc., headed by ex-Marine Richard H. Farny of Lincoln, a veteran canoe, raft and kayak guide.

Lincoln Guide is providing rentals, storage, instruction and safety equipment, utilizing boat berths and docks of the river-level lower floor of the MDC's police station at Riverside. The Wellesley site, at the end of Lincoln and Water streets, is being used initially as a launching and access area for advanced groups, supervised by Lincoln Guide staff.

Sears said the MDC envisions eventual expansion of the program to 14 canoe facilities in the 30 mile stretch of river between Wellesley and the Boston Esplanade. As a next step, he said, the MDC is negotiating for the acquisition of the Needham YMCA's Red Wing Bay canoe rental livery.

Lincoln Guide director Farny has been a canoe, raft and kayak guide on rivers in Wyoming, Colorado, Utah, Delaware and Maine.

Ald. Gaynor Pays Tribute To 'Uncle Sam'

No, not that 'Uncle Sam.'

Newton Alderman Robert Gaynor joined 300 friends and associated of Samuel O. Smith at the Sidney Hill Country Club recently, and had an opportunity to recall his own memories of his Uncle Sam, the friend of at least those 300 people, to mention just a few.

The late Sam Smith, who devoted many years of his life to helping underprivileged youth, now, 15 years after his death, has a scholarship named in his honor.

Its primary purpose, predictably, is to send children to camp.

The breakfast in his honor was sponsored by the Boston Youn Men's Hebrew Association (YMHA) alumni, and many alumni attended.

Smith had been the president of the YMHA and its athletic director for many years, but devoted even more of his time and energy to kids as a Suffolk County probation officer and boxing commissioner.

He even found time to serve as a personal aide to two former Massachusetts gobernors, Leverett Saltonstall and Christian Herter.

Scattered among the 300 at the breakfast were Judge Benjamin Cargill, a longtime associate, Eddie Newsome, former featherweight champion, Red Chapman from Chelsea; members of Ring 4, the association of boxers popled by many of Sam's friends, and many Newton residents.

J. Harry Greenblatt, breakfast chairman, recounted Smith's devotion to young people saying simply, "he loved kids."

Greenblatt explained, too, that Sam had a tendency to spend his salary on members of his underpriviledged brood.

Gaynor described his uncle as "very protective and generous" and a man of "immense strength and immense warmth."

The YMHA Alumin Association, organized 2; years ago, was established for the sole purpose of raising funds for the underprivileged youth in the area in order to provide scholarship grants in the field of education and summer day camping. Recently, the association expanded its philanthropic activities to include men and women of all ages in need of aid.

Over the years, one of the primary means of raising funds has been to establish trusts in the names of donors and those selected for memorial rememberances.

Anyone wishing to contribute to the Sam Smith Memorial Fund can do so in care of: Boston YMHA Alumni Association, 50 Sutherland Rd., Brookline, Mass. 02146.

Dilemmas

The problem of hens and eggs is an interesting one. From a functional point of view is the egg a hen's means for reproducing itself or is the hen an egg's means of reproducing eggs?

The answer given will depend very strongly on the assumptions or point of view one takes. But that is too academic; there is a similar analogic problem closer at hand that requires a solution. Have we reached the stage whereby prolonged childhood is the school system's means of perpetuating itself, or is prolonged schooling the mans by which childhood perpetuates itself? If the former is true, then newly packaged educational programs requiring several successive years of requirements is one of the vehicles employed by the educational system to dupe the unknowing. If the latter is the case, then perhaps we are on the verge of laying the foundation for a 1984 in which only orthodox views will exist.

Strange Quiet

For many years now people in the West Roxbury section of Boston have timed their lives by the heavy bells that rang out from the steeple of the Congregational Church.

The on-the-hour tolling of the bells has been more than a familiar time check. For some who attended the church on Centre Street the sound of the bells marked a real beginning and ultimately an ending to their lives.

Today the bells are silent. And they are missed.

Early Monday morning — shortly after the bells had sounded 3 a.m. — fire had enveloped much of the church. Today the church is closed, condemned because of the vast damage to the structure which some estimate to be nearly 100 years old. Razing of the remains is already underway.

The clock on the steeple stopped just after 7 o'clock Monday morning. The bells rang out for the last time at that hour as smoke still came from the ruins. Work is now underway to bring them down and it remains to be seen what their future will be.

For miles around the bells could be heard. But their stillness today is being echoed out by many offers to help if it is decided to rebuild the Congregational Church.

A rabbi said that the members of his temple would be among those who would help. A Catholic church up the street is offering the proceeds of its bingo party Thursday night. And the calls have poured in to the destroyed church's pastor, Rev. Charles Separk.

A meeting will be held this Thursday night to talk of rebuilding. The offers to help and assist and sympathize have been limited to no single religion or demonimation.

Perhaps, in this age of noise pollution, the sound of the bells will ring out again as a welcome note to every ear.

Motorists May Encounter Gas Shortages on Vacation Trips

Washington experts on the matter say that persons planning long automobile vacation trips this summer could experience gasoline shortages in some sections.

The areas where this is most likely to happen apparently are the Rocky Mountain region, the Upper Midwest section and the northern Great Lakes area.

But it's possible "spot" shortages might be encountered in remote sections of Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont.

Two rules vacationing motorists would do well to follow on their trips would be to fill the tanks of their cars in the morning and not to allow them to get less than half-full, according to the best authorities on the matter.

In the more remote sections where shortages are most likely to occur, the operators of filling stations would ration their gasoline supplies.

This probably would mean that they would limit a motorist to a maximum purchase of 10 gallons and that they would close when they had sold their day's quota.

The Nixon administration has taken a number of steps to avert a serious shortage, but the indications are that there may be scattered shortages for temporary periods in some areas during the summer season.

However, a motorist almost certainly would find some filling station doing business and would not be in serious danger of being stranded on the highway if he took reasonable precautions to maintain the supply in his gasoline tank.

Environmental groups and the major oil companies are blaming each other for the threatened shortage. The environmentalists charge that 20 major oil companies have engineered the shortage to drive up prices and profits. Oil company spokesmen reply that the environmental groups have opposed plans for the construction of new refineries. Both sides criticize the federal government for not doing enough about the situation.

IMPORTANT MOVES

Predicts Nixon Will Resign If Unable To Serve Properly

A top Massachusetts Republican, with ties to the White House, predicted to the writer this week that President Nixon will voluntarily resign if future developments make it impossible for him to function effectively as the nation's chief executive, notwithstanding his statement that he will not abandon his responsibilities and will continue to do the job he was elected to do.

The prominent GOP office-holder, who asked not to be quoted by name, expressed the strong conviction that Mr. Nixon did not know in advance of the plans for the Watergate break-in or participate directly in the subsequent attempted cover-up. But he observed that in recent weeks the President has been unable to do the job he was elected to do because of the Watergate mess.

Even if President Nixon is innocent of any wrong-doing whatever, so many people around him may be implicated in the Watergate scandal, that Mr. Nixon could be "crippled" in his relations with Congress and unable to perform properly his duties as President of the United States, he declared.

In such a turn of events, the Republican bigwig prophesied, President Nixon would step out, and Vice President Spiro Agnew would go with him.

Asked why there should be any thought of Agnew resigning since there is no indication that he was connected in any way with Watergate, the GOP leader replied that the Vice President has asserted repeatedly that he is President Nixon's boy and that it is unlikely he would remain to serve as President if Mr. Nixon resigned.

He said he saw no likelihood of the President being impeached unless there is unchallengeable evidence that he either authorized the Watergate break-in or personally approved the attempt to cover up the scandal.

In support of his opinion that President Nixon was not guilty of either charge, he declared there was a virtual iron curtain at the White House.

President Nixon was isolated and insulated from the outside world, largely by John Ehrlichman and H.R. Haldeman.

They told him only what they wanted him to know. They screened the persons who saw him. They censored the news he read, giving him only excerpts from newspapers instead of the entire newspapers. That supposedly was done to save the President's time.

Mr. Nixon did not have his finger on every White House control to the extent most political observers believe.

So it is possible the President did not know about the Watergate break-in in advance, the attempt made to cover it up after it became known, the misuse of his campaign funds or the alleged dirty tricks perpetrated by persons employed by his campaign committee.

While the Republican this columnist interviewed and other leading members of the GOP believe that President Nixon did not know of the Watergate plan, they are annoyed with him for letting things get so far out of control that he didn't know.

The GOP chieftain, incidentally, believes that Governor Sargent is not as strong as the polls and surveys by this writer and others show him to be. He says that Lieutenant Governor Donald Dwight might have a better chance than Sargent of winning next year's gubernatorial election.

He voices the opinion that Attorney General Robert Quinn probably could topple Governor Sargent but that Sargent would be a favorite to defeat former Representative Michael Dukakis of Brookline if he won the Democratic gubernatorial nomination.

While Mr. Sargent has a tremendous personality and projects well on television, he dislikes the day-to-day job of being Governor and leaves too many important decisions to his cabinet members, some of whom are young, were imported from other states and don't know that much about state government.

That is the carefully considered judgment of an influential Republican who intends to support Governor Sargent next year "for the good of the party." He was not prepared at this stage to make any forecast as to what impact, if any, the public reaction to the Watergate mess might have on the 1974 gubernatorial election in Massachusetts.

Even though he sees no likelihood of any impeachment proceedings against President Nixon, the Republican official sent a staff member to the Library of Congress to borrow a book on impeachment.

He found that every document of any kind on impeachment had been taken out of the library and that not one book relating in any way to that subject was available. They were all in use and being studied.

Dwight Challenges Criticism Of Governor's Reorg. Proposal

Lieutenant Governor Donald R. Dwight, perhaps the most effective and articulate supporter of Governor Sargent's reorganization program, takes sharp issue with some of the things this observer has written about the reorg. bill.

Dwight flatly denies that the Governor's proposal in the field of higher education is a power grab, as was alleged in this column. He also asserts that mistakes in the bill which caused concern by nurses have been corrected.

"You were quite correct in reporting that the nurses objected loudly to some portions of the Human Services bill—and the two objections you cite (that the system of qualifying nurses would be jeopardized and that a lowering of standards in nursing care would result) were valid," Lieutenant Governor Dwight writes.

The point I want to make, however," he continues, "is that both of these problems resulted from errors in the bills which have since been corrected.

"The National League for Nursing, which provides us with the nurses' examination, requires that we have certain qualified persons to administer the exam before we are allowed to use it. Some positions for administering the exam were inadvertently omitted from this year's budget, and that's what caused the concern. The positions have been restored, however, and there is no reason why the exam cannot be administered as usual this summer," Dwight declares.

"The concern about the lowering of nursing standards resulted from a drafting error in the Human Services bill. Under existing law non-nurses are permitted to perform certain duties under the supervision of a nurse, in rest homes, nursing homes and convalescent homes," the Lieutenant Governor asserts.

"Our intent was to allow this practice to continue, unchanged," Dwight states. "In the drafting of the bill, however, the phrase, 'long term,' was left out in describing health care facilites in which this practise would be allowed.

"If the bill were to be enacted as is, the practice of non-nurses performing nursing duties could, in fact, have been expanded to include general hospitals. The nurses were justifiably upset. Secretary Goldmark has indicated on several occasions, most recently at the legislative committee hearing on the bill, that this was an error and that it would be corrected.

"The point I'm trying to make here," Lieutenant Governor Dwight stressed, "is that we recognize ours is not the perfect plan and that we want to work with the Legislature in improving the plan, not against the Legislature in some sort of adversary relationship.

"You further state," Dwight continues, "that the proposal relating to higher education seems to be an obvious power grab. The opposite is true. Right now there are seven state-wide boards in education, and the Governor now appoints all members on those boards. Under the reorganization plan there will be only two state-wide boards and 10 regional councils, and the Governor will appoint fewer than half the members of those bodies.

"I am pleased to see the reorganization get so much attention, and my only hope is that, in the end, it will be dealt with on its merits, not its politics," he emphasizes.

Lieutenant Governor Dwight was told that many legislators feel that the reorganziation bill is a subterfuge for a "power grab" by Governor Sargent in an effort to increase his patronage power.

"Since some 150 agencies, boards and commissions are to be abolished or consolidated, (many of whose members are appointed by the Governor), it would appear to be a difficult charge to sustain," Dwight replied.

"It is a novel argument, to say the least, that a chief executive adds to his patronage powers by abolishing appointive agencies, eliminating 2000 positions from the budget and incurring the wrath of those vested interest groups who are more than happy with the status quo," he maintained.

"One of the prime reasons why reform occurs so infrequently in government is simply because so many involved in the bureaucracy got there through their friendships with people in public life." Dwight concluded.

Needy Suffer Because State Bills Unpaid For Long Period

A great many persons who do business with the State complain bitterly about the length of time they must wait to get paid.

This is making it difficult for needy and deserving persons to gain admittance to hospitals and nursing homes or to charge the medicine they purchase at drug stores.

For instance, the state presently owes $28.9 million in Medicaid bills which accumulated prior to April 1, 1972, and are now all over a year old.

The Governor's office and the House Ways and Means Committee blame each other for this amazing situation.

A member of the Governor's staff declares that Mr. Sargent sought funds last January to pay the back Medicaid bills.

A member of the House Ways and Means Committee asserts that the money to pay the Medicaid bills was not included in the deficiency budget, as would usually be the case, because the necessary documentation to show the bills should be paid was not submitted.

This is an example of a bumbling bureaucracy in action while hospitals, nursing homes, doctors and druggists wait for money that has been owed to them for more than a year. A private citizen who was that remiss in paying his bills probably would be hauled into court.

Sargent and Boone Are Doing Something Wrong At Walpole

The furlough system at Walpole State Prison should be suspended indefinitely unless the inmates there are prepared to behave themselves. The situation at the prison is becoming so intolerable as to be ridiculous, and the loss of the furlough privileges seems to be about the only thing which might mean anything to the convicts.

While the riot causing damage which will cost more than $1 million in public funds to repair was an incredible reaction by the inmates to the advance warning that there was to be a shakedown search for weapons and drugs, part of the responsibility for this wanton destruction rests with Governor Sargent and the men he is allowing to operate the prison.

The action of the Walpole prison superintendent in announcing there was to be a shakedown was stupid and was practically asking for trouble. Veteran guards at the prison declare that a shakedown must be undertaken as a complete surprise in order to be effective.

The fact that prisoners had pills to swallow and liquor to drink, when they were told of the impending shakedown, reflected conditions at the Walpole institution as did the search which turned up a variety of weapons, including long machetes and even a sword.

Persons who have observed conditions at Walpole have been astonished by the manner in which inmates are allowed to roam at will through the prison. They also comment on the lack of an effective work program to occupy the interest and time of the inmates as well as the absence of anything resembling prison discipline.

The inmates, who are actually running portions of the prison, apparently believe they have the right to destroy property and assault guards when something is done that they don't like. The only way that condition will be corrected is to punish that kind of violence.

It's about time that Governor Sargent and Commissioner John O. Boone woke up to the fact that they are doing something wrong.

Real-Life Spy McCord Talked Because of Fear for His Life

An amazing aspect to the stunning Watergate scandal is that it mushroomed and exploded because a real-life spy apparently was afraid to go to prison for any period, fearing he would be murdered if he did.

This eveidently is why James W. McCord, Jr., tried so desperately to extricate himself from the Watergate mess after he was arrested last June 17 and finally agreed to talk in an effort to buy his freedom by exposing other people.

If McCord had not panicked and had remained silent, as spies in the movies do, the people probably would never have known the full extent of the chicanery and espionage in the Nixon campaign and even the White House. In all likelihood Watergate would have been dismissed as an instance of one group of politicians spying on another.

But persons who know McCord say he was afraid to spend even a day in prison lest he be murdered. He was not interested in any deal which provided that his family would be cared for and that he would be freed after serving a short sentence.

His life was too dear to him, and he blew the whistle in the obvious hope his prison sentence would be commuted. Its echoes have exposed a shocking scandal that has paralyzed the operation of the national government. The lives of men who held high positions of public trust have been shattered.

The possibility that the President of the United States will be impeached if things get worse is openly discussed. Critics have charged that at best the United States will limp through another three and a half years under a President who will be unable to run the nation with a strong and firm hand.

President Nixon has ridden out other political storms and survived other crises. But it seems unlikely that he can recover completely from the damage done to him by the almost unbelievable Watergate mess.

It will be interesting to see if James McCord finally does escape a prison sentence.

Did Kissinger Bug the Phones Of Any Of His Girl Friends?

Time Magazine recently observed that the Nixon administration's "leading humorist and bon-vivant — its most accessible major official — is Henry Kissinger, untouched by scandal and clearly the man who has achieved the most."

Just for the record, this already shell-shocked bystander was a little more scandalized a few days later by the news that good, old, lovable Kissi had ordered the telephones of his staff members and newsmen bugged so he could eavesdrop on what they were saying.

It was all legal, of course, when Henry did it. The despatches did not divulge whether he had the lines of any of his girl friends tapped in the interest of national security.

Law Now On Way To Enactment Could Revive Election Abuses

There was a day in Massachusetts when city and town election officials took as many precautions as they could to prevent persons from registering fraudulently as voters.

Despite their best efforts, it was periodically discovered that persons who were dead apparently had come up from their graves to have their names placed on the voting rolls.

Other chicanery was practised in registering as voters persons who didn't exist, who had moved away or who for one reason or another couldn't or didn't get to an election office to enroll as a voter.

Perhaps it is assumed that politicians and candidates are more honest today than they were a generation ago.

At any rate, almost no one worries any more about the possibility that names will be placed fraudulently on the voting lists, and the safeguards against such an action have gradually been scrapped.

Existing laws no longer require a person to go to a City or Town Hall to enroll as a voter. Registration is now conducted in colleges, universities, factories, mills, schools, hospitals, nursing ing and rest homes.

About the only remaining protection against fraudulent enrollment of voters is that the registration must be done by registrars of voters.

Now a bill apparently is on its way to passage in the Legislature which would wipe out that safeguard and provide that deputy registrars, who could be just about anyone, could register voters. The only requirement is that the unpaid deputies be enrolled as voters themselves and that they consider the persons they are registering "qualified to vote."

Laws such as that almost certainly would bring back the election abuses which were so common in the 1930s.

Who Will The NRA Bidder Be?

Comments on Letter

Editor, Newton Graphic:

I just finished reading an alderman's letter to the editor in your paper which is an unwarranted attack on Mayor Mann.

It is so obviously a publicity-oriented, politically motivated letter.

I wish there were many more public officials who have worked as long and as hard and with such dedication as our present Mayor Mann.

I believe that a letter of the caliber of this alderman's is clearly divisive in a city that has prided itself on being non-partisan and it ultimately will affect the stature of the letter writer.

Joan Saklad, Newton Centre

Thanks Chief

(Editor's note: the following letter was sent to Newton Fire Chief Frederick A. Perkins Jr.)

Dear Chief Perkins:

I'd like to thank the Newton Fire Department for the good service they gave in putting out the fire in my home. They showed extremely good care of the house, sparing any unnecessary damage, and in addition were most kind to members of the family who were at home.

Thanks again.

Abigail Ann Hamblen,

I would like to bring to the attention of the Lower Falls residents the apparent attempt of the authority, Newton Redevelopment Aughority, to pick a developer for the state aid portion of the Lower Falls Urban renewal area.

It is obvious that it is the intent of three members of the authority to pick a building which has the least desireable aspects of the four bids submitted.

Time is running out on us, and unless we can stop the authority from picking this developer, we are going to have a building that was our fourth choice and a building in the neighborhood that is unacceptable.

If you attend the authority meetings you can see that Sullivan, DiCarlo, Davidson combine in operation and as part and parcel of the old clique who have so long tried to run rough shod over the neighborhood and members of LOPAC.

It is reported in the Boston Globe last week that the file compiled by the Department of Community Affairs in regards to one member of the authority has been turned over to the attorney general's office for further action.

I find it almost beyond belief that three members of the old NRA combine are apparently in favor of the J.F. White development plan, which by the way was fourth on the list of both LOPAC and the board of directors of the Newton Lower Falls Improvement Association during a joint meeting of the committees.

I have been seriously considering resigning from Lopac since it is quite apparent that the NRA has no intentions of seriously listening to the neighborhood residents or Lopac.

If the mayor had listened to and heeded the wishes of the Lower Falls residents in which they expressed their concern in a petition to the mayor to appoint me to the NRA, then this possible serious breach of faith to the Lower Falls community will not or would not occur.

The people know what is going on and there will be a day when this will come forth. The mayor's disregard for the Lower Falls community has made itself known by his reply to the petition of the residents.

Finally, I urge the residents of Lower Falls to contact their aldermen and the mayor and strongly resist the Authority attempt to shackle us with a building monstrosity that we will find difficult to live with. It is our community and I believe we should have plenty to say about what we want in our neighborhood. We have to live with it, the authority does not.

Clique Disrupts Aldermen

Editor, Newton Graphic:

For four years, I have followed the workings of the Board of Aldermen.

I have become engrossed in many of its legislative questions and fascinated by the personalities of its 24 members. The majority of these members, including the president, have consistently shown that their major concern is for the improvement of our city and the benefit of its citizens.

However, I have also observed that there is a small clique of aldermen who have spent the last two years disrupting board meetings, huddling in City Hall corridors and caucusing privately, with the sole purpose of slowing down the workings of the present administration and discrediting Mayor Mann, one of the most credible mayors that this city has been wise enough to elect.

Through their voting records and their late night filibustering, this small, but unfortunately vocal group of aldermen, have shown they care nothing for the welfare of our city. Their motives seem purely political - namely - to oust the present administration and replace it with one of their choice.

Fortunately, these politicians have not been successful.

The present mayor, his administration and most of the aldermen have many accomplishments to their credit. City Hall has been revitalized; government operations and spending have been streamlined; recreation and good services have been provided for all parts of our city; and, by spending less to do a better job, we can happily look forward to a possible decrease in our taxes. All of these accomplishments are of great benefit to each of us, and, incidentally, add to the stature of the present administration.

I can therefore understand the great frustration of these few aldermen who do not want to admit that our city is in such capablehands. And I have clearly seen this frustration in one such alderman's letter to the editor last week and several other news releases that are beginning to appear, now that the campaign season is upon us.

My one hope is that each Newton citizen will familiarize himself with the real issues in the city, so that armed with this knowledge, he may intelligently analyze all that has been accomplished and what more needs to be done, without being pressured by politically motivated people or letters.

In another unrelated matter the Newton School Committee accepted the bid of Higham, Neilson, Whitridge and Reid, Inc., for student insurance in the upcoming school year.

The firm's bid was the lowest received and it includes at no extra charge "open campus" protection for all students enrolled under the basic coverage which also includes filling teeth.

The firm of Higham, Neilson, Whitridge and Reid, Inc., of Boston, has managed the student insurance plan in Newton since 1971.

The school board also approved a request from the Newton Catholic School for transportation of its students in public school buses.

The approval came with no debate and a unanimous vote after the mechanics of providing such transportation was provided the committee by John Cameron, administrative assistant for business services in the school department.

Jackson Homestead Friends Elect Harry Walen President

The Friends of the Jackson Homestead have elected Harry L. Walen, distinguished educator, and former Newton alderman, president of the group at their Annual Meeting.

He succeeds Mrs. Richard A. Winslow, who served two terms as head of the organization which assists in the conduct of the activities carried on at Newton's city-owned museum and historical center at 527 Washington St.

In making her final report as president, Mrs. Winslow pointed to the increasing community-wide interest in the museum, noting that "the Centennial celebration has opened the door of the Homestead to many who never realized their city owned this remarkable place."

In turning over the gavel to her successor, Mrs. Winslow made a plea for increased membership in the Friends of the Jackson Homestead group. There was a warm expression, by vote of the group, of appreciation of Mrs. Winslow's work during her tenure as president.

The incoming president, Walen, brings a broad background of community experience and as an educator to the Homestead. Newton alderman for a decade until 1971, he was the long time principal of the Needham High School where he continues as Graduate Placement Advisor.

Active in educational, historical, and civic societies, Walen is an incorporator and trustee of the Samuel Francis Smith Homestead, vice-president of the Minute-Man Chapter, Sons of the American Revolution, and chairman of the Education Committee, North East Region, National Conference of Christian and Jews. He served as president of the Newton Community Chest and Council, and is currently president of the Massachusetts Schoolmasters Club.

A product of the Newton public schools (Bigelow Grammar and the Newton High School), he holds B.A. and M.A. degrees from Harvard University. He and his wife, Elizabeth, who also is active at the Homestead, live on Floral Street in Newton Highlands.

Elected to the 1974 Nominating Committee are: Mrs. Alan S. Barkin, Mrs. Charles S. Butler, and Mrs. Harry L. Walen.

Following the business meeting, Betsy Allen, editor of the Jackson Journal, and vice-chairman of press, presented a program illustrated with slides she had taken while on tour.

The Jackson Homestead is administered for the City of Newton by a Board of Trustees whose membership is made up of Mrs. Lester A. Steinberg, Chairman, Henry A. Blake, Mrs. Nathan D. Bugbee, Alan B. Larkin, George H. Larsen, Alex R. Miller, and Mrs. Benjamin F. Shattuck.

School-

The mayor's request to delay action on the $1.75 million bond authorization was heard in the aldermanic Public Buildings Committee, which postponed further discussion until after the meeting with the School Building Assistance Bureau.

(In April, 1970, Alderman Edward Uehlein, then Finance Committee chairman, pointed out that even after state aid is received when interest on the bonds is figured in, the school will cost about $30 million, and even after state aid is received, the cost to the city will still be about $23 million.)

The Public Buildings Committee has reacted strongly during the past year to what they regard as extravagance on the part of the School Department, most recently in the case of the move of school headquarters from the old Stearns School to the old F.A. Day Junior High School.

The original request of the School Department was for $1.2 million, but the Public Buildings Committee's firm opposition to such an amount resulted in a "compromise" figure of $550,000 for the renovations.

TRAVEL TRAILS
by ELLEN EDWARDS

Many of us are searching for the perfect island with white beaches and waving palms and no high-rises . . . Well, San Andres is "unspoiled" with plenty of beaches to spare . . . Columbians have been flocking there by the thousands every year since the mid 50s when it became a duty-free port . . . But, few of the hotels lining Avenue Columbia feature fresh water in their baths, or air conditioning to keep the nighttime insects out . . . Discovered by Spanish navigators in 1527, San Andres was settled as one bit cotton plantation, worked by slaves from Jamaica . . . San Andres is a do-it-yourself island which began attracting Americans just recently . . .

Murder Probe-

According to a reliable report, Quinn explained, it has been learned that the company had lost over $700,000 worth of business since the cirminal element had moved in.

In addition to Sullivan, the police are also questioning Jenny Doyle, a bookkeeper for the firm, in an attempt to determine the validity of the report of great financial losses.

A department spokesman also stated Newton Police were in receipt of information from their Providence, R.I., counterparts indicating Sullivan's father had recently been indicated by a grand jury in Rhode Island on charges of illegal gambling.

"This investigation may lead us to Las Vegas and ack," was the manner in which the extent of the possible probe was described by the same spokesman.

Det. Capt. Drew emphasized that Sullivan and Jenny Doyle were called in for "background purposes" only and not in connection with any direct leads or evidence.

"We're just trying to learn as much as we can about his background," Drew said.

Police Chief Quinn stated that the slain man's widow and his attorney, Harold Widett of Boston, will be asked to cooperate in the examination of personal papers and insurance policies.

According to Quinn, Mrs. Buchsbaum has admitted knowing of her husband's gambling activities but has stated he did not discuss them with her because of their three children.

The investigation thus far has revealed that Buchsbaum had recently feared for his life. "They are going to kill me," the citim had told two witnesses in the week prior to his death, police said.

Buchsbaum was also quoted as telling witnesses to "get to my desk and safe in my office," if he was killed.

Investigators searched the desk and safe at the company headquarters in Cambridge but found nothing to shed any light on the murder, according to Quinn.

Bucnsbaum was killed by a single blast from a 12-gage shotgun as he sat in the den of his home at 207 Brookline St., Bald Pate Hill. He had been talking on the telephone with a business associate when the vlast which ripped into him was fired from 21 feet away.

Quinn said the assassin had stopped under an awning of the den window, held the murder weapon less than an inch from the screen and fired the shot which hit Buchsbaum in the left side of the face and tore away part of the left hand holding the telephone.

The shooting occurred just after Buchsbaum had finished playing cards with his 12-year-old son, Michael. Buchsabum's wife, Barbara, had entered the den and proceeded to escort their son up the stairs to bed.

The murder victim had gone to the phone as his wife and son exited the room to answer a call which had just then started ringing, Quinn said.

Mrs. Buchsbaum ran down the stairs as soon as she heard a "bang" and found her husband bleeding while lying near the dropped telephone, according to Quinn.

Quinn added, "We've ruled out robbery or house intrusion as a motive. It's clear that someone did want to kill him, and went to the home with that specific intent."

"The killer was aided in his successful attempt to murder the man by the darkness in the area and the ornamental landscaping on the property," an investigator revealed.

The property was usually well-lighted by a spot light on a nearby garage, but the light on the night of the murder had not been illuminated.

"The blast was fired right rhrough screen and glass," stated investigator Det. Sgt. Ceurvels.

The body was taken to Newton-Wellesley Hospital by Newton Police and Buchsbaum was pronounced dead by Dr. Daniel R. Zoll.

Funeral services were held in Brookline last Sunday and internment was in Sharon Memorial Park, Sharon. In addition to his wife, Barbara, and son, Michael, Buchsbaum leaves another son, Mark, 10, and a daughter, Lisa, 8.

Pay

alderman — I'm a political animal. If you don't enjoy it you'd get off the board."

In favor of compensation were Aldermen Ernest Dietz and Edward Richmond. Both remarked on the expenses of being an alderman that are absorbed by their businesses (Richmond is a lawyer, Dietz a painting contractor). Richmond said that his secretary spends between one-fourth and one-third of her time on aldermanic business. Dietz commented that "constituents might get better answers to their mail if there were compensation."

Only one has-been or would-be candidate, Shella Farnese, was opposed to pay.

The other "board watchers," who have also either taken nomination papers (Lee White) or have been mentioned as possible candidates (Tom Torchia, Mike Tye, Richard Glovsky) were in favor of compensation, for various reasons.

White would use compensation to publish a newsletter to be mailed to all constituents regularly. He noted that President Emeritus of the Board, Wendell Bauckman had originally opposed pay but had changed his mind.

Torchia said, "If we truly believe in representative government, now is the time to pay aldermen. A lot of residents want to participate but are unable to. We discriminate by not paying the board."

The general attitude of the committee was difficult to determine, except for Leonard and Joseph Scalise, another board appointed member, who expressed greatest concern that "ordinary people" should be attracted to the board, not only professional people.

The question of how to freeze compensation, if it were established, to avoid an ever-increasing amount was repeated often, but never resolved.

Carroll Center Considering Renovation of Buildings

The Carroll Rehabilitation Center for the Visually Impaired is examining plans to renovate its headquarters at 770 Centre St.

Renovation will not involve new construction per se on the seven acre site, but primarily more efficient and productive use of existing facilities.

There are four buildings on the center premises. St. Raphael's closest to Centre Street, is the first one the visitor approaches and it houses the program for older blind people.

Known as St. Raphael's Geriatric Adjustment Center, established in 1965, it is the first and only residential center of its kind in New England designed to deal with the dual problems of aging and blindness. It offers a flexible program of help to older persons to adjust to his or her visual handicap and to learn to live as fully and independently as possible.

The program is designed to teach new skills or to relearn former skills. There are courses in Sensory Training, Mobility, Videation and Imagery Stimulation, Spoken and Written Communication (including handwriting, tape recording, typing and, when necessary, Braille), Crafts and Sewing, Techniques of Daily Living, Housekeeping, Community Resources, Individual Counseling, Attitudes and Self Analysis.

In addition to the residential program, a day program is available for those within commuting distance. Since its establishment in 1965, several hundred elderly blind people from as far away as Norway and Rhodesia, but mostly from Massachusetts, have been helped by the geriatric program.

The St. Raphael's building will eventually house the Research and Administrative offices.

Entering from Centre street, the visitor next encounters St. Paul's Rehabilitation Center.

This unit, established in 1954, deals primarily with newly blinded adults of working age. A residential center, the program helps up to 18 blind persons, during a 15-week program, to adjust to their blindness through courses in Restoration of Mobility, Sensory Training, Imagery Stimulation, Videation, Spoken and Written Communication, Housekeeping, Techniques of Daily Living, Analysis of Attitudes, Shop (the purpose of which is not vocation but restoration of confidence(and Fencing (to develop balance, touch, muscle memory, hearing and judgment).

St. Paul's program, the first of its kind for civilians, has been emulated in a few other states in the United States. Although most of the blind people who Massachuetts, trainees have come from all over the United States.

In future plans the St. Paul's facility will house older blind people under training as it will be closer to the training and dining facilities.

The largest building on the Carroll property is known affectionately as the "stable," which is indeed exactly what it was before it underwent renovations to become the American Center for Research in Blindness and Rehabiliation (ACRIBAR), founded in 1963.

The program at ACRIBAR is dedicated to research in depth in its field and a broad range of exchange of the results of its studies with those in correlated fields. Many of the projects have evolved from the practical problems and questions arising from direct contact with the many blinded persons who have received training.

In the future, ACRIBAR will be known as the "Community Center" and will provide dining, training and recreation facilities.

The fourth building, or Storrow Building, which faces Sargent street, currently houses the administrative offices. Since administration, in future plans, will move to the Center street building (now St. Raphael's), "Storrow" will be used to house blind people, mostly the younger group, while undergoing training.

The Carroll Rehabilitation Center currently employs people full time and part time, as well as being helped by dedicated volunteers.

A nonsectarian agency, The center's early ties were with the Catholic Church.

On September 19, 1936, the late Cardinal O'Connell founded the Catholic Union for the Blind, but shortly thereafter the name of Catholic Guild for the Blind was adopted and Rev. John J. Connolly was appointed director.

On May 27, 1938, Rev. Thomas J. Carroll was appointed assistant director. On November 4, 1946, Father Sargent street, currently houses the administrative offices. Since administration, in future plans, will move to the Center street building (now St. Raphael's), "Storrow" will be used to house blind people, mostly the younger group, while undergoing training.

The Carroll Rehabilitation Center currently employs people full time and part time, as well as being helped by dedicated volunteers.

A nonsectarian agency, The center's early ties were with the Catholic Church.

On September 19, 1936, the late Cardinal O'Connell founded the Catholic Union for the Blind, but shortly thereafter the name of Catholic Guild for the Blind was adopted and Rev. John J. Connolly was appointed director.

On May 27, 1938, Rev. Thomas J. Carroll was appointed assistant director. On November 4, 1946, Father Carroll was appointed director of the guild, and on January 15, 1947, incorporation procedures were initiated and approved by the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

Since its incorporation, the Carroll Center has not had any direct administrative connection with the Archdiocese. On July 16, 1964, the name of the Guild was changed to The Catholic Guild for All the Blind; and on July 1, 1972, to honor the late Father Carroll, the name was changed to The Carroll Rehabilitation Center for the Visually Impaired. The Center is governed by a lay Board of Directors, several of whom are from Newton.

Care To Join?

Mrs. Fred Wilcon of Newton was one of 20 volunteers working on a membership drive for Women's Division of the Greater Boston Heart Association recently.

Heart Women Annual Meeting Tuesday, June 5

The Greater Boston Heart Association Women's Division will hold its second annual meeting Tuesday evening, June 5, at the Sidney Hill Country Club in Newton.

Guest speaker for the evening is Sharon King, WBZ-TV consumer reporter. Ms. King will discuss "Crises at the Heart of the Consumer Movement."

The group will elect a new slate of officers and members of the board of directors. Mrs. Edward L. Schwartz of Weston, Women's Division president, will present a check for funds raised in the past year to Dr. Samuel Stein, president-elect of the Greater Boston Heart Association.

The Women's Division is composed of 400 area women from some 50 Greater Boston area communities. The organization conducts fund-raising, education and community service activities throughout the year in cooperation with the Greater Boston Heart Association.

For further information about the Women's Division or how to join, call the Greater Boston Heart Association at 267-4400.

Hospital To Lead Fight Against Lead Poisoning

Dr. Robert Klein, director of the state program for prevention of lead poisoning, will talk to health professionals and community groups at Newton-Wellesley Hospital on June 6 about the problem and how to set up a community program to combat it.

The hospital's pediatric outpatient department is inviting representatives of important services and agencies in Newton, Wellesley and Weston to the 8:30 a.m. meeting.

Dr. Klein, who was appointed to his present post last January, worked closely with the city of Boston prior to that to develop a program of education and testing aimed at eradication of childhood lead poisoning. Unlike other diseases, its symptoms are vague and a child may be developing a severe degree of poisoning without seeming sick.

Any house piror to 1950 is considered a potential danger and Dr. Klein will discuss other sources of lead poisoning as well. Testing is free to the Newton-Wellesley-Weston area at the state laboratory and a series of screening clinics are planned in the community and the hospital.

It is hoped that the June 6 meeting will be but a preface to a concerned community effort by the hospital and cooperating agencies to deal with the problem of lead poisoning here.

King Kong In Newton

King Kong, the most famous of folm mosters, will be seen at the Newton Free Library, 414 Centre St., Newton Corner, Thursday evening, June 7 at 7 p.m.

Directed by Merian Cooper and starring "King Kong," Fay Wray and Robert Armstrong, this 1933 version of "King Kong" tells of the terrifying experiences of a producer of jungle pictures who captures a gigantic ape and brings it to New York.

Kong, a fifty-foot ape, receives human sacrifices from the island's natives who regard him as a super-king. Kong is a veritable sky-craper among the apes and in his jungle haunts easily rules the rest of the animal world. The movie producer and his new crew capture the ape and bring him to America where he is placed on exhibit.

Specially devised technical effects and photographic ingenuity result in "King Kong" being an all-time classic spectacular of fantasy films.

The screening of "King Kong" concludes the Newton Free Library's 1972-1973 popular Thursday evening free film series - a varied selection of feature films, documentaries and family films appealing to a wide range of patrons' interests.

A free Feature Film Festival, scheduled for July and August at the Main Library, 414 Centre St., will be announced shortly. Watch the newspapers, listen to WNTN and read the library's monthly bulletin for announcements of specific days and times.

Summer hours for the Main Library and all branches begin June 2 and continue through September 30 during which time the library will be closed on Saturdays and Sundays.

Camera Buffs Show-Off

"Show-Off No. Four," the Newton Free Library Camera Club's fourth annual spring photo show opens Monday, June 4, at 7:30 p.m. when club members hold a special meeting at the Main Library, 414 Centre St., Newton Corner.

Club President Phil Coyne, together with board members Penny Smith, Jim Saret and Florence Coslow have put together a show featuring black and white prints, color prints and color slides, a representative selection of the talents of camera club members.

The show also includes photographs by Larry Myers, Larry Proia, Stan Cronig, Nat Sobel and Jack Keogh.

Club officers and members welcome inquiries from potential members of all abilities throughout the year, and particularly during their photo show. Sign-up cards for the 1973-1974 season may be left in the box near the main circulation desk, or at any branch library.

"Show-Off No. Four" remains on view at the Newton Free Library until June 19 when an exhibit of oil paintings by Mrs. Bert Feldman of Newton Centre goes up for viewing.

Summer library hours at the Main Library are 9 a.m. to 9 p.m., Monday through Friday; closed Saturdays and Sundays through Sept. 30.

TalentSoughtLocally

Chateau de Ville Productions, Gerald Roberts, producer, is looking for non equity New England talent.

With the new dinner theatre contract a small number of non-equity performers may be used in each production, but they must be able to maintain the professional standards of the rest of the company. The production company will be auditioning singers, dancers, actors, and character types for their dinner theatre productions.

Auditions will be held on Monday, June 4.

Performaers who are primarily singers will be heard at the Framingham Chateau de Ville; dancers will be auditioned in the Empire Room of the Bradford Hotel. Call backs will be held on Thursday, June 7.

Interested performers should call the rpoduction office Monday through Friday from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. at 449-4153 to make an appointment. An accompanist will be supplied, but singers should bring their own music.

Dancers trained in tap and-or point should bring the appropriate shoes. Clint Hamblin, the dance supervisor will audition the groups of dancers.

The company's musical supervisor, Kevin Farrell, will hear the singers. Clint, Kevin and the casting director Bunni Roberts, will all be on hand for the call backs.

The production company wants to stress the importance of setting up an appointment for auditions. No one will be seen or heard who has not made previous arrangements with the production office.

Chateau de Ville Productions produces all of the shows performed at the Chateau de Ville Dinner Theatres. There are now four theatres in Saugus, Framingham, Randolph, and Warwick, R.I. Another is scheduled to open in Connecticut in the fall.

Non-equity performers will be hired both for the run of the show, and in some cases as replacements at specific theatres. Working with Chateau de Ville Productions would be an excellent experience for new talent.

Alan Katz Makes Bid For Ward 8 Aldermanic Post

can all work together for their solution."

"For example," he said, "the tax rate, of course, is an issue.

"Stronger lobbying efforts at the State House, revenue sharing drives, and the eventual elimination of the regressive property tax are needed. In addition, cost savings realizable through the application of modern management techniques to our city governmental apparatus should continue to be encouraged.

"Revaluation, whether you favor or oppose it, has been commanded by court order. We must proceed with that process."

"Racial tensions should not be overlooked as another serious problem," he said. "Discrimination is a fact of life to many Newton residents, black or white.

"The environment must be protected. No open space should be sacrificed without the utmost discussion, study, and, of course, need. A presumption should exist against using any open space for other than recreational purposes."

"Cable TV should continue to undergo study," Katz went on to say. "We need to plan carefully for its entrance into the city. Drug usage remains a very serious problem not only among youth but for many adults as well."

"Women's rights in Newton," Katz continued, "especially in our school system, have not been guarded. There is no reason for Newton to lag behind in this area."

"Lastly, I favor continued School Committee autonomy. For as much as its autonomy causes difficulties, a politicized school committee would be far less effective."

Katz attended Newton South High School wher he was a member of the National Htnor Society. After graduation from Newton South High in 1961, he went on to receive a B.A. degree from Tufts University, where he graduated cum laude, and a J.D. degree from New York University Law School. While at New York University, Katz served on the Law and Psychiatry project at Bellevue Hospital in New York City. He wrote an honor code for the university which was subsequently adopted by numerous colleges and universities throughout the country.

In 1969, Katz returned to Newton to teach at Newton North High School. He taught English and created the first law curriculum used by Newton high school students. As part of the course in law, Mr. Katz took students to Bridgewater State Hospital, The Charles Street Jail, and district and superior courts of the Commonwealth. He plans to publish his law materials for high school students by September.

Katz next joined a law firm in Boston to specialize in trial practice. He later received an appointment to the Massachusetts Labor Relations Commission wher he currently concentrates on public sector labor law.

He has also served on the School Building Advisory Committee, and has assisted the City of Newton in fiscal affairs relative to the public schools. He is vice-president of the Newton Jaycees, and serves as the organization's legal counsel. He is chairman of the Jaycee Scholarship Committee for high school students, and most recently founded the Jaycee Volunteer Probation Program in conjunction with the Newton District Court.

Katz recently was elected to a three-year term on the board of directors of Newton Mental Health, and appointed to the advisory committee of the Human Relations Commission.

Silver Fawn

Roberta Cole was the second recipient in the history of the Norumbega Council to receive the Silver Fawn Award. She received the award for her dedication to the youngpeople of her temple, her service in the PTA at Mason Rice School, her 12 years of guidance as a den mother of Pack No. 218 in Newton Centre, and her devotion to her own eight children. She is shown here with her husband Bernard.

Police Honor Fallen Brethren

Over 300 police officers, police women, wives, husbands and friends of the Newton Police Department, including members of the Board of Aldermen, joined with members of the Newton Police Memorial Association in its 36th annual memorial service at Aquinas College Chapel recently.

Mass was celebrated by Fr. Cajetan Bendernagel of St. Gabriel's Monastery, assisted by Fr. John Balcom of St. Paul's Episcopal Church, Newton Highlands, and Monsigneur James Keating of St. Sebastian's School, Newton.

In keeping with ecumenism, Rabbi Robert Miller of Temple Beth Avodah gave the invocation, and Rev. Henry Brooks of Andover Theological School gave the Benediction at the breakfast that followed.

Annually the Police Memorial Association meets to pay homage to the officers of the department who have passed on. The first meeting was held to memorialize Patrolmen Henry G. Bell and Lawrence E. Murphy, both killed in the performance of their duties in 1937.

The highlight of the breakfast was the presentation of the Philip Purcell Memorial Scholarship by the president of the Newton School Traffic Supervisors, Mary Williams. The recipient of the award was John P. Kelly, a graduate of Boston Collegege High School, and son of Mrs. Paula Kelly.

Invited guests at the head table included Chief and Mrs. William F. Quinn, Mayor and Mrs. Theodore D. Mann, President of the Board of Aldermen Eliot Cohen, Administrative Assistant to the Mayor James Salter, Hon. Donald Gibbs, Senior Retired Officer James McMahon, and President of the Memorial Association John Quinn and his wife.

Chief William F. Quinn asked for a moment of silence for deceased officers Richard Braceland, Thomas Ganly, Charles Duffey, and Mrs. Sylvia Frechette. In addition, he announced with regret the retirement of Deputy Chief William Burke, Captain Paul Donahue, and Patrolmen Joseph Devoy and Edward Holt.

Mayor Mann extended the greetings of the City of Newton.

Principal speaker was Hon. Elijah Adlow, retired chief justice of the Boston Municipal Court, who spoke on the history of prejudice against authority with special emphasis on prejudice against police.

In his remarks the judge advised the officers to watch the Watergate hearings to get an idea of what non-legal and unconstitutional questions may be asked as compared to the type asked in court proceedings.

He also stated that more constitutional law has been changed because of drunks and pickpocket operators than any other group. The Miranda law is an example of such a change. In addition, Judge Adlow pointed out that informers and threatened people are the best source of information.

The judge concluded that the best effort by any police officer is one governed by compassion and common sense.

He is the highest ranking scouting volunteer in Newton and is responsible for coordinating the efforts of its 550 scout volunteers. Pohlman is the principal of the Greenlodge School in Dedham.

PTA Sponsors Tea For Librarians

The Library Committee of the Newton Council of PTAs wound up its year of commitment to the Newton school libraries with a tea for its librarians, parent volunteers, school administrators, school committee, and library consultants from the Division of Instruction.

Over 100 guests were present at the reception which took place May 24 at the Beethoven School. A short program presented by School Librarians Carole Slattery, Jane Walsh and Peg White keynoted "Sexism in Children's Books," and was followed by an informal discussion period with guests and panelitsts.

Superintendent of Schools Aaron Fink, and Secretary of the School Committee Mrs. Lillian Radlo, squeezed in time from a heavily-scheduled day to extend the administration's appreciation for the thousands of hours of work donated by the over 350 library volunteers.

Others from the administration and staff were Miss Elvajean Hall, supervisor of Library Services; Henry Atkins, assistant superintendent for Programs; and Dr. John Cullinana, director of Pupil Personnel Services. Hosting the parent volunteers and school principals were the school librarians and the co-chairmen of the PTA Council Library Committee.

The Council Library Co-Chairmen Mrs. S. Wendell Kravitz and Mrs. Harry Kirsch, hope the committee can continue to provide "an exchange of information through workshops and the newsletter, 'Library Link.' The Newton School Librarians do a most extraordinary job — often serving more than one school," noted the co-chairmen. "But today, core library and media centers depend on the assistance of library volunteers with the continued encouragement and cooperation of Miss Elvajean Hall and the school librarians," they added.

In the first edition of the "Library Link," a publication coordinated by the Council Library Committee, School Library Chairmen, volunteers and librarians pooled their activities in an idea exchange.

A myriad of ideas for meeting library needs and enriching its services brought new insights to the parents and professionals who staff the libraries. Recycling of discarded materials of all types was a central theme. Range of hints went from covered bricks as bookends, "instant" story-telling boards made from flannel-covered bookcase sides and backs, "Honor System" — identified paperbacks for borrowing at will, student-authored books added to circulation, issuing of paper grocery bags to over-due bookholders with gentle reminder printed on same, to best buys in library supplies.

The Council Library Committee hopes to be a clearinghouse for questions and answers regarding special problems, especially reclaiming lost or overdue books, recreuting, caring and labelling of books for more functional use.

At a recent Library Art Workshop, ways to make elementary school libraries more attractive were exchanged. Again the use of discarded materials, i.e., packaging, cardboards, magazine print for lettering — along with the use of a wide range of audio-visual materials from the Division of Instruction provided a wealth of resource material for librarians and volunteers.

School Librarians, Miss Hall at the division, and parent volunteers welcome comments and suggestions regarding their library program in the schools. Individuals to be contacted are C. Kirsch, 969-0011; B. Kravitz, 332-5084; F. Ross, 969-4439; N. Rosenberg, 332-0173; or E. Hackett 244-6469.

Innovations In Sound

You've probably never thought of your car as an ideal stereo listening studio. Well, it is! The minute you sit in your stereo equipped auto, you're blanketed in thrilling sound. You'll witness an entirely new perspective in stereo listening; a richness in stereophony and realism of sound reproduction that has never before been possible. Now, with stereo tape cartridges, whether you listen in your car, home, boat, plane or trailer you enjoy an unparallelled sound sensation . . . crisp clarity and maximum fidelity, superior craftsmanship . . . and a wealth of music for every taste from Broadway to The Beatles, from current hits to classical.

Stereo cartridges are carefully engineered to afford maximum reliability and convenience of operation.

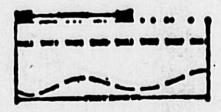
1. You never have to thread or even touch the tape.

2. You may change from one stereo program to another with the press of a button.

3. Tapes are continuous and never need rewinding.

4. With a minimum of care, the playing life of the tape is practically unlimited.

What is four-track and eight-track stereo tape? Within the ¼-inch tape width, music is recorded on four or eight parallel tracks which run the length of the tape. Two tracks play simultaneously and produce true stereo sound. Standard tapes provide up to 40 minutes of continuous music. Twin cartridges up to 80 minutes.



How does a tape cartridge work Stereo cartridges contain a tape in a continuous loop, which simply means that the tape runs from the center of the spool and is returned to the outer lap of the reel. Thus, never needs rewinding. Inserting the cartridge into the tape playback unit is probably as easy as replacing your cigarette lighter in the dash.

Seeing is believing, however, and perhaps the least expensive method for you to experience the unusual convenience engineered into a stereo tape is to visit a dealer and ask for a demonstration.

Realizing that stereo tapes are here to stay, Lechmere Sales of Cambridge and Dedham is now compiling substantial stocks. This foresighted record dealer and department store devoted exclusively to providing the consumer with even a larger and more complete musical selection than previously realized with the more traditional record album departments.

Long recognized as a retailing leader and innovator, Lechmere now features perhaps the largest selection of stereo tape cartridges in New England. It's a certainty that a visit to either Lechmere in Cambridge or Dedham will prove a most rewarding musical experience.

Preventive House Maintenance

By DOROTHEA M. BROOKS

NEW YORK (UPI) — The proverbial "stitch in time" can save the homeowner many a headache —and repair bill.

Preventive maintenance — giving your house regular checkups and taking prompt action at the first sign of trouble —not only will keep a house in top shape, but will keep repair bills to a minimum.

"Don't let the roof leak before you repair it. Don't let a hairline crack in the mortar become a gap. And don't think a brand new house takes care of itself," advises First National City Bank of New York in a Consumer Views pamphlet for homeowners.

Citibank advises the homeowner to work out a schedule of points to check, both inside and outside the house, and stick to it systematically, spreading the work over the year.

It recommends that every homeowner buy a practical manual of home improvement, maintenance and repairs, become acquainted with a well-stocked hardware store, where the employees are knowledgeable and helpful and, where possible, familiarize himself with the plans for his house. The plans tell you where switches, drains, circuits and pipes are located; they give dimensions, list the materials already used in the house and other data. Lacking the plans, a homeowner can gradually build up a chart, or file, of information about the house as he becomes familiar with it.

Familiarity with your house is important. Whether you take care of repairs yourself —many are so minor it pays to do so — or call in a specialist, Citibank advises, be sure to do your own checkups. It is the best way to arm yourself against rackets or unnecessary repairs. When you know your house, no one can sell you a new roof or major repair unless you need it.

When you do need a specialist, a carpenter, plumber, electrician, roofer, furnace man, Citibank stresses, always ask for recommendations in your neighborhood and get more than one price estimate.

For your year-round home maintenance check list, Citibank offers the following suggested plan to help you work out an individual schedule:

SPRING
(after the rains)

—Storm windows —clean, repair, paint and store.

—Put up screens.

—Treat window boxes for rust, and paint them.

—Clean and repair outside faucets.

—Hunt for termite traces. Call exterminator if found.

—Inspect and repair roof, chimney, outside walls; drains and downspouts; driveways, walks, terraces.

SUMMER

—Furnace —clean annually.

—Chimneys, —clean every third summer.

— Radiators — check for leaks; repair broken valves; check filters.

—Garage —put in order and paint cement floor if needed.

FALL

—Paint the exterior every three to five years. May be done in spring or fall. Do-it-yourselfers may want to adopt a schedule of painting a portion of the house every year so the job never becomes a major one.

—Drain and turn off outside faucets.

—Clean, repair and put away screens.

—Put up storm windows.

—Clean, repair, paint and store awnings.

—Inspect weather stripping and repair or replace if necessary.

—Hunt for termite traces; call exterminator if any found.

—Fences —repair and paint.

—Inspect and repair: roof, chimney, outside walls; drains and downspouts; driveways, walks, terraces, outdoor stairs; foundation, crawlspace, cellar, attic; windows and doors.

WINTER
(indoor work)

—Paint interior as needed, at least every three years.

—Air conditioning —inspect and clean equipment, check filters, have necessary repairs done in off-season.

—Screens —clean and repair if not done in fall.

—Outdoor furniture —clean and paint.

—Hoses —clean and repair.

—Tools —clean, replace handles if needed; have lawn mower readied for spring.

—Inspect and repair: inside walls and floors; stairs.

REGULAR CHORES

—Water heater —every few months drain off one or two buckets.

—Sinks and faucets —check, repair, drain and install washers as needed.

Alcohol Is the Biggest Drug Problem in Country

"It's no secret anymore: Alcohol, not heroin or hashish, is the cause of the biggest drug problem in the United States," says Morris E. Chafetz, M.D., psychiatrist and director of the National Institute on Alcohol Abuse and Alcoholism, in the May issue of The PTA Magazine.

Dr. Chafetz points out that nine million Americans are alcoholics, almost 10 percent of the nation's work force. These victims and their problems touch the lives of another 40 million people, many of whom are children.

"Our society acknowledges the tip of the iceberg - the obvious alcoholic, the derelict," he says, "yet overlooks or ignores the 'hidden' millions who drink too much too often. These are the ones who, ironically, toast their own illness, yet manage to get to work most days and, despite their problem, somehow rear families."

The magazine story reports that in the last two years, the federal government has made a legislative commitment to attack the problem of drinking and has established the National Institute on Alcohol Abuse and Alcoholism (NIAAA).

"These are significant steps," Dr. Chafetz believes, "for they signal, perhaps, the beginning of a change in public attitude. The legislation wasn't passed in a vacuum: it was passed in response to the deplorable conditions that have made alcohol the most abused drug in the nation."

Dr. Chafetz indicates that one of the highest priorities of the NIAAA is the development of public education programs. These programs seek to prevent the abuse of alcohol by changing attitudes and practices - changes that are essential if problems involving alcohol are to be reduced.

Special pilot education projects to combat alcohol and cigarette smoking have been initiated in five states by the national PTA. The NIAAA, a unit of the U.S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, has provided funds for the National PTA to work toward solutions for growing problems related to alcoholism in young people. It has joined the National PTA and the National Clearinghouse for Smoking and Health, also a unit of HEW, to launch this innovative education-information program.

The pilot programs, which are being conducted in the states of Connecticut, Louisiana, Mississippi, Texas, and Wisconsin, are enabling parents and youth to work together to combat cigarette smoking and alcohol abuse. These programs, however, are only the latest of numerous efforts in the field being conducted by PTA in many other states under the leadership of the National PTA, a multi-million-member organization.

As Dr. Chafetz points out, such public education programs point out the clear distinction between responsible and irresponsible drinking. They also stress that any person's decision to abstain from alcohol should be fully accepted, and that he should not be subjected to overt or subtle pressures to take a drink.

To further its emphasis on alcohol abuse and alcoholism through public education programs, the National PTA has scheduled a workshop, "Alcohol: A Family Affair," at its annual convention to be held May 20-23 at the Chase-Park Plaza Hotel in St. Louis, Mo. Moderator of the workshop is Mrs. Carolyn Hendrick, program coordinator, National PTA Smoking and Alcohol Education Project.

State and Local Spending Almost Double in Ten Years

State and local government spending grew at almost double the rate of the economy supporting it from 1961 to 1971, according to a Massachusetts Taxpayers Foundation report published Monday, May 21.

The report, titled "State Budget Trends," shows the economy has grown by 90 percent in those 10 years while government spending increased by 176 percent, rising from 8.43 to 12.25 percent of the gross state product.

The report also shows state and local governments now claim more than one-tenth of all Massachusetts workers.

"These facts raise serious question," says Richard A. Manley, MTF president, "as to whether we have reached or passed the point where further growth in the public sector will be at the expense of the state's private economy."

In terms of payrolls, the report shows that in 1971 each state and local government employe was backed by 9.5 private workers. Ten years before the ratio was one to 11.

The Governor's fiscal 1974 budget recommends a net increase of 1,681 more positions than were provided for in 1973 appropriations. And budget recommendations for state salaries and consultant services are about $50 million more than 1973 appropriations.

"This kind of employe and payroll growth for only one year at the state level merely reflects a continuation of an alarming trend our public officials must stop, or at the very least, slow down long enough for the economy to catch up," says Manley.

"Recent mushrooming state tax collections," he noted, "give some hope of a temporary halt in this historic trend."

New Headmaster at Beaver Country Day

The trustees of the Beaver Country Day School in Chestnut Hill have announced the appointment of Philip E. McCurdy as headmaster of the school. McCurdy will assume his duties there on August 1. Since 1969, McCurdy has served as headmaster of the Calhoun School in New York City, a private coeducational school with an enrollment of 430 students from Nursery through Grade 12.

McCurdy is a native of Massachusetts. After graduating from Wellesley High School in 1952, he received his A.B. in biology, cum laude, from Harvard in 1956, and his M.A.T. with honors from the Harvard Graduate School of Education the following year.

His teaching experience includes two years at Brookline High School and two years at the Loomis School in Windsor, Conn., as a biology teacher. For four years he was chairman of the Science Department at the Rockland Country Day School in Congers, N. Y., and he received the 1964 Service Award from the Association for the Help of Retarded Children, Rockland County, N. Y.

From 1964 to 1966 he served in Nigeria as a specialist in science under the auspices of the United States Agency for International Development. From 1966 to 1969 McCurdy served with the General Learning Corporation, first as special assistant to Mr. Francis Keppel, former U. S. Commissioner of Education, and later as director of the Environment Services Department.

He is a member of the board of directors of the Guild of Independent Schools of New York and a trustee of the Schools Institute in New York City.

He is married to the former Marla Walkling, a graduate of Tufts University. Mrs. McCurdy is the director of the West End Collegiate Playschool in New York City. The McCurdys have two daughters, Lisa Ann, aged 16, and Kristina, aged 10. They will reside in the headmaster's house on Woodlawn road near the school.

McCurdy succeeds Donald R. Nickerson who will become headmaster of the LaJolla Country Day School in LaJolla Calif., on July 1. Last year Beaver celebrated the 50th anniversary of its founding and is now completing its third year as a co-educational secondary school. McCurdy will be its fourth headmaster.

TV Notes

NEW YORK (UPI) — CBS will reprise on Aug. 24 the two-hour television version of Arthur Miller's play, "Death of a Salesman," starring Lee J. Cobb and Mildred Dunnock. Its original air date was May 8, 1966.

Anne Lockhart, who will be in the cast of the Hallmark Hall of Fame drama, "Lisa, Bright and Dark," in the fall, is the daughter of June Lockhart, veteran stage, movie and television star.

Jada Rowland, an original cast member at age 11 when "The Secret Storm" daytime drama series began on CBS Feb. 2, 1954, has returned to the cast as the same character after being off the program for two years. The series marked its 5,000th broadcast in May.

The Coaches All-Star Football Game July 27 at Soldier Field in Chicago will be telecast at 9:35 p.m., by ABC. The Miami Dolphins, pro football's Super Bowl Champions, will meet a team of the best seniors of the 1972 college season.

No more suspense — Bert Parks will be back to put the Miss America Pageant through it's annual paces at Atlantic City on Sept. 8. But isn't he always? Vonda Van Dyke, Miss America of 1965, will serve as co-host for the NBC telecast of the spectacle.

Irish star Cyril Cusack will be in the cast of "Catholics" when this dramatization of Brian Moore's new novel of that title is telecast as a "CBS Playhouse 90" attraction in the fall.

"Faraday and Company," one of the four alternating 90-minute dramas that will make up the "NBC Wednesday Night Mystery Movie" series next season, stars Dan Dailey as a private detective who has escaped from a South American prison where he was held without trial for 25 years. One of his problems is adjusting to today's way of life, which includes a grown son he never knew existed.

"Watergate Cocktail" ....

ASK LUCY

By LUCY SORRENTO

Dear Lucy:

I was going to phone, but my phone lines have been cut. My husband, John, had a delicious drink — called Watergate Cocktail, with his veal parmigiana at Sorretto II — recipe please. Trust me to keep it a secret.

Martha M.

Dear Martha:

Cheers! 1 oz. President Bourbon, 1 oz. F.B.I. orange juice, ½ oz. C.I.A. Vermouth (dry), dash of Senate Bitters, lots of Democratic ice, 2 oz. Staff Head Soda. Most important, the drink should be mixed by an anonymous bartender.

Dear Lucy:

I gave the same gifts to my wife and mother on Mother's Day — they found out!

Help

Dear Help:

Take your wife to Sorrento II for dinner - she'll forgive you. Take your mother there for lunch . . . she'll forgive you too.

Dear Lucy:

You have a touch of Bragadozza. I had dinner at Sorrento II . . . the meal was good, but I've had better. Sign me,

No Name

Dear No Name:

I was sitting at the next booth the night you were there . . . your line isn't bad either. Next time, bring your own wife — it's difficult to relax and enjoy good food, with a guilty conscience!

Dear Lucy:

I can't get my husband to take me out for dinner — I'd love to try Sorrento II. Any suggestions?

Hungry

Dear Hungry:

Tell your husband your mothers' coming for the weekend and suggest you play Monopoly on Friday night, Scrabble Saturday night, Charades Sunday afternoon — I think you'll dine out one night . . . maybe all three.

Dear Lucy:

My husband is so dumb, he thinks a royal flush is the John at Buckingham Palace and Sorrento II is the brother of Sorrento I. Should I leave him?

Unhappy

Dear Unhappy:

No. Buy him some Silly Putty and an erector set . . . He sounds like he's happy.

Modernization Hits French Wine-Making

By ALINE MOSBY

ARBOIS, France (UPI) — Pasteurized wine? Machine-made cheeses? The modernization of old France influences the onetime hand-made delicacies of this storybook village in the Jura mountains.

Any vision a traveler has of great wines aging in dusty barrels in stone caves vanishes when you pull into the town of 5,000 to see American-style billboards proclaiming the wines of Henri Maire.

Maire visited California wineries to learn how to apply mass market methods to the Arbois region where his family has been making wine since 1632.

Maire, 55, organized grape growers, planted new fields and built a modern glass-and-steel winery where the traditional wooden wine presses are used only to hold flowers in the lobby. Computers keep track of the clients of his vast 10 billion dollar a year mail order business.

The Maire wines are pasteurized, a bow to Louis Pasteur who lived in Arbois. This being France, Pasteur conducted his famous bacteria experiments on wine, not milk, "right on that hill behind the vineyards," Maire said.

In Paris, the National Wine Committee says "pasteurization usually is reserved for little ordinary wines for mass sales." But Maire scoffs that "this legend that wine to be good has need of bad medieval style surroundings is destroyed forever."

Huge Vats Used

To promote the pasteurized wine, the Henri Maire winery takes visitors on tours of the wine plant and then to see Franche-Comte cheese made in modern factories in the snow-covered Jura mountains behind the vineyards.

For tourists, especially those driving from Paris to Geneva, this is a chance to see wine and cheese being made. Tourists also can visit the paternal home of Pasteur, where the scientist lived from the age of four until his death. He conducted his bacteria experiments in two laboratories upstairs where some wine still rests in the test tubes.

In the mountains, one Comte cheese factory still is a family affair where the gruyere-like cheese is made by hand following the custom of centuries. The milk is curdled in big copper vats. A black cat was sitting atop one during our tour.

Workers scoop out the butter-fat curds in cheesecloth and form them into round wooden molds. After a saltwater bath, the molds are slapped onto storage shelves to ferment for four months before going to food stores.

Seeking Standardization

At the more modern cheese factories in the mountains, the milk curdles in ceiling-high vats that the workers cannot tend by hand. The curds are taken out in metal forms by more machinery and trundled on a mechanical assembly line to fermenting store rooms. It is all very sanitary and the cheese does not taste as good as in the family-style cheesery.

A spokesman for the dairy farmers' cooperative that is pushing the mechanized cheese factories complains that "with hand made cheese, each cheese from each village tastes different." Is that bad? "Yes," he says. "We are trying to standardize the cheese so the quality always will be the same," alas.

The only hazard of these two day wine-cheese tours is that the Henri Maire people insist you taste 25 different kinds of wine and as many cheeses.

Other than the mechanized cheeses and wines, this town is so out of the way that even the grafitti is behind the times. "Johnson Assassin", says one anti-war sign on a stone wall.

The town's leading restaurant, Taverne de la Finette, serves a nine-course meal featuring cheese fondue, the specialty of the region. The rustic Hotel de Paris with beamed ceilings offers double rooms for around $14.

Beck, Bogert, and Appice: Super Group With Karma

By BRUCE MEYER
United Press International

Beck, Bogert and Appice are three soloists who have discovered that channel of communication peculiar only to musicians, particularly jazz musicians. They have good karma.

Jeff Beck is one of the three or four best rock guitarists in the world, long hampered by backing musicians who could not keep up with him. Tim Bogert and Carmine Appice are the rhythm system that made Vanilla Fudge and Cactus work. They are, in the traditional sense of a rock journalism cliche, a "supergroup."

Having been burned too many times by the idea that you can take just about any combination of "name" performers, plug them in and expect great music to come pouring forth like milk and honey in the Promised Land, I approached BBA with skepticism.

The "super-group" idea started with Cream, in the late 60s. Eric Clapton, Jack Bruce and Ginger Baker got together and stormed the rock world like a 6,000-watt hurricane. But few of their imitators enjoyed similar fortunes, which is a nice way of saying they stunk.

Bogert Is Tops

Beck, Bogert and Appice are the kind of exception that proves the rule. I talked recently with Beck, and mentioned the inevitable comparison with Cream.

"It's the same formula, of course," he said, "but the playing influences are totally different—Tim is like an electric rock 'n' roll Motown bassist, and Carmine plays nothing like Ginger and I don't play like Eric, but the instrumentation is the same—the same as Cream and as Jimi Hendrix.

"Everyone (in BBA) is conscious of the next person's playing, which is so unusual—you rarely get this kind of give and take. I know I can pull out any rhythm, or any sort of influence, and they can pick up on it."

Appice is a flashy drummer, but he has a perfect sense of rhythm, and can maintain an almost machine-like beat (which is a quality rarer than you'd think).

As for Bogert, he is simply the best rock bassist in the world.

Producer Needed

When Beck first started toying with the idea of teaming up with Bogert and Appice a couple of years ago, it was to have been a quartet, with Rod Stewart up front. But then Beck was sidelined by an auto accident, Bogert and Appice moved from The Fudge to Cactus, and Stewart joined The Faces.

Looking at what Stewart is into now, I doubt if it would have worked out, but the idea of a singer up front is a good one still, despite Beck's vow to retain the three-piece format.

There is, however, one thing BBA need even more than a singer: they desperately need a producer. Their first album, "Beck, Bogert and Appice" (Epic KE-32140), includes all the licks from their live show, but there is an intensity lacking. The album is a frustrating appetizer to the stage act's ten-course dinner.

If BBA are to be successful in the studio, they must have someone to bring their music out. And though Beck insists he is happy with the album, he is looking for "a good producer-Glyn Johns, or someone like that," which bodes well for album two.

It must be nice to start on top—and have nowhere to go but up.

Across The Kitchen Counter

Ruth Lenson

Do you know the difference between spices and herbs? Fragrant though they both may be, herbs are the leaves or flowers and spices are roots, bark, stems, buds, seeds or fruit.

Just a dash of the right spice or herb can make an ordinary dish something very special. Spices and herbs add flavor, color and aroma to food and while there are no hard-and fast rules for the use of spices, one should experiment, using a light hand. It's far better to use a few seasonings well than to stock your cupboard with everything from anise seed to tumeric and leave them untouched until they've lost their effectiveness.

If you have a bit of land to garden, it's fun growing herbs to reap not only the pleasure of fresh herbs but also to enjoy the fragrance the plants exude. You don't need a lot of room to grow herbs, a small plot is adequate where the sun hits the garden most of the day and where there is good drainage. Those without a garden can grow their herbs in pots on the window sill.

A bouquet garni (or garnished bouquet) is a tiny bundle of fresh herbs of your choice tied together securely so that it may slip easily into a pot to simmer exquisite fragrance into a sauce, stew, soup or any such cooking liquid. For your first bouquet you could combine a bay leaf, thyme and parsley wrapped together and tied with a bit of fine twine. Always remove bouquet garni from cooking liquid before serving.

Some facts about spices and the when and how to use them:

Sage: Once known primarily for its use as a tonic to calm nerves and strengthen muscles, the herb is important used in sausages, poultry seasoning, and in flavoring pork dishes. Available whole, rubbed or crushed and ground.

Basil? To the Hindus it is holy; to the Italians, basil means love; to the French basil is associated with hatred and abuse. This clove scented herb rivals oregano in its use in tomato dishes.

Thyme: In the middle ages, thme was a symbol of courage and strength. Used to flavor poultry and poultry stuffings, fish sauces, tomato dishes.

Oregano: Best known as the pizza spice, this spice is a member of the mint family and is also used in omelets, beef and lamb dishes.

Marjoram: In Greek it means "joy of the mountain". Its delicate sweet flavor is used in cream sauces, fish dishes, meat loaf and stuffings.

Rosemary: Legend has it that the blossoms got their heavenly color because Mary hung her blue cloak on a rosemary bush when the Holy Family stopped to rest during their flight to Egypt. Rosemary is sacred to friendship and rememberance, and it is said that rosemary will not grow in the garden of one who is not just and righteous. Primarily used to season lamb dishes, potatoes, green vegetables and poultry stuffings.

Chives: A member of the lily family, chives flavor cottage cheese, omelets, potatoes, shrimp, lobster and vichysoisse and are available freeze-dried as well as fresh.

Tarragon: Grows happily either in sun or partial shade; if you cut the plants back a few times during the season, you will help the growth of new shoots. This herb lends its pungency to tartar sauces, marinades for fish, to herb butters, green salads and herb vinegars.

Fresh herbs are more aromatic than dried ones; a rule of thumb is to use about half as much of a dried herb as a fresh one and to use dried herbs in cold dishes only if they have been cooked or soaked.

To freeze herbs, wash them well and dry thoroughly; place in small plastic bags. These herbs can be used in cooking, not for garnishing when defrosted.

LEMON HERB BUTTER

This herb butter is the perfect complement to broiled, sauteed, or fried fish.

½ cup butter
1 tablespoon lemon juice
¼ teaspoon grated lemon rind
1 tablespoon EACH finely chopped parsley, and chives
½ teaspoon EACH minced basil and chervil.

Cream butter with lemon juice and grated lemon rind. Add herbs and mix well. Spread on fish while it is very hot; garnish with thin lemon slices.

HOMEMADE SEASONING

½ teaspoon celery seed
½ teaspoon garlic salt
1 teaspoon poppy seed
1 teaspoon monosodium glutamate
1 teaspoon paprika
1 teaspoon sesame seed
1 teaspoon finely grated parmesan cheese

With a small mortar and pestle, grind the celery seed; stir in the remaining ingredients. Sprinkle a bit of this seasoning over buttered snap beans, boiled new potatoes or rice; or over greens tossed with salad oil and lemon juice; or on buttered this slices of French bread before broiling.

CHICKEN STUFFED MUSHROOMS

12 medium-size mushrooms (about 1-¾ inches in diameter
One-third cup sauterne
1-½ teaspoons lemon juice
Salt
1 egg yolk
2 tablespoons butter
Pinch tarragon
Two-thirds cup finely chopped cooked chicken
Paprika

Wash mushrooms and remove stems. (Save stems for a sauce or soup.) Combine sauterne and lemon juice in skillet, add mushrooms, and simmer, closely covered, for about 10 minutes. Remove mushrooms, drain well and sprinkle lightly with salt. Boil down liquid in skillet to 2 tablespoons. Combine with lightly beaten egg yolk, butter, tarragon and a pinch of salt in a very small saucepan. Cook over low heat, stirring constantly, until thickened. Remove from heat and blend in chicken. Spoon into mushroom caps. Sprinkle lightly with paprika. Heat in moderate oven, 350 degrees, about 10 minutes. Serve hot.

SESAME SEED — one of the most versatile seeds because of its rich nut-like flavor. Oval-shaped and creamy white, when lightly browned for 15 minutes in a moderate oven these seeds taste like toasted almonds. May be used in cookies, pie crusts, candies, dips, casserole, salads and cheese spreads.

1 tablespoon sesame seed, browned, added to 1 lb. ground beef.

One-third sesame seed, browned, added to 3 cups stuffing for poultry or meat.

SESAME WAFERS

½ cup sesame seed
1 cup butter or margarine
Two-thirds cup sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon milk
½ teaspoon almond extract and
One and two-thirds cups all purpose flour

Toast sesame seed in 350 degree oven for 15 minutes or until golden brown. Cream butter (or margarine), sugar and salt until light and fluffy. Add remaining ingredients, mixing well. Chill. Shape into small balls. Place on ungreased baking sheet 2 to 3 inches apart. Bake in 350 degree oven for 15 minutes or until lightly browned. Cool slightly before removing from pan. Yields: 4 dozen

CHICKEN DIAMOND HEAD

¼ cup instant minced onion
¼ cup water
4 tablespoons butter or margarine, divided
1 can (5 oz.) water chestnuts, drained and finely chopped
1 cup soft bread crumbs
¼ cup light cream or milk
½ pound ground lean pork
¼ pound ground lean veal
1 egg, beaten
2 tablespoons soy sauce, divided
1-¼ teaspoons ground ginger, divided
⅛ teaspoon ground red pepper
3 chicken breasts, split and boned
¾ teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons honey
½ teaspoon powdered mustard
4 teaspoons sesame seed

Combine onion with water; let stand for 10 minutes to rehydrate. In a small skillet heat 2 tablespoons of the butter. Add rehydrated onion and water chestnuts. Saute 5 minutes; set aside. In a large bowl combine bread crumbs and cream. Stir in sauteed onion mixture, meats, egg, 1 tablespoon of the soy sauce; 1 teaspoon of the ginger and red pepper. Mix well, but do not overmix. Divide into 6 mounds; arrange in a buttered 12x7x2-inch baking dish; set aside. Sprinkle chicken with salt. Place half of a breast over each mound skin side up. Combine remaining 2 tablespoons butter with honey; mix well. Slowly stir in remaining 1 tablespoon soy sauce, powdered mustard and ¼ teaspoon ginger. Spoon mixture over chicken. Bake in a preheated moderate oven, 350 degrees for 40-45 minutes until chicken is tender, basting occasionally with pan drippings. Sprinkle sesame seed on chicken; increase oven temperature to 450 degrees and bake until well browned. Yield 6 portions.

GROW YOUR OWN HERBS and prepare a tuna patchwork salad by arranging three cans (six and one-half or seven ounces each) in center of platter. Surround with carrot curls, cherry tomatoes, cucumber slices, radishes, parsley, chopped chives, a few sprigs of mint. Serve with your favorite salad dressing.

Swimsuits Are Slim And Sleek This Summer

If you're planning a two-week vacation, a cruise, or lazy afternoons at the seashore, you're probably looking for a new swimsuit.

What's new? A variety of new silhouettes that blend every style you've seen in the past few years—the good old skirted swimsuit, maillot, bikini and the addition of one news item, the sweater swimsuit.

Perhaps you can recall the itchy wool suits you wore as a child. Gone. In their place itch-less, bra-free sweater suits that are made in miracle fiber knit and available in one and two-piece suits. The colors are bright solids as well as brilliant patterns. If the no-bra look turns you off, most of these suits have wide strapped tops, so you would be perfectly comfortable wearing your own bra underneath.

Many women feel more at ease wearing a skirted swim dress. This summer these styles are refreshingly younger looking—some sport ruffles and pretty gathered skirts.

Vacationers who are concerned with the weight of their holiday clothes can relax, according to the Peter Pan Swimwear edict that claims that a gal can pack a swimsuit, matching shirt, Palazzo pants and a bra dress in her shoulder bag and be one of the best dressed over a long weekend.

Most suits, from the bikini to the classic, are colorfully coordinated with long skirts, sleeveless coats, long and short shirts, Palazzo pants and attractive bra dresses. In fact, a step-in shirt can be worn over a swimsuit as a cover-up, tucked into a skirt to make a complete outfit for street wear, then worn on into the evening for cocktails and dinner.

Although lightweight stretch fabrics of nylon with lycra are in the skinny, form-fitting maillots, they are now offering an added dimension of fit and figure flattery to the dressmaker type suits as well.

Du Pont's new luxury nylon fiber, Qiana nylon, has proven its adaptability to beachwear in soft, silk-like jerseys that take to water, resist staining and offer brilliance in coloring. With the addition of lycra in the fabrics, there is also comfort, fit and figure control. The key note for swim wear, softly gathered flip skirts, tunic skirts, ruffles or plunge necks add up to a youthful fashion look of swimwear for 1973.

As you head for the swimsuit department, here are a few tips to aid you in making your decision:

This year you will find that designers have worked diligently to overcome the obvious fact that all women are not created in the Raquel Welch manner. Now in its second year, proportioned separate bras and briefs allow you to put together the two-piece suit that is right for you.

If you're a bit overweight, your best choice would be a one-piece suit, preferably a dark color or print.

You'll find that swimsuits are generally not returnable because of state ordinances; therefore, it's wise to shop for your suit when you have sufficient time to try on suits in the store's fitting room. Shop when you're in a happy mood, because analyzing your figure faults in a brightly-lit three-way mirror is no picnic for the average woman.

Anne Cole, executive vice president of Cole of California, suggests that correct size is important and that a dress size will probably not be your swimsuit size. Swimsuits are measured by trunk size, from shoulder through the legs and up to the shoulder again. Most women, no matter what their height, have a trunk measurement of 59 to 61 inches.

Do not try to squeeze into a suit that is too small—the result will be unsightly bulging. If you have a large bosom, you will be able to select one of the new two-piece suits with separate sizing for the top—also the new one-piece bodysuits come with bra-size cups. The underwired cups will give you comfort and support. Tops that close in back give more support than those that close in front or tie halter fashion.

If you have heavy thighs you might want the suit with boy-leg shorts. Designers say that heavy thighs also look thinner in a suit with a very high cut-out leg because the suit hits above the fleshiest part of the thigh.

The gal who is super-thin is advised not to expose her bones. She might choose a modified bikini or swimdress with a skirt. Ruffles at the neckline will give the illusion of a full bosom.

Saleswomen suggest that you strip down to your panties before trying on your swimsuit, and please remove your shoes. It's very easy to lose your balance struggling into the suit and either turn your ankle or snag the suit with your heel.

If your suit is a one-piece, fold it over at the widest part, then step into it. Pull up the bottom half, adjust the straps and legs and lean over and scoop yourself into the top half.

Does the suit bind or squeeze? Squat down on the floor—sit—try the motions of swimming. If you're comfortable and the suit is flattering, buy it or look for another style.

There are beautiful new ways to take cover on the beach. It's the careful shopper who buys a cover-up that can double as a breakfast coat or travel after dark to a poolside party.

Tip: When the swimsuit is revealing, the cover-up should be concealing.

PALAZZO PANTS by Peter Pan, for seashore or city, are floral designs exploded on extravagant widths of nylon. Matching one or two-piece swimsuits, they are available in color combinations of pink-on-black or lavender-on-vany.

This is the reader's column. If you have a question or a recipe to share with other readers, please write to: Information, Please, Transcript Newspapers, 420 Washington Street, Dedham, Mass. 02026.

Question: Some time ago, maybe 1½ or 2 years ago, you printed a recipe for a "Lemon Tea Braid". It was a beautiful recipe for a huge bread and so good. I can't find it anywhere and when I want to bake bread for a crowd I really miss it. Can't remember too much except it had grated lemon rind for flavor. Please, I hope you know the recipe I'm referring to. Thank you. — Mrs. R. Morrison, Needham.

Answer: This particular recipe is a joy to reprint. The first time it appeared was December 30, 1971. With pleasure, here is:

LEMON ALMOND TEA TIME BRAID

4-½ to 5-½ cups unsifted all purpose flour
½ cup suagr
½ teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons grated lemon rind
1 pkg. active dry yeast
Two-thirds cup milk
¼ cup water
½ cup (1 stick) margarine
3 eggs, room temperature
Milk
2 tablespoons sugar
¼ cup slivered almonds

In large mixing bowl, thoroughly mix 1-½ cups flour, ½ cup sugar, salt, lemon rind and yeast. Combine two-thirds cup milk, water and margarine in saucepan. Place over low heat only until liquids are warm. (Margarine does not have to melt.) Add to dry ingredients gradually and beat for 2 minutes at medium speed of mixer. Add eggs and ½ cup of flour and beat for 2 minutes at medium speed of mixer. Add eggs and ½ cup of flour and beat for 2 minutes, scraping occasionally. Stir in enough additional flour to make a soft dough (dough will pull away from the bottom and sides of the bowl). Turn out on lightly floured board and knead for 8-10 minutes, until dough is smooth and elastic. Place dough in lightly oiled large bowl, turning dough once to oil top. Cover and let rise in warm place for 1 hour, until doubled in bulk. Punch down; turn out on flour dusted board and divide into three parts. Roll each section into ropes 20 inches long; pinch three ends together and braid. Pinch bottom ends; tuck under both ends and place diagonally on large greased baking sheet. Brush with milk and sprinkle with 2 tablespoons sugar and blanched almonds. Cover and let rise in warm place for 1 hour. Bake in 350 degree oven 40-45 minutes or until done.

Question: I've been married for 12 years and for those 12 years I have successfully avoided cooking brains for my husband. Now he has insisted and says it's silly of me to make such a fuss about a good food. I would really appreciate your help. — Mrs. G. F., Dedham

Answer: I am very proud of your fortitude in overcoming a cooking hangup I too possess. However, here are some tips for preparing brains—hope your husband enjoys your efforts.

BRAINS — PRECOOKED

From "Specialty Cuts and how to cook them" by Kate Sherry

Use lamb, pork, veal, or beef brains. Allow ½ to 1 pair per person. Cover with cold water and let stand for 30 minutes then drain. Cover with boiling water and add 1 tsp. salt and 1 tabsp vinegar for each quart of water. Cover and simmer for 15 to 20 minutes. Drain and cover with cold water. When cool enough to handle remove membrane.

BRAINS — A LA KING

2 tablespoons butter
1 cup sliced mushrooms
2 tablespoons flour
1 teaspoon salt
2 cup milk
2 cups cooked brains, cubed (see above)
1 pimiento, cut in thin strips
Dash pepper

Melt butter. Add mushrooms. Cover and cook about 5 minutes. Sprinkle with flour. Add all other ingredients. Let cook until sauce thickens. Serve on toast or in patty shells. One cup of cream or 1 cup of milk and 1 cup of stock may be substituted for the 2 cups of milk. Serves 8.

BRAINS — FRIED

Follow above directions for precooked brains. Sprinkle with salt and pepper. Roll in dry crumbs. Fry in shallow fat or salad oil until brown. Drain on absorbent paper. Serve on toast or, if desired, serve with sauce of heated mushroom soup.

Question: Our thanks to Mrs. P. R., Norwood who writes: "My neighbor gave me an excellent chocolate cake recipe and I would like your readers to have it, hoping they will enjoy it as much as my family has."

SOUR CREAM FUDGE CAKE

2 cups cake flour
1-½ cups sugar
1 teaspoon baking soda
1 teaspoon salt
½ cup shortening
1 cup dairy sour cream
3 squares (3 oz.) unsweetened chocolate, melted
2 eggs
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
½ cup hot water

Grease and flour bottoms of two 8-inch layer pans. Sift flour with sugar, baking soda and salt into large mixing bowl. Add shortening and sour cream; blend with mixer at low speed. Beat for 2 minutes at medium speed or 300 strokes with a spoon. Add chocolate, eggs, vanilla extract and hot water. Blend, then beat for 2 minutes at low speed. By hand, blend ingredients; then beat for 300 strokes with a spoon. Pour batter into pans. Bake at 350 degrees 30-35 minutes, until cake springs back when lightly touched in center. Cool 15 minutes before removing from pans. Ice with favorite frosting.

Question: I enjoy your columns very much and have enjoyed many recipes from it. My husband and family enjoy the white bread that I bake and I would like to expand my baking to rye breads. Have you a recipe for both light and dark rye? I shall look forward to reading it in the Transcript. I enjoy reading your fashion news also. — Mrs. Helen Resnick, W. Roxbury Answer: Thank you for your lovely letter. Happy you are enjoying bread baking — here are your recipes!

DARK RYE BREAD

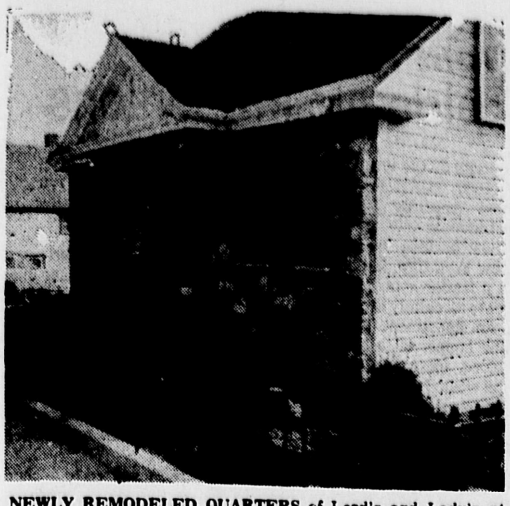
2 cups rye flour
¼ cup cocoa
2 cakes yeast
1-½ cups warm water
½ cup light molasses
2 teaspoons salt
2 tablespoons caraway seed
2 tablespoons butter
2-½ cups white or whole-wheat flour

Combine the rye flour and cocoa. Do not sift. Dissolve the yeast in ½ cup warm water. Combine the molasses, the remaining 1 cup warm water, the salt and caraway seed in a large bowl. Add the rye flour and cocoa, the yeast mixture, the butter and 1 cup white or whole-wheat flour. Beat until dough is smooth. Spread the remaining flour on a breadboard and knead it into the dough. Add more flour if necessary to make a firm dough that is smooth and elastic. Place in a lightly greased bowl, cover, and let rise. It will double in 2 hour. Punch dough down, shape into a round loaf, and place on a greased cookie sheet that has been sprinkled with cornmeal. Let rise about 50 minutes. Bake in a 375 degree oven 35 to 40 minutes. Yield 1 large bread.

RYE BREAD

2-½ cups unsifted rye flour
2-½ cups unsifted white flour (approx.)
1 tablespoon sugar
1 tablespoon salt
1 tablespoon caraway seeds (optional)
1 pkg. active dry yeast
1 cup milk
¾ cup water
2 tablespoons honey
1 tablespoon margarine
¼ cup corn meal
1 egg white
2 tablespoons water

Combine flours; in a large bowl thoroughly mix 1 and two-thirds cups flour mixture, sugar, salt, caraway seeds and undissolved yeast. Combine milk, ¾ cup of water, honey and margarine in a saucepan. Heat over low heat until liquids are warm. Margarine does not need to melt. Gradually add to dry ingredients and beat for 2 minutes at medium speed of electric mixer, scraping bowl occasionally. Add 1 cup flour mixture, or enough flour mixture to make a thick batter. Beat at high speed 2 minutes, scraping bowl occasionally. Stir in enough flour mixture to make a soft dough. If necessary, add additional white flour to obtain desired dough. Turn dough out onto lightly floured board; knead until smooth and elastic, about 8 to 10 minutes. Place in greased bowl, turning to grease top. Cover; let rise in warm place, fee from draft until doubled in bulk, about 1 hr. Punch dough down; turn out onto lightly floured board. Divide in half; form each piece into a smooth ball. Cover; let rest 10 minutes. Flatten each piece slightly. Roll lightly on board to form tapered ends. Sprinkle 2 greased baking sheets with corn meal. Place breads on baking sheets. Combine egg white and 2 tablespoons water; brush breads. Let rise, uncovered, in warm place 35 minutes. Bake in hot 400 degree oven about 25 minutes, or until done. Remove and cool.



NEWLY REMODELED QUARTERS of Lord's and Lady's at Centre and Belgrade avenue, West Roxbury, distinctive salon for men and women.

Attractive Changes Made At Lord's and Lady's

Have you been by the intersection of Center and Belgrade lately? When you do, you'll be very pleasantly surprised.

Lord's and Lady's - the unique new salon in West Roxbury - has undergone some very attractive changes. "With all the emphasis on the 'natural look,' ecology and beautification, I wanted to do my part," according to Mike Barsamian, owner of the Salon.

And you can see he means it. Striking changes have been made to the outside of the building. On the facade, natural stone has replaced Clapboards, a "bluestone" walkway has replaced wooden steps, and of special interest to garden enthusiasts will be the new landscaping with shrubs and bushes and seasonal plants and flowers.

Mike has made some changes and additions on the inside as well. The Men's Salon has been expanded and relocated to the Lower Level. "The response to Lord's and Lady's has been overwhelming," said Mike, "and expansion just had to be accomplished."

The new Men's Salon is tastefully decorated in rich reds and browns with contrasting paneled walls. The Salon is well lighted and efficiently laid out.

The staff has increased as well. Through the previous article you were introduced to the Misses Kay and Louella. Paul Arena, formerly of Newbury street, brings to Lord's and Lady's seven years' experience. Paul comes from a family of professional hair stylists, and as he says proudly, "my dad was a barber for 51 years." Paul will be primarily located in the Men's Salon, although one wouldn't be surprised to see him working in the Ladies' Salon as well.

That's another unique thing about this Salon. They have all been trained in the Lord's and Lady's technique of hair styling. There is no "possessiveness" over clients. That is not to say that the clients are not valued and important, but if a client prefers another stylist, the change could be made easily. Now that's pure professionalsim!

Now It's Archie Bunker On Disc

new york)upi) — Carroll O'Connor and Jean Stapleton have won Emmies for their Archie and Edith Bunker roles in "All in the Family" but you would never expect them to win Grammies as singers of any year.

O'Connor has been singing on his nightclub tours and Miss Stapleton had small vocal roles in Broadway musicals, among them "Damn Yankees," long before she became a television star.

But neither has an outstanding voice.

Even so, they make "Archie and Edith, Side By Side" (RCA Victor APL1-0102) one of the most entertaining albums of the year.

There is a feeling of warmth from the beginning when Archie and Edith sing A duet, "Oh, Babe, What Would You Say?"

In between the songs, duets and medleys, there is a dialogue between Archie and Edith that keeps the listener in a good mood. The dialogues also help move the production.

Most of the songs are short, less than two minutes, and help to maintain the momentum.

Most of the songs are oldies, which should be expected, but one of Archie's tunes, "When I'm Sixty-Four," was written by John Lennon and Paul McCartney, which shows that maybe Bunker isn't too old-fashioned.

This record is rated G and is fine entertainment for all in your family.

The Apollo Theater in Harlem was in its early years a showcase for white vaudeville acts but in the mid-1920s the emphasis began shifting to such black artists as Bill Robinson and Ida Cox. Today it is an almost all-black emporium although in recent years whites have performed there.

During the past four decades the Apollo has featured the Who's Who in black show biz.

And some of the best performances may now be heard in a two-LP album, "Stars of the Apollo Theater" (Columbia KG 30788).

All the selections were taken from the collection of the famed jazz musician, John Hammond, who recorded such fine black artists as Bessie Smith, Count Basie and Teddy Wilson.

One of the most poignant numbers is "Sweet Sue" by the Mills Brothers in the early years of their great career.

Another fine item is "Saturday Night Fish Fry," which pairs Pearl Bailey with Jackie Mobley, now known as "Moms."

Bessie Smith is featured on "Gimme a Pigfoot" and Bill Robinson, one of the standout showmen of the 1920s, comes up on "Doin' the New Low Down."

Butterbeans and Susie, a long-forgotten husband and wife team, may be heard again on "I Wanna Hot Dog for My Roll."

The big bands made a big splash at the Apollo, too, and this collection includes "Shake Your Ashes" by Claude Hopkins, "You're Just a Old Antidisestablishmentarian Ismist" by Duke Ellington, "Got an Uncle in Harlem" by Hot Lips Page, "Stop You're Breaking My Heart" by Claude Thornhill and "Lose the Blackout Blues" by Count Basie with Jimmy Rushing.

One of the early Aretha Franklin numbers, "Evil Gal Blues," takes the album out of mothballs.

A BAD BREAK FOR BABIES

Babies who are born undersized and underweight can be off to a bad start.

A follow-up study of 17,000 British children who were born in the same week showed that newborns who were "small for date" had more educational and behavioral problems in later life compared with those of normal birth weight. At age 7, youngsters who were undersized infants had poorer social adjustments in the family and school.

Dr. Nevi Butler of the University of Bristol is now completing further follow-ups on these 17,000 youngsters at age 11.

According to Dr. Butler, one of the major factors influencing the size of the newborn was cigarette smoking by the pregnant women. The crucial period in the pregnancy was the last five months.

There was no difference in low-weight babies and stillborns between women who did not smoke and women who smoked for the first four months. However, if women continued smoking for the last five months there was a significant difference in the number of undersized infants as well as babies born dead.

Recent experiments with pregnant rats have also shown that fetuses removed from mother rats who were exposed to cigarette smoke were not only undersized but had smaller brains.

Though the human brains were not measured in the Butler research, one of the characteristics of a "small for date" baby is a head circumference of below normal size. Another characteristic of small infants is a high rate of oxygen consumption for body weight.

To find out more about the dangers of cigarette smoking during pregnancy, contact the Boston Tuberculois and Respiratory Disease Association. It's a matter of life and breath.

Boat Thefts Reach Epidemic Proportions

By JACK WOLISTON

NEW YORK (UPI) — Two men recently drove their automobile into an apartment house parking lot in subruban New York City, hitched the car to a trailer containing a $5,000 boat and calmly drove away.

An apartment house tenant who happened to be in the lot helped them make the hitch and wished them "a good trip."

"How was I to know," he told police later, "that they were stealing the boat?"

With the sudden upsurge in the popularity of boat trailering, this type of theft is on the rise and, according to one insurance company spokesman, the problem is "reaching epidemic proportions."

It is particularly acute in southern Florida, New Orleans, Detroit and parts of metropolitan New York City, says Carl S. Cichon, director of marine services for State Farm Fire and Casualty Co.

Cichon says the total his company paid policyholders whose boats had been stolen grew nearly threefold — to $1,177,000 from $472,000—between 1969 and 1971.

Boats Easy To Steal

Policyholder compensation for theft now amounts to 21 per cent of State Farm's total loss dollars on boat insurance," Cichon said. "While figures for 1972 are not yet available, the upward trend is continuing."

Boats are far easier to steal and dispose of than cars, Cichon pointed out. Moreover, the recovery rate is low—perhaps 5 per cent for pleasure boats compared with about 85 per cent for autos.

"Most states have only minimal boat registration laws," Cichon said. "In any case, it's an easy matter for a knowledgeable thief to obtain the necessary documents for a stolen boat."

If a trailer-hauled boat has been made difficult to steal, a thief is likely either to pass it by, give up in the midst of his attempt or be caught committing the crime, Cichon said.

"While no boat can be made 100 per cent theftproof," he said, "certain steps can be taken to make a craft more difficult to steal or more liable to be recovered if it should be stolen."

Here are some of his suggestions:

Keep Boats Lighted

—Keep a boat and trailer in a garage, a fenced area that can be locked, or at least in a backyard. Never park a rig on the street. If a boat must be left in a driveway, block it at night with a locked car.

—If possible, illuminate the area where a boat and trailer are parked.

—If a chain is used to anchor a trailer to the ground, it should be of case-hardened steel attached to a heavy duty eyebolt and secured by a case-hardened steel lock. A case-hardened steel chain and lock also should be used to lash outboards to the boat proper.

—A ball lock on a trailer hitch may thwart inexperienced thieves, but not professionals. They usually carry their own hitch extensions with them.

—If a boat is not going to be used for some time, put the trailer on blocks and remove the wheels, storing them in a safe place. Or jack up one wheel and remove it.

List Serial Numbers

—Never load a boat the night before a trip.

A boat that has been stolen stands a better chance of being recovered, Cichon said, if its owner has:

—Listed all serial numbers and kept them in a place where they can be quickly retrieved.

—Filed away registration papers and other documents establishing ownership, rather than leaving them on the craft.

—Made identifying marks on the boat and equipment. These can be the owner's name or social security number, the boat's registration number or a distinctive design.

Electric pens or dismon-tipped scribes are especially useful in marking metal. Owners of fiberglass boats can scrape away a small patch of surface area and either mark identifying data on it or place a plate containing the information there, covering it over with clear liquid fiberglass.

Begin teaching your pet good house and yard amnners the day you bring him home. Early house and yard manners the protection against later home-wrecking.

Cats are naturally clean in their habits, so you should have little difficulty training a kitten. Provide him with a box of sand or litter and see that it is cleaned and refilled regularly since most cats will refuse to use soiled material.

Except for smaller "apartment-size" dogs, who are sometimes taught to use newspapers exclusively, placed in a certain area of the home, all dogs should be trained to relieve themselves outdoors. Because he has to go more frequently, a young puppy may tend to have accidents around the house at first but, with proper training, you should be able to housebreak a six to eight week old puppy in about a week or two.

If you build a box or bed for your new puppy, he will quickly learn to respect it as his home and will not soil it. Put him in his box at night, and also during the day for naps.

Take him outdoors immediately after naps and meals, before and after play periods, first thing in the morning and last thing at night. Always take him out the same door and bring him to a previously selected spot. This spot can be prepared by placing there the rag you used to mop up his first "accident" in the house. When he smells a spot he thinks he has visited before, he will get the idea very quickly. Praise him when he is successful, and scold him immediately and take him outdoors if he makes a mistake in the house. Before long he will associate these acts with going outdoors, and will bark or whine to alert you that it's time for a walk.

A puppy's keen sense of smell can lead him to repeat errors in the house, if the odor has not been thoroughly eliminated. When he has an accident, wash the spot several times with soap and water, then rub the area with an ammonia solution.

Once they have learned to behave in their new home, both cats and dogs should be taught to be good neighbors.

When walking your dog, either keep him on a leash or under control, if unleashed. If your yard is not fenced, you can set up a simple exercise device to keep him on your property. Just string a wire about thirty feet long between two trees or poles with a sliding ring on it. Tie the dog with a long rope to the ring, allowing him to move around in a large area.

Remember, your dog has no idea that the neighbors might object to his natural activities. Since even the friendliest neighbors will turn cool at the sight of him wandering around their lawn, tearing up flowers or soiling their yard, it is up to you to teach him good manners.

Similarly, neighbors may frown on some of your cat's favorite pastimes — especially killing birds. With time and patience, a young kitten can be discouraged from this habit. You can also help by keeping your cat in at night, giving him a hearty breakfast and not letting him out until about 10 a.m. By this time, the birds will have completed their early morning activities and the fledglings, wet earlier from dew, will have dried off enough to have a better chance of safety.

To guard against losing your pets, watch young cats carefully until they are content in their new home, be sure your dog is licensed and never let him loose unaccompanied, and your cat wears a tag for identification. If your pet should wander off, notify your Animal Rescue League or your local animal welfare society.

King Louis' Croat Battle Produced Necktie

By WALTER LOGAN

NEW YORK (UPI) — France was in a mess back in 1636 under King Louis XIII, what with the wreckage left by his mother, Queen Mother Marie de Medicis, who squandered all the country's money, and a war with Spain. But on the other hand it did introduce the necktie.

Somewhere along the way, while Cardinal Richelieu was trying to solve things his own way, King Louis got himself involved in a battle with some Croats. History is a bit dim on exactly where this happened since he was fighting all over Europe.

But Louis XIII was fashion-conscious to the point where he noticed that the battling Croats had knotted the ends of their long lace collars so they would not distract them in the heat of battle. He was so entranced he took the fashion back to France and called it a "Croat."

The French, being notorious for their inability to pronounced foreign words, changed that to "cravat" since Croat was too difficult to pronounce, and the word remains with us till this day.

Louis XIII brought in the cravat but it took Britain's Beau Brummel to make it famous. He would spend as much as two hours every morning ensuring that his cravat was impeccably tied. It wasn't easy and no one else had that much time, which is one reason he got to be known as the best dressed man in history.

Ties Were Costly

They were mildly expensive back in those days, a luxury the working class simply could not afford. Charles II could, however, and he spent more than 20 pounds on a cravat to wear "on my dear brother's birthday." His successor, James II, paid 36 pounds for a Venetian lace cravat which he wore at his coronation.

That would average out at $80 today with the devaluation of the U.S. dollar but the dollar hadn't even been thought of then and 36 pounds was enough to buy an English country estate.

English royalty kept cravats going over the years and the most commonly used knots throughout the world are the Windsor and half-Windsor, named after their inventor, the late Duke of Windsor.

The British did a lot more for ties than the French, who didn't really forget about them after Louis XIII but apparently did not have the same knack for British old school and regimental ties.

The British Tie Manufacturers' Association, guilty of much of this cravat history, reports that there are currently 8,000 old school ties in Britain, 8,000 more for clubs and institutions, 2,000 army formation ties, 2,300 for Royal Navy ships and establishments and 2,500 for Royal Air Force units.

Wide Knots Favored

Such ties are registered in England, so it is easy to keep statistics. There are thousands more of those identical ties being worn by unsuspecting Americans who have an affinity for British regimental stripes.

There are police ties, ties for making a hole in one in golf and, probably less well known, a tie which denotes that the wearer has run the 25-mile course that marks the boundary of the City of Cambridge.

Raymond Burr, as Chief Ironside, has one too—the London police force gave him the tie of Paddington's "D" Division and if you have color television and good eyesight you can catch it some night on a rerun.

The Tie Association reports that the most popular width in Britain today is four inches at the widest part, called the blade. And with such width the knot should be wide too —at least 2½ inches across.

Those same dimensions apply to American ties although some go as wide as 4½. Such ultra-chick New York men's boutiques as de Noyer's and Jacques Bellini are going back to 3½ inches. The toes of their shoes are slightly more pointed, too, for that matter.

At the moment, bow ties are coming back into fashion and no doubt will get even more fashionable when the current Great Gatsby craze reaches its full 1920 height. And since the Duke of Windsor was the Prince of Wales in that era the Windsor knot is sure to come back too.

Enrollment Up in N.E. Colleges and Universities

Enrollment in most New England colleges and universities continues to grow, reaching a total of 597,000 students in Fall, 1972. This is an increase of 3.2 percent over the previous year and an all-time high for the region. This rate compares favorably with the national expansion rate of 2 percent for the same time period. There were over nine million college and university students enrolled in Fall, 1972, in the nation.

Significantly, 51 percent of the (302,000) students in New England were enrolled in public institutions, remarking the first time that the private institutions in the region have not enrolled most of the region's college and university students. The Board reports that Massachusetts alone stands as the only state in the nation with more students (58 percent) enrolled in private colleges and universities than in public.

These are among some of the findings of the report, "Student Enrollment in New England Institutions of Higher Education, Fall 1972," issued by the New England Board of Higher Education. The study is based upon data supplied by 245 of the region's 250 degree-granting colleges, universities and institutes. The Board simultaneously issued a special report covering student enrollment within the area of Metropolitan Boston as defined by the U. S. Census Bureau's Standard Metropolitan Statistical Area (SMSA).

Public two-year colleges and institutes showed the greatest expansion, enrolling 9.5 percent more students than in the previous year. The private two-year colleges, on the other hand, actually experienced an overall decline in enrollment, losing nearly two percent of their 1971 fall enrollment. These facts, the Board reported, are similar throughout the nation where the overall growth of two-year college degree programs continued the major enrollment expansion area.

college degree programs continued the major enrollment expansion area.

The great core of New England's higher educational institutions—the 146 four-year colleges—showed a collective enrollment gain of nearly 3 percent in 1972, with the increase being evenly divided between the private and public institutions.

At the university level, as defined by the U. S. Office of Education, overall growth was well below the regional figure, standing at less than 2 percent above the regional 1971 total. The private universities actually lost enrollment in small measure, (.4 percent) while public universities showed an increase of more than 4 percent.

The Board's report shows that well over half of the student enrollment in the region is in Massachusetts (321,000), with Connecticut accounting for slightly less than half that number (132,000). Vermont experienced the greatest percentage enrollment increase, showing an overall expansion of 7.2 percent over 1971, mostly in its private institutions. New Hampshire showed the least increase, 2.4 percent with only 1.2 percent more students in its public institutions and 3.9 percent more in private colleges than was the case in 1971. Maine, with an increase of 6.5 percent and Rhode Island with 4.6 percent were both well above the national and regional averages.

In addition to detailed enrollment statistics, the Board's report also presents data on the place of residence of these students. As might be expected, a very high proportion of students in public institutions particularly at the undergraduate level (90 percent), were residents of the state in which they were enrolled. In the private sector schools, this figure was only 47 percent. At the graduate level these figures were 69 percent and 59 percent, respectively.

The Board, which issues these reports annually, is the official agency of the six New England states for cooperative interstate activities in post-secondary education. It administers several interstate programs and conducts studies of regional concern and interest. Its offices are at 40 Grove Street, Wellesley, Mass. 02181.

What Will Be China's Role?

By United Press International

China's Turbulent Quest, By Harold C. Hinton.

(Macmillan, $8.95)

This book is an effort by a well known China expert to weigh questions such as whether China, no longer faced with strong opposition from the United States, will play a constructive or destructive role in Asia.

It also attempts to shed light on whether relations between China and the Soviet Union will improve or further deteriorate.

Well organized and imaginative, if somewhat lengthy, the book is an updated version of Hinton's analysis of China's foreign policy, first published in 1970.

It chronicles events in China from 1949 to 1972, beginning with a discussion of the legacy from China's past, evolving into a discussion of Maoism, Sino-Soviet relations, the Cultural Revolution and the confrontation in Korea and Vietnam.

A second part of the boook concerns Chinese foreign policy and military strategy. The third part evaluates China's role in world affairs and President Nixon's trip to Peking.

The author has written many books on China, is professor of political science and international affairs at George Washington University's Institute for Sino-Soviet Studies, and formerly was a training officer in the U.S. foreign service and a staff member of the Institute for Defense Analysis.

U.S. Coast Guard Reports Drop in Boating Accidents

By PA1 DANNY O'SHEA, USCG

Nationally, 1,437 persons lost their lives in boating accidents during 1972 according to the annual Coast Guard report Boating Statistics published today in Washington, D.C. The new figure represents a decrease of nearly 10 percent from 1971-72, said the Coast Guard.

Regarding the report, Admiral C. R. Bender, commandant of the Coast Guard said, "The decrease tends to indicate that the substantial efforts on behalf of boating safety by the Coast Guard, state and local authorities, volunteer service organizations, and the boating industry over the past few years may be taking effect." "I am cautiously optomistic that these recreational boating safety efforts in conjunction with the regulations in effect or being developed to implement the Federal Boat Safety Act of 1971, will greatly aid us in further reducing the number of fatalities," the commandant said.

In addition to the decrease in the number of deaths reported to the Coast Guard, the amount of "property damage" statistic dropped by nearly two million dollars. Injuries also decreased, from 897 to 929. However, the reported number of accidents increased from 3,909 in 1971 to 3,942.

There was a normal increase in the category of numbered boats over the previous year, up 400,000 to a new total of 5,910,794 – an increase of 7.3 percent.

The data on fatal boating accidents is considered quite reliable according to a Coast Guard spokesman. However, it is not possible to accurately verify the degree to which non-fatal accidents and property damage have been reported to the Coast Guard, he said. Furthermore the Coast Guard maintains that a concerted effort will be made during the coming year to acquaint the boatman with his responsibility in the matter of accident reporting.

Last year in the four New England states under the jurisdiction of the 1st Coast Guard District-Maine, Mass., N.H. and R.I.–reported boating fatalities declined to 61 from the 1971 total of 85 deaths, close to a 25 percent reduction.

Volunteers Sought

The Newton-Wellesley-Weston Retired Senior Volunteer Program (RSVP) of the Newton Community Service Centers, Inc., will be celebrating its six month anniversary on June 5.

At the present time there are over 100 active volunteers participating in the program and offering their services in schools, hospitals, libraries and municipal and social agencies in the three communities.

The RSVP program recruits men and women age 60-and-over for interesting volunteer work in their own community. One of the newest volunteer opportunities is with the state employment offices to augment current employment services. RSVP volunteers are needed as employment interviewers, job developers and finders, receptionists, an clerical assistants.

Another interesting volunteer opening is for a retired nurse to serve on the all-day outing trips for Newton Senior Citizens. This assignment would involve about one day per month.

For further information about the Newton-Wellesley-Weston Retired Senior Volunteer Program (RSVP) please call Mrs. Marjorie Glassman, director of the Program, at the Newton Community Service Centers, Inc., 429 Cherry St., West Newton. The phone number is 969-5906. Assistance is provided with volunteer expenses such as meals, transportation and insurance.

AUTO FACTS

BY GEORGE BALIAN

The tools that you have can often be your key to a car that runs well at all times. Emergency repairs that are postponed are one of the key reasons why cars do not last and often cause unnecessary damage as well as a car that is in poor repair and is a highway hazard. To keep your car in good running shape, you will need a screwdriver, pliers, an adjustable wrench, a Phillips screwdriver, a set of combination open end and box wrenches, a spark plug wrench, a tire pressure gauge, and an inexpensive battery tester.

If you feel capable of doing more complex repairs on your car than general tuneups come in to NEWTON AUTO SUPPLY, 438 Lexington St., 969-1191. We have one of the most complete stocks of parts in the area featuring such names as Delco, AC Walker muffler and tailpipes and Stewart Warner instrumentation. Hours: Mon.-Fri. 8-7, Sat. 8-5.

HELPFUL HINT: Keep windshield wipers in good condition, fix them promptly when they split or break, and you will be much safer in a storm.

Newton High Tennis Team Looks For NE Title

By ROBERT LOW

Achieving success, both individually and as a team, the Newton High Netmen ended their regular season and entered the playoffs as favorites to repeat as New England Champs.

Newton High entered three players, Joe Mitchell, Richard Birmingham, and Carl Kravitz, in the Eastern Mass. Schoolboy Singles Tournament and saw Mitchell reach the finals and Birmingham the semifinals before both lost to the eventual winner, Ferdi Taygan of Framingham North.

In order to reach the final round, the players first had to be one of four left in their section following an elimination tournament. Mitchell and Birmingham, along with Barnaby Kalan and Mike Hooven of Weston, were survivors of their section and entered the final round of sixteen. Newton's other entry, Carl Kravitz, fell to Newton South's Umberto Fagundes in an earlier round.

Mitchell advanced easily to the semi's along with Steve Gallagher of Lexington, Ferdi Taygan, and Birmingham. Birmingham had a rough time, first besting Steve Corey 6-4, 7-5, and then retaliating against Barnaby Kalan for an earlier loss, winning a three set thriller, surviving a match point against him in the second set.

Birmingham, however, like everyone else in Massachusetts, found Taygan too good and lost 6-0, 6-3. Mitchell, meanwhile, topped Gallagher and reached the finals. There, he gave Taygan a battle before the inevitable happened and Taygan won out, 6-2, 8-6, for his second straight title.

The Newton High team finished it's regular season by taking the Suburban League title and earning the honor of being selected first seed in the Eastern Mass. team tourney. Weston (who previously beat the Tigers), Lexington, and Framingham North were named the second, third, and fourth seeds respectively.

League wins over Arlington, 5-0, Weymouth South, 3-2, and Brockton, 5-0, finished the league schedule. In the league playoffs Newton topped Brookline, 4-1, Brockton, 5-0, and Weymouth South, 5-0, to win the league crown. The Tigers also had their best showings ever against two private schools, with a 15-3 victory over St. Marks that featured an unprecedented sweep of the singles, and a 9-9 deadlock with Middlesex.

Newton starts its play in the elimination tourney against Natick, fourth place finishers in the Bay State League. Who they play after that is not known, but it is expected to be Wellesley, followed by Lexington, and if the Tigers make the finals, Weston.

The winner and runner-up of the Eastern Mass. tourney then proceed to the State Tournament that begins on June 4. The finalists from there go on to play in the New England Championships.

Last year the Tigers captured all these titles and hope to do it again this year. The feeling on the team is that the singles trio of Mitchell, Birmingham, and Carl Kravitz, is the strongest in the state, but that doubles, where the pairings are still question marks, is a weak point.

The team is confident and Captain Joe Mitchell echoed the team's general feelings when he said, "It's a strong field, but I think that Newton High will be New England Champions for another year."

Newton High Lacrosse Team In State Tourney

By DAVID CUTLER

The State Lacrosse Tournament takes place this week and for the second consecutive year Newton High is in contention for the Championship. The Tigers qualified by finishing second in the Southern League behind undefeated Needham.

Games to decide the Eastern Massachusetts Champion will be played at Brandeis University on Tuesday, May 29 and Thursday, May 31. Tuesday's opening round saw Newton facing Northern League Titlist Concord-Carlisle, and Needham met the other league's runner-up, Lincoln-Sudbury. The winners will playoff for the EMass. Crown on Thursday.

The surviving team meets the Western Mass. Champion Saturday, June 2 for the State Title. Longmeadow is favored to repeat as the number one team in Western Mass., but Northampton should give a strong challenge. The other teams from the West in the competition are Amherst Regional and Monument Mountain High Schools.

Newton finished up its regular season with a 4-3 win over Brookline. The contest Friday, May 25, was two days after Brookline had been eliminated from the State Tourney at the hands of Lincoln-Sudbury.

"They had nothing to lose so we were expecting a rough game," said NHS coach Tom DePeter. The Tigers capitalized on Brookline's 14 penalties with two of their goals coming on man-up situations.

Jim Averback's three second half scores led Newton to victory. Jerry Keleher assisted on two of Averback's goals and on Jay Tutunjian's goal at 10:04 of the first period which opened the scoring. The triumph gave the Tigers an 8-6 final record.

The game against Concord-Carlisle this past Tuesday was the second time these two teams faced each other this season. In the first encounter Concord came back from a 3-2 deficit to win, 6-4.

Coach DePeter feels several changes are necessary to prevent a repeat of the earlier loss: "We'll be running more plays on offense to get more movement out of our players. We'll also have to take better advantage of man-up situations while committing fewer penalties ourselves. But above all, I'd like to see Newton play aggressively."

Newton has the added pressure of being the defending State Champions. There are seven other teams in the tournament to make sure Newton won't be the Champs for another year.

Golf Tournament Ends Celebration

The Newton Centennial Junior Golf Tournament, which will take place on Monday, June 4, will conclude the month-long celebration of Newton's 100th birthday as a City.

The golf tournament, which is open to youngsters in grades 9 through 12 and who are residents of Newton, is being sponsored by the city's four country clubs — Brae Burn, Charles River, Chestnut Hill and Woodland.

Trophies will be awarded in two classes — Class A, for ages 16-18, the Mayor Theodore D. Mann Cup; and Class B, ages 14-15, the Avis Cup, donated by Centennial Events Chairman Francis J. Sawyer.

Applications may be obtained at the pro shops of the four participating country clubs and should be turned in to James A. Ronayne at Newton North High School. Applications must be endorsed by the coach or athletic director of the applicant's school. There is an entry fee of $2, to be paid at the tee.

Tournament chairman is Jack Sullivan of Charles River Country Club.

For additional information on the Newton Centennial Junior Golf Tournament, contact either James Ronayne or the pro shops at the country clubs.

The four country clubs in combination are contributing $2,000 to the Newton Centennial Commission as part of their sponsorship of Centennial activities.

Newton High Baseball Team Ties For Second

Losing four out of their last six games Newton High ended their baseball season having to take a second place tie with Waltham after leading the league most of the year.

They lost to three of the teams in a row, Cambridge Latin 3-2, Waltham 9-2 and Arlington 4-0.

In those three games the Tigers played well enough to beat most teams; but as Newton coach Ed Fraktman put it, "we played excellent baseball but we ran into three teams who were very hot, not making one error in all three games.

Everytime a team plays at Waltham's Nipper Maher Park under the lights, Waltham becomes unbeatable, such was the case last Tuesday when they cut down Newton 9-2.

Newton's two runs came when John Connolly walked, and was sent to third on a double by Beckler and later scored on a wild pitch. A double by catcher Ron Wilson brought home Beckler for Newton's second run. The defensive play of the game for Newton was a long throw from left field by Bob DeRubeis cutting down a run at the plate with the score 3-0 in the second.

Arlington's 4-0 win over Newton was the game that clinched the title for them with a final record of 12-4. Arlington pitcher Mark Santini went all the way getting revenge for his only loss this year which Newton handed him on May 2 by a score of 6-3.

Santini struck out 11 batters, walked one and gave up 6 hits, but the Tigers left them all stranded on base. The only time Newton could manage to get two hits in the same inning was in the seventh when both Ed Beckler and Ron Wilson led off with singles. But then Santini retired Pendergast, Keaveney and pinch-hitter Paul Austin in a row to get out of a jam. Sophomore Steve DiBenedetto started the game but was pulled in the fourth when he had control problems. Ed Beckler came in from third pase and finished pitching the game for the Tigers.

The highpoint of the Newton season was the nine wins in a row with two of them over Brockton and a pair over Weymouth South. The Tigers finished up their season with a 9-0 win over a lowly Rindge team. They had good pitching from Paul Goldman and Jimmy Dumel allowing only one hit apiece. Two timely hits by Bob Kinsella helped run up the score to 9-0.

The top two teams from each league which includes 16 teams in Class A will pair off, eventually playing teams in other classes for the E. Mass. Championship. Tuesday May 29 Newton plays Waltham for the right to be in the State tournament as they both finished up with identical league records of 11-5.

Newton's overall record was 14-5 winning their three non-league games which don't really count.

The top four teams in the Suburban League standings are Arlington with a record of 12-4, Newton and Waltham at 11-5 and Weymouth North 10-6 followed by Brockton, Cambridge, Weymouth South, Brookline and finally Rindge Tech. in the cellar without a single win.

Newton High Golf Season Is Over

By RICK GORDON

The Newton High Golf season came to a disappointing close last Friday. Although their final match was Tuesday, May 22, it was not until Brookline's thrashing of Weymouth North that the Tigers were eliminated from a chance at the state title.

The Brookline victory had to be hard to take as the entire season had taken a turn-around only one week before.

On May 17, Newton traveled to Brockton to meet the defending league champion. Earlier in the schedule Newton had beaten Brockton 5½-3½ but that was on their home course. On this day things looked different. The day wore on and it appeared Newton's chances at the league crown were gone.

In a dramatic turn of events John Carvelli, Mike Bove, and Bill Doherty all entered the 18th hole trailing and left it with sensational victories leaving Newton grinning with a 5½-3½ triumph. Coach Jim Ronayne won't forget that one and said he considers it the most dramatic match of the year.

On Monday May 21, the State Individual Qualifying Tournament was held. Newton had three entrants, Mike Bove, Kevin Ball and Dan Curtis.

Out at Putterham Meadows only one had complete success. Mike Bove shot a 78 to earn a position in the finals on June 4. Kevin Ball took a 79 and qualified as an alternate and Dan Curtis faltered on the final four holes and failed to make it.

The next day Weymouth South provided the opposition. Newton fully realized it needed all of the nine points awarded. Every player won his match and Newton came in with exactly that. The 9-0 victory left Newton with 53 points and Brookline with 46½. However Brookline had one match remaining.

Although Newton led the league with the best win-loss record, it was the points that counted. The team in the league tallying the highest number of total points went into the State Team Qualifying.

On Friday, May 25, Weymouth North traveled to Brookline smarthing from an earlier 7½-1½ loss to that club. Brookline picked up the seven points they needed with a 7-2 victory and that was it for Newton's season.

The season undoubtedly ended on a sad note.

The Tigers split two matches with Brookline this year. Newton's victory was close, however Brookline's win was the worst the Tigers suffered all year. The 7½-1½ defeat gave Brookline some big points, the ones that eventually made the difference.

Despite the poor overall result of the season one need not look far for bright spots. The Tigers finished 7-1 in the Suburban League and a superb 7-0 outside of it for a fine 14-1 total mark. In addition to this they achieved a goal set early in the year by defeating defending Suburban League champion Brockton twice, 5½-3½ each time.

This season the Junior Varsity also played well and seems headed for an undefeated record in their first official year. Due to their success and the fact that eleven of the fourteen Newton High golfers will be back next year, the future looks bright.

THE TUX SHOP on SPORTS
by TOM McCULLOUGH

In swimming, the individual medley is an all around individual event. The swimmer swims the first third of the course breaststroke, the second third backstroke, and the last third, any other stroke than these two. Usually swimmers pick the crawl as being the fastest and easiest. The intercollegiate distance for this most taxing competition is three hundred yards. At the end of this, most swimmers are exhausted as may well be imagined, and most spectators are glad the event has been a spectator sport.

"Bosses Night" Held By Assn. of Ins. Women

Wednesday evening, May 23rd, marked a gala occasion at the Club Car in Dedham when the members of the Norfolk County Chapter of the Massachusetts Association of Insurance Women played hostesses to their employers in the form of "Bosses' Night".

One of the highlights of the festive program arranged by Ethel M. Street, Education chairman of the Chapter, was the singing of the Canton Sweet Adelines Chorus, under the direction of Eve Lomax.

The Norfolk County Chapter is part of a statewide organization of women who play such a vital part in trying to cope with the perplexities of the insurance industry and whose efforts, in great part, are directed at providing the very best of service to the insuring public.

This year, just closing, marked a significant achievement on the Chapter's part, wresting from the Suffolk County Chapter the large Paul Revere Bowl for having shown the largest increase in membership through the current year.

The general purpose of the entire organization is co-operation and loyalty among its members in the advancement of their interests in the business of insurance - through education, fellowship and social activities.

Miss Mary Lynch, of Norwood, secretary to the president of the Norfolk and Dedham Mutual Fire Insurance Company, has recently been installed as president of the State Organization. Her staff, locally, will consist of Irene Handy of Westwood as County Chapter Director; Corinne Hokanson as County director; Barbara Borden of Braintree as jewelry chairman.

They and their fellow members will devote great energy and enthusiasm in upgrading the distaff side of the insurance industry in stressing the educational aims to keep abreast of the many and varied changes which are so significant and important to the clients of all agencies and insurance companies.

Several New Exhibits At Museum of Science

Boston's Museum of Science is now offering several new attractions ranging from shells and rocks to ice crystals.

A major exhibition of photographs, sculpture, and paintings by Gyorgy Kepes is on view in the Museum's new Design Around Us Gallery. Kepes is Director of M.I.T.'s Center for Advanced Visual Studies. His belief in the relationship of art, science and technology motivates both his subject matter and his media. The exhibition continues through August 12.

Several new permanent exhibits have recently opened. The shell collection of Mrs. Gretchen Warren (Mrs. Fiske Warren) stands at the entrance to the Design Around Us Gallery. It shows beauty, harmony, and proportion as these occur in nature.

Angles & Areas is a new do-it-yourself exhibit on the Pythagorian Theorum and its corollaries. It features manipulative geometric models which demonstrate basic geometric principles.

As it is being propared for exhibit, a giant, cutaway model of a grasshopper can be viewed through a special window. When completed Romalea Microptera, as it is called, will feature pushbuttons by which visitors can light up different parts of the grasshopper's anatomy.

In another new exhibit visitors can actually watch ice crystals grow, and nearby they can see a new version of the popular strobe-lit water drops.

Another strobe exhibit shows how electronic flash lamps are used in modern lighthouses and other navigational aids.

A rock specimen has also been added to the Museum's ever-growing rock collection. Malachite, a beautiful and dense form of copper ore often carved for sculpture and jewelry, is now on display in the Museum's Life Zones hall. The specimen is from Zaire, Africa.

Knowledge of Karate Is Means of Self Protection

By MR. KANA

(Editor's Note: This is one of a series of articles written by Mr. Kana, holder of rank of Sandan (Third degree black belt), and chief instructor of karate at the Mattson Academy in Norwood.)

In these days of escalating crime in the streets, many citizens are no longer safe walking alone, day or night. Anyone who walks the streets is a potential victim of mugging, rape, beatings and hand bag snatching to name only a few. Self - defense becomes even more difficult if confronted by the drug addict because he is extremely unpredictable; thereby posing a problem for the victim in that he or she only has the right to use "reasonable force" to repel the attack and cannot usually become the aggressor.

This is the dilemma presented to the victim especially if he or she relies on defense by means of weapons such as a handgun, teargas, etc. To make matters worse, society is succeeding in having increasingly stringent legislations enacted aimed at doing away or rigidly controlling ownership of firearms and other defensive devices possessed by a large number of people for personal defense. Articles in well known national magazines have in part accomplished the objective of making some possessors of such weapons for self - defense feel anti - social, mentally disturbed, paranoid, violent and guilty about their very own existance, compounding the problem. Many courts will make criminals out of victims who dared to use those weapons in self - defense, and allow the aggressors to walk away with a slap on the wrist.

Certain groups of people are determined to see even the police force disarmed, but yet expect the defenseless policeman to defend the public by engaging an armed criminal and risk death. For these reasons many people are turning to Karate which, if the trend continues, may soon become the only clear - cut legal means of self - defense. It must be pointed out, however, that Karate is not learned as the ultimate way to beat people up, but as an art of fighting leading to confidence and inner peace attained through the study and understanding of violence.

Karate will by no means make every practitioner an unbeatable fighting machine, but it will very definitely increase a person's chance for survival. One of the most destructive instincts the victim of attack must overcome is the sheer panic which uncontrollably siezes his mind and renders him helpless. It is very difficult in those moments to think and plan self - defense strategy. Karate training will in time help control and in many instances completely conquor that animal fear.

Karate can provide women in certain professions, such as nursing, with calmer nerves at night while walking through deserted parking lots and dimly lit sidewalks. However, Mattson Academy instructors are quick to point out that a full grown man can be a formidable opponent, for any woman regardless of how well trained in Karate she may be, and therefore, common sense is stressed in each situation as great harm awaits the possessor of false self confidence.

In any event, it cannot be denied that Karate knowledge gives a woman an increased sense of security. Many women would be much better off enrolling in a Karate program rather than any other form of exercise or weight reducing program because Karate training combines healthy, slimming exercises with sharpened reflexes and strong defensive - offensive techniques which may in a pinch prove to be extremely useful.

Some women hesitate to join Karate classes feeling self - conscious, fearing ridicule from friends, thinking they will develop large muscles and in general considering Karate unladylike and undignified. All exercises in Karate is designed to develop an elastic body with muscles that are generally soft and supple but can instantly become steel - like when necessary.

South Tennis Team In State Tournament

By LEWIS H. FREEDMAN
Asst. Sports Editor

It was almost like old times for the Newton South tennis team last week — almost, but not quite.

Back in the days (like last year) when the team was a major power in state tournament play it was nothing for a Lion net team to run off four or even five triumphs in a single week of play. But the Lions have had their difficulties this year and have been losing matches if not with regularity then still a whole lot more often than in the past.

South's improving squad pounded Acton - Boxboro, 5-0, Concord - Carlisle, 5 - 0, and Bedford, 4 - 1, into worse shape than the United States economy, but had to go and spoil the whole thing by being upset, 3-2 by Lincoln - Sudbury, a team they handled by the same margin the first time around this year.

The Lions started the week on a sour note, falling to Lincoln.

Roger Gordon, South's mainstay in the third singles slot sat the match out and that was a contributing factor, and Lincoln's rapidly improving Bill Nelson surprised Umberto Fugundes in second singles. That was another factor, and in a 3-2 match that's all the factors you need.

Bill Karol took the first singles for the Lions, 6-3, 4-6, 6-1, and Jeff Levin and Dave Fisher carried second doubles, 4-6, 6-2, 6-4 for Douth's points as every point was hardfought.

Nelson did a thorough job on Fugundes, blasting him 6-1, 6-4, in the only non - combative point of the afternoon.

Peter Schwartz, Gordon's replacement, fought valiently, but went down, 4-6, 6-1, 6-4; and the first doubles team o Ben Cohen and Mike Sklar lost, 1-6, 6-2, 6-4.

Karol was the lone victim versuu Bedofrd, falling 6-3, 6-4 in first singles. After that the Lions were in command, not losing another set in the course of the match.

Fugundes, 6-1, 6-1, Gordon, back in his customary spot, 6-3, 6-3, Skalr and Cohen, 6-0- 6-2, and Fisher and Levin, 6-4, 6-2, were the winners.

Things got easier in the next gwo matchups. The singles players against Concord were badly extended as Karol, 6-4, 7-5, Fugundes, 6-1, 7-5, and Gordon, 7-5, 6-3, all racked up wins.

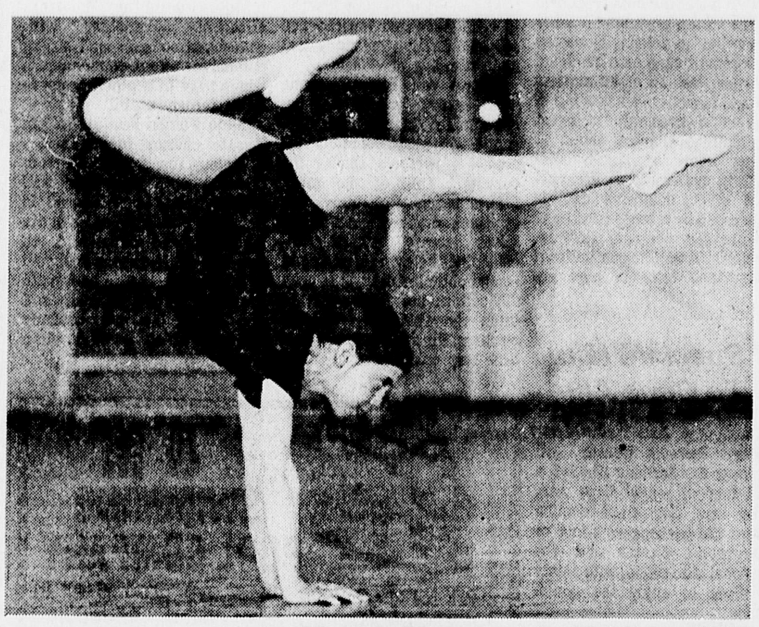
Things were a little more tense for the doubles tandems, but both pulled through after slight scares. Cohen and Sklar won, 6-8, 6-1, 6-4, and Fisher and Levin were on top, 6-3, 2-6, 6-3.

Acton offered even less resistance than Concord, winning no more than four games in a match and no more than three in a set.

Karol took first singles, 6-2, 6-2. Sklar moved up for a tryout in second singles and came through, 6-0, 6-1.

Gordon joined Cohen in first doubles and they won, 6-1, 6-1. Levin and Fisher stuck together and won easily, 6-0, 6-1.

The Lions are 9-3 in the Dual County League with two rainouts, one each against Wayland and Westwood, still floating around, and 9-4 overall. The mark is good for second in the league behind Weston's perfect 14-0 record for the second straight year and it qualifys the team for the state tournament. This year, though, the netmen will not be a factor in the championship.



Medal Winner

One of the finest young gymnasts in the state is 11 year old Kee Pistone of Newton who attends the Underwood School. She swept four gold medals and one silver medal last Saturday in the Junior Olympics. She will now compete in the Regional Jr. Olympics June 9th in New York. She is a member of the Newton gymnastic club. (G.AIL Blauer Photo)

Neil Mahoney Passes Away

Neil Mahoney, one of the chief developers of talent for the Boston Red Sox since 1960, died last week at the age of 66.

Mahoney, who was born in Newton, went on to play baseball for Newton High and Northeastern University. He returned to make his home in Chestnut Hill.

Mahoney joined the Red Sox as a scout in 1939 and after moving to the head coaching post in baseball and basketball at Bowdoin College during World War II, came back to the club.

In the 15 - year span between the end of the war and 1960 Mahoney managed teams in the Northern League and Cape Cod League as well as performing scouting chores for the Red Sox.

In 1960 Mahoney was named farm director of the Red Sox system and held that post until 1969 when he returned to full - timw duties as a scout.

Mahoney succumbed to a lengthy illness at Cambridge's Sancta Maria Hospital last Wednesday.

South Golf Record Soars To 10-2

The rain was really starting to get in the way of the Newton South golf team and was causing unreasonable delays in play against some of the other teams in the Dual County League.

Last weekl though, the sky stayed clear and the Lions made up for lost time by blitzing their opponents and upping their season's record to 10-2.

In a different kind of doubleheader the Lions blasted Weston and Lincoln - Sudbury by 6-0 counts, then belted Bedford, 7-2, and tripped Acton - Boxboro, 5-4.

Against Weston and Lincoln, instead of playing in pairs like most matchups hhe six - man lineup played as individuals with each man's scoe counting as one point against each of the other teams.

South won all six matches against both teams with Steve Owens taking low score honors at 39. Peter Sherman, John Whelan, Brian Corcoran, Steve Hoffman, and Dave Satter were the other participants.

Beford provided only a slight test for the golfers, and most of that test came against the duo of Owens and Whelan. Despite Gwens' match low of 38 Bedford pulled out two of possible three points. The teas of Corcoran - Hoffman and Sherman - Satter each combined for perfect three scores.

The Lions had a more difficult time outlasting Acton, which boasts a 7-4 record.

Sherman was low man this time at 39 and his round was needed since the Owens - Whelan team slipped and didn't score a point.

Sherman paired wit newcomer to the front line Satter to total three important points and Corcoran and Hoffman came through with two for the one - point margin of victory.

—o—

Earlier in the week, before the team play got going, Sherman qualified for the state individual championships by tying for third in the Greater Boston Sectonals.

Bob Tuminski of Xaverian shot a brilliant one - over par 72 to lead the 10 qualifiers from the area. Wayland's Glenn Davis was next in line with a 77 and then Sherman tied with seven other golfers. — LEWIS FREEDMAN

South Track

Newton South High's track team closed out its Dual County League season last week by losing to Maynard, 79-52, and scoring six points in the All - League meet at Acton - Boxboro.

Barry Kaplan continued to be the brightest spot in the Lion lineup while notching another double victory. Kaplan clocked a personal best of 22.0 in the low hurdles and hurled the shot 44-11½ for two five - pointers. He also finished third in the 120 - yard high hurdles despite falling over a hurdle. He amassed 11 points in all.

Sophomore Chris Capeless is another Lion who wazs timed in a personal record. Capeless captured the mile run in 4:54.

Scott Barron, 11.1 in the 100 - yard dash, Rich McMahon, 2:10 in the 880, Peter Maples, 18-3 in the long jump, and Al Podufly, 5-2 in the high jump, also recorded first - place finishes.

South seconds were tallied by Barron, 220, Jack Ferreri, 440, and Dave Lein, two - mile. This is one area where the Lions were beaten badly. Maynard had better depth.

Third places were added by Maples, 220, Scott Green, 440, Charley Horioka, two - mile, Charles Bond, discus, Podufly, long jump, Peter Kotzen, triple jump, and Steve Berger, high jump.

The loss dropped South to 1-7 on the year.

—o—

South's point total in the league meet reflected its performance on the year. The Lions' six points placed them ahead of Lincoln - Sudbury's five and Bedford's four as Acton - Boxboro, 81, and Weston, 75, dominated the scoring.

The meet was filled with outstanding individual efforts. The best event was a classy mile in which three runners dipped under Jim Kelly's league standard of 4:24.5.

Westwood's 'kelly led the way himself, clocking 4:21.9, and dragged Bernie Putnam of Acton and Tom Phillips of Weston with him.

Jay Shuttle of Acton was a double winner in the high and low hurdles with times of 15.4 and 20.7, and Chris Queen of Weston turned the trick in the shot and discus with heaves of 54-½, and 169-9½, the latter a new league mark.

South Bats Are Silent

By LEWIS H. FREEDMAN
Asst. Sports Editor

Two weeks ago, Newton south massacred Maynard, 12-2 and Weston, 12-3, It was poor planning because the Lion bats l only stored so may hits in them and those consecutive outbursts used up the year's quota. So, when it vame to last week, South bats were caught short.

The successive efforts of the South diamond nine last week are beyone belief. The Lions beat Lincoln Sudbury, 2-1 in 10 innings, despite being no - hit. That's no - hit as in no Newton South hits. The encore was almost as good. The Lions topped Bedford, 3-1, on just one hit. That's one as in the number after none. The Lions put the juice back in their bats for their third win of the week, 4-0 over Acton - Boxboro, and got six hits in a relative slugfest.

Mike Monahan and Steve O'Malley are probably still crying after combining for a no - hitter and losing. (Shades of Jim Maloney and Harvey Haddix.) Through the 10 innings they allowed just six walks as well. The master of the situation, though, was South southpaw Mark Fogel, who yielded just three hits and fanned 16 men in nine innings. Fogel upped his record to 6-0 on the year. Jim Kavanaugh replaced Fogel in the tenth after the lefty surrendered a walk to open the frame.

South scored the winning run compliments of its favorite trick, the suicide squeeze. Steve Rittenberg reached on an error and kept going to second on the bad throw that followed the bobble, move to third on an infield out and scored gn Phil Kramer's sacrifice bunt.

The Lions lost a chance to take the lead in the fourth inning on a doozy of a play. Peter Miller hit a shot past everything that appeared to score one run in front of him and go for a home run. Only he forgot to touch first base and the play was nullified because was the third out. At the time the score was 1-1.

The luck of the Irish stayed qith South against Bedford. Lick, plus Kavanaugh's right arm, that is.

Kavanaugh was evidently jealous of Fogel's performance and decided to outdo him. He did. The senior baffled Bedford on two hits, with 14 strikeouts and no walks.

Un fortunately, Kavanaugh's tammates were equally as spellbound watchig him work as they had been while Fogel pitched and turned in the same kind of support.

Bedford was ahead, 1-0 when the Lions broke through to touch Buccaneer hurler Ron Hemingway for their only hit. Miller walked and covered the last three bases like Bob Hayes when first baseman Ned Moan ripped a solid single. A fielder's choice and two errors left Hemingway muttering under his breath and the Lions on top, 3-1.

The Acton contest was a more conventional baseball game.

This time, and twice in one week in fact, in what has to be an upset of the odds, the Lions won without the use of the suicide squeeze. It just goes to show that they are human.

The pitcher's end of it was a combined Fogel - Kavanaugh effort with Fogel (7-0) taking home the win. He worked four innings allowing one hit and whiffed four enemy batters. Kavanaugh went the rest of the way and permitted two hits while striking out six. Each pitcher walked one man.

As for runs, this gmae featured practically a deluge. South tallied all of its runs in the fourth inning on a mixture of walks, crazy outs, and singles by Fogel, Moan, and Jon Rosenberg.

Rosenberg, Rittenberg, and Stefve Tresca had hits in other innings for Douth's most productive day at bat in four games.

With two games to play it looks like the Lions are going to have trouble catching Concord - Carlisle and overhauling that team either for a share of the pennant or the pennant outright. But at least the Lions have a stake in their own future.

Concord is 13-1, South 12-2. The two clubs meet early in the week at Concord. It is a must game for South, and so is the last one versus Wayland. A win against Concord and then a loss to Wayland would negate the first. Two games , two wins. That's what the doctor orders this week.

St. Sebastian's Sports

St. Sebastian's boosted its record to 10-6 last week by splitting two games.

The Arrows creamed Lawrence Academy, 12-3 and lost to a hot Rivers club, 6-3.

The Newtonites dispatched Lawrence with a nine - run second and nailed the coffin shut with three more tallies in the third.

Everybody hit well. John Fish had a single and a double and two RBI's, and Kevin O'Malley and Bob Devaney also collected two hits each. Mark Canavan, Dan Connors, Joe White, and Tom Hurley each had one hit.

O'Malley pitched a solid five - hitter with just one walk in a technically sharp, if not overpowering game. He strick out three.

Rivers, which has won five of its last seven games, jumped on Mark Canavan for four runs in the first inning and made them stand up despite numerous threats.

St. Sebastian's managed just four hits off Gary Goss and scored all of its runs in the fifth inning. O'Malley, Canavan, Connors, and Bob Pagent had the hits for the Arrows.

—o—

The Arrow golf team won, 4-3 over Belmont Hill, last week.

Tennis Tips

By BUCKY ADAMS

During a lesson, most tennis professionals will teach a student the fundamentals, and the strategy of tennis. However, many pros overlook teaching the etiquette of the game. As a result, there are very few newcomers to tennis who actually know the proper way to behave on a tennis court. Here are a few rules that one should abide by when on a tennis court.

1. Dress code: Many clubs require that only white attire be worn on the courts. If you are not sure of the dress requirements, find out before you go out on the court. It is embarrassing to you, and to the people playing with you, when you're told that you can't play in your blue bathing suit. Other dress requirements may include: SMOOTH SOLED SNEAKERS (usually this is only required at clubs which have clay court surfaces), shirts being worn at all times, and special bumbers for metal rackets. Again, a simple call to the tennis pro, ahead of time, will help avoid embarrassing situations.

2. Court courtesy: Because most tennis courts are spaced closely together, you have to be careful not to disturb players on the courts surrounding you. There are approximately two times when you will have to interrupt play on another court. The first is when you must coss another court to get to your court. It is a good idea to wait until the end of a game before cutting through. Ask permission to cross before you do so. If you are playing doubles, then all four people in your group should cross at the same time. Do not walk through the court—run. The second time you may have to interrupt a match on a different court is when you hit a shot over there. Wait until they finish the point, then ask for the ball. Never run into somebody else's court for your ball.

3. Court conduct: Players should never shout on a tennis court. If you have to discuss something, come to the net to do so, rather than yell back and forth from the baseline. Profanity is not welcome at any tennis club. If you miss an easy shot, think it, but don't say it. Racket throwing, net slamming, and fence beating are unnecessary and unsportsmanlike.

Try to observe these rules and you will always be welcome on any tennis court.

Rezzuti All Star

Former Newton South High three - sport star Tommy Rezzuti was once again named to the Greater Boston League All - Star baseball team, last week.

Rezzuti, a 1969 graduate of South where he played football, hockey, and baseball, was selected to the first team as an outfielder, duplicating his performance of 1972.

This year for Northeastern, Rezzuti batted .308 in GBL play (after leading the league as a junior) and .325 in regular season play.

The Huskies compiled a 13-6-1 regular season mark to qualify as one of the four teams in the NCAA New England (District One) Regional.

South Lacrosse

There's no doubt about it, last week was the best week of the Newton South lacrosse team's season.

South scored identical 5-2 triumphs over Brookline and LaSalle Academy to run their previously woeful 1-8 record to a more respectable 3-8 mark.

The win over Brookline was a big upset. The visitors were highly regarded and ranked fifth in the Eastern Massachusetts Southern Division.

Brookline led 1-0 after the first quarter and 2-1 at the half, but the Lions exploded for three goals in the third quarter and added one in the fourth to put the contest away.

Mike McDonald was the spark, firing in two goals, and Bob Lent, Jeff Spinks, and Paul Pattison chipped in with singletons.

McDonald duplicated his effort against LaSalle and Lent, Paul Tormey, and Alan Reef contributed the other goals.

Our Lady's Baseball

Rather remarkably, Our Lady's High, which has been flirting with the .500 mark all season, has a chance to capture a post - season playoff spot.

The Lancers began the week with a 6-5 mark in the Catholic District League and an overall 7-7 record.

The team certainly did not look like a playoff team in its first encounter last week. The Lancers were blasted by Mission, a team one place behind them in the standings, 12-3.

Mission took control of a till - then closely - paayed game in the fourth inning. At the time it was 3-2 Mission, but the victors polished off Our Lady's with five runs in the fourth and three more in the fifth, although each team managed just five hits.

Our Lady's aided the Mission cause with 11 walks, eight of them compliments of loser Mike Terry.

Winning pitcher Marty McCauley struck out 12 men and scored three runs himself. Dave Crowley struck the most damaging blow for the winners, a three - run homer.

Dennis Cameron stroked two hits for the Newtonites, while John Moran, John Bartinelli, and Terry had one apiece.

Our Lady's much more resembled a tourney team in their second effort of the week, besting North Cambridge, 6-1 on Rick Paglia's two - hitter.

Paglia fanned seven and walked four and allowed the meaningless run in the sixth inning when his side had the game stashed away. A three - run outburst in the seventh insured that fact.

The Lancers supported Paglia capably, swatting nine hits. Moran and Bob Lord collected two each, and Paglia, Cameron, Gary Bearfield, and Bob Franchi took care of the others.

Things got even better as the week got older. On Thursday it dawned on the Lancers that they still had a chance to be playing baseball after this week.

St. Patrick's has the laegue crown sown up and had for quite a while. Likewise, Hudson Catholic was safely ensconced in the second spot. However, Hudson qualifies in a different section. That means the league's third - place team can make the tournament.

The same day the Lancers realized this possibility, they edged Immaculate, 3-2 to finish out their regular season at 8-6 in the league and 9-7 overall. For Our Lady's to make the tourney, though, Mission will have to lose its final two games. In the event of one Mission win there will be a playoff between the clubs.

Bearfield hurled a five - hitter with six strikeouts to give the Lancers the win over Immaculate. A two - run second gave Our Lady's the lead it never lost. Paglia tripled across both runs. The winning run was an unearned tally scored by Franchi.

First Democratic Rep Could Have Been Gallagher

By HARRY CROSBY

(The following is the second portion of Mr. Crosby's article on the Democratic party in Newton. The first segment of the story appeared in last week's Centennial section.)

It is difficult to identify the first Democratic State Representative from Newton, but it may have been James Gallagher, who failed many times before he succeeded. Irving Fishman, who was elected in 1970, is probably the first Democratic State Senator from Newton.

John J. Mitchell, a Democrat from Marlboro, represented Newton in Congress for a time when Marlboro was in the same district. Robert E. Luce was a Somerville Democrat but changed to Republican when he moved to Newton, to win as a Congressman.

Ethnic representation came slowly to Democrats in Newton. Long after Irish and French Catholics broke into politics, Alfred Guzzi, father of present State Representative Paul Guzzi, was the first Italian alderman. The first Jewish aldermen were Republicans. Eliot Cohen and Sidney Small, elected in 1967, were the first Jewish Democratic aldermen. In 1968, Matthew Jefferson became the first Black alderman.

Newton became broadly Democratic with the first John Kennedy campaigns. Herbert Regal, a Harvard graduate and eventually Chairman of the City Democratic Committee and School Committeeman, went to see how he could help John Kennedy. He was told that he and his lawyer and doctor friends should go back to Newton and work with the regular politicos, many of them the Irish and Italian Catholics who had been carrying the load for Democratic politics for so many years. This was an early example of the ethnic and professional coalition which has been characteristic of Newton Democrats.

For many years after it began in 1894, the Newton Democratic City Committee was dormant. Five committee people from each ward were elected and, as one worker put it, "only came out of the woodwork when it was time for the state convention where they selected the candidates for governor, senator and the rest." Recently, there has been a change, and the city and ward committees, now with thirty-five members on each, are becoming increasingly active.

One of the most active is the committee in Ward Seven (Newton Corner and Newton Centre) now headed by Constance Kantar. The committee meets each month, usually with 20-25 members present. Every meeting includes a report from a state representative and an alderman. Each meeting has a featured speaker who discusses such items as welfare, law and order, the Middlesex County Courthouse and cable television. The committee is so well organized and sends out so many letters that when a previous chairman went out of office Senator Edward Brooke sent a note to him commending the committee for its work.

State Representative David Mofenson is chairman of the City Committee; other officers are Constance Kantar, Alan Korman, Ethel Sheehan, Marie Fisher, Sue Schur and John Eller.

On the State Democratic Committee, Newton is represented by Betty Taymor, Jean Lecompte and Sanford Kowal. Jerome Grossman, who was on the Charter Commission, is a member of the National Committee.

A phenomenon which has been particularly characteristic of Democrats is an activist group working within the party structures. Such a group has been The Americans for Democratic Action, and two Newtonites, Gordon Martin and Betty Parnes, have been presidents of the state organization.

Pointedly non-partisan by its constitution, but inclining toward the liberal wing of the Democratic Party, the most recent local example of an activist group is the Newton Coalition for New Politics led, at the present time, by Ed Kovar and Mark Solomon. The Coalition grew out of the group which, headed by Victor Kumin, carried Newton for Eugene McCarthy. When the Democrats gained a majority on the Newton Board of Aldermen, one of them said, "We should send a thank-you note to Gene McCarthy," because of the work done by the Coalition. A Boston Globe reporter once referred to this group as the "best political workers in the state." Some of the most dedicated are George and Louise Hauser, Rosemary Samuels, Mike Tye, Johnny Scheff, Vigdon and Doris Teplitz, Anita Greenbaum, Hinda Magidson, Sue Berkeley, Fran Zamchek, Irma Fishman, Arthur and Judy Obermayer, Fred King, Janet Fox, Mike Malec, Marjory Arons, Mark White, Sylvia Wyman, Doug Perry, Marjorie Hellerstein, Harry Silverman and Louise Bielski.

It was a group of the Newton Coalition, cooperating with anti-war workers from Concord and Lincoln, who conceived a participation caucus in 1969 to recruit a Congressional candidate who could unseat a hawk incumbent. Arthur Obermayer nominated Father Robert F. Drinan, a Jesuit priest and Dean of Boston College Law School, and it was Drinan who was chosen by the 2500 members of the caucus. His supporters worked long hours licking stamps and knocking on doors, and ran what the Los Angeles Times called "the best-organized campaign ever conducted Democrats now have won almost all the elective positions in the city. In 1971, thirteen Democrats became "The New Majority" of the Board of Aldermen — — Joseph McDonnell, Andrew Magni, Peter Harrington, Tom Concannon, Ed Richmond, Matthew Jefferson, Richard Bullwinkle, Richard McGrath, Lois Pines, Sidney Small, Harry Crosby, David Cohen, and Eliot Cohen. Although city government is ostensibly non-partisan, Democrats understandably prefer leadership from people of like ideas, and they elected Eliot Cohen the first Democratic president and Peter Harrington vice-president, with the leadership of most of the important committees going to Democrats, including Finance, Franchise and License, Public Works, and Legislation and Rules. On the School Committee, Frank Frazier, Eleanor Rosenblum, Manuel Beckwith, Richard Douglas, Herbert Regal, and Dorothy Reichard are Democrats. State Representatives Lois Pines, David Mofensen, Peter Harrington and Paul Guzzi are all Democrats as are State Senator Irving Fishman and Governor's Councillor Herbert Connolly.

In general, the Democrats have stood for government action to achieve social improvement. However, when the urge is to stand still, there is only one way to do it, and conservatives have found it easy to coalesce. When the impulse is to change, there are many ways to do it, and Democrats often disagree. They disagreed on the construction of South and North High Schools. They disagreed on the leash law and fluoridation. They disagreed on NCDF, Freeport, low and middle-income and elderly housing. They disagreed on resolutions against the Vietnam War. They disagree on the recent redistricting of Newton for state representatives. Often they disrupt meetings with their angry outbursts.

This inability to unify has kept from their grasp the one final prize in Newton, the office of Mayor. Irving Fishman came close in 1969, losing by only 261 votes with another Democrat taking more than enough votes to keep him from winning. William Carmen came close in 1971, winning in seven out of eight wards, but he, too, lost votes to a Democratic rival, and a Republican won. Carmen has announced again, and his supporters are working for the unity which is the key to a Democratic victory.

The Democratic Party has been influential in the City of Newton Democratic candidates and elected officials who survive in Newton tend to be activist and liberal. Democratic aldermen have habitually supported open committee meetings and free access to information. Including lawyers, a woman, a teacher, a union member and businessmen, they come from a broad spectrum economically and professionally, giving representation to all facets of the city, in contrast to the Republicans, who are all lawyers or business officials. It is invariably Democratic aldermen who initiate the most resolutions and legislation.

The state senator and the four state representatives are an active, outspoken lot. Senator Irving Fishman specializes in banking and financial reform. David Mofenson has established a reputation for defending civil liberties, the juvenile courts. Paul Guzzi took a leadership role in recent election reform; he vigorously opposed encroachment on power of school committees. In a few months, Lois Pines has become known for her support for environmental protection and for equal rights for women, and Peter Harrington has taken a courageous position advocating amnesty and small-arms control.

Congressman Drinan, known first for his position against the Vietnam War, has received a 100 per cent rating from the ADA, League of Women Voters, United Auto Workers, United Steel Workers, Common Cause, and the Consumer Federation of America. His assessment in the Nader Report was one of the most flattering commendations given any Congressman.

They all conduct vigorous campaigns with substantial volunteer action. They all sponsor frequent meetings and hearings; all hold regular office hours for constituents. All offer opportunities for interns.

Recreation Notes . . .

Frisbee Finals Postponed Until Later

The Frisbee Finals scheduled for Dickinson Stadium Thursday, May 31, have been cancelled according to Senior Recreation Supervisor James E. Murphy.

Murphy says the Frisbee Finals will be rescheduled for late summer as part of the regular playground activities sponsored by the Newton Recreation Department.

The 1973 season for the International Division of the Newton Twi-Baseball League will begin play on Monday, June 4, at 6:15 p.m. when the Upper Falls Lions and the Waban Chiefs square off at the Lincoln Playground and Carson Post, A. L., meets the Totem Pole Braves at the Suburndale Playground.

Tuesday, June 5, at 6:15 p.m. it will be our Lady's vs. Post 440, A. L., at Cabot Park; Highlanders vs. Elks Red Sox at Albemarle and St. Bernard's vs. Newton Boys' Club at Lincoln Playground.

Wednesday, June 6, Post 440, A. L., plays the Boys' Club at Cabot Park and the Totem Pole Braves take on St Bernard's at the West Newton Common.

June 7 three games are scheduled: Waban Chiefs vs. Highlanders at the Highlands Playground, Oak Hill Cubs vs. Our Lady's at Albemarle and Upper Falls Lions vs. Carson Post, A. L., at Newton Centre Playground.

Friday, June 8, is open for postponed games while Saturday, June 9, the Elks Red Sox will play St. Bernard's at the West Newton Common.

In preparation for the opening of the playground season on Monday, June 25, the Newton Recreation Department will hold two orientation sessions for personnel who will supervise playground activity for the eight-week schedule.

Thursday, June 21, the orientation session will be held at the Mason-Rice School in Newton Centre beginning at 1:30 p.m. Friday, June 22, at the same location, the sessions will be held from 9 a.m. to noon and from 1 to 4 p.m.

The four playground districts include 27 play areas. Playgrounds in District 1 are Albemarle, Boyd, Cabot, Carr, Charlesbank, Hawthorn and Stearns. District 2, Auburndale, Burr, Franklin, Hamilton, River St., West Newton Common, Wellington, Williams and Warren. District 3, Burr Park, Highlands, Thompsonville, Ward and Newton Centre. District 4, Angier, Emerson, Hyde, Memorial, Richardson and Upper Falls.

In addition the Newton Recreation Department conducts two day camps for retarded children, one at the Peabody School and the other at the Mason-Rice School.

Recreation Supervisor Fran Towle says the seven-team Women's Softball League will kick off the 1973 season Sunday, June 3, at the Albemarle Playground, game time 4:30 p.m.

On the opening day there will be three games at Albemarle. Newton-Waltham Bank vs. Garden City Trust at 4:30 p.m.; Tony's Villa vs. Auburndale Gulf at 6:30 p.m. and NAA vs. Jesters at 8:30 p.m.

There are still some openings in the swim program, both at the Gath Pool at Albemarle and Crystal Lake. These openings are in the second sessions, July 16 to Aug. 3 and the third session, Aug. 6 — 24. Registrations will be accepted at either the pool or the lake scheduled to open tentatively on June 10. The actual opening depends upon the completion of repairs at both facilities.

Tryouts for the Girls' Suburban Basketball Team will be held at the Newton Centre Playground on Wednesday, June 6, at 7 p.m. This team is for girls 16 years and over.

Fran also emphasizes that the rosters for the Girls' City Basketball League are due Monday, June 4.

The final rosters must be turned in by the managers in the A, B and C Divisions of the Twi-Softball League on June 4, without exception warns Recreation Supervisor William J. Barry. They should be returned to him at the Recreation Department.

The Mini-Bike Program, providing the only supervised, safe and legal area in the city for their operation continues to expand. Darry says there are now 60 "regulars" using the three-track facility on Winchester St., Newton Highlands, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. each Saturday. There are also a number of newcomers each week.

The Recreation Department hopes to open its Summer Basketball League the first week in June. There will be two games a week at Cabot Park, one at 7:30 p.m. and the other under the lights.

The league is directed by Richard Maloney.

Recreation Supervisor Robert E. Doherty reports the National Division of the Twilight League met recently to get ready for the opening of League play the week of June 4.

The seven-team league will play at various playgrounds throughout the city. Each team will play an 18-game schdule.

Team and managers in the league for boys 16 to 18 are: Highlanders, Gary Mosca; Newton Centre, Steve Matloff and William Gorgone; Matthews Club, James Cokely; Newton Boys' Club, Mickey Boyajian; St. Bernard's, Thomas Pugliese and Jim Blake; Sid Small Club Russell Small and Upper Falls, John Bibbo and Bob Young.

Opening night, Wednesday, June 6, it will be Sid Small Club vs. Upper Falls at Upper Falls; Boys' Club vs. St. Bernard's at West Newton Common and the Matthews Club vs. Highlanders at the Highlands.

Friday, June 8, the schedule is Newton Centre vs. Boys' Club at Albemarle; Highlanders vs. Upper Falls and Upper Falls and and St. Bernard's vs. Matthews Club at Auburndale.

Two Finalists Chosen

Two fourth grade students from West Newton have been chosen finalists in the U. S. Environmental Protection Agency's (EPA) Elementary Education Ecology Poem and Poster Program.

John A. S. McGlennon, Regional EPA Administrator, announced that David Parmenter and David Alamo, both students at the Pierce School in West Newton, had been selected as finalists in the program which was carried on throughout the six New England states.

The program was initiated in February when the more than 4,000 elementary teachers who had registered to participate began a series of discussions and lectures relating to environmental matters. The students were then asked to prepare a poem, poster, or short story about the environment. The two best entries from each class were sent to EPA for judging.

A panel of judges representing various civic, social, cultural and environmental groups reviewed the more than 6,000 entries and selected 300 finalists and 30 meritorious achievement award winners. Each finalist will be sent certificates of recognition and each meritorious achievement award winner will be presented with a plaque at a ceremony later this spring.

McGlennon explained that the program was designed to bring about a greater awareness and concern for environmental problems at the elementary level.

"The results clearly illustrate that elementary school children possess a high degree of sensitivity and awareness for their environment as well as extraordinary artistic and imaginative capabilities," McGlennon added.

He concluded by stating that he hoped that this program will prove to be the catalyst for continuing opportunities for environmental studies at the elementary level.

Tango Packs Them In Despite Court's Stamp Of 'Revolting'

"The Last Tango in Pa. was rated "not obscene, jus revolting" by the courts in Washington. Critics all over the country have had varied reports to offer their readers.

The Boston Globe called it "flawed but fascinating" and described the picture as "scathing, explicit, foul-mouthed study of the brute beauty of sex between a despondent, 45-year-old wash-out and a flippant 20-year-old girl."

This critic scoffs at Pauline Kael's much publicized declaration that the movie is a genuine cinematic breakthrough, but he does find a few good things to say — such as "the cumulative experience of a terrified soul in search of itself, ending with bitter, bruising awareness."

Another critic saw the film as "nobody's masterpiece, neither of filmmaker Bertolucci nor performer Marlon Brando." And the adjectives that ran through the review varied from "fascinating," "elegant" and "romantic in its pictorial qualities" to "jarring," "obvious" and "non-fulfilling."

From my viewpoint it is an unexpectedly dull motion picture. There was one scene of deviate sex (edited out of the picture in certain parts of the world) which I viewed with distaste and tedium. Would it never end?

How will Boston receive "Last Tango" was a question asked of me by various interested persons, and with all the writing about the film, it does seem odd that no one is writing about the film's audience.

The first week at the Cheri Theatre in Boston, seating 526 people, the film took in $35,700, and the boxoffice has been holding close to this figure ever since.

The first week you couldn't buy seats for any performance; now the people who feel they must see this picture or die of embarrarrassment when their "in" friends ask them about it, can sneak in during the matinees. During nights and weekends it's "wall-to-wall people," to quote the diminutive Sack Theatres spokesman Nat Segaloff.

Once the colleges close in May, I suspect that there will be vacant seats during the early part of the week, even at night. What undergraduate at Harvard wants to go back to his small hamlet in South Dakota and confess he hasn't seen what is considered the most sensational film of the year? So part of the flood of people to the box office at the Cheri 3 Theatres have been young men and women who find status among their peers by paying the rather exorbitant $4.50 admittance.

If chided on charging so much, Ben Sack is apt to say, truthfully, "Tou'd pay $5 in New York."

People pay for what they want, and right now it's "The Last Tango in Paris."

True, not everyone can be persuaded to pay that much when one can get cinema entertainment of a different type in the two other theatres of the Cheri complex.

I asked Joe Sasso about the kind of patrons who attended the film. He said: "The most respectable we've had in a long time. Very well dressed. Very quiet. The kind you like to see at the boxoffice. The muggs are kept out, I suppose, by the $4.50 admission. Anyway, there is no trouble."

There is some diappointment, I could see for myself, when three young working men, straight from their construction job nearby, consulted regarding the high price. They departed without tickets.

"Maybe they would be disappointed anyway," said Sasso. "That's the only complaint we get. Lots of men think they are going to get a lot wilder sex and nudity than they see in the 'skin flick' or sexploitation district. They are not looking for 'art' and probably wouldn't care for such aesthetics."

There has been a lot written regarding whether "Last Tango" is art or pornography or a bit of both. I read with amusement various letters to out-of-town newspapers regarding self-appointed critics who decided to enlighten readers as to just what the picture does, or just what it purports to accomplish.

"A work of art with a scope much grander than the critic's set of standards," said one enthusiast. "Who cares about a defeated, seedy, 46-year-old jock whose wife does not respect him enough to find her lover outside the fleabag whorehouse they own?" fulminates another writer.

"Sex is an enormously powerful, even demonic force — not something cute and insignificant," comments a lady from Brooklyn.

I have naturally become interested in knowing what Bostonians think of the picture. But try as I might, I have not run across any friend who admits going to see the film. True, many of my women friends hate to spend that much money. But somebody has to be filling up the Cheri 3.

There are comments in plenty from people in the film trade, but they got into one of the few special previews. And a New York film director, who smacked down $5 a seat to entertain three of his associates, felt he could be absolutely frank in his opinion.

"I like pictures which are sensuous and erotic," he told me. "But this one is just nasty."

He admitted his chief press agent had different ideas. "I only wish my own film will make the money 'Tango' is getting," said my friend wistfully.

More questions answered by Mr. Sasso and Mr. Segaloff: No, there are no theatre parties as have gone to previous road show films; yes, women do see the picture alone, but usually they have a woman friend with them; yes, there is a large percentage of married couples at night audiences; no one has walked out with averted face during some of those explicit sex scenes.

And why does Maria Schneider, the female lead in the film, appear in certain scenes (front and rear) without clothes, while Marlon Brando keeps his nudity to an occasional rear view?

Could it be that Mr. Brando, in his 40's, is no longer an Apollo before the camera? Friends tell me he has pudgy tummy, and maybe Brando knows where to draw the line of revealment.

Cinema Review: State Of Siege

STATE OF SIEGE is the third picture in a series of political films by director Constantine Costa-Gavras. First came the much praised and much trophied "Z," about justice in Greece. Then came an attack on political trials in Communist-bloc Europe with "The Confession." Now this new picture is supposed to expose American involvement in an un-named Latin American country.

In that the plot follows the story of Daniel Mitrione, a specialist for the U. S. Agency for International Development who was assassinated by guerillas in Uruguay three years ago, the current film is an undisguised effort to attack American politics and economics.

I was a little shocked to see that the picture boldly declared that all the things on the screen actually occurred, instead of admitting that the plot merely had a large basis of truth.

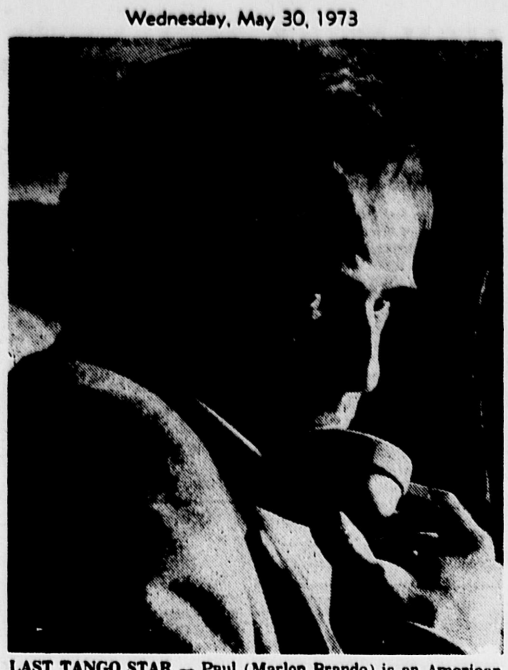
One of the "truths" which I find difficult to swallow is that police officials in South America go to the United States to be taught in a seminar how to torture political prisoners and how to blow them up.

One fault with the film is that it is hard to sympathize with the guerillas, known as Tupamaros, in their trial of the U. S. official Philip Michael Santore (played by Yves Montand). Disguised by brown hoods as they interrogate the captured capitalist representative, the young men and women remind me too much of Ku Klux Klan, South American style.

That Costa-Gavras is a top filmmaker must be conceded. That he is a worker in the cause of revolution has to be acknowledged. That he wants to denigrate capitalism as typified by the United States (and Santore) is proved by "State of Siege."

This is a political picture, making use of contrasts with the customary Costa-Gavras expertise, but astoundingly dull during the endless "examination" of the captive. Even a good actor like Yves Montand has uphill going to give his role color and mild excitement. In "Z" we all cared.

In this film we wish the story would come to its end so that the magnificent funeral services could be seen as the spectacular finale. We have already known that Santore has been killed for most of the picture.



LAST TANGO STAR — Paul (Marlon Brando) is an American widower engaged in an erotic affair with a young Parisian girl, in "Last Tango In Paris," a United Artists release.

Sports History

John Passarini Captured New England Trophy

By LEWIS FREEDMAN

(The following is a continuation of a story on the history of sports in Newton. The first segment ran in last week's Centennial section.)

WRESTLING

Wrestling became a varsity sport at Newton South for the 1962-63 season and the team hovered around the .500 mark for the first four years of its existence.

In 1966, the renaissance, first under George Winkler, and then continued by Aredis Kojoyian, began, and in the last seven years the grapplers have combined for a total record of 80-14-2.

Ten - win seasons became commonplace and the history of the sport was highlighted in 1970-71 by a 15-1 record and the runnerup trophy in both the Eastern Sectionals and the state championships.

That team scored more points (44) in the state meet than any previous squad, recorded the best finish in the states (second) and won more places in the states (five).

Individually, people like Steve Etkin, second in the state, 15-1, Bill Hurwitz, second and 12-0-2, John Frieze, third and 12-1-1, Mike Forman, third and 12-2, and Areman Kojoyian, son of the coach, fourth and 9-2-3, all shone that year.

John Passarini, one of South's most super athletes, is the only grappler in the history of the sport to capture the New England trophy. Mike Nathanson (1966) joined Passarini as a star on some of the earlier teams along with Richard Shain, Rich Bloom, and Dick Clemmens.

In the big years there was an overabundance of great wrestlers including Dave Sellinger, Rich Arduino, Larry Feldman, Bob and John Staulo, Dave and Gerry Berkowitz, Dave Lelchook, Paul Linn, Ned and Mike McDonald, Frank Vespa, Rich Hyman, Paul Murphy, Dave Hill, Mike Shockett, Lenny Adelman, Al Gird, Fred Virgilio, Paul Eisenberg, Paul Dumais, Neil Applebaum, Ted Todis, Dan Mendelson, Lou DiFazio, Russ Brooks, and Marty Levanthal. They were all stars.

GYMNASTICS

Gymnastics is the newest varsity sport at Newton South, and up until this season it had not enjoyed any success at all.

Tom Steeves, who has coached the squad from its birth in 1970 watched the team suffer with growing pains through 5-6 and 3-7 seasons before this winter's club blossomed to a 7-3 mark.

Andy Cohn, a solid all - around gymnast, was the Lions' first captain and best performer in their initial varsity season after one year with club status.

That first year the Lions were creamed by Newton High, 90.25 to 69.10, but since that time they have beaten the cross - town rivals twice in a row to become one of the few South teams to hold the advantage over the Tigers.

Albi Shapiro was the outstanding individual in the gymnasts' second year, but the team showed promise and most of its lettermen were returning for this year's campaign.

There were many stars this year as the forgotten winter sport came up with the best record among the five competing Lion teams to finish one win away from a berth in the state team competition.

Gary Framson, Mark Taricano, Bruce King, Mark Forte, and Jay Levine were all multi - event scorers and they got significant help from Dave Williams, John Pershe, Joe Duggan, Andy Sisson, Jeff Stone, Ed Gove, Larry Baruch, and Dave Spielman.

HOCKEY

Outside of a three - year period under coach Bill Jesdale in the mid - Sixties, there has not been too much to cheer about in Newton South's hockey history.

From 1966-69 the Lions were strong contenders for the Dual County League crown, compiling records of 7-5-2, 11-2-1, and 8-5-1.

The 1967-68 team was the best in Lion lore, and it earned the only tournament berth in the pucksters' history.

That year South featured an explosive offense and a superb defense. It was a veteran team, skating 12 seniors and just four underclassmen, and displayed the savvy earned by experience.

Defensively, South was fantastic, Gary Mescon and Brad Graham were great on defense, but the backbone of the team was goalie Dave Roberts (now Sports Information Director at Boston State College) who posted two shutouts, collected 225 saves, and allowed only 16 goals in 14 games for a 1.4 goals against average. Warren Ross, who saw action in parts of five games, posted an 0.80 average.

South rampaged through the first part o the schedule winning eight games and tying one to hold down undisputed possession of first place. South even manhandled champion Wayland, 4-2.

The Lions lost to Lynnfield, 3-2, in a tense encounter in their 10th game for their first loss. Then they recorded three more wins in a row.

The second win of the streak gave South its first tourney berth, a 4-1 decision over Bedford.

The third win, a 3-1 edging of Westwood, left South in a first - place tie with Wayland, a game in front of Lynnfield. A last - game win would have given South a title tie at least, but South was upended, 1-0 by Lynnfield, in a terrific defensive battle to finish third in the league.

The Lions were blasted, 10-0 by Melrose in their only appearance in the tournament, despite 55 saves by Roberts.

Tom Rezzuti, 6-6 defenseman Jack Dunnigan, Biff Wisner, and Roberts, were selections on the Dual County League all - stars.

Other leading players from the winning era were Jim Spinks, Jim O'Connor, and Ron Nelson.

Neil McPhee took over from Jesdale in 1969 and has had his troubles producing winners. The talent from the Thompsonville area of Newton, the chief supplier of players in the past, seems to have dried up, and the players coming to South now have less experience than before. McPhee believes there will be a long drought on hockey success until the city provides more facilities for youngsters to skate on and play hockey on. Until that time he foresees problems for South's icemen.

Stars from the lean years included Lou Wolfson, Clem Virgilio, Paul Modern, Bob Ronayne, Steve McElroy, Stan Mescon and Steve Owens.

SPRING BASEBALL

One sport Newton South has always been good in has been baseball. Of the major sports (football, basketball, hockey, baseball) this one has enjoyed the most success. There have been nine winning seasons in the 12 that the team has competed, and numerous championships.

The 1965 team compiled the best mark in school history, going 17-3 and capturing the Suburban League crown. The 1969 team was 13-6 and advanced to the quarterfinals of state competition, and in 1971 the team was 11-4 and won the Dual County League. Last year, despite an 11-3 mark, the South diamond nine finished third and couldn't compete in the state tournament.

Don Sutherland, who later moved to track, coached the baseball team through its first three seasons. He was succeeded by Paul Linscott in 1964 and Linscott in turn was followed by current coach Neil McPhee, who took over in 1969.

Star players throughout the baseball team's history have abounded. One of the chief reasons that South baseball has been so successful, (as well as Newton High) is because of the extensive Little League and summer programs offered to boys growing up in Newton. The two taken in combination, provide strong feeding grounds for the local high schools.

Bruce McLean's third varsity sport is the one he went on to the most success in after graduation. The hard - throwing hurler was All - Suburban as a pitcher as a senior and also batted .265, .298, and .380. After spending three years as a pitcher for Bowdoin College he signed a contract with the St. Louis Cardinals' organization. Bursitis forced him into an early retirement however.

Bob Kenney was an all - state pitcher who struck out 127 batters in 70 innings in his senior year, while recording a 7-2 slate. In one game he fanned 23 men. Kenney turned down a $100,000 bonus offer to go to Yale where he also excelled in baseball.

Dave Greenblatt was the backstop who caught Kenney, and he was a solid hitter as well as reliable receiver. Greenblatt continued his baseball career at Amherst College.

The star hurler on the championship squad of 1965 was Bob Geist. Geist was 6-2 with an ERA of 1.95 and won the decisive game in the battle for the pennant with Waltham High. He was second - team all - state and later played for Northeastern.

John Passarini was Geist's catcher and he batted .297 during that season. However, Passarini's big year was a year later when he swung for an incredible .467 average and was named All - Suburban.

Other stars from the early years were Jeff Sones, Steve Sones, Charlie and Frank Rezzuti, Dick Moses, Bruce Fitzpatrick and Mike Nathanson.

South's teams of the last few years have also been loaded with talent. The 1969 squad was paced by Tom Rezzuti, who batted .361 and led the team with 26 hits, 17 runs, and 15 stolen bases.

The chief strength of that team was its pitching and principally the arms of one righthander, Frank Hurvitz, and one lefthander, Jimmy Gamble.

Hurvitz, chosen as an All - Suburban hurler, finished 7-1, with 53 strikeouts in 58 innings and an earned run average of 1.45.

Gamble fanned 71 batters in 52 innings and tossed a no - hitter, one - hitter, and a two - hitter.

The success of the last two years' teams has not been so much because of the tremendous talent and overwhelming performances the Lions have received. It is because McPhee has trained his team and it is a smart, fundamentally sound unit.

Richie Learner, who was selected as an all - state catcher, was the dominant factor in South's 1971 success. Learner, who now attends UMass, batted .412, stroked 21 hits, stole 10 bases, and drove in 16 runs, as well as playing superb defense.

Sophomore Ric Voss, 3-1 with an 0.94 ERA was the leader of a strong mound staff. Voss, however, chose to give up the game the next season.

The 1972 team had little power, but featured good average hitters and strong pitching again. Regulars Ron Izen, .323, Elliot Lowe, .317, Robbie Shahon, .310, Noah Young, .290, Rich Hyman, .290, and Ned Moan, .272, plus part - time players Bill Cormier, .333, Steve Schertzer, .300, Tony Lombardo, .285, and Rich Izen, .285, gave South some pretty fancy averages.

Mark Fogel, 1-0, 0.72, Ken Lourie, 4-1, 1.54, Jim Kavanaugh, 2-0, 1.94, and Schertzer, 2-0, 2.75, plus a no - hitter, provided great pitching.

Other notables from the recent past include, Clem Virgilio, Dan Mendelson, Ken Stuart, Dave Roberts, Jack Dunnigan, and Emmons Levine.

OUTDOOR TRACK

John Parnell, the father of three outstanding athletes for Newton South, John Jr., Steve, and Nicky, was the original Newton South outdoor track coach.

The teams had a rough time in their first two years under Parnell, but at the same time Don Sutherland moved over from baseball, the best track talent in South history moved in. Sutherland's teams didn't have great winning records (in fact, the best team mark ever was 3-2.) but the team was a contender for the Class B crown and most of the schools records were set before he left on his three - year sabbatical to South America.

For three years South was in the top five teams in the Class B championships, in 1965 coming within one - half point of winning the title.

The real history of South outdoor track can be summed up in two words — Mark Young. Young, now an assistant to his old mentor Sutherland, was incredible at any distance.

Young is unquestionably the greatest runner ever to go near a Newton South uniform. He dashed a school record 21.9 in the 220, captured the New England 440 in 49.3, was the Class B mile and Massachusetts All - State mile champion in 4:25.1, and logged a 9:58 two - mile in his only try at the race. All are school records. He also ran the second fastest 880, 2:00.6, in his only try at that distance, anchored the school record half - mile relay team, and anchored the distance medley team which set a St. John's Relays mark which stood for years.

Young is in a class by himself when it comes to describing Newton South outdoor track.

One mark Young didn't touch was the 100 - dash record. Ricky Goldstein's 10.1 is the best there.

Soren Speatzeck - Olsen equalled Young's best 220 effort, and Steve Weisman was also strong in the event.

Bill Collins and Stan Dolberg are the other best quarter - milers.

Bill Bridge managed to keep the 880 record away from Young with his 1:59.8 standard. He later competed for Dartmouth.

Chuck Pottey is the only man to run respectable mile and two - mile times outdoors besides Young and Bridge.

Dave Peters, Dan Greenblatt and Andy Mann are the best 120 - yard and 180 - yard hurdlers in school history with most of the marks going to Peters.

The field events are not dominated by one man, and, in fact, no one has more than one record.

School record - holder Richard Green is the only javelin thrower of note. Stew Moss and Ray Friedn are the top shot - putters. And Areman Kojoyian and Charley Applestein are the leading discus throwers.

Jay King and Terry Crouch are the best pole vaulters the Lions ever had. The triple jump, the school's newest event has had just two record - holders, Ron Schneier (current) and Steve Sahl. Sahl owned the record for just two weeks.

Jeff Bergart and Steve Parnell, both state meet placers, are the springiest long - jumpers while Nick Parnell is unquestionably the best high - jumper with John Ariansor holding down a solid second.

Pine Manor Program Introduces Students To Needs of Retarded

Pine Manor Junior College, Children's Hospital Medical Center, and the Massachusetts Department of Mental Health have worked together for the past 12 weeks to introduce college students to the needs of mentally retarded children.

Pine Manor students have learned about developmental disabilities in weekly seminars given by the staff of the Children's Hospital Developmental Evaluation Clinic. They in turn worked six hours a week with eight mentally retarded children at the Department of Mental Health Region VI developmental day-care center located on the Pine Manor campus.

The developmental day-care center, co-ordinated by Dr. Herbert Needleman for the DMH and run by teacher Carol Silver, assisted by Delores la Fontane, David Tannenbaum, and Janet Schwartz, has been at Pine Manor since the Fall of 1971.

Pine Manor students worked with the children in the center as part of a child development course.

During the first year, it became clear that students needed substantial background to work with these children in a constructive way. With this in mind, Pine Manor Behavorial Sciences Department Chairman John Ried and Children's Hospital Developmental Evaluation staff member, Dr. Bruce Cushna and Mr. William Kiernan, jointly developed a classroom course dealing with developmental disabilities to be given in conjunction with the field work at the DMH developmental center.

According to Ried, "the course which we have worked out with Children's Hospital ahs brought together several important ingredients under a single roof— interested students, knowledgeable and experienced professionals, and developmentally disabled children. At Pine Manor we have had an increasing number of students interested in the problems associated with young children. Many of our students work with normal children in day-care centers in the Boston area. Some of our students have done special projects or independent studies with disabled children at Children's Hospital. This joint effort has enabled students to pursue these interests in a unique way."

Dr. Cushna notes, "we have had a special opportunity in the past few months to deepen the students' understanding of developmental limitations through both the classroom setting and in a practical way in the campus day-care center."

Carol Silver who teaches the children observes, "working with mentally retarded children instead of just learning about their problems from a book has been a very valuable experience for the students."

The course considered the problems of mental retardation, cerebral palsy and epilepsy as a life perspective from childhood through adulthood.

In addition, community resources and agencies which promote independence for the disabled individual were highlighted.

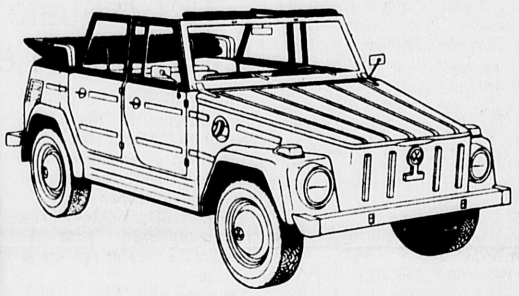
"The Thing" at Herb Anderson VW



"The Thing" a limited edition of VOLKSWAGEN is attracting a lot of attention in Herb Anderson VW Showroom.

Don Glaser, general manager, says: "There's no end of ways your 'Thing' can develop a personality all its own.

"You can settle it down to business or set it up for fun. All it takes is a do-it-yourself imagination.

"Starting at the top, you might opt for the hard top, or the surrey top, or no top at all.

"On with your goggles and scarf, down with the windshield, off with the side windows, fold the back seat for more stow-away space. For really wide open space, stow away the doors. (The Owner's Manual tells you how to make these quick changes.)

"Make it a dirt duster with a roll cage. Make it anti-glare with a painted hood panel. Jazz it with stripes. With flowers. With numbers.

"Paint it two-tone. Paint it three-tone. Make it yours. Do your own 'Thing'!"

V.A. Newsletter

Servicemen overseas will be briefed on their veterans benefits by military personal ffairs counselors rather than Veterans Administration representatives under a VA-Department of Defense agreement effective July 1.

Since 1967, VA counsellors have been stationed in nine overseas locations, and military hospitals and separation points in the United States, in an all - out informational effort. The so - called "Outreach" effort will be continued, but instead of briefing servicemen individually as in the past, VA experts will train military counsellors. VA will concentrate its efforts on those who have been discharged from military service.

During the five years of the VA - military counselling program, VA counsellors were stationed in Europe, Vietnam, Okinawa, Japan, Korea and aboard aircraft carriers in those areas. Almost two million servicemen received group briefings or personal interviews before returning to the United States. Three million additional servicemen "got the word" from VA counselors at 300 military separation points and 180 military hospitals. Advance application for veterans' benefits were also completed by the VA counselors.

The new counseling program stems from a recent law (P.L. 92-540) which places greater informational responsibility on military service branches.

VA said as the VA counselors now stationed overseas complete their tours, the new program will be phased in. The last VA specialist left Vietnam in December 1972. Those in Thailand, Japan, Korea, Okinawa and Europe are finishing their tours.

—o—

EDITOR'S NOTE — Veterans and their families are asking thousands of questions concerning the benefits their Government provides for them through the Veterans Administration. Below are some representative queries. Additional information may be obtained at any VA office.

Q — What is this work - study program for veterans I keep hearing about?

A — A program authorized under a recent law which allows the Veterans Administration to advance up to $250 in extra allowances to veterans enrolled in the agency's education programs. In return, the veteran agrees to work up to 100 hours for the agency.

Q — Is VA hiring its share of Vietnam Era veterans to help reduce unemployment among this group?

A — Yes. VA is a leader in this area. The more than 18,000 Vietnam Era veterans working as paid employees make up about 9½ per cent of the agency's total work force.

Q — Is there any truth to a statement I heard that the Veterans Administration touches the lives of nearly half of the U.S. population?

A — That's a fairly accurate statement. In fact, benefits and services the agency provides are potentially available to 47.1 per cent of our nation's population, either directly to veterans and surviving dependents, or indirectly to members of veterans' families.

WILSON ADDED

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Scott Wilson, who costarred in "In Cold Blood," has been added to the cast of "The Great Gatsby" starring Robert Redford and Mia Farrow.

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — One-hundred and sixteen pilot films for television series were made during the 1972-73 season with only 18 being chosen for network series for 1973-74.

"Mame"

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) —Don Porter, who has played Robert Redford's political opponent in "The Candidate," has been cast as the stuffy suburbanite in "Mame," starring Lucille Ball.

(Editor's Note — This column is published by the Boston Federal Executive Board. Please direct all queries to Boston Federal Executive Board, Rm 800, John F. Kennedy Federal Building, Boston, Ma. 02203.

Q. I'm forever getting unordered merchandise in the mail. It's generally junk that I have no use for.

A. The Boston Postal Inspector says write "return to sender" on package and mail it back or if you want go ahead and keep it. A recent federal law makes it illegal to send merchandise to anyone without his previous request or consent. Turn over any bills for this merchandise and dunning letters to the Federal Trade Commission Regional Office in the JFK Federal Bldg., Boston MA 02203.

Q. I have to move my family to the midwest where my job has deen transferred. Our furniture mover says it's OK for us to ship our household goods at the minimum responsibility of 60 cents per pound, per article. Will we be adequately covered in case of damage or loss?

A. The Interstate Commerce Commission at Boston says "No." The limitation rarely covers the actual value of a lost or damaged item. By declari a higher value, you pro for reimbursement for lo due to Acts of God and breakage or other damage to goods packed by the owner. At 60 cents per pound, per article, you would have to prove negligence by the mover to recover.

Q. I'm one of the so-called minority who has tried unsuccessfully to buy a house for my family in a suburban area. I hear a lot of hallabaloo about protection against discrimination in home-buying. Where is that protection?

A. The Boston Office of Housing and Urban Development stands ready to help. Call or write the Assistant Regional Administrator for Equal Opportunity at HUD, JFK Federal Building, Boston, MA 02203. His phone number is 617-223-4317.

Q. Our neighborhood supermarket advertised last week a special on center cut pork chops at 89 cents a pound. I went to get some the first day and was told they were all sold out that morning. Do we have any protection against such a practice?

A. The Federal Trade Commission says "very definitely, yes." Regulations require supermarkets to st sufficient quantities of i ms it advertises as specia to satisfy a reasonable d and. When confronte with "unavailable speci submit the facts to t FTC, JFK Federal Bldg., Boston, MA 02203.

Q. I'm mad as hell. A local furniture store denied my credit on a new bedroom suite because of information in my credit file. I have never failed to pay my bills promptly. How can I find out what is in the Credit Bureau files against me?

A. The Fair Credit Reporting Act gives you the right to examine the nature and substance of the information in your credit file. All information, except medical information and sources of investigative reports, is available to you at no charge. The credit bureau does not have to let you handle the file physically or supply you with copies of the file. You are entitled to a list of any parties other than the furniture store who were given information from your credit file.

Q. The food inflation squeeze has just about got me. I know some people who are getting help through the Food Stamp Program. Do I have to be on welfare to participate?

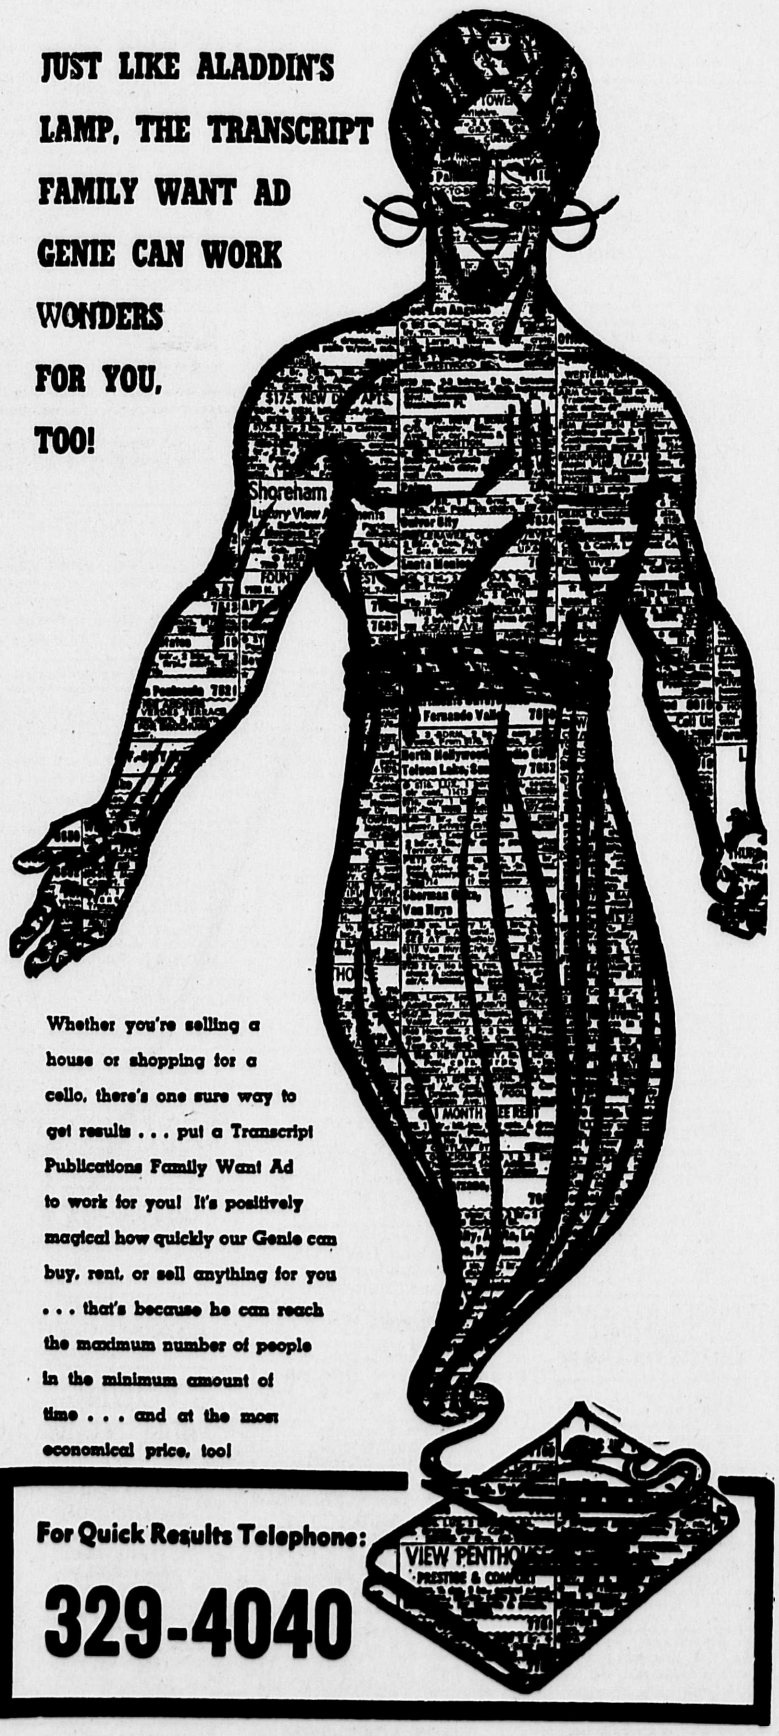
A. No. Lots of people living on low salaries, small pensions or social security, though not eligible for and not receiving welfare, are still eligible to receive food stamps. All communities do not have Food Stamp Programs. To apply contact your local Food St Office or Public Wel Office.

Q. I pres have four children attending public sch Between you and me, with my husband's modest earnings, I find that providing the daily lunch money for all four gets more and more difficult. I understand some families pay little or nothing for their children's meals at school.

A. The Food and Nutrition Service of the U.S. Department of Agriculture says "That's right!" Your children may well qualify for free or reduced price meals at school. Applications should be obtained from the school principal's office and returned there for evaluation. Eligibility is based solely on the size of the family and total family income.

Q. Summer is just around the corner and time to ask what is the best type of personal floatation device children and non-swimmers should wear while boating?

A. The Coast Guard says the best personal floatation device is the life preserver stamped or tagged with a U.S. Coast Guard approval. It should be worn at all times. The life preserver is colored a bright, highly visible Indian-orange color shade and should not be confused with a buoyant vest which may be in any color and generally contains less floatation material.



Nature's Ways

By WAYNE HANLEY
Mass. Audubon Society

Preventive medicine is eliminating a threat to dogs which caused many dog owners to support mosquito spraying.

The threat is heartworm disease, a debilitating and usually fatal disease that afflicts only dogs. The microfilariae (worms) which may eventually become adult heartworms are transmitted from dog to dog by mosquito bites. Veterinarians assure that the heartworm that lives in dogs never is a threat to humans.

Dogs can be given medicine which kill microfilariae before they can mature into adult heartworms. The medicine is administered at home, sometimes daily but depending upon the size of the dog. The medicine can be obtained only through veterinarians and must be used according to their directions.

Heartworms continued as a serious threat to dogs even though the period when spraying against mosquitos was rampant and much overdone. In the last six years during which the use of heartworm preventive medicine has increased, there are indicatons of a decline of the disease, Dr. Edgar W. Tucker of Concord, Mass., says. Dr. Tucker is a pioneer in heartworm treatment in the Northeast and was among the first to perform open heart surgery on dogs to remove the parasites.

While there may be several factors involved in an estimated 15 per cent decline in occurance of heartworm cases last year, Dr. Tucker believes that preventive treatment of dogs has been a significant factor.

Before treatment begins, a sample of blood from the dog is inspected by the veterinarian to determine whether microfilariae are present. If they are absent, preventive medicine — which comes in pill form — may be used. Since the life - cycle of the heartworm requires about eight months to progress from injection of microfilaria to adult heartworm which produces its own swarm of microfilariae, tests in New England ordinarily are made in June.

Best test results usually involve a blood sample taken in the evening after a dog has been fed. Because of this, many veterinarians have set up clinics on certain evenings when they take samples from several dogs. Test results are available in two days from most clinics.

Dosage of preventive medicine begins immediately after diagnosis that indicates the absence of microfilariae and continues through November. In southern states, the treatment must continue the year round.

Before preventive medicine heartworm failed to sweep through the dog population because a mosquito must carry microfilaria in its body 14 to 21 days before it reaches the stage in which it can be transmitted to a dog. Since mortality among mosquitos is high, many fail to survive the incubating period.

Adult heartworms live in the right ventricle of a dog's heart. They may eventually clog the artery leading to the lungs and cause death. Symptoms which may indicate heartworms are coughing, labored breathing and uncommon weakness in the dog.

Dogs which have heartworms can be treated successfully if the disease is not in advanced stages. The treatment, however, is lengthy and difficult.

Newton Symphony Taking Season Subscriptions Now

The Newton Symphony Orchestra has announced its 1973-1974 concert season and the opportunity to order subscriptions early.

In addition, the orchestra is offering one of its recordings, an all-Mozart celebration, for each order received before June 15.

The Sunday evening concert series, which opens on November 18, promises to be the most musically exciting yet in Newton's history.

The first concert will introduce one of the country's fastest rising virtuoso pianists, Tedd Joselson, who will perform in Prokofiev's celebrated Piano Concerto No. 2. Joselson will be making his debut with the Philadelphia Orchestra this season under the baton of Eugene Ormandy. Works of Mozart and Brahms will also be performed.

Another highlight of the season will be a concert on March 3, 1974, featuring Newton Symphony's Concertmaster Max Hobart. Hobart, a violinist with the Boston Symphony, will play solo violin in Busoni's Concerto for Violin and Orchestra. Ferruccio Busoni represents the paradox of a twentieth century composer acclaimed as the father of neoclassicism, a rare style for this period. Also included in this program will be pieces by Schoenberg and Dvorak.

The final concert on May 5, 1974, will present the New England Premiere of Die Klagenlied, Mahler's major work which marked the first bursting forth of this composer's sumptuous melodies and harmonies; a truly romantic explosion. The chorus will be announced.

To order your subscription for this Newton Symphony Orchestra 1973-1974 concert series conducted by Michael Sasson, write to: Mrs. Leo Stolbach, 56 Evelyn Road, Waban, MA 02168.

Subscription price for the three concerts is $9.

At the event, oils, watercolors, acrylics and charcoals as well as sculpture and crafts of all kinds — many for sale — will be displayed along the winding paths of the Common near Beacon, Tremont and Park streets.

June Art in the Park is cosponsored this year by the Mayor's Office of Cultural Affairs, the Boston Parks and Recreation Department and the Boston Phoenix.

The orchestra rehearses once a week and its membership, drawn from the city's elementary schools, auditions for places in the orchestra.

Throughout the year the orchestra performs for different schools and groups in the city. Occasionally the orchestra also joins the All-Newton Elementary School Chorus for a performance.

A wide variety of musical materials from the library's collection will be featured nearby and will be available for borrowing. The concert, beginning at 7:30 p.m. sharp, is free and open to the public.

The presentation will consist of a paper read by Dr. Hurwitz and a slide presentation of the Oak Hill and Claflin program by Mrs. Shapiro. The program, entitled "Art from a Laboratory" is centered about the use of a scientific laboratory environment as a basis for art activities which exercise the sense of fantasy and imagination, through a strong emphasis upon design.

Mrs. Shapiro will also teach the General Art Studio at the Peirce location of the Newton Creative Arts Center from July 2 to Aug. 3. Parents of fifth and sixth graders who are interested in having their children become acquainted with the program to be presented should call the art office for information and brochures. Brochures are also available in the various schools.

Dr. Hurwitz is U.S. delegate to INSEA and has attended previous conferences at Helsinki, Zagreb, and Coventry. This will be his third paper dealing with the art program of the Newton Public Schools.
